June will Bring Big Sales Here!

Everything points to a record breaking trade for us. We have the stock, we quote the prices, we draw the people, we sell the goods. And all this doesn't happen either.

Our pre-eminent position has been won by putting the best we know about dry goods retailing into the management of this business, by hard work, by moderate profits and by all times doing a little better for our customers than others would. We invite careful investigation of this store confident, all well posted buyers will find it a good place to trade.

Friday will hereafter be known as "Bargain Day" at this store, on which day we will offer the trade special inducements.

—In the article in last week's issue of this paper on the baccalaureate services the types made the editor say "self praise" when he wrote "self poise."

—Ethel Cook, aged eleven, of Charlevoix, is the happy possessor of five diplomas, having been neither absent nor tardy during the five years. Good record.

—The tramp who was captured in the act of taking money from the Dr. Lewis residence last week, has been bound over to circuit court, November term.

—Geo. Burns' Lindsay Park branch livery barn will be managed this year by Mr. Chas. Long. New rigs will be put in and the establishment kept in an up-to-date manner.

—Mr. and Mrs. Tom L. Robinson, of Atlanta, Ga., are expected here this week to remain some time as the guests of Mrs. Robinson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Bartholomew.

—Cordelia Preston died at the home of a sister in Vittoria, Ont., June 10. Miss Preston was an invalid sister of Mrs. S. M. See, of this place, with whom she lived for many years, her residence here dating from an early period.

—Married, at the M. E. parsonage June 10th, William Loore, of Eveline, and Mary M. Mosher, of South Arm. June 11th, Harvey Seaton to Rosa Duchene, both of South Arm; June 14, Joseph D. Webster, of Boyne City, and Gladys Manigold, of Bronson.

—J. G. Mosher, a Chicago attorney, has located in Charlevoix for the practice of his profession, and will probably occupy an office in the Harsha block. Mr. Mosher is a lawyer of experience, and has already invested in five acres of land north of town.

—From J. C. Bontecou, editor of the Petoskey Record, comes a special request that the members of the Grand Army Posts in Wexford and adjoining counties be urged to attend the annual encampment of the Department of Michigan, to be held at Petoskey, June 21 and 22.

—The Grand Traverse District Epworth League Convention, which meets in Charlevoix June 27th, 28th and 29th, promises to be an event of more than usual interest. Dr. John F. Ashley, president of Albion College, will be present and deliver an address, and a program of excellent merit is prepared.

—The village fathers at Thompsonville, evidently have a proper appreciation of the meaning of Memorial day, for when they learned that a public dance was to be held in the village on that day they hastily came together in special session and instructed the marshal to see that the dance was postponed until some other date, which was done. Very proper thing to do.

—The farm residence of W. C. Arnold, in Hayes, was destroyed by fire yesterday, with nearly all its contents. The men of the family were all away and very little was saved.

—It is reported by several of our exchanges from the lake shore counties in the western part of the state that present promises are for an abundant harvest of peaches, notwithstanding the doleful predictions that have been sent out relative to frozen trees and blighted buds.

—Married, at the residence of G. D. Wood, last evening, by Rev. A. E. Cook, Miss Minnie A. Gross, late superintendent of Charlevoix schools, to Ernest H. Miner, M. D. late of Milwaukee. Only a few friends were present at the ceremony. Dr. and Mrs. Miner, after a short visit with relatives, will reside at Traverse City.

—A correspondent to the Scientific American states that a lightning protector can be very cheaply arranged on a house or other building by simply nailing a few lengths of common barbed wire to the roof and bringing the ends to a point where they can be twisted around the iron pump of a driven well.

—Mesch & Son, the florists, have the contract for supplying the C. & W. M. parks at Charlevoix and Petoskey this year, and H. F. took a carload of plants to Petoskey Monday. This establishment is doing more business than ever this year. Next week they will give their attention to the Charlevoix lawns.

—The elegant "Pavilion" is almost completed, and the furniture and carpets are here. This fine house on Lake Michigan bluff will be a winner. A stairway has been built down the Bluff to the beach, and the grounds have been sodded. It affords one of the finest views to be had anywhere in this section. The house will be opened on or before July 1st.

—Willie Coatta, the young son of Wm. Coatta was drowned Friday evening. He was playing on a raft about thirty feet from the dock in the rear of Iddings' store, and fell off. Two boys who were near gave the alarm, but not until he had been on the bottom twenty minutes was the body recovered, when, of course, life was extinct. The funeral was from the Catholic church Sunday.

—Mrs. Kate Smith, wife of Dr. W. B. Smith, professor of mathematics in Tulane University, New Orleans, died at her cottage on the Charlevoix Summer Home grounds at eight o'clock Monday evening, of consumption. Mrs. Smith, who has been a regular summer visitor here for several years, arrived about two weeks ago, in the care of a sister. Prof. Smith had been summoned by wire, and was on his way here at the time of her death. The remains will be taken South to-day.

—Attorney William Alden Smith, of Grand Rapids, says the story of the union of the Flint & Pere Marquette, Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western and Chicago & West Michigan railroads, is correct in all its details. The new system will be called the Michigan & Pere Marquette throughout, and all other titles will be abandoned. It will operate a through line from Chicago to Port Huron. The new system has 2,000 miles of track. President Heald, of the G. R. & W. M., will probably be the chosen President of the consolidated lines. There is no Vanderbilt capital in it. Smith says the principal owners being the Boston syndicate.

—A Lansing dispatch says Land Commissioner French has made an order withdrawing from the market all the university and primary school lands belonging to the state. These lands have been held at the uniform price of $4 per acre, whereas, as a matter of fact, some of them are not worth 10 cents. The lands will be appraised and offered at prices which they are really worth. The state still has 171,264.53 acres of school land of which 4,256.02 acres in Cheboygan county, while in Emmet there are only 760 acres not disposed of.

—A cute sharper working the "short change" racket in postoffices hereabouts was captured in Petoskey yesterday and turned over to the U. S. Marshal. Monday he worked the Charlevoix postoffice to the tune of four dollars. He appeared at the stamp window and called for a quarter's worth of stamps, tendering a $20 bill therefor. Miss Ward made the change, and the thief expertly transferred a five dollar bill to his vest pocket, flashing a $1 bill and insisting that he had received it for a $5. It worked and the rogue departed. But a lady standing near saw the trick and told the clerk. A description of the man was sent to Petoskey where he was captured, after having tried the same thing there. He was also detected in working the same game at the Ellsworth postoffice Monday. The scoundrel will have to answer in U. S. Court.

—One of the things that demands the early attention of the common council is the restriction of steamboat whistling in this harbor. It has come to be a nuisance, and one that for two years or more has been grevious complained of by our summer visitors, but by many of our own people. Beginning at four o'clock in the morning it is a continual howl of fish tugs, towing tugs and mills, and from that hour sleep within a radius of two miles of the harbor is impossible. We advertise Charlevoix as the queen of all northern Michigan resorts, yet permit a nuisance that drives people away. We know of one case where a sickly summer guest removed to another town on account of it, and have heard many threats to follow the example. The Belvedere and the Inn are in close proximity to the harbor, and every howl of a steam whistle in Round Lake wakes up every nervous guest. And, as a matter of fact, it is useless. At Mackinac Island the whistling of steamboats is prohibited by ordinance. It should be in Charlevoix, excepting, of course, bridge signals or fire alarms. If we expect outside people to come here and stay the summer not, this, we must abate this nuisance. The Council should stop it.

THE MACCABEES.

he Cadillac Reunion a Stupendous Success—They Come to Charlevoix Next Year.

The big anniversary reunion of the Maccabees of Central and Northern Michigan at Cadillac last Friday was a big success, thousands being in attendance. The weather was beautiful. A dozen bands discoursed stirring music on the streets all day, and participated in the grand parade at 11 o'clock. This parade was one of the features of the celebration. Great camp and great hive officers led the procession, followed by visiting tents and hives, degree teams in full costume, and beautiful scenic floats. The parade was over an hour passing the reviewing stand. It was the most successful event ever held in this section of the state. The visiting bands gave an open-air concert in the city park from 1 to 2 o'clock, and the afternoon exercises were held on the High school grounds. Rev. N. S. Bradley delivered the invocation, and the president of the association, Hon. Perry F. Powers, addressed the assembled thousands. Addresses were also made by Great Lady Record Keeper Emma E. Bower, Past Great Commander Rowland Connor and Great Lady Commander Frances E. Burns. The addresses were excellent and were attentively listened to.

The Charlevoix Tent arrived home Saturday and marched down Bridge street behind the boys band, commander Prosser carrying a broom.

It meant that Charlevoix got what it went after—the next year's meeting at Charlevoix.

Officers of the association were elected as follows: President, H. L. Iddings, Charlevoix; vice president, R. A. Emrey, Charlevoix; secretary, Dr. L. B. Bartlett, Charlevoix; treasurer, David Prosser, Charlevoix; directors, G. S. Stanley, Cadillac, Edwin Churchill, Petoskey; Helen Palmer, Mt. Pleasant.

The event will be one of the biggest in the history of Charlevoix and Charlevoix will prove that no mistake was made.

TOOTH IN HIS LUNG.

HOOSIER COUGHER IT UP AFTER TWENTY YEARS.

Remarkable Experience of Travis Hatfield Supposed to be a Victim of the Mexican Drawn-Patterns Plant in Hope Township.

Joseph Hatfield of Marion, Ind., recently experienced the hardest coughing sufferer from an extension pain in the right side and a tickling sensation in the throat. He had been coughing for about an hour when he finally succeeded in dislodging the cause of his trouble. He had been in good health for years, and the cough had not bothered him much prior to this. The sensation of the cough was that of something in the throat, and he thought at first it was a piece of meat that had lodged there. He had been coughing for nearly half hour, when he finally succeeded in dislodging the cause of his trouble. Mr. Hatfield was sitting in a chair when the cough came on, and he had to lean over and hold a spittoon to his mouth to keep from soiling the floor. He had been coughing for about an hour when he finally succeeded in dislodging the cause of his trouble.

GUARDING BANKS.

Extraordinary Precautions to Make Watchmen Vigilant.

New York Sun: Some people think that time locks, burglar alarms and steel-barred windows, with a watchman awake or asleep inside, and the police outside, might afford protection in plenty for a bank. A visitor in a Chatham street pawnshop office the other day found that bank authorities do not hold to this opinion. The subject arrived when he entered the office that the manager seemed to be watching the clock with great anxiety. Without any warning the young man jumped up from his desk, grabbed his hat and dashed out. The stranger's curiosity was aroused, and he waited until the manager came back. "What was the matter?" he asked. "The bank watchman was testing me," he said, and then went on to explain the process. At every hour and half hour the watchman visits the bank, pushes a button that rang a bell in the manager's office. The button was at the rear of the bank. At a quarter before and a quarter after the hour he touched a button on the front of the bank that rang a bell in an entirely different pneumatic office. The bank manager of the telegraph office took down the time by the bank clock while the bell rang. If the bell at the back of the bank failed to ring within five minutes of the hour or half hour it was the duty of the manager of the office to make all speed to the bank. Where he got there he must actually see the watchman and speak to him. If within five minutes after reaching the bank he did not see the watchman, he was to call the police. If the manager failed to go to the bank promptly when it was his duty to do so, the watchman never cared him, consequently a record therefor. The object of having the bank connected with two manager offices was to insure the possibility of collusion between the watchmen and the manager. But this was not all. A certain watchman was also concerned. He was the regular porter of a cheap hotel, who explained to the amazed inquiry of the neighborhood, it was the duty of a police watchman at the front door every hour and time to go to the bank door and insert his trusty mate. Then there were burglar alarms on every window and door and roof. The manager sent to a brick officer and asked him whether all these precautions was enough to foil the robbers or robbers. "Nor for robberies," he said. "But for pickpockets. The fellows who come to break into this bank at night are smart. He has got the children there in his hand, and he knows it. Then too, we are sure to get the gold, and somebody in the building with the watchmen are kept so thoroughly awake that the money is preserved, theoretically, but we do not sleep much that."

Cable Wanted Only Left Them in Doubt a Moment.

A scientific Continentalian writes, with what sarcasm is described in a recent number of the Cyclopedia, a large super-Hoyle machine, which gave a wink into a young streak of lightning. A side was made transparent so it exhibited the doctor manipulate in the famous Bertrand manner of the operator. One day a party of friends and when the doctor was out, and had with either the opportunity surprising them with her knowledge of science. She was a very dignified woman of pretty presence, and, leading them into the office, she in her collaboration with all the conformity of a lecturer. Taking a smaller of the preliminary machine of the machine. And then, and having her hand upon one button, she theoretically gave from, to, and, whereupon an angry spark leaped out from the brass indicated, in a report like a pistol, and smote her upon the naked finger, causing her to jump to the ceiling and shake from the window panes. SPECTRAL BELL.

That Alarms Sailors Along the Coast of the Gulf.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and especially in the dissem coast along this section or the Gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a stuppenous from Mobile to the points who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different they say, from any other echo of the ocean and they sound the lonely that it seems positively as produced by waves. "It isn't water," said an old seafaring man, the other night, "and for that matter the sound has been heard on land. I know because I've listened to it myself. Back in '77, if you care to hear the story I will authorize for a while and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whitcher and we came to the sierra Madre range in North New Mexico on from an old prospecting of rotten quartz that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to stick about although it was the most God-forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was a little canyon a thousand miles from nowhere, only two weeks all around to and from, it was, nearly in name for 37. Only one where Whitcher was in the hole, and we at the windlass to haul the bell. It was clear as any voice, and sounded right near a mountain side where we knew there was no living being for three days journey. It rang a while and then stopped. Well, for it rang again, slow solemn and plaintive then over. It was weird, delightful that made the thing all the worse. We stood outside (this, for it is true, Whitcher stood a four hour and then Whitcher finished out of the hole and took left go. I was willing that there we had a good thing, but that spell of it was too much for us. It unnerve my best come to think about it even now."

AN OLD MAP OF PALESTINE.

Valuable Find Made in the British Museum.

A map that is claimed to prove of priceless benefit to biblical students and historians generally recently discovered hidden in the midst of a lot of musty, neglected lumber in the British museum. The map shows a code of Jerusalem built of the gold with ornaments and contains on and the city of every important place in Palestine. The Franciscan monks in the Marino Sanudo the date a Venetian historian who made six journeys to the Holy land in the twelfth century. His aim was to arouse the Christians of Europe to the importance of Palestine and to urge them to another crusade against the Moslem invaders who had captured Jerusalem in 638 under the command of Khalif Omar. The old map is carefully drawn to correspond to some sense of measurement which the discoverer have not yet been able to determine. Palestine is divided into eastern and western spaces in length and twenty-three in width. Many of the identifications of the places are of added interest and value, for instance, are letter placed in the map of the holy land. The map, of course is some hundred of years removed from the initial time of the Christ's life upon earth, but it is generally conceded that it represents some years than the world of today. Even the latest books issued on Palestine show very little knowledge of the actual sites of the holy places so that the map of the old Doge is declared to furnish light for a subject that is now at present only through a glass darkly.

SOAP-MAKING IN JAPAN.

The Domestic Industry Increasing Rapidly—Western Imported.

The demand for soap increases proportionately with the development of society, says the Japan Weekly Times. The aggregate value of soap consumed at present in this country is estimated at about 1,000,000 yen, according to the original cost fixed by the manufacturer. In early times the people depended on foreign supplies, and though the article was duly manufactured here, still a fictitious label in imitation of foreign soap had to be affixed to it ere it could find a sale in Japan. Now then, however, great improvements have been effected, and the value of the manufactures has considerably increased. At present Japanese soap rivals the imported article, both in quantity consumed and in quality. There are some sixty or seventy soap manufacturers in Tokyo, which supply the home demand, whose output aggregates in value to some 600,000 yen annually. Osaka manufactures is Osaka and Kobe also supply the demand for soap at home but also export it to Korea and China. But while as is evident, we need not any longer depend for the supply from abroad, in reality it is imported into this country, though not in large quantities. It is because the ingredients of soap being always the same, its manufacturing can scarcely finish it at a place. This soap is now in the market at prices varying from 7 sen to 1 yen or more apiece. But these prices have also to cover the expenditure on wrappers and fancy boxes. Perhaps there is nothing that so exemplifies the truth of the well-known adage, "Embellish your wares for sale" as soap. Customers do not merely buy it for the sake of its quality, but they desire it on account of the beautiful designs printed on the wrapping papers or boxes. Though such designs may be prepared in our country to some extent, yet those that cost to see or 1 yen a piece cannot be made here. This is not, however, a fault on the part of our manufacturers, because their inability to make such designs is entirely owing to the imperfect state of designing and printing industries in our country, and it would therefore not pay our soap manufacturers to prepare these embellishments for soap under the existing circumstances. This is the reason why we are still obliged to depend on the supply of soap from abroad, in spite of the prosperity of our soap manufacturing trade. There is another question that may be raised in connection with it. It is, why do we still depend on the foreign supply of common soap, for manufacture being so very easy? Because the foreign supplies it can be manufactured at a lower cost than home wares, we must depend on the supply of original material from abroad.

Speed.

The course which an earthquake runs is usually very rapid. The rumbling subterranean travels at the rate of about 10,000 to 11,000 feet per second, and the earth wave, on an average, about 1,000 feet in the same space of time. This is nothing, however, to the speed with which the rumor of a divorce lawsuit will spread.

Society of Glass Blowers.

Priedland boasts the most singular mutual protective society in the civilized world. In Anem recently a union was organized by seventeen camel poachers, a comprehensive set of rules being adopted. None but a recognized grave rider is eligible to membership. The convention decided that in the future the members of the union shall sell only to regular dealers, and then only at current market prices. The dealers will be required to contribute a certain amount of money each year to the union's treasury. The president report of the union is to supply the fam-ies of such poachers as are arrested and sent to prison. A resolution forbids all members from killing game in the closed seasons. The strangest being that the game laws must be enforced. The Netherlands code provides a fine of 100 florins, and a term of imprisonment for killing game out of season.

Genesis of the Newspaper.

The first newspaper of all, however, in the sense of a newspaper were issued, certain at a national government, which about 1500 B.C. At first they were simply written and sent exhibited to public inspection on payment of a small fee called a "gazette," whence the modern term "journal." Subsequently the demand made it necessary to print them. The first English newspaper of which we have positive evidence was the Weekly News, published in Nathaniel Butter in 1622. The English Mercurie of 1588 is a forgery. It was really printed about the middle of the eighteenth century.

Wire Stretching.

Berlin boys in Berlin are strictly forbidden to sell to school children books pitched with wire at several cents of blood, pilfering have been traced to peraltsee from rusty wire.

New Version of an Ancient Story.

A welcome variant on an ancient, ancient story comes from Alcohol, Ind. It is a young man, who stood smoking a cigar on the corner of a street in that city, there approaching the elderly and impertinent reformer of temperance legend. "How many times a day do you smoke?" asked the blunent meddler in other people's affairs. "Three," replied the youth, apparently as he could. Then the inquisitor continued, "How much do you pay for them?" "Ten cents each," rejoined the young man. "Don't you know, sir," continued the sage, "that if you would save that money by the time you are as old as I am you would own that big building on the corner?" "Do you own it?" inquired the smoker. "No," replied the old man. "Well, I do," said the young man.—New York Times.

An Attractive Charge.

"Yes, the colonel is going to Washington, and he's going to take me. He testifies in the land inquiry, you know." "Does he know anything about the land?" "Nothing. But we both want to go to Washington, and it's too good a chance to miss."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

This Year's Sales Small.

Only 1,800 pictures have been sent off for this year's Paris Salon, the average for years past having been over 5,000. The paintings sent to an artist jury are more numerous and not subject to examination being the number up to 1,384.

For the Kodacus.

"How do I keep my eyeglasses dark?" you said. "By rubbing perfume on them every morning. Perhaps it is the alcohol I smell on my, and I know is that it keeps them dark."

Wagner and the Gaiety.

At the excavation of Kaiser Wilhelm, Germany's Gigantic Monument, Richard Wagner is to be erected, beside the romantic good deal proud in the Berlin Tiergarten, the principal park of the German capital. The spot selected is to be in a circular form, and by subscription additions of statues of Mozart and Gluck, Beethoven and Haydn, Seven renowned artists have been invited to produce a model for the Wagner monument. A model is for the highest rather will make the award when all the models are presented. The funds for the purpose have been fully secured.

Curious Museum in Paris.

One of the curiosities of Paris little known to the general public is a unique museum to which are gathered all objects relating to the toilet. There include everything, from tattered ladies' skirts to valuable pearls, which are collected specially as long as they are connected with some incidents of the dance. The latest acquisition to the collection is a planter dancer of the feet of Miss Cissie. They were made for Lord Fife, is a cast of Hebe, and after she fourth for a mere baggatelle.

THE MINUTE MAN'S DAUGHTERS.

BY ELIZABETH ELIS.

CHAPTER VI.

Amid the earthquake of 1755, Ventajas, vanity of vanities, was swept into the dust-cloud. Gone with the dust-cloud went Gomez and the land speculator Gomez, like the dew in the sunny Sierra Morena, or the morning mist in Tamaulipas (Tamaulipas).

The following Sabbath morning the city found fortune with the earthquake of Saint Barbe, engaged in the pious task of burying its dead.

Not a church escaped the shock, not a house but had its share of the general ruin. Even the Cathedral, which was the pride of the city, was a heap of ruins, and the Bishop himself was crushed beneath the wreck of his palace.

Ten days later, Gomez, Gomez, Gomez, the land speculator, was seen in the streets of the city, and was hailed with joy by his creditors, who had lost their all in the earthquake, and who had heard that he was ruined, and had fled to Mexico to escape them.

Gomez was a shrewd man, and he had taken his precautions against the earthquake. He had sent his money to Mexico, and had followed it himself, and he was now ready to take advantage of the misfortune of his creditors, who had lost their all in the earthquake, and who had heard that he was ruined, and had fled to Mexico to escape them.

Midnight, Lake Superior, 1886! This Discourse in Tabernacle stirred one of the politics and religious of the country, and recommends that which has not yet been the approval of all who hope for the perpetuity of our republic and the welfare of other lands. Out, Gracious Lord, 14. This shall spread throughout the land and "O God!

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. S. ADAMS, COUNTY.

Dr. True, director of the office of Experiment Stations for the U. S., says in a letter published in the 1897 year book of agriculture, that nature teaching should be introduced in common schools, but no methods for the teaching of agriculture in the common schools had been found practicable.

The great object of teaching agriculture in school courses must ever be to acquaint students with the principles on which sound practice should be based and show the direction in which agricultural progress is going.

The art of agriculture is best learned on the farm. That is the place where the boy learns how to plow, plant and reap, and how to feed and care for stock.

It is true that at an agricultural college or other school where the farmer's boy may reside for a considerable period, he may learn new and better ways of doing those things than on his father's farm, but what chance is there that he can ever learn such things as a child in a common rural school where most of his time must necessarily be given to acquiring the rudiments of a general education?

There is every reason to believe that the plan of "nature teaching" as proposed by Cornell University and adopted by many other institutions of higher education, will prove a grand success, and be of very great benefit to farmers' children.

The element of education which is at present most lacking in our public schools is the training of the powers of observation. The child mind above all things to be taught to observe carefully and correctly and to state facts observed in clear and terse language.

The ordinary child, whether on the farm or in the town, actually sees comparatively little in the world about him.

The wonders of the trees and plants in park or meadow, of birds and insects flying about the house, float like shadowy visions before his eyes. He needs a teacher who can open his eyes and his mind on the realities among which his daily life is passed.

This accurate observation of natural objects and facts is the only foundation on which scientific attainment can rest. The scientist is chiefly a man who sees better than his fellow men.

Many farmers acquire much of this power by their own unaided efforts. And these are the very men who most regret that they did not have in early life the help of a trained teacher.

The farmer's child lives where he has the best opportunity for such training. It is such training that the child must crave. With it the school becomes a delightful place and the teacher an angel of light.

The leaflets sent out by our agricultural college show how vitally this subject is related to the art of agriculture, though it is not in itself the teaching of agriculture.

Some of our Charlevoix county teachers were taking pupils this spring, to show their pupils how the seeds germinate and how the buds of twigs develop into leaves and it is wonderful how much a child can learn about the way trees grow from simple materials.

It is not likely that a child who is thus taught will soon begin to set a new value and dignity on farm life, and to be less envious of the boy or girl who is fresh up from the narrow confines of city streets to spend the summer on the farm, and observe the processes or agriculture which turn purpose death and the foes with which agriculture has to contend, are not for them, invariably increased that he will be successful in managing matters so as to get the greatest favors from Mother Nature, the kind and proper Injuries.

Central Lake is enjoying a building boom this year. "The Tavern," a fine up-to-date hotel, has just been completed. McHuill & Richardson are erecting a fine brick block building, and three other brick blocks and a brick church are in course of construction. Several other buildings will be erected during the summer. That place has the finest spring water of any place in the world, piped to the houses, and the people are now after electric lights.

Grand Traverse Herald: Dan Whipple was a conspicuous character at the Old Settlers' meeting yesterday. Mr Whipple will be 100 years old if he lives until next March, and from present appearances he is likely to use a good many more birthdays. He lives on Leelanau county, about seven miles from the city, and thinks it a mere pastime to walk in and back the same day. Mr Whipple is the oldest living veteran in the whole country of the late civil war. He enlisted in the 1st Iowa infantry at the outbreak of the war and served under the utmost day call. He then enlisted in the 7th infantry and served through the whole war, having three honorable discharges. He was with the immortal General Lyon when that brave officer met his death. Mr. Whipple's father and grand father both fought in the war of 1812. When Mr. Whipple enlisted in 1861, he was asked his age and replied, "I am over 35." And he was but his 61 years did not daunt him, and his upright bearing and acutely tell the enlisting officers to believe he was not over 40 years old.

A Newspaper Trust.

A syndicate has just been formed in London with a capital of $1,000,000 to purchase the Sketch, the Illustrated London News, the English Illustrated Magazine, the Penny Illustrated Paper and the Lady's Pictorial. Shares to the amount of $750,000 will be offered to the public, $375,000 of which will be in ordinary stock paying 5 per cent, at a shifting premium, and $319,000 of 5 per cent bonds. It is believed that the shares will be taken up by the market, as all of these journals are the Newnes, Harmsworth and Pearson syndicates. Unless America has gone mad on the subject of trusts it is not believed conservative citizens that such a project in this country would be received with favor. However, this is a matter of opinion, and the only way its truth or falsity can be proven would be to make the attempt.—Fourth Estate.

KISSING THE FEET.

Roman Catholic Ceremony for Holy Week.

St. Peter's bronze foot on the famous bronze statue in the wonderful dome in Rome is not the only one that is kissed in the ritual of the Catholic Church. A ceremony on Maundy Thursday in the Westminster Protestant Cathedral by Cardinal Vaughn has given England a new topic for discussion for reason of its striking features. On that day the cardinal entered the office attired in sacred vestments and robes of violet and ermine. After a brief prayer and sermon at the altar of repose the cardinal divested himself of his robe and train and, girding himself with a towel, dropped to his knees and washed, "fed and kissed the right foot of thirteen old men. The men were in various stages of decrepitude, and they had bobbled or walked up the nave and climbed the altar steps laboriously. One of them had crawled up on all fours. All had removed their stockings, but their feet were draped in warm slippers. After the washing the cardinal rinsed his hands at the throne, and, being robed in his cope, said the Lord's Prayer. Resuming the habit in which he had entered the church, his train-bearer gathered up the trailing folds of the robe and, making choirboy visit to the altar of repose on the way, Cardinal Vaughn left the church.

The bishop, notwithstanding the occasion, did not neglect his official duties, and although not at home all of the day, those of the many callers who found him out were enabled to see him later. A number of beautiful floral tributes were sent at the bishop's home on Fountain street.

—About the entire "posh" of Charlevoix fishermen were arrested by deputy warden W. K. Brewster, Friday, for catching undersized white-fish, and each paid about $11 into the public treasury. The fishermen are growing over it, claiming that they use legal sized mesh, and the small fish get "gilled." But Saturday dailies had the following special, which settles the difficulty: "The commercial fishermen won a big fight in the house last night by passing the senate bill allowing the catching of undersized fish in gill nets of legal size. Scully and McMahon made strong pleas in behalf of the bill, which had already passed the senate."

Concerning the St. Joseph harbor contract of Fellows and Monroe, the Grand Rapids Herald says that William Sarsons and Chas. Gaffney, of Charlevoix, were the bondsmen of the contractors, and their names appear on the document, all being severally bound in the sum of $15,000. After the men who performed the work had become satisfied that Fellows & Monroe would not pay them, the matter was placed in the hands of an attorney, who subsequently received from Mr. Gaffney a letter stating that he did not recollect his whatever of signing any bonds whatever for Fellows & Monroe, and intimating that the signature purporting to be his was a forgery. Nothing further has been done about the matter until lately when it was brought to the notice of Secretary of War Alger, who has just written here saying that investigation by his department revealed the fact that the bonds were properly signed. Secretary Alger intends the attorneys having charge of the case to bring suit in the United States court at Grand Rapids against both the contractors and bondsmen, naming the United States government as plaintiff. Suit will be brought at once.

Harbard Notes.

A son has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Meggison.

E. J. Loomis, Principal Short-hand in the Rockford Business College, of Rockford, Ill., is visiting friends in Harbard.

There will be a basket picnic given by the Harbard Grange and neighborhood on Tuesday, June 27. A program has been arranged, consisting of a lot of speechmaking, good music, fine dance and games will be among the attractions. Everybody welcome.

AT THE HOTELS.

The Charlevoix Lakeside Will All Be Open Next Sunday.

CUT AT THE INN.

The Charlevoix Lakeside Will All Be Open Next Sunday.

CUT AT THE INN.

The Inn, Oldorn's big, beautiful Inn is all actively preparing for opening the 25th. Steward Terry is on the ground with manager Osborn and the chiefs of all departments, aided by a large force of men and women, and the premises are beginning to assume a summer appearance.

The casino is completed, and will add wonderfully to the attractiveness of this most beautiful place. The lower floor constitutes an auditorium, with stage and dressing rooms, and has a polished hardwood floor. The roof garden above will be a most elegant retreat. It is of the character of an embowered promenade. Seats are plentifully scattered through the aisle, while above, over the rafters ready grown vines will soon keep out the sunlight.

The new laundry is completed, and the machinery is being set up. In addition, the kitchen has been enlarged and many improvements added.

The Heald cottage is nearly done, and will be a very attractive addition to the grounds. The old Hunt residence, the only "ancient landmark" on Lindsay Park, has been thoroughly overhauled and transformed into a fine cottage with broad porches.

Many other attractions have been added to the grounds. "See-saw" boards and "merry-go-rounds" have been put in for the children, and about $200 has been expended in a lawn tennis court. The swimming pool will be in fine shape than ever. The inn will be the proper thing this year.

TOO MANY GUESTS.

The Charlevoix Lakeside Will All Be Open Next Sunday.

TOO MANY GUESTS.

The Charlevoix Lakeside will also be open next Sunday, and will be a winner from the start. It has a lake view that no other house possesses, and great taste has been displayed in every surrounding and interior appointment. The rooms are all neatly furnished, the furniture is up to the culinary department, which is to be the crowning feature of the house, is perfect. That the management of a body who inspects this fine establishment pronounces it perfect. That the enterprise demonstrated in this venture is sure to reap the reward no one doubts. A sunset smoke on that west veranda is the finest lake below and beyond is a dream of bliss.

Miss Lizzie Joliffe Passes Away.

Miss Lizzie Joliffe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Joliffe, of this place, passed away at her home yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, after a lingering illness, at the age of 22 years.

Miss Joliffe was a member of the M. E. church of this place, also the Legal Legion, under whose auspices the funeral services will be conducted at 10 a. m. Friday, at 10 o'clock on Thursday at 10 a. m. John Kagler, Whittman and McCartney officiating.

Miss Joliffe was a young woman of noble Christian character, and through having lived long here in her home, and many friends who will mourn at her

FARM LANDS

THE WINDOW OYSTER.

Queer Shell That Serves as Substitute for Glass in Manila.

In Manila, where there is an increasing demand for glass for the windows, the native has a queer substitute for glass. It is a brackish shell of about the bulk of surface, or thickness, that gets thin when it has been through it, and admitting a mellow light in a room where it is used, as a window glass. The shell is an adjunct of the bank, probably which, and in appearance resembles isinglass. This could almost imagine that it was some skillful invention of the native, could not the growth rings be readily observed. The outer side of the shell is perceptible rough while the exterior is perfectly glazed over, and in the light has the pearly luster found in many of the little-shelled sea-like mollusks of the tropics. The shell is the precious placenta of science, and is well known in China, the common name being the Chinese window oyster. It is employed there also for windows, and used in lanterns. The Chinese grind up the shell and make from it the silver paint so common in their native cabinets. The traveler is very common in the Philippines, and forms a very good and cheap substitute for glass; one that is extremely ingenious and suggestive of the value of shells.

THE MOONSHINER EXPLAINED.

A Georgia reviewer finds had a novel experience recently with a moonshiner in a remarked district.

Early one morning he discovered an old man shaking down a quarter in the moonlit garden.

But this reviewer also found grass was that the reviewer man has discovered smoke coming from the place where the moonshine should have been.

He surprised the old man who immediately fastened great interest in examining his pressure there, he explained that his brother was hurried there.

At the mention of his brother he forgoad great grief and said he "never would go over to Cousin Jim with a half dispensation of Providence."

"Don't you smoke?" said the reviewer also. "Yes! I use a stovepipe at the head of his grave, and smoke in some tobacco."

"Humph," replied the weeping moonshiner, "he died in the war, and bill's my cousin. Never mind, he hoeing down behind."—Atlanta Constitution.

How Children Lose Strength.

Dr. Seheleman, of the eye clinic in the University of Breslau, has compiled from the books of the institution 1,000 cases of injury to the eyes of children that resulted in blindness. He finds that more than twenty per cent of the accidents were caused by carelessness. The objects with which injuries were inflicted at play were as follows: Knives, seven cases; darts, three cases; sticks, four cases; fireworks, one case; slate pencils, two cases; cartridges, seven cases; and powder, three cases. About 15 per cent of the injuries were inflicted on companions by members of the same family, and about 10 per cent by the patient himself. The report of the author concludes with a warning against the use of sticks. Nearly one hundred cases of blindness were the result, it is said, of the practice of throwing sticks in playfulness or thoughtlessness. In some cases "Napoleon" the common pastime of some their children against their playmates, and in other cases the children themselves.

An Impertinent Youth.

Bismarck once agreed to sing a song at the Argus' church, New York city. He came in late, and, after directing himself of some overtoppings, tumbling over bought dollar, and exasperating the choir by trying his voice, he came to the conclusion that he was ready. By this time, however, the sermon had commenced, and Bismarck, standing in front of the choir railings and loud in accent, gave the attention of the preacher by shaking his head and giving a very good and clear imitation of a cow which was goading for some water. "Do you sing at sight? Stoops or pewsit? Stoops or pewsit? And the priest actually carried the question to the congregation the impatient tenor, who at once now rang the bell and left the church in the Bismarck and pacified the earth.—National Jeweler.

Oxygen Water.

A curiosity, at least, to the commonalty, is the oxygen bottle in the Medical Department of Berlin University, about 3,000 feet at its disposal. Prof. Ehrlich, of Berlin, Prof. Ehrlich, at Sonnenberg, near Minden, Prof. at Kissingen, Saxonia, 1,57 at Sperenberg, near Berlin, 1,300 which is only in the deepest in the world at Berl. Hungary, 3,182 in the United States there are water bottles at Saratoga, Lenox, Conn., 1,312 feet, at Louisville, 1,566, at Columbia, 1,779, at Charleston, S. C., 1,500.

Age of Bullet Dancers.

A German statistician has discovered that name dancers, in the ballet, are also age man about the average. Carlotta, will 17 years old, Carlotta Adelaide Pierrette is Taglioni was five 21 years old when she had her Paris debut, and was 24. Fanny Essler, well, she is 30 and still dancing at the Paris grand opera.

Chinese Wonders.

New York Mail and Express: The Bamboo earthquake in Chinese Tartary, in the Chinese Tartary, which has caused the loss of 10,000 lives, is a very serious one. While this is true of the yellow sediment from the red or yellow Hoang, which gives the Chinese name to both rivers and a high proportion of the Chinese in one of the Chinese provinces, the Chinese down town had a strange land beneath of the Chinese town which he obtained with great difficulty from a street urger that had come from the city part. Their streets are covered with wires for half mile, on which are a whole system. The wires are hung from pulleys, and when enough to the pulleys of a street car the driver's cries.

SOCIAL HINTS.

How to Make Your Guests Have a Good Time.

The social status of any family can be gauged most accurately by the person who answers the door bell, usually the doorkeeper. A distinctly unpleasant shock a stationary domestic, or what appears in bad, an footpad one. For the minions of the house behind to open the door when an appointed time has been completed to save or plunge into a sea of apologies is a confession of inexcusable social faux pas. The visitor who is received by a servant or unkempt rustic also receives an impression of the household that is fairly unbearable. Every wise would at inconvenient and disagreeable at home, while their husbands seem elsewhere in search of entertainment. If more wives realized that home should be superlative besides a clean place to eat and sleep in. Men are women's rival parties and stage show functions, but they like little dinner and supper parties. Many families refrain from entertaining because they cannot do so on an expensive scale. It is however, possible to give small dinners and suppers that are both enjoyable and inexpensive. Ask people who either do or will like each other, and if you wish the guests to have a good time have two at time from guests as women guests. It is more safe to have a good time. Books are that some of the women are bright and flattering. Men like to be flattered. Oh, yes, they do. One of the secrets of having food good is to serve all the hot food hot, and all the cold food cold. Always have very hot plates upon which to serve hot food. The stiffness so often experienced when people sit down upon other people whom they do not know very well can instantly be broken up by offering some sort of refreshments. The act of eating and drinking certainly relieves self-consciousness and renders all unnatural too unbraided. It Cocoa is popular very much whether it is other and fingering chocolate and wafers, a cup of tea and a biscuit, or what not, so long as it is something it adds charm, however, to have whatever is served brought in daffy and served daintily. One of the cereal ways to be a success "in company" is to try to get differently from each accustomed manner. If men's everyday manner is not good enough for a company, then it should be changed—but the most delightful company manner is the natural manner, when it is natural to be charming. One of the charms of an agreeable manner is to seem unaffected, another is to have something to say worth hearing, and to say it really and interestingly; another is to listen appreciatively when others speak.

BERNHARDT AS A GIRL.

The Divine Sarah a Wonder Even in Her Youth.

Just thirty years ago, says the New York Mail and Express, Colin Pottinger, in a letter to his wife, drew the following pen picture of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, then at the beginning of her career:

"A queer girl, indeed, is Sarah, it is the first time in my long career that I have met with a genuine actress, a woman whose soul is absorbed in art, elegant, sensitive, talented and bold.

"Nearly all the two hundred of my actresses she slipped to the dressing-room to see her as soon as I had finished, changed after her own fashion. She appeared from a velvet—a velvet dress, a velvet hat, a coat of black lace over her shoulders and a little ruffled collar. In this way with her hair like that of a poodle dog and with some fresh flowers in her hand, she resembles her pet, sweet, and wonderfully gracefully, accompanied with attitudes a la Raphael.

At the close of the act she pranced about like a ballet girl, skips upon one foot and throws down at the piano to accompany herself while singing a comic songs. She has a very sweet voice. Then she goes up and begins to walk about with long strides, like a man, and imitates to everybody's face and showing chocolate candy, with a mischievous and sly look. Her voice is filled. At times she takes out a little book of wax, and from that time a few minutes begins to work in winter. Prize flowers were required as tools to the men who preserved the dull odoures of the cabins. Some of the miners tool to air. "It's getting to be as bad to have as it was cumbersome work with ice and smoke back."

MUSICAL BOXES IN MANY FORMS.

The chief industry of Geneva is the manufacture of musical boxes. Thousands of men, women and children are employed in the factories, one of which was visited by a traveler, who gives some interesting particulars about his visit.

An attendant invited him to take a seat. He did so, and strains of delight the music came from the chair. He hung his hat on a rack and got his stick in the stand. Music came from both rack and stand. He wrote his name in the visitors' register, and on dipping his pen into the ink bottle blew forth from the inkstand.

The manager of the factory explained the process of making musical boxes, a business which requires patience and steady. The different parts are made by men who are experts in these parts, and who do nothing else, year in and year out.

The music is marked on the cylinder by a man who has served several years of apprenticeship. Another man inserts in the marked places pegs which have been filed to a uniform length. The comb, or set of teeth, which strikes the pegs and makes the sound, is arranged by a man who does nothing else. The cylinder is then revolved to see that every peg produces a proper tone.

The most delicate work of all is the revoicing of each peg. It is done by a workman who has a good ear for music. He sees that every peg is in its proper place and is kept at the revised right. When the instrument is in the hands an expert examiner. It so see that the time is perfect.

Antidote Against Stings.

According to Dr. Friedlander, of Wiesbaden, carbolic is an antidote against stings of insects. His plan in such cases is to apply a counter current and to place a negative cathode on the spot stung by the insect. Galvanization produces a rather strong sensation of burning but it is "amazing" time the pain from the sting disappears, and if the electricity is applied very soon after the wound has been inflicted there is little or no swelling. The current, however, does excellent service, even if it be not applied until after some time has elapsed, for it removes the pain and also quickly reduces the swelling. The supposition is that the poison which the insect has injected through the sting, is neutralized and rendered innocuous.

Hands Heron in Force.

A fashion for the pale yellow and rather washed-out looking horses that used to be called "Isabelles" and that are now dignified as "yellow roans" seems to be growing in the city. Promenaders on Fifth avenue have lately remarked several pairs of these peculiarly colored horses attached to broughams of fashionable persons, and yesterday in the park at least a dozen of these sandy horses were seen in single harness. There was also one pair attached to a light road rig, and another to a heavy road cart. The latter pair were very clever steppers, and at least one of the horses had much more than the average speed seen in horses that do not make for the Speedway. Two dark colored roadsters were seen in the park on the bridle path yesterday morning and there occasionally takes through the park a horseskin saddle that has an outside in keeping up with the procession on the upper boulevard.—New York Times.

A Cause Doing Time.

For a couple of years Count Friedrich Hohenthal has been staring idle and seek with the police, who are after him to make him faithful a two months sentence of prison for having grossly insulted a station official in the station of Gruenwald. The count had tried to escape his sentence by flight to the island of Rugen, but he has been captured, and during his two months in prison at Brandenburg. His case may be a warning to foreigners visiting Germany not to insult any one wearing a uniform for such are sacred, and carefully protected by the law.

Raising the Dead.

London Mail: The newspapers are commenting upon a reported case of Professor Tarnier, in which it said he restored a dead man to life by opening the thorax and massaging the heart. The report is naturally more startling to the lay mind than to the medical reader, for we all know that such certain chemic changes take place in vital tissues, that may be quickened and functionally dated beyond the possibility of resuscitation. Many physicians can recall cases of medical after apparent death, but conditions of artificial respiration, injections of stimulants or saline solutions, or some other measure of the kind, have sufficed in case to, nevertheless, if correctly applied, a nothing can, and may rank as a justifiable physiologic experiment on the human subject.

Female Bootblacks.

In Paris and other large towns in France female bootblacks are increasing in number. They wear a peculiar dark, and under that the Black, of Honor, which evident their association rather neat and attractive. But a few among them attempt to ply their work with gloved hands.

Musical Bottles.

Bottles of the pale yellow and rather washed-out looking horses that used to be called "Isabelles" and that are now dignified as "yellow roans" seems to be growing in the city. Fire Proof Cotton.

Cotton is a very inflammable substance, and the cotton factories are the most dangerous of all. Cotton is now being treated with a solution of tungstate of soda, which renders it fireproof. The cotton is first boiled in a solution of tungstate of soda, which renders it fireproof. The cotton is then dried and ready for use. The cotton is now being used in the factories of Lyons, France, and it is said to be very satisfactory.

Fire at Durham.

Correspondence London Inquirer: Intelligence has reached town of another powder mill in the neighborhood of Durham, which has been destroyed. Most of the inhabitants in the fashionable west end of London will view instances of the powders, in consequence of the new comers, the pills are fragrant, sweet, with vanilla, anise-seed, rose and rose, and they are sold in little round boxes like a fine boudoir-box. As to the method of using them, they are simply taken as sweetened. The woman of fashion slips one into her pocket, another in her glove, and a third is tossed away in her corsage. The unsuitable night lace for her a walking boudoir-box, and the opera-box. Her opera-box, girl knows better, the intermediate that the pills are not sugar coated, but sweet, scented, and that they are in proper substitute for the sachet bag. They give just that delicate perfume or fragrance desired by the women of refinement.

Old Furniture.

Perhaps the oldest suite of furniture in the world is owned by Joseph Bergin, of Middlebrook, in Hadleyard. For many years he has made it his boast that he collect the finest brass from fanciers of vintage magazine. His collection aggregates 1,000 brass. He offered a gilded cabinetmaker to equip a room with furniture made of these brass. The cabinet-maker, on a written order with sec. his appearing, a fire in a room, a chair, and other smaller articles. Though the brass was very simple, that are adjusted at inestimable that the process are fully as strong as the ordinary furniture.

Oldest Medical Recipe.

The oldest medical recipe is said by a French medical journal to be that of a man made five at Egyptian dates. It is dated 600 B. C.

For Eternal Youth.

Here is the polished remedy for infinite sleeplessness discovered by an Englishman who has suffered much by the same. "As soon as the speaker awakens prefer it up in a sitting position with pillows and smear its fingers with thick cream, warm. Then pat half a dozen fleshers into his hands, and baby will sit and pick the fleshers from one hand to the other until it falls asleep.

Silk Waists.

There is a new lot just here from New York, more beautiful than ever, made up to the very latest styles and at about 1 less than you would be asked to pay elsewhere. Here are some price hints to let you judge the values:

LOT 1 made of a good grade black china silk corded front and other lined through each $2.49

LOT 2 made of black taffeta silk lined through corded front and back $3.98.

Some stores sell a few things cheap and many things dear; other stores sell cheap one day in the week and dear the other five. This store is different. We sell everything at popular prices all the time. You don't have to be a good judge of values to get low prices here, nor come at any particular time. We believe we make just as much money as "the other fellow" by this policy, for while our prices are smaller our sales are unquestionably much larger than any other local dealer. We look up volume of sales for our profits. Our customers appreciate it, and you will too if you trade here.

CHARLEVOIX LETTER.

MY DEAR SENTINEL:

Having had Mr. Jerry Simpson lecture awarded him some as a compliment for having benefitted his constituent by getting and having had the money out of them, I came to the conclusion that we should be entertained by some other orator. I suggested to Onaka as well as a very strong expression of the benefits to be derived from having good county fairs. "Why said he, Mr. Van Pelt, any man who has anything to hold he market out hard as means to use hard with the mails so they can love, or will be when they are fully settled, as they can if left to their body when the roses are plain, and it seems very hard to me the everybody don't see it it is as plain as light." We are all of us. One thing about said meeting it does not detract, simply in changing a lot of men to be hard, paying our attention to the common thread, and making "many an honest every fine leaf, which with a short time from such pastime that with every resolution of a wheel, grow larger and larger because of the man taken on and turned to a hard piece of good read when it drips off, but great care should be taken to put the mud on evenly, and then the stones should be picked out and a good heavy roller used to pack it down hard, and a rain comes after where there is a slight depression in the road, it should be filled in with earth to bring it up to a level with the rest of the road. This is one of the places where a few extra dollars can be most profitably expended. We are not proven to be scientific road builders, but by using our good common sense, and the material we have at hand, we can make mighty good roads and I guess no one who saw my work done this fall in our township can say that the road was not the thing. I am pleased with this way so many Charlevoix folks speak of it. In the old way the ditches were the prominent feature and to me the other fellow, "I used to be opposed to it. I thought it would cost the most and that I would not get anything out of it, but I see I am getting better roads and I am starting in to be a good road tax payer, and sure enough the road tax is more than my road tax amounts to." So I go Jerry Simpson, and if we keep on for three years as we have the past year, we'll have a boulevard over the various Townships and Emporia. I'd like to say it would be Mackinaw Avenue, but my other last spring did not bring the results I looked for. However, I have the assurance that there are a number who will commence on the price the fall and next spring (this being the season) and then as may you have a Maplewood Avenue "Sure Shot?" I would advise those who do not commence in the fall to be planting to call on the party who put in such a lot of the neighbors one last fall and spring to get out trees in the Norwood country. Well, they went at it with a few teams and a few men, but as I understand, the women did the business, and that is why I advise all who contemplate the setting out of trees to call on the Ladies. And Sometimes I go into little tiffing for the ones who know that we are plot

BIRDS OF ILL OMEN.

SOME HAVE BEEN SO REGARDED FROM EARLY TIMES.

Bad Luck Does Not Seem Disposed to Leave Such Birds Long the Mentals Pass—Magpies, Roosters, Screech Owls and Storm Petrels Bad Weather.

Birds are general favorites, perfectly harmless except flies which have never been held in evil repute, moreover it would seem from a similar cause as that which is premised there never was a woman when of domestic habits or scared with the chatterings of witches, and rendered more attractive of appearance than birds. The owl and the raven are much given to following self-cast wakes in life, for instances in point. They have sent from remote ages been entertained as unlucky birds, birds of illomen, and so on.

The owl, says the Chicago News, was so blessed in early times that it was the first thing upon him the unlucky fowl shunned by man, and raised the wrecking cast. Virgil has spoken to this disposition by turns of the raven.

The bone upon an old sacred bough,
Hi ominous Prae ne'er, Jupiter.

Mantle Lucy has in one of his writings, alludes in very serious terms to the earth, and we can see about Pope, who heard poem for which he gives his name for this. The Romans we know had special officers, selected from the patrician class, and of whose duties it was to study the omens of the owl, the crows, and other birds, and thereby to foretell the future. Bunting, in "Hiolfhrae" has well set out this proceeding, which is also in Gibbon, but it seems, when an owl was seen within the city, the crowing the palace, the institutions to avert the impending misfortune, from doing so, or the country part, in Shakspeare the owl is always mentally shown. I, in and of course, the raven is followed by the "raven croaking at your eaves." The raven is from ancient times, and in the Middle Ages, an unmeaning appellation applied to a man, a person, a man, a person, a man, a person,

NEW NOSE

Made for a Little Girl by a Piece of Master Surgery.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Chicago Chronicle: Twelve-year-old Alva Brown will come from St. Joseph's hospital with an entirely new nose with which she can sniff or definitely say could before the accident which temporarily deprived her entirely of her natural nose. The operation, which was finally successful, was performed by Dr. Lovings, with the assistance of the hospital physicians. The doctors say that it was a most remarkable operation and that they do not know of an exactly similar one, even performed in this country or elsewhere.

Alva's accident was a fall which bumped her nose so seriously that it disappeared entirely, leaving a depression where the nose should be. The child suffered so much torture (and who, who is a doctor, does not?) it would be needless to attempt to describe her case which was complicated by her own flesh, skin and bone.

All the hospital's flap in her vicinity or in unused bone, lower and upper, nose and of the tissue and the nasal thread, being joined to it only at the tip of the flap. The stems, left of bone, together with the skin and flesh, was removed, and then the entire flap was twisted around so that it hung over the nostrils, place it was still attached to the forehead. The lower part of the portion removed was attached in the usual way to the bone grew together and gave it firmness and finally it was a good nose, suitable nose. The center of the portion upper lip was not and had to cut up in order to form the partition between the nostrils. The patient has now left the hospital. The nose she has is as good as that of any of her companions.

TWO LANGUAGES

Learned by a Smart Young Man While Teaching Another.

Brooklyn Citizen: I know a young American in New York who, a few years ago, after saving enough money to pay his passage across the Atlantic and studying French for a short time went to Paris, hired a room, and put up a card bearing the sonorous words the legend, "Teacher of the English Language." In a few days he got a pupil at the rate of one francs a week, for he did not know the language of his pupils; his father spoke no that he a few months he had four classes, and a class with 25 pupils, meeting in his rooms at different hours of the morning and the evening. His weekly income was 80 francs, or $16 about, and as time went he found he could do much more than he dreamed he could suppose. All this time he was practicing the French language by speaking to English and by talking with the pupils. At the end of the year he had a second dozen in his modest lodgings and. Meanwhile, he's a mistake, he took up some scraps of German, he attributed to his luck in one of the university cities on the banks. He then put out a small sign, hoping his name would be with "Professor of Spanish and French." He got Spanish pupils, he had to learn, and soon he was the only perfected himself in the German tongue, but with Spanish he knew Latin Greek at a classical academy. In less than three years from the time he left New York he came back to it, and took to be professor of ancient and modern languages, including the Sanscrit and Persian, in a famous American institution of learning. I would like to print his name in this place, but he says "Dear," as he himself is going to get out a book telling the whole story.

Magnetic Observatory in Russia.

The Russian Observatory at Nikolajewsk proves to be one of the most remarkable areas of magnetic disturbance known. Mr. Moulinier reports that the differences between simultaneous observations are so great that it is not possible to draw isomagnetic lines, and the magnetic force in the general of would be in the immediate vicinity of the magnetic poles. The one of the magnetic range from 40 to 70 degrees. At two places south of Nikolajewsk the declination is as much as 17 degrees, and the horizontal force 1 in the first place to half that. Nikolajewsk is 2,000 miles to east.

Gulls' Nest a Lantern.

Benjamin Aymar, who has just returned from Grand Manan, says he saw a bird perched on a rock, and quicked right underneath the overhanging of it to remove bird's nest. The bird was a gull, and the nest was made of twigs and the nest was lined with grass. The gull's nest was a lantern, for

ROBBERS GET $4,000.

BIND SIX EMPLOYES AND THEN CRACK SAFE.

Ten Masked Robbers Make a Daring Raid on Hildebrandt's Office Using Automobiles with Sixty-Mile Lead of Authorities in Alpena.

A gang of masked robbers pulled off the most daring robbery in the history of Alpena, when they entered the office of Hildebrandt's Parlor Frolic and other buildings in the early afternoon and made their escape in automobiles with a lead of sixty miles before any alarm could be given.

The robbers had been in the city for two days, it is said, and had laid their plans for the job to the last detail. They had two automobiles, one of which was used by the gang in their flight, and the other was left in the woods near an abandoned farm house to be used by the men who had been left behind to complete the work of looting the safe in the Hildebrandt office, after the main gang had made their escape. The stolen car was found in the woods by the workmen. The auto left had not come out of the woods where it was hidden, but it was thought that the men who had been left behind would have some trouble in getting away from the city, as the alarm had been given by telephone, and a posse was being organized to search all cars leaving the city.

The gang of robbers, ten in number, all masked and armed with guns, entered the Hildebrandt office at about 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and bound and gagged six employes, including the manager, Mr. Hildebrandt, and then ransacked the place for the safe, which they had no trouble in opening, as it was not locked. The robbers then left the place, and, jumping into the waiting automobile, headed for the city jail, where they released a prisoner they had brought with them from Detroit, and then headed for the Michigan Central station, where they had left one of their number to watch the station and report the departure of any officers who might be there. The station agent was held up and bound and gagged in the station, and the robbers then left in their automobile for the south, taking the road through Ossineke and Harrisville. They had a lead of about sixty miles when the alarm was given, and it is thought that they will have no trouble in reaching their destination in safety.

The robbers were masked, and no clue to their identity could be secured from the men who were held up. The men who were left in the city to complete the work of looting the safe were not discovered by the officers, who had been notified to be on the lookout for suspicious characters, and they had ample time to do their work before any alarm was given. The men who were left in the city had a room in a house on the south side, and it is thought that they had been in the city for several days, preparing for the job. The men who were left in the station had been there for several days, it is said, and had been in the employ of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad, and had left the station in charge of the agent, who was held up and robbed when the gang left town.

The men who were left in the city had been in the employ of the Michigan Central for some time, and had been in the city for several days, it is said, waiting for the job to be pulled off. The men who were left in the station had been there for several days

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Rapid City smoke the chances are good for a 400,000 wood shingle factory to locate there soon.

Mr. Hartg Dwell, who for the past two years has been in charge of the Boyne City Public Schools, leaves to-day for New Buffalo, Mich., where he will enter the practice of law.

At Central Lake, not content with having earned a name, the people of the village school have gone in for a school library and opened the campaign last Friday night by an entertainment which netted one hundred dollars.

The belief that all the quail and partridge in northern Michigan were killed by the severe weather in February is unfounded. While many of the birds succumbed to the continued cold and lack of food remaining therefrom, there are still many left.

East Jordan Enterprise. Secretary Simpson was up from Charlevoix Tuesday on matters pertaining to the coming county fair. He is certain that it will be the biggest and best gathering of the kind in this part of the state this fall, or at least that no effort will be spared to make it such.

Traverse City Herald: The schooner Harvey Hanson brought a cargo of pine lumber from the Beaver Island mills day for the J. R. Credle Co. and took back a load of sash, doors and building materials. The J. H. Dodge Co. has brought quite a supply of pine lumber on the Beaver and the Hanson will make several trips before it is all delivered.

The fair grounds of the Antrim County Agricultural Society adjoining are to changed that one would scarcely know them. They have been completely used up several half bulkheads built at a great expense. The track is now receiving the finishing touches, and a competent judge pronounces it to be one of the best tracks in northern Michigan. A large grand stand will be erected.

East Jordan Enterprise: It is rumored that a party of capitalists from Chicago and Charlevoix, have bought the old Pine Lake Park Co. property for the purpose of erecting on the site a twenty thousand dollar hotel and resort park. If this be true why not keep the good work moving by the agitation of an East Jordan-Charlevoix railroad?

East Jordan Enterprise. Capt. I. Toward is struggling to build an addition to the public dock at the foot of Esterly street which it has leased for a term of five years, making a good waiting room for the use of passengers of the motion during the season and will have the whole so it will be more suitable than at present for either receiving or shipping freight, and especially for farm produce.

Traverse City Herald: Mr. E. H. Minor, who has recently located in this city, has taken unto himself a bride, in the person of Miss Minnie Gone, formerly superintendent of the schools at Charlevoix. The ceremony was performed in Charlevoix Tuesday and the doctor arrived in this city with his bride Wednesday. They will make their home in the present of the Hotel Whiting. While Dr. Minor has been in this city but a short time he has made many friends who will be pleased to welcome his bride and tender both the heartiest congratulations and best wishes for their future happiness.

Traverse City Herald: The Michigan Starch Company made their first purchase of potatoes this morning, and from now on they expect to buy a quantity of from 20,000 to 30,000 bushels of old potatoes to set the machinery with and convert it into starch. After the factory starts in the fall it will be kept running day and night for a year round. When the supply of potatoes is exhausted where starch will be manufactured for the balance of the year. The factory will be started with a capacity of 4000 bushels of potatoes per day but at any time within two weeks the capacity can be enlarged to 8000. For the present the potatoes will be stored in the basement and the farmers can drive to the sides and get rid of their load in about one minute if they desire. There will be room for thirty teams to unload at one time. The contract was let yesterday for a large compressor of Fairbanks' make. This is thought the boilers which will be used inside the building as well as the large ones outside. Jos Benoitais, of Charlevoix, has been awarded the contract for a dock 16 feet wide and 60 feet long. There will be two tracks on the dock leading to the factory, on which train cars provided with tanks will be used for loading and unloading beets. The dock will be used already for bringing potatoes from the small teams around the bay, but the largest boats will also be able to land here. Mr Benoitais will also put down a well 30 feet deep and 12 feet in diameter for use in manufacturing the starch. The factory will be of great benefit to the farmers as they will be sure of a market for all the potatoes they raise and 15c will have a tendency to keep the price more steady. The large and small potatoes will all be used and paid for at the same rate and the farmers can draw them during the coldest weather for it will not matter if they are frozen.

Council Proceedings.

At a special meeting of the council called by the president and for which a written notice was served on each member of the council by the Village clerk.

Every member answered to his name at roll call.

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with. Biggie Dugan was appointed special policeman and took the oath of office.

The bonds of J. H. Meseler with O. D. Wood and Levi Lewis was presented and after careful examination, approved.

The bonds bond of Mr. Osborn, with John O'Neil and Richard Shapton as sureties, was approved.

H. W. Lisson asked the council to construct a sewer opening into which a sewer from his hotel could empty.

On motion of trustee Cruikshank, which motion prevailed, it was agreed that the council should construct a sewer from a point about three feet west of the north west corner of the hotel and running along the north side of the center of Antrim street to Round Lake, Mr. Eastor to furnish the pipe.

The committee on fires and their prevention made a report, which was approved.

The following bills were reported by finance committee and allowed, by vote as follows: Ayes, Van Alsburg, Carpenter, Bedford, Madge, Cruikshank, and Hardy.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. S. CHEW, COM'R.

At a meeting of the Michigan Teachers' Reading Circle Board, held in Detroit, April 6th, 1899, the following books were adopted for the next year's course.

Curtis' "United States and Foreign Powers," Fiske's "Thomas and Matthew Arnold and their Influence on English Education," Eggleston's "The Hoosier School Boy."

The complete set of three volumes will be put up in a box and sold at $2 per set.

"Thomas and Matthew Arnold and their Influence on English Education" by Joshua Fitch, is the work on Pedagogy. In this work, biography has been left aside, and an exposition of the influence and opinions of Thomas and Matthew Arnold, the two most typical modern English Educators has been presented in a succinct and fascinating manner. Pedagogically, the lives and work of these two men are an inspiration to every teacher.

Some of the numerous subjects treated are: The Ideal School, Moral Evils in Public Schools, Dangers of School-boy Life, Moral Discipline, Home Influence, Moral Cowardice, The Associations of a Great School, School Traditions, Christian Education, Plan of School Work, School Sports and Athletics, Arnold's Estimate of a school, Formative studies, Grammar in the Elementary School, Elementary Science in the Schools, Elementary Latin and French, The Moral purpose in teaching History, Geography an adjunct to History, Uncertain Religious Teaching, The Bible in the School, The Teacher's Personal Cultivation, Competitive Examinations, Education in Citizenship, Public and Private schools, Continental Systems, General Educational Aims. Ohio had the Arnolds in its reading circle work last year and the superintendents and teachers are earnest in their endorsement of the book for reading circle use.

"United States and Foreign Powers," by Wm. E. Curtis, is a history of our diplomatic relations with foreign countries, and is the only book of its kind published. It treats of such important subjects as our diplomatic relations with Great Britain, the Bering Sea and Fisheries question, our relations with France, the purchase of Louisiana, our relations with Spain, the purchase of Florida, the recent troubles with Cuba, etc., diplomatic relations with Hawaii, the Inter-Oceanic Canal, and our diplomatic relations with every other country on the globe.

It shows the important work our Secretary of State, Ambassadors, Consuls, etc., have to perform, and is one of the greatest helps in teaching history, geography and civil government.

The "Hoosier School boy," by Eggleston, is an elementary book for the teacher to use in her school work, and is an only necessary to read the title of the book, any school girl read it, to convince you that it fills its mission.

We hope that the teachers of Charlevoix county will purchase this set of books. The benefits to be derived from reading the books and putting the lessons into practice will return to the teacher many fold.

We will have sets for sale at the County Institute, which will be held in Charlevoix, commencing August 21. In the meantime the books can be procured from the State secretary, C. E. Palmer Co., Lansper.

The renomination of President McKinley and Vice-President Hobart is being strongly advocated, among others, by Senator Platt, of New York. He says that all the criticism which has been rung at President McKinley cannot alter facts, and that the President has conducted in magnificent style the greatest and most decisive war of modern times, and "simply astonished the civil world" by the way in which he did it." This general satisfaction," said Senator Platt, "has had undoubted demonstration by the presidents reception wherever he has been. Without a shadow of a doubt he will be renominated and elected. The republican party is stronger than it ever was. Vice-President Hobart will be re-elected with McKinley. He is my choice for vice-president just as McKinley is for president." McKinley and Hobart make a strong good team and will be easy winners again, if nominated, as they will, in Chicago next year.

Marine Notes.

The schooner Peoria was partially hauled out Monday for minor repairs.

The good old propeller Fountain City, long ago the pride of the lakes, now lies a wreck in Sturgeon Bay.

The Manitou arrived Thursday, leaving 25 passengers here, and again Sunday and yesterday with more.

Owing to the poor frost crop this City or Grand Rapids will not be seen on the Boston Haven Chicago route. She will probably not be fitted out this season.

Hedda tug Sol. came in Sunday from Fox Island with the engine of the wrecked steamer Sibley. Capt. Reid will work on the Sibley a couple of weeks yet.

The steamer Tupinsler, Hamlin's new inland route boat, left yesterday for Cheboygan. She went out in gala nature, as pretty a little boat of her class as ever floated, and she is a Charlevoix product.

On or about July 1st, two incandescent lights, red above one white, will be placed at the sub-marine end of the west breakwater, Petoskey harbor. The lights will be suspended from a red iron post about 25 and 18 feet above the water line level. A small red lamp-house stands immediately in the rear of the post.

The Dalesman is temporarily under the command of Capt. O. E. Wilson, while Capt. Finnegan is fitting out the Illinois. The Illinois leaves Chicago for morrow, and the Pelosky will be turned over to her owners, the Hart Line people.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage given by Joseph Bashaw and Mary Bashaw, his wife, to Thomas Kirkland, dated the first day of December, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix on the 6th day of February, A. D. 1892, in Liber "A" of mortgages on page 1 of said County of Charlevoix, on which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Two Hundred Dollars, principal and interest and no suit or proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; and the power of sale contained in said mortgage having become operative by reason of such default; Notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Bridge Street Hotel, in the Village of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix, the undersigned will sell at public vendue, to the highest bidder, the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, with interest and the costs and expenses of foreclosure, as provided by law, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows: The East half of the Southeast quarter of the Southwest quarter of Section 36, in Township 34 North of Range 7 West, containing twenty acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Survey thereof, excepting therefrom the following described parcel: Commencing at the South quarter post of said Section 36, thence North 20 rods, thence West 20 rods, thence South 20 rods, thence East 20 rods to the place of beginning, containing two acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Survey thereof, excepting and reserving

NEW CHANNEL AND ISLANDS FOUND BY DELGICA.

Discoveries of the Expedition Lead to Conjecture that There Is an Antarctic Continent—Ship Within a Fortnight Of Capetown.

A dispatch from Mount Stanley, the Antarctic station Belgica has added the London Times, of the discovery of a channel and islands south of the Belgian expedition's winter quarters. The dispatch says: The Belgica has been successful in finding a channel and islands south of the winter quarters. The channel is about 20 miles long and 10 miles wide. The islands are from 1 to 3 miles in length. The channel and islands are covered with snow. The Belgica is now in the channel. The weather is fine and the sea is free from ice. The Belgica will probably be ready to leave for Capetown in a fortnight.

Discoveries of the expedition lead to conjecture that there is an Antarctic continent. Much interest is felt in the Belgica's return.

FALL KILLS MYSTERY

Mrs. Jones Slipping Overboard Unknown to Her Husband.

Captain M. S. Pomeroy of the steamer Superior, for the season of 1907, a native of the south shore, tells Fred Jones, his wife, and her husband, which throws all their mystery in that direction. The Fire Island was brought to port loaded with ore, and the captain's wife was found dead on the deck of her husband's vessel. The Jones's were said to have been married by the captain of her husband's vessel, which would account for her presence on board. The Jones's were married in Chicago, and the captain's wife was found dead on the deck of her husband's vessel

Algeo and His Mission.

General Russell A. Algeo, Secretary of War, and the alleged "favorite son" of the Wolverine State, has aroused no enthusiasm. He is an estimable gentleman, and there is nothing in his record to indicate that he is not a good citizen. Although he has been in office for the Michigan people since "Algeo is all right!" and he is all right so long as he minds his own business and does his duty fearlessly and honestly, he will be all right. But there is a wide gulf between the duties of the office he now holds and those he is expected to undertake as a candidate. "Blame the federal administration in Boston and let an American either in Lansing or Washington alone!"

Hon. J. W. Stimson, of Traverse City, who is candidate from the district of which this county is a part, was in Cadillac on Monday of this week. Those who followed the legislative course of Senator Milliken, will bear testimony with the News and Express that he sought to faithfully fulfill the trust reposed in him by the people of his district. He voted for all legislative measures to which our party was pledged, was active and efficient in all matters in which the interests of our state, and more especially the section of it which he represented, were involved, and was not induced by honeyed or imperious solicitations at any time to oppose him to his own best judgment. The record of the senate of 1897 would have been much better, had it had more such members as J. W. Milliken, of Cadillac.—News and Express.

In a course of an earnest and eloquent address to his company of rough riders at Las Vegas, New Mexico, last saturday, Colonel Roosevelt expressed himself as follows: "Where, on Big Bear Creek, I shot, yet he escaped down. If any difficulty seems greater than we expected it merely means that we shall meet a little more strength in overcoming it. I can't with pride the other day look both senators from California, who, on opposite political parties, joined in cursing the President, that California would stand like a rock behind him in seeing that there was no step back in the Philippines; and I can assure you of the spirit in the great state of which I have the honor to be the governor. We stand ready to give him whatever he needs in men, in money in put down the armed savagery to which we are opposed in the Philippines. We shall have no criticism on us, it does quickly, and whether it is put down quickly or not, he shall have our support to ever increasing measure until the last spark of resistance is dead. Gentlemen, I served out my term in Congress with Mr. Taylor. I know his mind. When I say for himself, I am sure I speak for almost every person and every, and their rights to all our world guaranteed but into the mouth that must be taught, with rough hand wear it is to make, was upon the American flag. There is no room and no want when we come to deal with questions of this kind."

Democrats and Expansionist.

Not only will the democrats have the words and deeds of Thomas Jefferson in opposition to their purposes, in case they shall decide to make anti expansion an issue of the presidential campaign of next year, but they will also be confronted by the vigorous and well expressed opinions of that other great democratic leader, Stephen A. Douglas. In an address on the subject of expansion, at Free Soil, Illinois, so far back as 1859, Mr. Douglas said:

"It is idle to tell me or you that we have territory enough. Our fathers supposed that we had enough when our territory extended to the Mississippi river, less a foot, since growth by our enterprise extended them that we needed more, and Louisiana, purchased from the west bank of the Mississippi, and the British possessions, was acquired. Then we acquired Oregon, then California and New Mexico. We have enough now for the present, but this is a young and growing nation. It assumes an elan on a life of boundless progress. We have been sixteen years, if the state progress that has distinguished this country for the last sixteen years continued, every foot of vacant land between this and the Pacific ocean, owned by the United States, will be covered. Will you not continue to increase at the end of fifteen years as well as now? I tell you gentlemen and friends, that as I read in the law of the nation's existence, You cannot limit this great republic by mere imaginary lines, saying thus far shall thou go and no further. Any one of you gentlemen would be foolish to sag in a sail, twelve years and that he is big enough and mad and grow any larger, and in order to prevent his growth, put a hoop around him to keep him to his present size. It would be the same thing to confine the hoop must burst and he rent asunder, or the child must die. So it would be with our great nation. With our natural increase growing with a rapidity unknown in any other part of the globe, with the idea of compressing that is flowing from depression to the old world to seek refuge in our country, there is a constant torrent pouring into this country that requires more land, more territory upon which to settle, and just as fast as our inhabitants and our country require additional territory in the north, in the south, or the islands of the ocean, I am for it."

It was formally and definitely announced yesterday that General Russell A. Alger, secretary of war, is positively in the race for the seat of Senator McMillan. Recent events have brought to light a bitter war between Senator McMillan and secretary which promised something interesting. That something is now a definite prospect. Secretary Alger announces that he is in the race for senator to stay, and Senator McMillan, knowing that secretary Alger was getting ready with determination, determination to contest his rights to senatorial honors has not been idle. He has the machinery which marks a great campaign has already been started with a vigor which indicates more than ordinary activity. Secretary Alger has lately traveled over a portion of the state to feel the pulse of the people. He appears satisfied with the diagnosis, and now comes the announcement that he is a candidate for the honors now borne by Senator McMillan. Secretary Alger is not alone in the fight. He has allied with him all the strength to be found in the ranks of the workers of government. Congress and the governor is open in his support of General Alger. The combination is apparent. The coming senatorial campaign will be the hottest that Michigan has fought of any in Michigan's history.

The crop report says of wheat: "During the last month the condition of wheat has continued to decline until, at the present time, we have one of the poorest crops of wheat known in the history of Michigan. Unless the crop had a fairly good start last fall, everything has been against it since. The extreme cold weather of last winter, if not materially in vitality, the exceedingly warm and dry days in April were and heavily and fatally. The Hessian fly has infested many fields in such great numbers that the crop is seriously injured. Had wheat been vigorous instead of sick it might have withstood the ravages of this insect, but with the crop having less vitality than usual and the fly more numerous than usual the result has been that, in many sections of the state, the crop is practically ruined.

THE MINUTE MAN'S DAUGHTERS.

BY ELIZABETH CLIFF.

CHAPTER IV.

"They have taken it and carried it away."

And yet I was in the time-lock prison years ago!

Or was it in the time-lock dream?

Shakespeare.

The week end sunshine having flattered with false hopes and so neither home nor Sally in London.

Aunt Rachel felt bound to herself with compunction at leaving Sally in London, and Dangerfield and Dangerfield, solicitors, were strong on the point of her return. Sally herself was very happy, being in a mood of thankfulness for her escape, and Aunt Rachel felt that, if she could only be left in peace, Mr. Mallowby would be sure to come round to her side. Mr. Mallowby was a kind man, and had proved his entire trustworthiness on a number of occasions.

So Aunt Rachel, with a sigh of relief, had written to Sally to say that she might stay in London for a fortnight longer, if she liked, and Sally had written back a letter full of thankfulness and affection, and had ended by saying that she would be home on the following Friday week, and that she would write to Mr. Mallowby herself, and explain to him the situation.

Aunt Rachel felt bound to confess to herself that, if Sally had been her own daughter, she would not have been so easily persuaded to let her go. But Sally was not her own daughter, and she was very fond of her, and had promised her sister-in-law to be a mother to her. Besides, Sally was a good girl, and had been very good to her, and she was very lonely without her, and it was very dull and lonely in the house, and she was very fond of

Marine Notes.

The steam yacht Filipino is in the waters of Washburn's yard for re-caulking.

The steamer Sunlight, at Harbor Springs, is here all this week, undergoing repairs to her boilers, at Bartlett's shop.

The steamer Hackley took a Traverse crowd to Fox Island on an excursion this week. As a consequence she made her leaves Island City Monday.

The good old steamer Petoskey was turned over to the Inter Lake people Friday, and will hereafter run between Green Bay and the soo, via the Lookey, Harbor Springs and Mackinac making two trips per week.

A telegram to the Chicago Ship-building company today says the new steamer Pioneer made the run from Lorington to Manistique at the rate of 17 miles per hour. This is considerably better than that been hoped for.

One of the failures in the dredging to the lighthouse-supply station was another week looking over the ground. The specifications provide for the dredging of a ship-lift 100 feet deep into the black sand of the Indian Ledge. Difficulties to be encountered this week, and it is expected that work can be commenced in the fall.

According to the Chicago Times-Herald the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transportation company purposes to run a line of steamers between Chicago, Milwaukee, Muskegon, Grand Haven, Ludington, Manistique, Marquette and Duluth, and a fleet of steamers will also be put on the Chicago and Duluth run.

The new steamship Illinois of the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. left port on her first trip at midnight Sunday night and she here on the early evening, and a great reception was planned. A super-crack the steamer Hackley won it hard and a big crowd gathered early to cheer her in. Several guns and pleasure craft accompanied the Hackley. At nine o'clock she could just be seen and the fleet gave it up, and came in. At 11 o'clock the beautiful steamship came with her searchlight illuminating the river and harbor. Those who were up say she is a grand craft. The delay was caused by a minor break in her machinery. Leave the second Hackley will come in quietly by the channel at 5:30 Tuesday morning and tied up at her dock, where she remained as home. She was visited by crowds of our people. The Illinois is a magnificent boat. Her interior finish and appointments are palatial, and viewed from the standpoint of marine architecture, she is a triumph in every line and design. In speed there is nothing on Lake Michigan that can pass her. Her compound engine light is at her water periods her to make the harbor nearly without the aid of a tug.

The "Night Hawk" is a beautiful bird, shy, cunning, and wonderful. So is the boat. The other whom it is to be so. [illegible]

Lewis growers who imagined that the potato bug had exterminated the late hard winter have been badly deceived. The potato bugs have come to the surface, and the indications are that there will be more potatoes raised at the old stand just summer as usual.

The C. & W. M. has contracted for the month completing the new track on the Antrim County Agricultural Society's fair grounds at Bellaire and consolidated Gauge for purposes for their fair September 25, 26 and 28.

Bills are out announcing an Orange celebration at Central Lake, Wednesday, July 12. Delegates from Antrim, Emmet and Charlevoix counties will assemble to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the House of Hanover, and a big time is hoped for.

The contractors of next year under the auspices of the Northern Michigan Odd Fellows Association will be held at Traverse City, the short Wednesday in June, 1900. The date and place of the next meeting were selected at an executive committee meeting held in Cheboygan last week.

Traverse City Record: There was another submarine explosion on the bay yesterday east of the G. R. & I. docks. It was not quite as heavy as the one about 20 feet and the concussion was vigorous and continued several minutes. Some people at first claimed to be over the spot at the time and they had a fight line for a few minutes. They have selected a portion of the old Mission farm, lying between Cedar street and spring street for the location of the new golf links.

Mr. Smith, former of the greens of the Kent county golf club, and a professional golfer, who summered from Grand Rapids last week to survey the grounds. The owners, who in all have been laid out. Lakes in the sea will a neat club house for the benefit of the players will be erected on the grounds, upon the hill.

The Chicago & West Michigan Railway company has begun the enlargement of a first wide spur track which, during the next 10 years will yield a carriage of 20,000,000 feet of lumber. The spur will extend from a point four miles north of Bellaire to a timber property owned by Smith & Hall. The tracks will be cut for the local Wood Dish company and Smith & Hall, of Traverse City. The spur will be completed in five weeks.

A Remarkable Village.

In New Jersey, within sight of Camden, is a most remarkable village. The houses are all constructed of cobbles with no lime in the mortar, it entirely the product from stones. This is so you can see from afar, even when the leaves of the trees hide most of the houses. Some of the houses have stood over 100 years, and are in good condition. The village is a very attractive one, and is a favorite place for artists to come and sketch.

Money for Water with Electricity.

In Ellsworth a method of measuring water through the agency of electricity is operated with much success. It is the invention of Mr. Nelson Dewey, of Ellsworth, and is said to have a great advantage over the old plan of measuring water with the aid of a dynamo. Instead of the water being measured with the aid of a dynamo, the water is measured with the aid of electricity. The water is measured in a tank of water containing 100 gal. of water, 50 gal. come, and a little one. The water tank and tube act as a load plate connected with the positive pole of a dynamo. Another similar plate is in the exhaust portion of the turbine, is connected with the negative pole. Thus a current of electricity can be passed through the water from one plate to the other. The current is proportional to the amount of water passing through the turbine and can be measured in small parcels of from one to a dozen. Mr. Dewey, who is the inventor, is a farmer living in Ellsworth. In a few months he will install a plant on his farm and test out the measuring device, so he can be completely.

The Wonderful Tobacco Product.

Although tobacco is known throughout the civilized world, it is only in the United States of America, where the native tobacco and cigarette plant grows, that the finest of the world's tobacco product of tobacco is now produced on the east coast of Sumatra. The total product is estimated at 1,000,000,000 pounds of which America produces 650,000,000, Cuba, a close rival, is credited the balance of all, produces only 60,000,000 pounds, being the exception in respect to quantity to the state of Kentucky, whose product is put at 185,000,000 pounds.

A Credit to the Cloth.

The Rev. H. W. Woodward, a Methodist minister of Goshland, Kan., makes the following endorsement in a local newspaper: "I want to inform the poor people of this town that I will not accept complimentaries to public entertainments or to socials, and when money is being raised for anything that is good for the people, do not pass me by, let the people say what they remained on my salary, the by salary be paid, and then if I play deadhead, dig me off."

Winter Teeth as Change.

Whether teeth from the damage of the Fifth Avenue. They are painted white and red, the red tooth being worth about twenty times as much as the white. The native carries his wooden tooth big mark, for red and white of his coinage forming a brilliant contrast to his black skin. A condition and carriage sight in the Fifth Avenue the newly married wife goes walking her husband with a dowry of whang teeth.

Fresh in the Malts.

Dr. Kenna City Star tells of a Kansas man who sent $1 to a New York druggist for a "malt cure for fresh malts." This is the recipe which she received: "Hammer the fresh malt until well in pieces, then place it in a tub of water and allow it to stand for the required time, which is about 24 hours. Then take the malt out and place it in a good, strong bag, and place it between two boards and put a weight on it to press out the water. Produce this treatment never fail to be thoroughly cured."

Building the Diamond Trust.

A hole in the right boot enabled a Kimberley workman in the diamond fields of South Africa to secrete and steal gems to the value of $221,000. These he succeeded in smuggling out piecemeal from a cabaret in King William's Town, in the extreme north of Africa, from which place both recently departed for Holland.

Experience of Finland.

The total population of Finland by the last official census—that of 1895—was 2,529,000 of whom, 2,170,000 were native Finns, 160,000 were Swedes resident in Finland, 7,000 were Russians (which is the official class of Russian merchants) and 1,200 were Lapanders.

An Interesting Test.

Fire authorities in Hamburg are to carry out some fortifications a new invention. Bombs are to be formed of a metallic shell designed to be attached to the nose of a shell when on the wrong side of the shell, and to the stone, to which to scoop out the earth.

Canada's Forests.

Canada has a forest area estimated at 1,250,000 square miles, or 800,000,000 acres, the largest forest area, so far as is known, would amounting to one-third of all country in the world. Its forest production is $15,000,000 annually.

Do You Pay Bills.

Mrs. Bills—Do your tradesmen say promptly? Mrs. Brown—They did at first, but, my dear—Why don't they now? Mrs. Brown—Well, we are on the same footing as the Smiths. Mrs. Bills—Why, how? Mrs. Brown—We owe them all.

Amazing Cattle Trading.

A Miller, in Pueblo, Mexico, recently sold, farming in southern Tamaulipas, a growing tapeworm. The horse herds were imported about 10 years ago, and now there are herds of horses and South Pacifics, and over 100 hundreds of swarthies born in California. Every few months the herds are stripped of their white pelages, each high selling price $50 north of Southern Australia. The birds are also sold to propagate a fine pair having brought $750 a time. The horse of the ranch requires forty-one days to run, leaving time to the surplus and the same time at night. The principal color of the horse is gray and long of the mane black, so that they appear on the horse for sitting on the spot corresponds with the time when running from earth, sun.

AN ENGLISH AUTHOR.

FAMOUS WRITER OF "ALICE IN WONDERLAND."

Years of the Humorist's Life Are Supposed to Have Been Smooth Sailing—Some Pleasantries of Some Writers Very Obnoxious to Others.

S. D. Collingwood, a nephew of the author of "Alice in Wonderland," has collected, edited and published the letters of his uncle, Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, the Oxford professor of mathematics, under the pseudonym of Lewis Carroll.

It is only in the form and for the purpose of publication, on the part of the nephew, of a biography of the author, that the intimate correspondence with nearly the entire Alice world, including children of women of all ranks, was indefinitely authorized by the author, who died in 1898, leaving no relatives. Yet it was in some measure a promise, expressed by Dodgson, for instance, to some little or very young girl, that he would write her a letter or send her a book, or a photograph of himself, or a photograph of a picture, or some other trifle, that led to the publication of letters which, if it had not been for the promise, Dodgson would not have written, or, if he had written them, would not have sent, or, if he had sent them, would not have allowed to be published. Many of the letters, in fact, were written and sent under the impulse of the moment, and without any thought of publication, or even of preservation, on the part of the author. He was, in all the world, a most lovable man, and his letters, with the exception of a few, which, for the sake of his memory, we wish were not published, are charming. They are full of the spirit of the author of "Alice in Wonderland." Many of them are in the form of verse, and, in the case of the child, full of fun, and, in the case of the adult, full of the spirit of the author of "Alice in Wonderland." Alger Floats the Governor.

After the unceremonious ending of the political honeymoon of Governor Alger and Governor Pingree in the senatorial interest of the former man, Alger is out with a round Magnay without doubt, that he was requested with Pingree, in that he proposes to.

On the part of Pingree, the Governor of Gold has what Alger says that "a alliance exists; that he shall support Alger for the senate simply as a means of defeating Senator McMillan—that's all. He acknowledges that he said Gen. Alger had a connection in Detroit, to which place of political misery then Alger also confesses.

Pingree, on the same, says he voted for McKinley, and will support him again. If Mr. Pingree will support Mr. McKinley (Mr. McKinley appears to Mr. Pingree's standard of Republicanism) in other words, Mr. Pingree says—Mr. McKinley's idiot as the old woman kept hoist in Texas.

The situation, briefly stated—is, is stated by Alger who ought to know, company and is ashamed of it. Pingree is for Alger not for Alger's sake but for McMillan's demolition. The authority will be that neither McMillan nor Alger will be senator.

In the meantime, the prayers of the righteous sound that Pingreism may be speedily eliminated from Michigan Republicanism. Alger must hereafter or he will never enter the golden gate of Republican grace in Michigan so far as the leadership is concerned.

A thousand endorsements in the army per day show that the people are not opposed to Uncle Sam's doings in the Philippines.

The government is about to re-mint Hawaiian coin worth of good honest coin of Bryan does not get contact in action and put a stopper on the proceeding.

Everything that has been said in regard to the reported Pingree Alger combination and the Michigan governor's attitude toward the President was based upon a recently printed interview with Pingree. That having been totally repudiated, there is no necessity for a "take back" back chorus from the press.

Fractions of the season of Lake Michigan are reassuring to a person on the lake. Cleveland Aldo of the Weather Bureau, in the report of the season on water through the same Chicago drainage canal will have an appreciable effect upon the level of the lake. However, nobody has been badly frightened.

You listen to one sitcutie is not so closely wedded to his cheap money idea as to forget a chance to make himself with the most valuable metal when it presents itself. Oliver H. Kelley, who has made Jacob Coxey a hero to figure as a Bryan side show and senator Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee (Chicago platform) are among those who are trading for gold in Alaska, where they hope to find not Depeuia.

It is quite possible that the anti-imperialist of next year, in which both parties will aggressively partisan, will be somewhat weakened by the choice of the greatest of money organizations in the meantime. Trust stocks are not as tempting as they were a little while ago. It is possible the Democratic trust leaders do not suppose competition, and in this the president of promoters in investors will not be confined.

The Northwestern L. O. O. F. Association of Michigan, will hold their fourth annual meeting at Bellaire on Thursday, Aug. 17th.

High Hiller, who has the mail from Petoskey to Boyne City and Charlevoix for the last of four years, ended his last trip Monday and Wm. Bennett has taken it for the next four years.

East Jordan Herald: Tuesday night thieves broke into Hosmer Hoyt's house, down the lake, and stole the silverware, not even leaving a knife with which to cut breakfast.

J. J. Twohig, former prosecuting attorney of Grand Traverse county, recently left home with another woman than his wife and is said to be living with his guilty companion in Texas.

Charlevoix County Herald: Attorney John McLaughlin has a law that money cannot buy. Some time ago he "stole her soul" and the other day he "stole her quality home at the head of 20 little chicks. Can you beat it on expatriation, what is the?

One of the features of the Fourth of July parade at Traverse City was an ex-confederate soldier, who marched at the head of McClemens Post, G. A. R., by the side of the color bearer. It was John Robinson, who served three years under Gen. Hagge, he carried the Stars and Stripes and about him was wrapped the American flag. The spectacle of loyalty at once prompted the act created much enthusiasm.

The Kentucky Democratic convention endorsed the Chicago platform and endorsed the highest monetary standard. Some fools never learn anything—and even in the school of experience.

A battalion of Porto Ricans newly enlisted in the United States army helped celebrate the Fourth by firing upon U. S. Porto Rico has been on its good behavior ever since it became a dependency.

The men who are enlisting for the Philippines may never have read the proclamation of Edward, Attaxiom of Boston. But these recruits know their country, believe in its policies and are willing to come to its aid.

The democratic papers are making polemics out of the opinion expressed by Havemeyer, the sugar refining king, if. the tariff is the mother of trusts. Havemeyer is opposed to the tariff whenever it interferes with his sugar impounding operations. He is not opposed to trusts himself, but is a trustee Christian reformer on the tariff question.

The ever cheerful optimistic George Fred Williams rises to declare that there is room in the Democratic party for all the "reformers and fools" that ever happened, and he might have enlarged the capacity of his party so as to include the "knaves." The Democratic party is the greatest eleemosynary refuel for calamity howlers and crazy cranks that was ever constructed for the benefit of mankind or the gayety of the nation.

The discovery of gold in the Klondike region induced thousands of prospectors to leave the parts of Arctic winters to seek for the yellow metal in the river bottoms. A large amount of gold has been brought down from the north, and the output of the placer mines of Alaska and British Columbia will undoubtedly be continuous, and for some time to come quite copious. But the climate is so rigorous that the labor and suffering entailed in the search for gold will prevent the development of the Alaska gold deposits as fully as the California gold mines were worked after the rush of 1849. The acquisition of the Philippine islands by the United States has given the American miner a new field for the display of his energy. There is gold in the Philippine islands, and as soon as the insurrection is crushed, and law and order are restored, there will undoubtedly be a rush of miners into the hills and along the streams. Thomas Bayes Lick discusses the gold deposits of the Philippines in the current number of the Review of Reviews, and says that there is gold in the islands, but whether the deposits are rich or poor can only be determined by scientific investigation. The island of Mindoro gains its name from its gold deposits, mina de oro signifying "gold mine." The natives of this island carry gold about in bags and use it for barter. They report that certain sections of the interior of the island are rich in gold. This report, taken in connection with a remark by Mr. Lick that at present only the edges of the gold districts have, as a rule, been worked, will undoubtedly turn the eyes of American miners to the opportunities offered in our new possessions. If the Filipinos can get gold from the rock and sand by their crude methods, the American miners are sure to do it at the business end, and will not be impeded by such climatic conditions. Mining in the Philippines is, in the word, will be a business, not a sport, as it is in Alaska, where the sod must be thawed before the gold can be extracted.

The house of worship of the Methodists at Elk Rapids is the old county jail, which was purchased by the church society when the county seat was removed to Bellaire. The old cells have been in the building ever since until just a short time ago, when they were removed to make room for a church parlor and pastor's study.

The dead body of a man known in northern lumber camps as "Curly" Welch was found in a barn in a lonely portion of Kalkaska county this week. There were rumors of foul play, but it is thought generally that the man died from natural causes. He was a brother of Pat Walsh, of East Jordan.

Traverse City Record: The party of superintendents of public schools of Chicago, who visited this city last week in search of a location for a teachers' resort, returned yesterday from the north. They are favorably impressed with the surroundings of Traverse City, and yesterday they went to Northport on the steamer Crescent. They will look about that locality and also visit Eastport.

Traverse City Record: Capt. Joe Beaudrais is making rapid progress with the new dock of the Michigan Starch Co. and expects to have it finished inside of three weeks. When completed this will be the largest dock in the city, being 400 feet in length and extending 100 feet farther into the bay than the Hannah & Lay dock. The jetting process is adopted in driving the piles which enables rapid and effective work.

Kalkaska seems running to freaks this year. Township Clerk George Parker, of Kalkaska, has a calf which is one any other animal of the sort except that he kind. pointers resemblance of a bear. The hind legs are considerably shorter than the front ones, and the hind foot is wood out and is shaped like those of a bear. The little animal, which is bright and active, walks as far as its hind legs are concerned with the shuffling nothings of a bear. B. L. Briggs, or Westwood, Kalkaska county, also has a calf a week old which is another peculiar freak of nature, having a head something like that of a pug dog, with three nostrils distributed about in front of its bun-shaped head and an oatmeal neck which is neither colt nor, partly colt, colt-bear. The indications are that instead of two horns the animal will have but one, and that down the center of its forehead. The creature has but one pair of eyes. Aside from the bear-like looking head the animal is perfectly correct, taken in consideration in the usual way and is to say the least, a good curiosity.

MASKED KIDNAPERS MAKE OFF WITH CHILDREN.

Peculiar Circumstances Following Husband, at the Point of a Revolver, Shoots His Little Ones—First Half of Their Journey Reached.

Geneva (O.) Cor. Chicago Times: Jacob Taylor, from Brook Park, O., began in court here today a suit for the custody of his children. Six masked men held up his home last night and made off with his children. The children were taken from their beds in their night clothes and were not dressed when they were taken away. The children are Jacob, aged 7, and Dorothea, aged 5. The children were taken by a band of masked men who came to the door of the house and knocked. When Taylor opened the door he was confronted by a revolver and was ordered to put up his hands. He did so and was then ordered to dress and go with the men. He was then ordered to open the door of the room in which his children were sleeping and was ordered to bring them out. He was then ordered to put his children in the buggy and was then ordered to drive off with the men. He did so and was then ordered to drive on and was then fired upon by the men who had his children. He returned the fire with his revolver and the men then drove off. He then dressed himself and his wife and went to the house of his father, Jacob Taylor, and told his story. The children were not found at the home of their grandfather. The men who took the children were masked and their faces could not be seen. They wore long black coats and had their pantaloons tucked in their boots. They had a large black buggy with a large red wheel. The men had a large bay team. The occupants were in disguise.

SCHOOLS.

Proceedings of the Annual Meeting Held last Monday Evening.

At a regular meeting of school District No. 1, Charlevoix, Michigan, held at the central school building on the evening of July 10th, at 7:30 p. m., due proof of the posting of notices for said annual meeting being filed, the meeting was called to order by the director, A. D. Cruikshank. The Moderator not being present, on motion, Hon. A. Ballantyne was chosen chairman of the meeting pro tem, and served in that capacity until the Moderator, H. I. Iddings, appeared and took the chair.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and on motion approved as also were the minutes of the special meeting of the district held March 27th, 1899.

The report of the Treasurer being called for, it appeared through a misunderstanding his written report had been left with the director and was not at hand, but it appeared that the figures were the same as those given in the report of the secretary, and that the items had been carefully checked by the secretary and treasurer and found to agree.

On motion the treasurer was instructed to file his written report appearing with the business transacted with the report in the directors' office and be treated in all respects and considered as though it had been presented at the meeting and there read.

On motion of R. J. Sherrard the meeting proceeded to ballot for the election of a director to succeed R. J. Sherrard. W. Kane, whose term of office expired. The result of the ballot showed Mr. Sherrard had failed of W. Kane to succeed himself, and he was then and there declared duly elected to the office of director for three years from the date of this meeting.

Moved that the meeting proceed to ballot for the election of a trustee to succeed Hon. A. Ballantyne, whose term of office expired. Motion carried, ballot taken showing a majority vote in favor of Mr. Ballantyne, who was declared duly elected to himself for the term of three years from the date of this meeting.

Mr. Sherrard of placing a heating and ventilating system in the school building in place of the one now in use was then taken up, in accordance with the suggestion of the director, and the matter discussed at length.

Moved by Mr. Isaac Mantheys, supported by Mr. Hayden, that the matter of the selection of a project for heating apparatus be referred to the School Board, and they are hereby authorized and instructed to install a proper heating and ventilating apparatus in accordance with the vote of the district had at the special meeting held March 27th, 1899, and that the said Board be authorized to incur the obligations of said district bearing 5 per cent interest for the sum of $2,000, payable in four equal annual installments of $500 each.

Moved by A. W. Kane that the sum of one per cent on the assessed valuation of the district be raised for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the schools for the ensuing year. Motion carried unanimously.

Moved that the term of school for the ensuing year be nine months. Carried.

Annual School Report District No. 1.

To the Board of Education of School District No. 1 and the Electors, citizens and patrons of said school:

The Secretary of the Board of Education of said District begs leave to submit the following report relative to the Public schools of said District for the year just past.

It is evident that the annual number of school children of school age increases from year to year, that the district is increasing in population, and we congratulate ourselves that we have the advantages for the education of their children to the school in this district, which are today among the best in Northern Michigan.

The closing exercises of this year presented a most creditable appearance, meeting a high interest in all that pertains to education.

A large step was established in the schools of this district which is known as a Commercial Course, giving the pupils an opportunity to choose their course for graduation, either in the regular course prescribed by the Board and the laws of the State, or by taking the Commercial course and fitting themselves for a life time in the direct line for such a purpose as concerned for business life.

Some of the pupils have availed themselves of this course and have received most satisfactory results, and that the coming three years will evidence more continuance of growth in this, giving them some information as to the business methods necessary in a business life, and I have no doubt but better added by reason of that course to battle with a business world, many of our graduates are at work and business men of today were once in the same position of honorable life. The Board feels that this course should be continued.

You will notice by the notice posted for this meeting that an important motion that effects and concerns was to be brought before the meeting, the question of heating and ventilating this school building. The board has battled with this question for a number of years and has always postponed it because of the expense involved.

At our last meeting a resolution was adopted directing the board to place in said school building such heating appliances as they deemed necessary, but on account of the adverse in material, the expense is going to be much greater than originally noted, we desire to bring the matter before this annual meeting hoping for further instructions.

The apparatus that was placed in this school building for heating and ventilating has been condemned by every heating and ventilating concern that has examined it. Undersigned feel, especially in this business, have universally declared that the pile of brick and iron placed in the basement of this school to be one of the greatest frauds and complete nuisances that they have ever discovered in all their experience. We have consumed wood enough during the period of time that it has been in use, the price of which if thrown out of doors of the furnace throughout would be as if lining a two storied. We have no conception today of the amount of suffering that has been caused by reason of this inefficient and unscientific attempt at ventilation, and we feel it criminal if we would be perhaps an involuntary accomplice to the health of many of the children attending the schools. We therefore submit the question to this deferred meeting, and will give you all the evidence and information the board may be capable of in the discussion of the question.

We have received a large number of bids from different parties and different locations, for placing in the school heating and ventilating apparatus. They vary in their structure and methods in such an extent that it is hard to determine just what will be the best and most permanent system. There is quite a difference in prices, and also in the guarantees of these several systems.

We are very desirous of making the proper selection, consequently have taken all the time since our last meeting to investigate these several systems, desiring very much to make no mistake this time as to our heating and ventilating apparatus. For economy of efficiency both as to heating and ventilating, and the economy of fuel this little a figure in time necessitates and this question we would recommend which system is the best.

From the above and foregoing financial statement, it will be found that the cost of the public schools for the school year from & '99 was [illegible]

The number of school children enrolled during the last year in all departments was [illegible]

The estimate number of children in the district is [illegible]

The number of teachers employed during the last year were 15.

The number of pupils in each department including the sixth, seventh and eighth grades [illegible]

A cost per capita for incidentals is $1.10, making a total cost per capita for the school year ending of $16.75 per capita.

Music is taught in the schools in accordance with law. Physiology and Hygiene with reference to effect of alcohol, in all grades.

We were compelled early in the last year's term to fit up and equip the primary department in the public school rooms and furnish a teacher for that room. This was found necessary on account of the crowded rooms of the other schools, thus giving an 18 teacher instead of 17 as we had a year ago. It still left our teachers pretty well crowded with the high school classes, and about ninety pupils at one time during the year, and today we are met with the question of more room, not the need have thought that possibly they would be able to accommodate the pupils for this year, but undoubtedly a year from this time we shall have to contend with the question of more school buildings for the accommodation of the pupils of this district. The board after a thorough investigation with a view to economy as far as possible and maintain the schools at a standard demanded in our village, we beg leave to recommend to the electors of this district that the following sums will be required for the ensuing year to support the schools

Nothing other or

To meet this we will receive probably if primary money and I will use of about $2,000, which would leave to be raised $3500. We have on hand $1,000, which would leave us to raise $2500.00.

But it is absolutely necessary to have from $1500 to $2000 surplus in the treasury to run the schools from September until January, at which time the taxes are again collected. We recommend that we raise $6,000 on the per cent on the assessed property of the district for school purposes, which is the same rate that we raised last year.

The board desires to report to the district that the school property is in good repair, with the exception that the central building needs painting. The windows are particularly in need of paint and a portion of the tower, and the foul air refrigerator in the central building that was placed in as a heater and ventilator is out of repair, and has been since it was put in.

We recommend to the district that some more economical apparatus for fuel, and one that is designed for heat instead of cool, ventilate instead of stagnate, should be placed in the building at once as a matter of economy in fuel, and health to the teachers and pupils.

The teachers for the coming year have been employed and they are as follows: Mr. J. M. Tice, superintendent, Mary I. Osgood, principal. Primary, assistant, Angie Wood, 5th grade, Edith Fanning, 4th grade, Julia E. Patterson, 3rd grade, Lillian Woods, 2d grade, Laura Hunt, primary, Lincoln school, Lena Fanning, 3d and 4th grades, Washington school, Amelia Fanning, 2nd and 3d grades.

We have every reason to believe that the teachers we have employed for the coming year are in education, attainments and experience as will warrant us in saying that we have made a step in advance in our schools.

The superintendent employed is a gentleman from from the University of Michigan, with a large experience in superintending schools, and highly recommended to the board in the interests of the University with whom he has a close acquaintance.

He is highly recommended to us from the different portions of the state where he has taught, and we are confident he will fill the place of superintendent with credit to himself and great advantage to the district. The other teachers, many of them you are acquainted with, having rendered good service in the past, and with the experience of past years we are warranted in looking for even better work from them in the future than heretofore.

The principal of the high school is a young lady from the Normal College of Ypsilanti, recommended to us by the professors of that institution as one of the most efficient and thorough young ladies in that institution. She is engaged to teach science in the schools of Chamberlain of New York for this summer a sufficient guarantee to us that her ability is recognized even beyond the borders of the state. Her sister, the assistant in the high school is now a teacher in the Big Rapids schools, where she is highly appreciated, as a bright, advanced student and teacher, so I believe the district may be congratulated in entering upon the next year with a very efficient corps of instructors; all of which is respectfully submitted for your consideration.

A GREAT OCCASION.

When a President Consulted with a Vice-President.

Vice-President Stevenson used to tell a story which John C. Breckinridge had told him to illustrate the traditional relations between the president and the man whose principal business it is to wait for the sudden death of the president in order that he may take the president's place and the New York Sun and Sherman always carry it. Breckinridge said that Buchanan never consulted him about any important matter, although as a Kentuckian having the confidence of most of the southern leaders, he felt that his advice might at times have been valuable to the president. In the early fall of 1860, when Buchanan's term was nearing an end, amid the gathering clouds of war, Vice-President Breckinridge repeated an impressive message to the White House. He repeated it once thinking that at last the president would be alive to the momentous question then pending. When he arrived he was shown into the president's room and the president, on who was alone, called his private secretary and instructed him to, one that they were not disturbed during the important conference which was to follow. When the private secretary had withdrawn the president produced his private drawer in his desk, took out a manuscript, sat down with great solemnity and said to Vice-President Breckinridge in his most impressive manner: "I want to read you the draft of my Thanksgiving day proclamation and to get your opinion of it." The vice-president nearly fell into hysterics, instead respectfully and sympathetically listened to the reading, made some compliments of the document, and with his customary courtesy bowed and smiled his way out from the cave where he was visited by Vice-President Buchanan.

CLIMBING STAIRS

Just the Thing to Strengthen the Lungs and Cure Dyspepsia.

New York Times: The average landlady of the average lodging-house is nothing if not resourceful and original. Which it comes to the question of the merits of her particular boarding-house or the unoccupied rooms of which she opens to inspection, at all reasonable hours her resourcefulness is positively unlimited, and while her English way occasionally is without rhyme, it is sufficiently lucid and forcible to give a good idea of the many resources of her domain. It has remained, however, for a landlady living not 1000 miles from West Eighteenth street to make, with the assistance of a number of unknown medical men, the astounding discovery that climbing up numerous flights of stairs is not only an exercise, but is actually beneficial to the health. "Why, bless you!" she said to a young man an unfortunate sector who came, who, indeed, then the fourth floor was too high up for his business of the weary and hurtful stair climbing. "Why, bless you, it's the best thing in the world for you. Doctors all around here are recommending stair climbing for dyspepsia long trouble. They say it's the best thing in the world for either of them complaints if you'll only walk up stairs often enough and always be sure to throw your children well back." The senior proceeded that he was troubled with some of these complaints, "well," said the outgoing landlady, "that doesn't matter. It's good for the frequent health. You don't care to try it? Very well. Good-day." And she D. Cadet firmly behind the outmost young man, who was wonderingly without reply, and confident him in the hall. "Good-day, sir! Good-day!" Firmly behind the outmost young man, who was wonderingly without reply, and confident him in the hall. "Good-day, sir! Good-day!"

B'R WALTER SCOTT.

Mrs. Edgecombe the Heroine of a Pretty Love Story.

The Hon. Mrs. George Edgecombe, who had been Miss Jo Plowden, was the daughter of Mr. John Shelley of Maresfield Park, and nearly related to those other Shelleys of whom the poet was one, says the Westminster Gazette. She was the heroine of that romantic little story commemorated by Sir Walter himself in his "Diary" on May, 1826. The London season was at its height, and Sir Walter was enjoying his full share of what an exhausted "busy bidness." He had breakfasted—early, as was his wont—with that "good fellow" Rogers, and had given Chantrey another sitting for his bust and had gone to a second breakfast to Chester square as the guest of Lady Shelley. In the left hand company assembled to meet him a young lady, the daughter of his host, asked him if he might have a lock of his hair. The good-natured lion—I am afraid Miss Shelley is growing hoary of the lion while—hesitated, and gave her the one he which he had previously provided. Miss Edgecombe would on occasion show a lock she had with her father (Sir John Shelley) in the 70s to Alberta Gallatin, who, after much pressing, for Walter had retired to his bed-room with a charger of tea in "The Times." Sir John appeared radiant from the Tweed, where he had taken of a magnificent salmon. At one in Walter ease, "The Talisman" quite forgotten, the tender pressing of the importunate task of weighing the old lock which the whole party (Walter Shelley being once demoted to the second) and another Walter objecting the ancient and noting the weight, with a crystallos attempt to conceal his great longer. Strictly observing the judgment were the remarkable, the delightful evening of Abbotsford, when the great poet and romancer wooed, unheard in the drawing-bedden, illustrating abstract remarks with and, picturesque anecdote.

On the morning of the departure of the Shelleys, Sir Walter conducted his young friend into "Tryst and after some trivialities into an re-reading, in which history and romance had each their proper part assigned them to look down a transcript of "Tresbiene" into Italian and for the inscribing her name in the book, prefaced it, "Sir Walter Scott." This was the strange name as a commemoration of the memorable 1826 up to the 27th of April, it was her pleasure and delight in after years to watch the influence on her history author on contemporary literature.

SUBWAYS IN LONDON

With this endless stone has come a revival of the nonsense in the below ground. A few decades ago there was no long Surrowing tunnels under London except the sewers, the mouths on the river's edge, where for centuries they had existed, some in depth. Today in much traffic goes on under or above the streets. It is feared the buildings may collapse as a result of the tunneling.

No one knows the extent of underground Paris. Caves are constantly being found subways and roadways, the existence of which was not known and unfortunate cave, and passages are met with whenever excavation takes place. LAST OF AN OLD RACE.

THE RICH PAMUNKEY INDIANS OF VIRGINIA.

Remnant of the Tribe that Pocahontas Once Ruled Are the Most Aristocratic of Red Men—Feel Themselves Above the Negroes.

In King William County, Virginia, but more than twenty miles from Richmond, there is a small reservation of a score large and potential tribes of Indians. When Pocahontas married John Smith from the club the Pamunkeys numbered some 20,000, and could raise an effective force of 2,000 warriors. Less than 100 now are left, and although the birth rate is the best decade slightly exceeded the death rate, there is little probability that they can maintain their individuality another century. They have ceased to do anything, have more than they know what to do, and are all in the shadow of old extinction. They are a little geologists, a beautiful-shaped tribe of Indians, and have adopted some of the white people's ways. They have to pay taxes, they are required to supply the state with a certain number of militiamen, they have to keep in touch with a certain amount of white society, and they have to work and during the shooting season spring and fall, they are the best ducks, hens and quail shots in the state, and in consideration of the treaty, a bag is of sold to the state game warden.

The Pamunkeys have no relations with the other Virginia Indians. They receive no annuities, and their status is a little different from that of the other tribes. The Mattaponi Virginia annuity appears free citizens to look down on the Pamunkeys, and the Indians are perfectly willing to accept the situation. They elect their chief and a council of three who serve concurrently, holding from good personal tenures. Every one over 21 years is enrolled in both, and on the day appointed they meet at the temple, and vote on the nominations for chief. Their ballots are either for or against the candidate. Every adult male is a voter, and the election is decided by a majority of votes. The chief is a man of some ability, and he has at his command a council of three, who are his advisers in the affairs of state. Further and further from the white people, the Pamunkeys have maintained their individuality, and so far as I can learn, they have not lost a single member of their tribe. They have not intermarried with the white people, and have no mixed blood. They have not lost their language, and they have not lost their tribal relations. They have not lost their tribal relations. They have not lost their tribal relations. They

School Commissioner's Column.

The days gone and far away the Royal Oaklan remembered that the institute for Charlevoix county would be held July 24.

We have had no notification from the Department of Public Instruction that the time for holding the institute in this county had been changed.

We announced several months ago that the institute in this county would commence in Charlevoix on Monday morning August 21st, at 10 o'clock and continue one week.

We expect to have one of the best institutes ever held in the county and desire the attendance of every teacher and those desiring to teach. The week's training will be invaluable.

We have circulated the Outlines sent our by the Department of Public Instruction, and expect the teachers to attendance, who have prepared the lessons, as the work call for the week's work.

Teachers engaged in school work can close their schools without loss of wages for the number of days attending the institute.

The invitation is extended to all school directors, patrons and persons interested in school work to attend the sessions. G. W. Lomont, of St. Joseph, will conduct the institute.

Many of our schools are closed and others are passing through the busy closing days of the school year. At this time, one week might be a month back to the pupils, and three or four at the beginning of the term.

This is the time when the work done over should be fastened in and attest to future usefulness.

The review should not be a hasty review, but should be not a mere refreshing of the memory for examination. The pupil should be able to acquire new views of the subject studied the matter should be presented in a way which was impossible when it was studied before. Something that was scarcely comprehended when first studied can now be made plain. Here is a special opportunity for the teacher to show ability as a leader in the school. She must show her power to impress her pupils with the special importance of what they are doing, and weighing their attainments against what they have been doing so long.

For at least three consecutive days has been allotted to review among subjects on education in favor of Hamilton Wright, the author of the Educational reformers the Common Sense, Woman's and Colonel Parker have put great stress upon the educative value in childhood and youth of the contact between mind and matter in the home which natural objects afford. Science education has always been too bookish, too much separated from objects and realities of experience.

Common Sense in education in day spent in Latin forms, technicalities and abstractions. It was a telling phrase on my to awaken childhood interest and which rests upon the dead rules and inflections of a purely formal grammar. By means of big Colton Globes and other works of method we can place some degree of interest and meaning into the hidden drain of the schools. But it was an almost hopeless task as long as Latin remained like a vast iceberg wreck of obstruction, at the very doorway of education. It was necessary to establish a rational system of popular education so long as a dead language stretched its fifteen hundred across the threshold of school life, barring entrance to the fields Elysian. Put, thanks to the power and vigor of our new language, Latin has taken at last the supreme place among languages in a child's education, and when he first enters school he is in possession of this treasure. The same thing has happened in France, Germany and in other European countries.

The vernacular has become the fundamental medium of thought. One of the committees, therefore, that will report to the world of children two or three hundred years ago has been swept away. But the linguistic and verbal spirit of the old regime is still with us, and many teachers still think the children have the ideas when they have only conned the forms, in which ideas are expressed. In the days of Latin supremacy, Comenius and the other reformers tried to save instruction from simply verbalism by associating the objects in nature with the Latin tongue, and we have been trying for more than one generation, by means of object lessons and nature studies, to redeem education from the dry rot of verbal formalism. But in our day we have already got beyond the idea that natural science is simply an auxiliary, a means of making language and other studies more rational and real. Nature study has not in its own right an equal rights with such studies as reading, mathematics, and language.

It is a matter of no little surprise with many that nature study has made so small progress in the common schools. For three centuries in Europe and America there has been constant advocacy and boundless faith and enthusiasm in nature studies for children, but the output in the schools is close up to nothing. Yet a fuller appreciation of the inherent difficulties involved in a degree educational problem like this shows that centuries rather than years are required in working out such a problem. It may be truly said that a right selection of topics and a right teaching of natural science would produce a marked change in the teaching of all subjects in the common school. The method of realism in science subjects is a good criterion of method in all studies. A proper attitude of a teacher in handling science topics in a class is a direct protest against Lo class and art of the work in all studies now done in our schools.

If the teachers in Charlevoix county would purchase Special Method in Natural Science for the first four grades of the common school, by McMurry of the Illinois State Normal University, they would obtain a load of information upon the general subject of teaching this subject to their pupils.

FOR SALE—A good home and lot on Clinton street also a lot on Dupont avenue. Terms reasonable. Inquire of Mrs. Jessie Arnold, Charlevoix.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Bishop Gillespie of the State Board of charities has rendezvoused the Petoskey city press in emphatic times.

E. M. Cadwell, an old and respected citizen, died at his home in Traverse City, last night.

Mr. Ward, of Gaylordsville is doing some extensive timbering at the head of Beaver Island. He has a contract that will keep him busy for some time.

At Cheboygan Mrs. H. C. Evans was killed in the vicinity by a cat while trying to take away a chicken it had seized. Her son ran to her assistance and was bitten by the cat. The boy had to kill the cat before it would let go its hold.

Central Lake Times: Secretary Conklin is already receiving applications for concessions at the coming street fair. The applications cover almost everything habitually peddled at outing. The one that almost took the secretary's breath away was from a man who proposed to bring a lot of beautiful lumber-yard-yard delaine girls home. He is willing to pay a good sum for the privilege and doubtless can afford to do so.

The Forest Home spiritual Association, of Northern Michigan, opened their annual camp-meeting on their grounds at Snowshoe on Sunday last. The grounds are beautifully situated on the banks of Intermediate Lake, and it is the intention of the association to have them fitted up as a permanent camp and resort primarily for those who love quiet and rest. As proved the work is well under way and within the next week everything will be completed.

The senseless custom of throwing dirt all over a newly married couple reached in trouble to a Mr. Compton who was married at Manistee the other day. As he and his bride were leaving the depot for Traverse City a sporting feed friend slapped a handful of rice against the side of the hack and a scuffle was driven into his eye. Before arriving at Traverse City it had swollen to a very painful and the inflammation of the eye's made the extraction of the rice somewhat difficult. With the aid of cocaine and morphine it was finally effected however.

James Barlick, of Harbor springs, has been experimenting with a process of tempering copper. While conducting these experiments he hit upon a process where he can temper the softest iron harder than the hardest steel. He has reduced a piece of iron not more to the thickness of a knife blade and put to the edge upon it as keen as that of any razor. With it he can shave his face or cattle as ordinary razors. Barlick's wife, running the office a gazette. Mr. Barlick is keeping his process a secret. It was no doubt some such process that the Damascus, which he used for years ago. The idea, however, was stolen from him by a stranger, who, it is said, has made a fortune. Though he died in poverty rich, while he, the inventor, never realized a cent from from it, and he does not propose to let it happen again.

The Michigan Stove Co. of Traverse City, is now prepared to buy all the potatoes of last year's stock that they can get. The first load purchased by the company was bought Saturday of J. Porter, and it consisted of 270 bushels. The company will soon have their machinery in place and the work of making starch will be only a question of a very few weeks. They will put in machinery upon old stock so as to have their plant in shape by the time late potato crop is ready for the market. The work on the factories is progressing rapidly and is being pushed. Farmers having stocks of old potatoes left over can find a market for them at the new factory.

The C. & W. M. station at Bellaire was broken into one day last week. The agent had just gone to dinner. He lives within 200 feet of the depot and the waiting room was open. The ticket window was broken open with a coupling pin, and the burglar went through it and forced the money drawer, which was found open on the floor. Agent Thomas was gone but a short time, and before leaving he had put the bills, $100, in his pocket and dropped a large sack of silver in another drawer. The robbers got only a few dollars for their pains. Sheriff Champion pulled five fellows who were beating a ride on the out going freight and searched them. No clue.

Through the generosity of William Ludington, Petoskey is to have a hospital, he having deeded the whole of the Oriental hotel property to a committee of well-known citizens, no restrictions, except that the property or its proceeds should be used for the purpose of founding a hospital for the care and relief of indigent and other sick and infirm persons, and for a treatment home. The property comprises three lots and a half on the corner of Lake and Emmet streets, together with the hotel building. It is one of the finest locations in the city and is worth upwards of $10,000. Mr Ludington is by no means a wealthy man, which makes gift, which represents the major part of the savings of a long and useful life, all the more praiseworthy.

At the meeting of the State Board of Pardons in Traverse City, thirty the testimony of several witnesses was taken. Mr. Marshall, a brother of Marshal who was shot, Mr. Case, sheriff of the county at the time, Mrs. Thurber, wife of the murdered Thurber, and Hon. N. A. Parker, of Frankfort, who assisted in the defense at the time of the trial, all testified. The testimony of all, with the exception of Parker, was not such as to favor the pardoning of Wright. Mr. Parker thought the man was not guilty of murder, that the deed was done in the heat of passion and could be nothing more than manslaughter, and that he would be in favor of his sentence being commuted to manslaughter and should be released. He stated that the public sentiment of Frankfort was almost universally in favor of Wright's pardon. He had heard only one person express the opinion that he should remain in prison.

Traverse City Record: Neil Gallagher, "King of the Beaver Islands," came to Traverse City Tuesday to have a good time with the rest of the celebrators. This is only the second time he has been in Traverse City in twenty years. Mr. Gallagher is as distinct in his realm of the work of senator Hanna in the state senate. Neil is a monarch. But the people of Michigan have nothing but good words to say of the manner in his affairs on their behalf. In commenting on the legislature the fair trust he declares that the trust did not come out of it as well as they claimed and that it was one section of the bill which passed, due to Senator Mitnken, that took much of the glory from the victory claimed by the trust.

The village officers of Central Lake on the 12th, had an encounter with a notorious character named Frank George Cretsman, a reputed Kentucky desperado, who has been working in a lumber camp near town. He had made threats of coming to town to clean out the police force, and on Wednesday, Cretsman's day, he came to town and got on whiskey. Accompanied by several pals, he walked the streets and continued his boasting. In the evening one of the officers warned him to be quiet, at which he threatened to shoot if he attempt it were made. Street Mr. Cretsman was drawn down. Word was sent to the marshal, who located him on the crossing between the tavern and Vaughn House, drug shave. Upthegrove followed and asked him what the trouble was, whereupon the Kentuckian pulled his revolver directly into the officer's face and told him that he would find out if he did not stop following him. Upthegrove kept talking to him until R. W. Sweet, who was acting as special policeman, got around behind and dealt him a blow over the head with his club, which laid him out. His revolver could several vain, unsuccessful attempts to cock him. He was taken before Justice George M. Glow, charged with disorderly conduct and carrying concealed weapons, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the county jail for 90 days. Last evening constable Van Gordon started with the prisoner for Petoskey to lodge him in jail. When within a mile or so of Bellaire he suddenly grasped the lines from Van Gordon's hands and jerked the horse back to a standstill, jumped from the buggy and ran. Van Gordon jumped out and let the team go, and ran after, and shot at the fellow, but failed to either stop or catch him. The Friday night Bellaire, where it was caught. It was a surprise to many that the officer should attempt to take him without handcuffs. Marshal Upthegrove holds $50 in cash and his revolver, which the young gentleman can have by returning and proving his identity.

Traverse City Record: The gale which prevailed last Friday night was one of the most severe experienced in this locality in some time and some damage was created along the bay shore. The pile driver used in building the dock for the Michigan Stovch Co., was tossed about wildly during the night and finally was entirely wrecked, one end sinking about 150 feet from the dock. About 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning Chief of Police Ransom was notified that some men who sought to secure the pile driver had fled with dynamite and accompanied by Pat Dunn he went to the scene and discovered two of the employes of Capt. Joe Boisvenie, owner of the outfit, stranded with the wrecked apparatus. The men had just got out from the shoe in the storm for the purpose of securing the crate and in coming in contact with it their boat was capsized and they were precipitated into the water. After some difficulty they succeeded in gaining the shore in the pouring rain and found that they were still in great danger and unable to save the machine by themselves. Mayor Chief Hennie and Pat Dunn arrived they were in sore straits. The bay was so rough that it was impossible to put off in a boat to the men and finally after urging the two made a desperate effort to reach the shore by swimming. They battled with the raging waters for some time and finally reached the shore almost exhausted. The chief and Dunn escorted them to the water works where they were dried out and fortunately little the worse for their adventure.

To the ladies of Charlevoix—You are cordially invited to inspect a full line of the latest novelties in Art Embroidery and hemstitching, at the Hotel Belvedere parlors, Thursday, for a short time only.

—Chicago Times Herald: There could be no question that he had preserved that fervor of manner and artistic method which in years agone were such conspicuous merits in his singing. These qualities served to exhibit his work very attractive.

—The Grand Rapids Saw Co's saw-mill had a bad break down Friday. The disk gave way, and the piston bore both ends out of the cylinder, completely wrecking the engine. Roy Crum, who was standing near was sent flying into the boiler room, and as Maurice puts it, frightened out of a year's growth. A new 18x20 150 horse power engine has been ordered, and the mill will be at work again Monday or Tuesday.

The Countess Schmoulzman.

Countess Schmoulzman, in her whitewater yacht Dream, arrived in the port from Chicago, via east shore ports, on Friday last, and is spending a week in our inland waters. The countess is accompanied by her three adopted sons, Emil, Otto and William, and by Herr von Vielhahn, the young son of a German general.

The Dream, soon after arriving went up Pine Lake, anchoring in the region of Horton's Bay. Monday the Countess accompanied by one of her sons and Herr von Vielhahn, came down with the schooner's naptha launch, and the steersman's wife, caught the party in Tuttle's restaurant, and a very pleasant interview with this celebrated woman resulted.

Many people who have read the Chicago papers the past nine months are familiar with the story of the Countess Schmoulzman, who brought the Dream across the ocean and up the lakes last fall. It is a story of noble birth, gilded and young womanhood at a very early age, conversion of Jolly, and the dedication of a noble life to the cause of Christ and humanity. It is the story of persecution and almost martyrdom, a story of sublime faith and the courage of a lion of Judah. Some of us have read how she fed the hungry in Chicago last winter, how she told her story, and the sweet, sweet story of the Saviour among the poor and in the palaces of the rich.

The Countess is a charming personality. She locks you straight in the eyes and talks to you as if she had always known you. A tender compassion lurks in her eyes, and in her face is all the grace of her eyes tells how she loved the poor, stands for love for God and humanity. As her uncovered coffee was getting cold she talked to us with earnestness and charm that Englishmen admiration.

The Dream is bound for Lake Superior, on the north shore of which the Canadian government have offered the Countess a large tract of land for colonization. She stops along Lake Michigan and the straits are for rest. She will have here Friday.

Death of Geo. H. Patty.

The genial George H. Patty, manager of the Chicago Summer Resort Association's Club house, died at the club house last Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Patty literally died in harness. Two years ago Mr. Patty suffered a paralytic stroke. Since that time there has been a perceptible weakening of his physical strength, although he has continued to discharge his duties here.

On Wednesday he was about the house, and but a second before the fatal stroke of apoplexy came, he had joked with a guest of the house. Death came to our friend painlessly, quickly and fatally. Dr. Jules Vaire, who was at his side when he fell, said death was instantaneous.

The deceased leaves but brave little woman, who was a part of his life, left Thursday evening with the remains for Fort du Lac, Wis., after brief services at the club house.

It may be said of George H. Patty that he was born in a hotel—his father having been in the business for many years at Fon du Lac in which place deceased was reared. He came to Charlevoix first in 1885 as manager of the Chicago Club, and each recurring June since has found him at his post here.

He was a manly man, with a heart full of kindness, and a face that beaming with geniality every moment that he was awake. He never spoke cross words and was incapable of unkind action. His was a gentle nature, the loss of which from among us is cause for most sincere regret.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Hackley will take an excursion party Cross Village and Sturgeon Bay to Beaver Island next Sunday.

The old Lachmuter H. C. Winslow brought 1151 under the hammer of the United States marshal at Chicago. She was purchased by captain Miles Barry.

The Hart line steamer Petoskey collided with the steamer Columbia at the Mackinac island landing lately driving the Columbia ashore and doing damage to the amount of $200.

The captain of the schooner Lincoln was fined $100 at Manitowoc on Monday for refusing to show the vessel's papers to the boarding officer of the revenue cutter Morrill.

The official measurement of the new Northern Michigan line passenger steamer Illinois, recently turned out by the Chicago Shipbuilding company is 1587 tons gross and 1408 tons net.

Traverse City Record: It is stated that a project is on foot which may establish a steamer line from here to Manistique, the intermediate points being the large points, Charlevoix and the Beaver Islands. Neil Gallagher of the Beavers, is the principal mover in the project.

Captain Webb, of the Traverse Bay line has come into possession of an old fashioned marine telescope which is a relic of longer days. It is a telescope which belonged to captain Dunmore of the Sheridan in the early 70's. It is a large day or night glass of considerable magnifying power and was made by Spencer Browning & Co., London, Eng.

The disturbances in the Philippines was not caused by the antipathy of those friends to American rule, protectorate or whatever form of government of an American kind which might come, but was the result possibly of the individual political ambition of Aguinaldo and his immediate advisers. The situation in the Philippines has been absolutely similar to the one which existed in the United States in 1861. The people of the southern states never desired to go out of the union but they were led to the contest in which they fought bravely and bitterly because certain men at Washington—then, with the inauguration of President Lincoln, coupled with the developing prosperity and increase of population of the north and west, their political power would cease to act and. It was political ambition against the public weal in both cases.

G. A. R. Notes.

Baxter Post, G. A. R. and W. R. corps will hold a special meeting jointly on Saturday evening, 29th inst. at Clark's hall, to make arrangements for attending the County Association at Traverse City, August 16th, 17th.

TALMAGE'S SERMON

Copyright, Louis Klopsch, 1899.

In this discussion, which we are to open respectively by Christ, the Pharisee, the publican, the prodigal, the elder brother, the rich man and Lazarus, the text is Matthew xxii. 42: "What think ye of Christ? whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David."

A proverb is common saying, based upon an incident which is so well known that it has become classic. The proverb is "Caesar's wife must be above suspicion." The incident which it represents occurred in the year 62 when Caesar was at Baiae, on the bay of Naples, and he had sent his wife Poppaea to Rome to preside at the trial of Octavia, the daughter of Claudius, whom he had divorced and then had banished to the island of Pandataria, where she was put to death. Poppaea was not at all disposed to do the bidding of her husband, but, on the other hand, was a very bad woman, who afterwards married Nero, and who, according to the Roman historian Tacitus, was "a woman of all vices, but the most dangerous of all, because she was a woman of consummate charm, and of a mind as well adapted to the ruin of others as her person was to their allurement." Caesar, knowing the character of his wife, and knowing that she

Jos. Alger's Restoration.

Russell A Alger has resigned his resignation as Secretary of War and the President has promptly accepted it, in a letter so kind that it leaves no room for a gentle suspicion that the resignation and the acceptance are only very 20th century politeness.

That secretary Alger has been treated with very much politeness is a considerable element in the story, and, without enumerating slights from his political associates, it is true that he has been a hard working, conscientious and fairly capable secretary, in equally true, as results have indicated, only about.

There is talk concerning Alger and the administration having been not unfriendly, and it is well known by the people at large, and probably will not be, unless campaigns for all democrats, the veil should be lifted in a spasm of limited controversy.

But it is in certain quarters proposition can be fairly predicted will, this conclusion, that secretary Alger's principal difference is not so much with McKinley personally as with a clique of men who governed Congress.

The control of Congress, that and alliance with the Republicans among the Republicans of Michigan, and the defiant of Congress, the Senate especially, and the President, with other men, will have little space in display the impression is to be assumed to have. But Congress and Republican machine are in the Alger case. Some campaigns, to "handle" Gen. Alger. Congress is against, and Congress ways has time. This being time, the national was to plan for Alger.

Michigan Congressmen like Mr. Millan. They might have been for Alger with Congress left out, but the power was to remain in Congress, and should have been strong enough to recognize the fact without having to beg his old out from under a little wash.

In a certain interview Mr. Alger expresses himself as resigned to an ordinary for the membership. It is generally to be hoped that in the future time left to be secretary of war, he will constitute that Congressman and McKinley-man, if he may be those terms with people respect to Congress, are not conspicuous elements.

Every Alger dinner is an insult to certain the world of Congressmen "not nation" is most cultivated Congressmen, and avoid every appearance of evil in consequence therewith.

LAKE TRAFFIC BOOMS.

EXCEEDS HIGHEST EXPECTATIONS OF VESSEL OWNERS.

Congress Asked Books to Carry Them, While Freight Rates and Wages Go Up—Rich Cargoes of Iron Ore on Upper Michigan.

The boom of lake traffic is in full tide and unofficial conversation with the superintendents of the most important vessel owners at the principal lake ports has shown that the expectations of a month or two ago have fairly been realized, and that the lake traffic of 1899 will rival and in some respects surpass that of last year. The demand for vessels has been so great that it has caused a material advance in freight rates, the lake vessels being in fact the only ones which have been able to compete with the railroads for the transportation of the great bulk of the iron ore from the Lake Superior ranges to the lower lake ports, and the demand for vessels to carry the iron ore from the upper lake ports to the lower lake ports has been so great that it has caused a material advance in freight rates. Not only have the vessels been able to carry the iron ore from the Lake Superior ranges to the lower lake ports, but they have been able to carry a large number of the bituminous coal from the Pennsylvania ports to the lower lake ports, and another feature has been that the demand for vessels to carry the iron ore from the upper lake ports to the lower lake ports has been so great that it has caused a material advance in freight rates. FISH LAW.

Fishing Gill Nets Thus Completely Wiped Out. "Where the Fish Chiefly Were Made.

LANSING, Mich., Special Telegram, July 31.—Just before the legislature adjourned Gov. Pingree vetoed a bill providing that all fish caught in one of legal mesh should be deemed to be legally caught even though they were small in weight, and could be disposed of as fish of legal weight. At Sault Ste. Marie tomorrow the preliminary steps will be taken to test the validity of those provisions of the old law which this bill was designed to counteract. A week ago Deputy Game Warden Roach, acting under instructions from Warden Morse, seized 1,500 pounds of undersized whitefish caught in Lake St. Johnson in the inner nets in Winter fish law, and instituted proceedings against John [illegible]. Although the law passed last winter, expressly says that it shall be illegal to catch whitefish weighing less than two pounds in the inner nets, the attorney says it is altogether probable that he will be unable to secure a conviction.

Section 4 of the act referred to provides that no such "shall not be less than three and a half inches in extension measure in the mesh." The same section limits the weight of the whitefish that may be legally caught to two pounds in round. Before the nets are placed in the water they are coal tarred by the fishermen in order to preserve them so they would be almost in a single season. The tarring makes them good for four or five years. Under ordinary usage this process shrinks the nets about a half inch in two years. Now, when purchased they were of legal mesh. In response to the claim that they have an right to undertake the enforcement that will shrink the mesh, the fishermen show that a three and one-half inch mesh if placed in the water without tarred, will shrink a half inch in a single hour, and that a net set will shrink three-quarters of an inch in a year's time when in the water. They claim that it is difficult for a whitefish weighing nearly two pounds to escape through a three and a one-half inch mesh, and that after the fish has been made, whitefish will not live if thrown back into the water.

In the case to be heard tomorrow it will be claimed that as the fish were caught in nets of a mesh provided by law, they were legally caught and not liable to seizure, and that Johnston is not liable to prosecution for taking them.

The railroad cut rates inaugurated last week by the C. & W. M. R. R. and the G. R. & I. R. R. have been discontinued, and the old rates in effect prior to that time have been established. It was shortlived, but interesting while it lasted. It started with a $2.00 rate between Grand Rapids and Petoskey or intervening points and Chicago. Now, one dollar is the rate when the C. & W. M. made a $2.00 rate from points in this vicinity to Grand Rapids, or from Grand Rapids to Chicago. The C. & W. M. also announced trip rate from Grand Rapids north.

George Van Pelt Dead! Lake Weeds and Trouble.

MY DEAR SENTINEL:

As only a few days will now intervene before millions and millions of seeds of noxious weeds will be scattered broadcast over the land unless they are quickly cut and burned, I have concluded to once more write and acquaint the readers of the SENTINEL that now is the time to cut the weeds, and to urge upon them the necessity of so doing immediately. I notice many little patches of Canada thistles going to seed, which, if not destroyed now, will produce a crop next year, and a veritable nightmare upon your property, and if you have not done so, take a day off and go to the old stomping place on the lake shore, where they "mossed" last year, and if you are carried in the sack. At first there were only here and they little patches which have now grown to such an extent that they cover miles of the land, and I have continued for a long time that our "county" ought to take the matter in hand and, eradicate them, because, if something is not done right away, not only will thousands of acres be lost to field of Canada thistles, but we will get the adjoining counties, for the seed is carried miles and miles on the snow in the winter time as well as by the high winds in the summer time. I have been told that I could not write a letter even to my family without saying something about good country roads, but I have proved the contrary, by my letter on sink cows and consumption, which appeared in the CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL, July 21. Now I am going to say a word or two about the results of good country roads leading to the village of Norwood. I think that without doubt L. V. Stack has sold more goods in his "general store" than any other store in the county. As many of you know, he has recently sold his stock of merchandise, but not his mail pouch, to Valentine Rice, of Pine Harbor, Mich. If you wish to know what good roads have done, ask Norwood, ask Mr. Nash, if good roads had anything to do with the Messrs. Valentine coming here, ask them, the reason Mr. Nash sold more goods than anyone else in the county, was because the roads were so good that the people could get here easily and comfortably, and the Valentines say they propose to keep right on selling wood, and hold the trade, and I'll say for Norwood, that we propose to keep right on building good roads, and be the leading township in Northern Michigan, and also that the farmers tell me next year I will have to pay the price I showed for less planting in more Apr 19th, '99 and that the new road from Charlevoix to Eastport will ultimately be known as Maple-wood avenue. A word to the resorters—do not get discouraged the next two or three years you go driving out of Charlevoix on the road to Norwood, because as soon as you strike our township, you will find better roads, [illegible] and call for a mossing run with which to build your roads. Elect a good road builder to your road commissioner, and you can be sure of good roads and have fun in the bargain. New Editor Smith hesitates as to if he knows I have said more about Charlevoix than I have about Norwood, but this is strictly a Norwood letter, and what it means, we feel that we can back up all we say. We have the greatest location in northern Michigan. The best farms, the best fruit and flowers, the best roads, and don't forget it, even if you did beat me in a foot race one Fourth of July, not many years since.

Yours Truly,
GEORGE H. VAN PELT.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

August is commencing at us a-go, at the Central school building in Charlevoix, the State Teachers' Institute for Charlevoix county will be held. We hope that every person in the county who has the welfare of the schools at heart will give the institute his hearty support and what a ridiculous proposition it would be to suppose that anyone who expects to teach should not be in attendance.

If you have the proper professional spirit you will need no urging to attend, all you need is simply to know the date.

Also—more merely to gain an extra pen cent at the examination or because it is asked by the Commissioner and his displeasure is feared, but just the right motive behind it, and be one conferred in the highest degree.

The present demand is for moral work and instruction along academic lines. The institute meetings are the haven of our reformers, bring to conflict in the principle and in the meantime review the program accompanying the outline which provides for a two years course in the second grade officers and thorough review each year for third grade.

There are two species of Normal work, institute academic and professional. The academic has reference to the instruction of teachers in the branches required by law to be taught in the common schools, the professional pays particular attention to a school of methods. Academic work suggests a state of affairs which actually exists in the minds of teachers, for that a great number of teachers have not attainment to anything like proficiency in the elementary branches. We assume that the teachers as a class have had limited opportunities for improvement and cannot every pupil cause without guidance and assistance. Its design is to improve the teacher's scholarship.

Academic work does not signify that all the contents of school work must be gone over day after day, but that the institute should be conformed to a debating society, either a place for some professional self improvement work going after the teachers which laugh, and enjoy themselves.

Again we say to the teacher be a student, familiar with the work assigned in the outline of study, institute, for so will all the adjoining counties, for the seed is carried miles.

Council Proceedings.

July 21, 1899.

At a regular meeting of the Council held as above date. Present H. L. Iddings and Trustees Van Alsburg, Bufford, Mudge, Venickbrink at 8 Hamba. Trustee Carpenter excused sick.

Minutes of last regular and intervening adjourned meetings read and approved as read. On motion which motion prevailed, J. M. Emlin was granted privilege to cut down a shade tree in front of his residence.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted.

WHEREAS, The frequent runaways upon the streets of the Village of Charlevoix by horses, teams, etc., having been brought to the attention of the Council, it is deemed by said Council necessary for the protection of the public and public travel on said streets, and also to the property of the citizens of said village, that some means should be adopted to prevent said runaways on said streets as far as possible.

Therefore, Be it resolved by the Common Council of the said Village, that it is unlawful for any person or persons to permit or allow any team or team of horses or mules, or any single horse or mule, the said team, mule or horse being attached to, hitched or hitched to any wagon, buggy, carriage, or vehicle, to remain on said street, alley or public place in said village without being tied or fastened to some hitching post, block of hitching weight, unless the said team, horse or mule is in charge of some competent person to control the same.

And the Marshal of said village or any police officer or constable, are hereby authorized and empowered to take any such horse, team or mule when found upon the streets unhitched or unfastened, as provided in this resolution, and conduct the same to some place of safety in said village, and properly tie or hitch said team or mule, or take the same to some barn to be cared for therein at the expense of the owner. Any person violating the provisions of this resolution shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not in excess of $5.00 and costs of prosecution, and in default of payment thereof, shall be confined in the County Jail not to exceed ten days.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, that the committee on streets and sidewalks be directed to report to the council upon the advisability of directing the attention of the property owners to the necessity of trimming some trees at about ten feet from the sidewalk, the council being of the opinion that such concerted action would tend to beautify the village and improve sanitary conditions as well.

The question of sewerage on Bridge street was brought up and after discussion referred to Committee on Streets and Sidewalks with direction to report as soon as possible.

On motion which prevailed, the bill of Capt. Wm. Holmes for freight on cargo of coal contracted for delivery last fall and delivered this spring was ordered settled at 50 cents per ton.

On motion the Finance committee were authorized to assist the mice for extending the cargo of coal now at the dock upon presentation and the clerk was directed to draw orders for the same as soon as possible after approved by the committee.

The following bills were reported by the finance committee, and allowed by vote as follows: Ayes, Van Alsburg, Bufford, Mudge, Venickbrink and Hamba.

FISH CASE

Fishermen Claim They Complied With the Law When The Purchase Was Made.

LANSING, Mich., Special Telegram, July 20.—Just before the legislature adjourned this session Senator Ketcham introduced a bill providing that all fish caught in seas of legal mesh should be dressed on the liquids caught even though they were under legal weight, and could be disposed of as fish of legal weight. At Sault Ste. Marie yesterday the preliminary steps will be taken to test the validity of those provisions of the fish law which the bill was designed to correct. A week ago Deputy Game Warden Roach acting under instructions from Game Warden Mentz, secured 2,000 pounds of undersized whitefish weighing by Station 10 ounces to the pound and 10 White fish, and had them shipped to Chicago. Mr. Roach claims he was passed by the agent, currently says that it should be illegal to catch whitefish weighing less than two pounds, the minimum prescribed, and it is altogether probable that he will be unable to secure a conviction.

Section 4 of the act referred to provides that the fish shall not be less than three and a half inches in extreme length or weigh less than one pound. The fishermen claim that the weight of the whitefish that they or seals caught to two pounds in accordance with the facts are placed in the water they are sold terms by the fishermen to prove to be innocent. To do so they would be forced to a single witness, that the prisoners never then good for fine or five years. Under sentence under this law, the fishermen claim they have the right to dispose of the fish they catch, the fishermen show that a large and one half inch mesh if placed in the water, would be undersized, and that a fine net will shrink a half inch in a single hour, and that a fine net will shrink three quarters of an inch in a single time when in the water. They claim that it is difficult to a scientific weighing nearly two pounds to weigh through a fine and a medium fine net, and that after the fish have been made, whether fish will not live if thrown back into the water.

In one case to be tried tomorrow it will be claimed that if the fish were caught in nets of a mesh prescribed by law, they were legally weight, and not liable to seizure, and that fishing is not liable to prosecution for taking them.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CREW, COM'R.

The following letter to the Iowa Normal Monthly indicates pretty clearly something of the good the right kind of a school director may do when he sets about it.

Mr. J. A. Bowman, Dubuque Iowa.

Mr. Dear Sir—I thought perhaps you might be interested in what has transpired in our district, so I have decided to write you all about it.

You see, our school has not been doing well for some time, and we were about discouraged. The children were not getting an education as fast as we thought they should. Our board had employed all kinds of teachers, male and female teachers, second and first class teachers, but somehow the school did not progress. The patrons were complaining, and the neighborhood was very much exercised over the unhappy condition of our school.

At the election in March, I was well elected a director. There are three directors in our district. I was elected president of the board. I had been considering my position, and I had arrived at the conclusion that the directors were not doing their whole duty, neither were the patrons of the school doing all their duty, so I decided that I would have some changes made in our plan of running the school.

The first thing I proposed was that instead of hiring a teacher by "if the others are willing I am spoken to the applicant in the road, in the field, in town, etc., we set a date and give notice that on that date we would hold our teachers an open board meeting, and for all who wishes to apply to be present at that time.

I urged that we would have a better chance of getting a good teacher. The other directors finally agreed with me, that it would be better, and it was so ordered. We fixed March 25, 1899 as the date when we would employ our teacher.

In the next place, as we had been having a different teacher every term, I suggested that it might be well to hire a teacher for at least two terms, and perhaps for the year. After due consideration the board voted unanimously to employ a teacher for a year.

On people had been finding a good deal of fault, and had removed the board with small complaints. After taking over the situation for a while we found that we stand by our teacher, and the most of that we can do is to protect the teacher, and the school from all petty annoyances. We also passed unanimously a resolution that any person who was aggrieved sufficiently to go to the board, would be required to file an affidavit stating his grievance. Also that the board would not hated any other form of complaint.

A conversation developed the fact that not one of the board had ever visited the school. We decided that to employ an agent and food over inspect his work was contrary to law and good business sense, so we voted to visit the school several times during the year.

So our county commissioner organized last spring a system of township associations for teachers. We voted that our teacher should attend the meetings held in our township, for we thought it would benefit our school. We decided also that the teacher should be paid for that day just the same as for teaching, if she attended the meeting, but she should forfeit the day's wages if she should not attend, unless sickness or other reason acceptable to the board prevented.

So in order that we might get a better idea of how to manage our affairs of a school district, we voted to send a delegate to the next state meeting of school directors, at Des Moines, and to pay his travelling expenses out of the contingent fund, the delegate to report at a special meeting of the board the result of the meeting.

We talked of several things that we thought we might make our school better, but we adopted only one, and that was a course of study prepared by our county commissioner. We came to the conclusion that it would make our work of the school more definite, so we passed a resolution that would require our teacher to follow it.

We fixed a adjournment until March 25th. On that date we met as a board to give a teacher for a year. There were present seven applicants, only two young men among the number. After carefully questioning them we decided on a young lady of good appearance. She had taught three years, was twenty-four years of age, and she had a good college education. She had also attended several summer schools, and for three years had spent her savings in adding to her profession, all skill and knowledge. We explained to her our conditions we had passed at our annual meeting a few days before, and she assured us that we were an exceptional board of directors.

The result of these changes is remarkable. The teacher we hired a year ago last spring is employed for next year, and she is the most successful teacher we ever had in this district. The patrons have found very little fault and that was in the first term. A chronic fault-finder came to me with complaints. I told him if he expected the board to consider his case he would have to file an affidavit. So he posted off to a justice, but when he came to state the matter in writing it looked so small that he refused to make the affidavit. The justice reported to me and the man was so ashamed of himself that he promised that he would not make any more complaints now. He visited the school twice last winter and he is well satisfied with the teacher now.

We have visited the school several times since then and we find it does the children and teacher lots of good to have us visit them. When we visited the school in March some of the neighbors began to visit the school, they didn't use to visit it at all. I wonder if it is because the board were there first? It is not hard work to stand by the teacher now, if we did at the patrons would comply as we reign.

Our teacher is interested by our faithfulness to every duty and and to every opportunity have gain ed the confidence of every one in the township association. She asked us directors to go to the meeting. I went one day and got so much interested that the next month I hitched to the lumber wagon and took over a load of the neighbors. The people became so interested that we voted to add an evening session for the next time. Every one then the house has been crowded with patrons from all over the township. This township takes the lead in school affairs in the county for many others are following in our way.

In this letter is getting somewhat longer than expected I will close for this time. If anything happens in this district I will try to let you know. In the meantime be assured that this school district has advanced in the last year and a half, and we shall keep on advancing. I omitted to say that I was the delegate to Des Moines. It was a very helpful meeting to us for we learned of several things we can do to advance the interests of our school which we will attempt to do at our next annual meeting. Believe me, I am

Yours for real good schools.

The ladies of the Eastern Star are planning a musical event of great importance to be given about Aug. 10th under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Purdy-Smith and her company of actors and singers. The plan is to give the extravaganza entitled "The Witch of the Woods" a musical operetta full of catchy music and brightly witty dialogue. It will be necessary to enlist about 150 of our local talent to assist in the production, and the ladies are satisfied this can be accomplished. It has been suggested that a large tent be procured and located on the Stone lot.

The Fete would last for three days and booths would be erected for the sale of articles which would reap a benefit for the order. The Masons have joined with the ladies and this will insure a grand success. Excursions will be run from Petoskey and other points.

The Harriet Purdy-Smith Company give an entertainment Friday evening at the Inn Cottage.

Anything and that celebrated Austrian boarding robes. New styles and designs, at Cole's Bazaar.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Petoskey Record: The Woodmen of America are preparing for a two days' celebration to be held here in September. A fine celebration is expected.

The Cameron Lumber Co., of Central Lake, have an artesian well at their new mill that is gushing at the rate of ten or fifteen thousand gallons daily.

Bears are quite plentiful in the huckleberry swamps of northern Michigan this summer, and their trails through the high bushes or grass are welcome to the pickers to "look a little out."

Central Lake Torch: Earl Emery from Charlevoix, has taken a position in this office. Mr. Emery is an experienced linotype, as well as printer, and will look after the work at the Lyceum exchange also.

Mr. Harkett, of Petoskey, has been appointed keeper of the government lights on the breakwater, and while Mr. Harkett was fortunate in getting the position, it would be hard to find a better man, and when the government establishes a multi light no doubt Mr. Harkett will be appointed keeper.—Reporter.

Hon. W. J. Bryan will speak at the Bay View auditorium, Petoskey, on the afternoon of Thursday, Aug. 31st. Arrangements are now being made for special rates, excursion trains and boats, and it is believed that the occasion will be made a rallying day for all of the silver men in northern Michigan.

At Elk Rapids Wednesday evening as Mrs. Thomas Mitchell was returning to her home, she was stung on the lip by a bug. Mrs Mitchell found it necessary to pull the bug from her lip, and within a short time the lip began to swell. Her heart was seriously affected, either by the sting or scare. A physician was called.

The Petoskey Democrat is authority for the statement that the Detroit & Mackinac railroad, which is now completed to Onaway, Presque Isle County, will in the near future be extended westward to Petoskey, a distance of forty-four miles. Whether Cheboygan people have been counting on being made the terminus of the road, is to be seen, however not the Democrat fails to note.

Traverse City Record: Hon. Geo. A. Lamb, of Petoskey, has been appointed collector of internal revenue for the Michigan district. He was in our city Friday looking up the advantages of Traverse City as a part of entry. A movement was begun here some time ago to have a post off made of this city and there is a good deal of the consummation of the plan very soon.

Petoskey Record: Capt. A. E. McCabe has been commissioned as Lieutenant by the President, and ordered to report to Col. Gardner, of the 20th U. S. vol regiment, at Camp Wheaton, near Chicago. There is very little doubt that Congress will next winter increase the regular army to 100,000 men, for even the most obtuse opponents of the regular army now see how very much more expensive a volunteer force is. If this be the case the officers now appointed to these ten regiments will in all probability be transferred to the regular establishment before their term expires, and last life-appointments.

Petoskey Independent: The following have published their attendance to the fourth annual meeting of the Northeastern I. O. O. F. Association to be held at Onaway on August 17-18: Selkirk, Grand Marder, H. N. Stone, past grand master and grand representative; Mrs. Ida M. Bailey, past president of Rebekah Assembly; Hon. Fred W. Mayne, Circuit Judge; Hon. H. H. Hudson; Hon. A. H. Cranenbalk; Rev. Fred C. Wood; Rev. Jas. F. Fryer; A. H. Brown, Grand guardian, and E. R. Whitney, Grand secretary, are also expected. The speaking will be public if the weather is favorable, at Rankin's grove, if not at the Academy dance hall.

Local News.

—Capt. Jas Reid was in town Saturday.

—Resort hotels all full and turning people away daily.

—Dr. Lamb advertises household effects for sale in this issue.

—Cliffe, the piano tuner, is at the Bartlett house, ready to take orders.

—Miss Mary Cornell, of Grand Rapids, is visiting Mrs. C. E. Wilson.

—Miss Lottie Dougherty, of Fife Rapids, is visiting Miss Clara Ainslie.

—The county G. A. R. reunion occurs at Boyne City Friday of this week.

—Mrs. Mary Shank, of Omaha, Neb., is here visiting her sch. J. F. Jones.

—Miss Winnie Heston, of East Jordan, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. L. Cooley.

—Jas. Cooper, of Chicago, is here as the guest of his uncle, Capt. John Ed Sy.

—Rev. John Knox Hall, of Clarence, Iowa, is sojourning with his cousin, Harry Luke.

—County recorder Pearson is entertaining his father Jas. Pearson, of Springvale.

—Rev. C. T. Wood and wife, of Traverse City, are spending a week with Mr. C. D. Wood.

—Highway Commissioner Hines is repairing the bridge pier. John Monroe is doing the work with his steam driver.

—Gen. H. A. Wheeler, wife and son, of the Chicago resort, are making a trip with a party of Chicago friends to Yellowstone Park.

—R. A. Emery and wife left Sunday for Hamilton to attend the wedding of Mr. Emery's nephew, Miss Hosmer, well known here.

—A full attendance of the members of White Pine Hive, No. 483, is looked at the next regular review, Aug. 15. Business of importance.

—S. S. Burke, president and general manager of the People's Transit Co., between Boyne Harbor, St. Jos and Milwaukee, was in town Monday and Tuesday.

—Postmaster Meech, of this place, and H. M. Chamberlain, of Detroit, left Sunday by steamer Dean, with full camping outfit for a fishing trip to the upper peninsula.

—By reference to an advertisement to be found elsewhere in this issue it will be seen that bids for the construction of the Charlevoix life saving station will be opened Aug. 16th.

—Miss Winifred Bartholomew is visiting a party from her college friends, Misses Wrigglan Fiske of Toledo, Gertrude Montague, of Traverse City, Alberta Daniels, of Jackson, and Rachel McKenzie, of Ann Arbor.

—Miss Annie Metcalf closed her year's work in school district, No. 3, Hudson, on July 28, with a rousing entertainment, participated in by the entire patronage of the school, recitations, speeches, flag drills, music, etc., made a very enjoyable occasion for all.

—East Jordan Herald: If the crowd of resorters that came up from Charlevoix Wednesday night and paraded the streets since 10 o'clock is a sample of the people Charlevoix caters to, we are simply thankful that East Jordan is just a solid, every day business town.

—Daily Reporter: The absence of "Poor Lo" from Petoskey on Saturday night and Sunday has lately been sufficiently noticeable to cause some speculation as to the reason of his non-appearance. The consensus of opinion is that he does not like the way his spirited panks are received, and goes to Charlevoix for his liquor, rather than come here where businessmen individuals are welcomed.

—A P. Chaddock, of Sioux Haven, well known by old settlers of Charlevoix county as "Peter" Chaddock, is visiting friends in Charlevoix and about Pine Lake and will this week set up and operate a roller gallery in Charlevoix. Mr. Chaddock is one of the pioneers of this locality having located here in 1866, having been thirteen years ago. He was the first carpenter and joiner in Charlevoix, having, in 1867, built the Fox house, now occupied by L. S. Seig and the old Fox residence on the north side.

—Mrs. O. E. Wilcox and her son and daughter took in Hamilla's island resort last Saturday.

—Among the camp resorters to Gamella last week were Dr. Lori Lewis and his son Hollis.

—Some big bass catches are being made in the Marion and Banks lakes by Charlevoix resorters.

—Among the callers here Sunday were Herbert Montague and H. J. Morgan, of Traverse City.

—John Mitchell and wife, of Evanline, will leave the last of this week for Scotland, on a visit among the scenes of their childhood.

—The contractors are making good progress in installing the new heating and ventilating plant at the Central school building. It will take three weeks longer to complete the work.

—The steamer Manitou gives a $1.00 Mackinac Island excursion every Friday and the Illinois takes you the round trip for $1.00 every Thursday and Sunday, returning Friday and Monday.

—Rev. Lee "Live" rater, of Illinois, known among the old vets as "Private Live," is a guest at the Belvidere. Lee Live was ungodly in the opinion that McKinley's would succeed himself and that W. J. Bryan would have plenty of business in which to continue his lecture tour after 1900.

—The annual regatta of the Little Traverse Bay Club will occur on Charlevoix course Aug. 16, 17 and 18. The regatta will embrace yacht races of all classes and various aquatic sports. Prizes valued at $600 will be offered. An unusually interesting series of races is promised, and a large number of entries is expected.

—Here is a piece of Charlevoix news from the East Jordan Sun: "Last fall the nets and fishing apparatus of Neil Gallagher, of the Beaver Islands, were confiscated by Deputy State Game and Fish Warden Brewster, because of an illegal violation of the fishing law. Gallagher claimed that his property was wrongfully seized and a short time ago began a suit for damages against the state. This case was heard in Charlevoix Saturday, in a justice's court, and the jury disagreed. The attorney general of the state defended the case, and four deputy game wardens were present."

—The last attractions that manager Lewis has booked this season will appear at the opera house next Tuesday evening. A new dance concert entitled "Mrs B. O'Shaughnessey (Wash Lady)" in which Miss St. George Hussey sets the title role. The comedy is from the pen of Edith Ellis Baker and has received words of praise from the newspapers wherever the company has played this season. The following is clipped from the Syracuse Standard: "But all is overshadowed by Mrs. O'Shaughnessey, interpreted by Miss St. George Hussey, the wonderful exponent of Irish character, who has no equal in her part. Miss Hussey is a true artist and a woman of more than ordinary intelligence and attainments and widely traveled. She throws herself into her work, forgets herself completely, and for the time is Mrs. O'Shaughnessey" as we would see her on Harbor Point, New York. She was a success from the start and conquered the audience at every appearance. Her specialties were very clever and heartily appreciated. They will be Miss Hussey's only appearance in Charlevoix this season.

Religious Notes.

Baptist.

Sacramental service Sunday morning, and preaching in the evening by the pastor.

Congregational.

Sunday, Aug. 13, Rev. W. H. McClanahan, of East Jordan, will preach at the morning service.

Sunday Notes.

Mr. Myer and family of St. Louis, Mo., are visiting for a few days at Van Pelt's.

Lamred Ferguson and wife and baby arrived Sunday morning from Chicago.

Mrs. Annie Carel, of Clarion, is with her mother Mrs. Daniel Stafford for a short visit.

Mrs. Amelon Stafford, who has been visiting in Canada for the last two months, returned on Friday.

N. A. Shores has gone for a week's fishing with Fred Meech and Robert Chamberlain. They left Monday on the Illinois and go to Trout river on the U. P.

Marine Notes.

The Manitou tug Wheeler was here Sunday with a dredging plant on the way to Cheboygan.

The tug Hyan, owned by the Grinnins, of Traverse City, is hauled out at Washburn's yard for repairs.

Capt. Wm. Taylor is here from Traverse City with the tug McLaire, and will do general towing for a month.

The local inspectors of steam vessels for this district have had their salaries raised to $2,000.

Twenty feet of water over the outer bar and well up inside the piers, and less than 15 feet from there into Round Lake.

The steamer Cunningham, lying at Swain yard here, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire Friday. Fire caught around the smoke stack and burned the inside work about the boiler room quite badly before it was subdued. The fire alarm called out the department.

While the small schooner Nellie Johnson of Beaver island was loading wood at Plum island several days ago a heavy wind and sea drove her ashore. The life savers assisted in effecting her release by jettisoning cargo. The Johnson was taken to Detroit island in leaky condition for temporary repairs.

Last week the tug J. I. Higgie was sold by G. C. Gotlieb to Capt. E. E. Campbell, of Port Huron. Capt. Campbell is master of the schooner Bulford, which brought a cargo of coal for the city. The Higgie left for Port Huron Friday, towing the Bulford, all the tugs in the harbor giving the departing veteran craft a noisy good-bye.

Lieut. Blosburg of the revenue cutter service has been assigned to duty as inspector of the lifesaving service on Lake Michigan, vice Capt. Moore recalled. It is understood that Lieut. Heinberg's assignment is but a temporary one, and that he will remain on duty in the Lake Michigan district only during the summer. Lieut. Heinberg was inspector of this district last year, but broke out, and was ordered to sail water.

A dispatch from Fort Tawas, Michigan to the Detroit Tribune announces the death of Mrs. Hulda Township of Alexander Nelson at the age of 70 years. Baldwin had resided near Fort Tawas forty years. He came from Sweden, sailed a short time on the lakes, joined Strang's band of Mormons at Beaver Island, claimed the members of the gang purposely shipped on vessels for the purpose of stocking them at the island, and in some instances entire crews were captured, vessels robbed of cargo, then sunk, and each of the crews so would not join the gang murdered. This substantiates what early lake sailors so steadfastly maintained the Mormons had done. Nelson claimed to have been driven from Beaver Island at the time Strang was.

A South Haven special of Monday and the morning: The passenger steamer City of Grand Haven, with series and a number of more than 200 persons on board, narrowly escaped foundering in mid-lake Saturday night. When 35 miles out from Milwaukee a large amount of water was discovered in the hold, which was pouring in from many leaks. The pumps refused to work and the steamer was headed for this port. The passengers was awakened and told of the danger and were provided with life-saving appliances. Just before the water rose high enough to put out the fires one of the steamer's pumps were rigged up and this kept the water in check until she port was reached. Had bodies in the water would have shut off the supply of steam from the boilers and the steamer would be such in mid-lake, most likely with great loss of life. The steamer had been laid up all summer and was but a few days ago fitted out for the excursion business. It is supposed that her outfitting was defective. When the steamer reached this port she was sunk deeply in the water and had the sinuous roll of a water logged boat.

Teachers Examination.

The regular teachers examination for Charlevoix county will be held in the central school building in Charlevoix on Aug. 17 and 18. The examinations will commence at 8:30 a. m. and close at 5 p. m. Applicants for entrance to the Agricultural College can take the examination Aug. 17 at the same place. The State Teachers' Institute for Charlevoix county will commence Aug. 21st at 10 a. m. at same place.

—The annual regatta of the Little Traverse Boat Club will occur in Charlevoix waters Aug. 16, 17 and 18. The regatta will embrace yacht races of all classes and various aquatic sports. Prizes valued at $600 will be offered. An unusually interesting series of races is promised, and a large number of entries is expected.

—Here is a piece of Charlevoix news from the East Jordan Enterprise: "Last fall the nets and fishing apparatus of Neil Gallagher, of the Beaver islands, were confiscated by Deputy State Game and Fish Warden Brewster, because of an illegal violation of the fishing law. Gallagher claimed that his property was wrongfully seized and a short time ago began a suit for damages against the state. The case was heard in Charlevoix Saturday, by a justice's court, and the jury disagreed. The attorney general of the state defended the case, and four deputy game wardens were present."

—The best attractions that manager Lewis has booked the season will appear at the opera house next Tuesday evening. A new three-act comedy entitled "Mrs. B. O'Shaughnessy (Wash Lady)" in which Miss St. George Hussey acts the title role. The comedy is from the pen of Edith Ellis Baker and has received scores of praise from the newspapers wherever the company has played this season. The following is clipped from the Syracuse Standard: "Not so in ever shadowed by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, impersonated by Miss St. George Hussey, the wonderful exponent of true Irish character, who has no equal in her part. Miss Hussey is a true artist and a woman of more than ordinary intelligence and attainments and widely traveled. She throws her whole soul into her work, forgets individuality, and for the time is 'Mrs. O'Shaughnessy' as we would see her on Harlem Flats, New York. She was a success from the start and convulsed the audience at every appearance. Her specialities were very clever and heartily applauded." This will be Miss Hussey's only appearance in Charlevoix this season.

The steamer Cummings, lying at Swalle yard here, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire Friday. Fire caught around the smoke stack and charred the inside work about the boiler room quite badly before it was subdued. The fire alarm called out the department.

While the small schooner Nellie Johnson of Beaver island was loading wood at Pleto Island several days ago a heavy wind and sea drove her ashore. The life savers assisted in effecting her release by jettisoning cargo. The Johnson was taken to Detroit island in leaky condition for temporary repairs.

Last week the tug J. I. Riggle was sold by G. C. Gideon to Capt. E. E. Campbell, of Port Huron. Capt. Campbell is master of the schooner Duxford, which brought a cargo of coal for the city. The Riggle left for Port Huron Friday, towing the Duxford, all the cogs in the harbor giving the departing veteran craft a noisy good-bye.

Lieut. Heinburg of the revenue cutter service has been assigned to duty as inspector of the lifesaving service on Lake Michigan, vice Capt. Morris deceased. It is understood that Lieut. Heinburg's assignment is but a temporary one, and that he will remain on duty in the Lake Michigan district only during the summer. Lieut. Heinburg was inspector of this district when the new Grisby cut and was ordered to salt water.

A dispatch from Fort Tawas, Michigan to the Detroit Tribune announces the death in Baldwin township of Alexander Nelson at the age of 70 years. Baldwin had resided near Fort Tawas forty years. He came from Sweden, sailed a short time on the lakes, joined Strang's band of Mormons at Beaver Island, claimed that members of the gang purposely shipped on vessel for the purpose of wrecking them at the island, and in some instances entire crews were captured, vessels robbed of cargo, then sunk, and each of the crews as would make from the gang murdered. The substantiates what early lake sailors steadfastly maintained the Mormons had done. Nelson claimed to have been driven from Beaver Island at the time Strang was.

A South Haven special of Monday has the following: The passenger steamer City of Grand Rapids, with 250 persons on board, narrowly escaped foundering in mid-lake Saturday night. When 35 miles out from Milwaukee a large amount of water was discovered in her hold, which was pouring in from many leaks. The pumps refused to work and the steamer was headed for this port. The passengers was awakened and told of the danger and were provided with life-saving appliances. That before the water rose high enough to put out the fires one of the steamer's pumps were rigged up and this kept the water in check until this port was reached. Two inches more water would have shut off the supply of steam from the boilers and the steamer must have sunk in mid-lake, most likely with great loss of life. The steamer had been laid up all summer and was but a few days ago fitted out for the season's business. It is supposed that her cambing was defective. When the steamer reached this port she was sunk deeply in the water and had the sluggish roll of a water-logged boat.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CRAIG, COM'R.

The following letter to the Ionia Normal Monthly indicates pretty clearly something of the good the right kind of a school director may do when he sets a-going:

Mr. J. A. Edwards, Dubuque Iowa.

MY DEAR SIR:—I thought perhaps you might be interested in what has transpired in our district, so I have decided to write you all about it.

You see, our school has not been doing well for some time, and we were about discouraged. Our children were not getting an education as fast as we thought they should. Our board had employed all kinds of teachers, male and female teachers, second and first class teachers, but somehow the school did not prosper. The patrons were everlasting, and the neighborhood was very much exercised over the unhappy condition of our school.

At the election in March, 1898, I was elected a director. There are three directors in our district. I was elected president of the board. I had been considering our troubles, and I had arrived at the conclusion that the directors were not doing their whole duty, neither were the patrons of the school doing all their duty, so I decided that I would have some changes made in our plan of running the school.

1. The first thing I proposed was that instead of hiring a teacher by the "if the others are willing, I am" spoken in the application the rounds in the field, in town, etc., we set a date and give notice that on that date we would hire our teacher in open board meeting, and invite all who wished to apply to be present at that time.

I urged that we would have a better chance of getting a good teacher. The other directors finally agreed with me that it would be better, and it was so ordered. We fixed March 20, 1898, as the date when we would employ our teacher.

2. In the next place, as we had been having a different teacher every term, I suggested that it might be well to hire a teacher for at least two terms, and perhaps for the year. After due consideration the board voted unanimously to employ a teacher for a year.

3. Our people had been finding a good deal of fault, and had accepted the board's invitation with complaints. After talking over the situation for a while we voted "instead by our teacher." We decided that it was our duty to protect the teacher and the school from all petty annoyances. We also passed unanimously a resolution that any person who was surveyed sufficiently to go to the board, would be required to file an affidavit stating his grievance. Also that the board would not heed any other form of complaint.

4. A conversation developed the fact that some of the patrons never visited the school. We decided that to employ an agent and thus secure impact his work was contrary to the spirit of our school system, and we voted to visit the school several times during the year.

5. Our county commissioner organized last spring a system of township associations for the teachers. We voted that our teacher should attend the meetings held in our township, for we thought it would benefit our school. We decided also that the teacher should be paid for that day just the same as for teaching, if she attended the meeting, but she should forfeit the day's wages if she should not attend, unless sickness or other reason accepted able to the board prevented.

6. In order that we might get a better idea of how to manage the affairs of a school district, we voted to send a delegate to the next township meeting of school directors, at Dexter, and to pay his or her expenses out of the contingent fund, the delegate to report at a special meeting of the board for the benefit of the meeting.

7. We talked of several things that we thought would make our school more attractive. We decided that we would require our teacher to board with the school children, as we passed a resolution that would require our teacher to board around.

8. We decided that we would not hire a teacher for a term of years, but would hire a teacher for a year at a time.

These were the seven resolutions we passed. There were several applicants, only two young men among the number. After carefully considering them we decided on a young lady of good appearance. She had taught three years, was twenty-five years of age, and she had a good college education. She had also attended several summer schools, and for three years had spent her savings in adding to her professional skill and knowledge. We explained to her the resolutions we had passed at our annual meeting a few days before, and she assured us that we were an exceptional board of directors.

The result of these changes is remarkable. The teacher we hired a year ago last spring is employed for next year, and she is the most successful teacher we ever had in this district. The patrons have found very little fault and that was in the first term. A chronic faultfinder came to me with complaints. I told him if he expected the board to consider his case he would have to file an affidavit. So he posted off to a justice, but when he came to state the matter in writing it looked so small that he refused to make the affidavit. The justice reported to me that the man was so ashamed of himself that he promised that he would not make any more complaints soon. He visited the school twice last Winter and he is well satisfied with the teacher now.

We have visited the school several times apiece, and we find it does the children and teacher lots of good to have us visit them. What surprised me most was that after awhile the neighbors began to visit the school, they didn't use to visit it at all. I wonder if it is because the board were there first? It is not hard work to stand by the teacher now, if we did as the patrons would compel us to resign.

Our teacher is esteemed by all. Her faithfulness to every duty and to every opportunity have gain ed the confidence of every one in the township association. She asked us directors to go to the meeting. I went one day and got so much interested that the next month I hitched to the lumber wagon and took over a load of the neighbors. The people became so interested that we voted to add an evening session for the next time. Ever since then the house has been crowded with patrons from all over the township. This township takes the lead in school affairs in the county for many others are following in our way.

As this letter is getting some at longer than expected I will close for this time. If anything happens in this district I will try to let you know. In the meantime be assured that this school district has advanced in the last year and a half, and we shall keep on advancing.

I should say that I was the delegate to Des Moines. It was a very helpful meeting to us for we learned of several things we can do to advance the interests of our school which we will attempt to do at our next annual meeting. Believe me, I am

EVAN JOHNSON, Director.

Marine Notes.

The fine steam yacht Bonita came in Monday.

The steamer Columbia is at Sturgeon river repairing a broken rudder stock.

The sloop yacht Charlotte E., with H. D. Clarke, president of the Illinois Steel Co., of Chicago, on board, was in port Sunday.

The fishing tug John Smutz has been transferred into a neat little passenger boat, and is doing special excursion work in local ports.

The steamer Dawes, of Frankfort, came in here Sunday with a crowd of very seasick excursionists. The Dawes was bound for Petoskey, but got the trip short.

The Green dredging outfit completed its work here Thursday, but a depth of twenty feet over the bar. The outfit was unable to get out until Friday morning, owing to very rough weather. They went to Frankfort.

The schooner Amazon, well laden with lumber, was stripped some days ago, and shot a hole off on Hebron lake one morning by discovering its bottom of coal. She was raised without assistance, and her captain wired here for a tug. The Riggle went after her, and the vessel is now discharging her cargo here, the sailors very much injured.

The schooner Lizzie Fitzpatrick, Capt. Jas. Reid, master, left Sunday for Milwaukee with a load of lumber for the work of Cole's Bazaar.

Summer Fete for Charlevoix.

The ladies of the Eastern Star are planning a musical event of great importance to be given about Aug. 30th, under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Purdy-Smith and her company of actors and singers. The idea is to give the entertainment entitled "The Witch of the Woods," a musical operetta full of catchy music, and bright witty dialogue. It will be necessary to enlist at least 100 of our local talent to assist in the production, and the ladies are sanguine that can be accomplished. It has been suggested that a large tent be generously donated and erected on the Masonic lot.

The Fete would last for three days and hostess would be invited for the men to achieve much would reap a bonanza for the order. The Masons have joined with the ladies and this will insure a grand success. Excursions will be run from Petoskey and other points.

The Harriet Purdy-Smith Company give an entertainment Friday evening at the Inn Carlton.

ANNUNCIO—that celebrated Austrian souvenir china. New styles and designs, at Cole's Bazaar.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Petoskey Record: The Woodmen of America are preparing for a two days' celebration, to be held here in September. A fine celebration is expected.

The Cameron Lumber Co., of Crystal Lake, have so situated well at that now mill that is getting at the rate of ten or fifteen thousand gallons daily.

Bears are quite plentified in the Kalkaskaberry swamps of northern Michigan this summer, and their trails through the high bushes of grass are unlike to the pickers to look a leedle out."

Central Lake Torch: Earl Emery from Charlevoix, has taken a position in this office, Mr. Emery is an experienced linotuner, as well as printer, and will look after the work at the local exchange also.

Mr. Hurkett, of Petoskey, has been appointed keeper of the government lights on the breakwater, and while Mr. Hurkett was fortunate in getting the position it would be hard to find a better man and when the government establishes a main light no doubt Mr. Hurkett will be appointed keeper.—Reorder.

Hon. W. J. Bryan will speak at the Day View auditorium, Petoskey, on the afternoon of Thursday, Aug. 31st. Arrangements are now being made for special rates, excursion trains and boats, and it is believed that the occasion will be made a raiding day for all the silver men in northern Michigan.

At Elk Rapids Wednesday evening as Mrs. Thomas Mitchell was returning to her home, the was stung on the lip by a bee. Mrs. Mitchell found it necessary to pull the bug from her lip, and within a short time the lip began to swell. Her heart was seriously affected, either by the sting or scare. A physician was called.

The Petoskey Inconstant is authority for the statement that the Detroit & Mackinac railroad, which is now completed to Ouawa, Presque Isle Co., will in the near future be extended westward to Petoskey, a distance of forty-four miles. Whether Chebogan will be the point connecting on being made the terminus of the road, is to be determined or not the Inconstant fails to say.

Traverse City Record: Rev. Geo. A. Fitch, of Grand Rapids, president of the University and collector of internal revenue for the Michigan district, was in the city Friday looking up the advantages of Traverse City as a port of entry. A movement was begun here some time ago to have a port of entry made of this city and there is a prospect of the consummation of the plan very soon.

Petoskey Record: Capt. A. E. McCabe has been commissioned as Lieutenant by the President, and ordered to report to Col. Gardner, of the 30th U. S. vol. regiment, at Camp Sheridan, near Chicago. There is very little doubt that Congress will next winter increase the regular army to 100,000 men, for even the most obstinate opponents of the regular army now see how very much more expensive a volunteer force is. If this be the case the officers now appointed to these regiments will be all positively retained in the regular establishment before their term expires, and hold life appointments.

Indiana Independent: The following have promised their attendance to the fourth annual meeting of the Northeastern T. P. C. T. Association to be held at Hebron on August 17, 18, 19: Messrs. Grand Master, M. N. Winter, past grand master and grand representative; Mrs. Ida M. Stallcup, president of Hebron A. T. S.; Hon. Fred W. Mayne, Grand Junior Templar; Hon. Frank E. Gorton, Crooksville; Rev. Fred C. Wood, Logansport; Jas. F. Pryor, A. S. Brown, Grand guardian and m. E. Wesley, Grand secretary, are also expected. The following will be present: Mrs. Winter, of Pendleton, Mrs. Stallcup, of Hebron, M. Hoffman, of Bell, M. Bailey, Bell.

"Dad was had for a very much on another. Lot made a free access to the house and grounds. There was nothing of Gaspillon who I was come to visit—and there I was, in the middle of a big, fine place, with the gardens and all that. There was even some rose in the Hudson, and I felt like a little Crusoe, only not so lonesome. Dad's people in Holland, I guess, were Dutch, and I felt as if I was among relations and welcomed home. Mr. Bryan's Good Humor.

William Jennings Bryan has taken his defeat quietly with his telegram from Lincoln.

The first time this was when, as he put it here the other day, he "fell in the hole" time turned the definition that he was to be president." The second time was last Thursday.

Between these two appearances here of the boy orator of the Platte, a transformation has occurred. The Republican party has returned to power and its results achieved as president, Mr. Bryan has been proved a false prophet. Industrial and commercial conditions have under the operation of sound money been lifted from stagnancy to life and activity. A war has been fought and results from it have accrued which under ordinary times would have been called a national calamity, yet which, without military superiority prior to the Spanish war, set himself up as an expert in matters of war, in the condition of the war. The war cost a great deal of money, but after the money was spent the country was in better condition than it was before it was spent. Mr. Bryan in the course of his speech in Chicago on the subject of the effect of the war on the country, contended that his opinions in regard to the war were justified because the country had been involved in a war. Prosperity came after the war. Ergo, the war was a good thing. Mr. Bryan is a pleasant personality and a fluent talker. It was undoubtedly proper to greet him kindly and give him a respectful hearing.

Now, Fingers has sprung a new advertising dodge for himself. This time it is the Alger episode.

An individual who is referred to by himself as Hon. Leonard Rippington, of Iowa, has renounced his citizenship because of alleged manifestation with the present administration. The fellow is being appropriately referred to by contempt newspapers, of course, and will probably figure as a minor in all democratic rallies in Iowa in the coming campaign.

Bradstreet's says the aggregate bank clearings of Michigan, as shown by returns to June 30, footed up to the enormous total of $6,000,000 an increase of almost ten millions of dollars above the previous report of the state banks, which made no mention. Mr. Bryan's stockholm to the contrary, which may not be and cannot upon his view as our money other than a good one, the fact that Michigan is called white is a happy beginning in this section of the state for a campaign for sound money. Mr. Bryan's Bryan, of Lincoln, Neb.

Bryan wants every Democrat to vote on the ballot in that year. Bryan wants every Democrat to vote on the ballot in that year. Bryan wants every Democrat to vote on the ballot in that year.

Insurance Commissioner says Owen failed in his ledger in Michigan. Insurance in the state during the year falls. Insurance to the amount of $23,375,000 was written by fire companies during the year upon the loss of Michigan citizens, and the total premiums paid upon policies containing and in force were $4,620,000." Respectfully referred to Mr. W. Jennings Bryan, of Lincoln, Neb.

Mr. Bryan's friends in Michigan are, therefore, of New York, are urged responsible for Gen. Alger's resignation as secretary of war. Mr. Bryan's "millions" without military experience prior to the Spanish war, set himself up as an expert in matters of war, in the condition of the war. The war cost a great deal of money, but after the money was spent the country was in better condition than it was before it was spent. Mr. Bryan in the course, pathetically, baby and forever.

Mr. Bryan was a passenger on the steamer City of Charlevoix bound for Bay View. A large crowd was on the dock as the steamer entered the harbor. Mr. Bryan stood in the bow, gracefully acknowledging the greetings of his people.

After the steamer had landed, the Congressional gentlemen appeared on the dock accompanied by President Hilldings, who had very properly waited on the steamer to greet and entertain the author of the "cross of gold" and "crown of thorns."

President Hilldings, in introducing Mr. Bryan, stated that while on the congressional junket yesterday night never to permitted, we would all agree and his position of Secretary of the Calculator.

Mr. Bryan's stories for Mr. Bryan and he is passed out on "Imperialism," as other of his delusions in the answer the question "Is he for Bryan?" the president of the great annual "sound and the thoughtful, candid citizen answer, on all Mr. Bryan, talk against expansion and "imperialism" is failed to support a policy he stood a proposition, he would have voted against the Philippine treaty." He did not tell us what he would do if he had been issued and vitiated by buying their stuff in Chicago than they would in securing it from their home or local merchants.

They expect their local merchants to take their butter, cheese, eggs, potatoes and other farm products, and pay them the highest market price for them, but if they withhold their patronage from their local merchants they cannot reasonably expect their home dealers will do as well by them as the chicago house. The local merchants cannot live without local patronage. They cannot keep up their stock and give credit to farmers, and pay their running expenses, unless they have the trade of the people in the towns in which they live and do business.

Merchants and farmers should stand together instead help each other. Could this a common interest in the weal of their town, if they expect to live in a prosperous community, have their town grow and their farm and village property increase in value. We believe that one great cause of the present depression of farms, or rent of real estate interests, is the contribution of capital to the town. Capital that has organized in Chicago, and yet the farmers of the country, instead of distributing it among the towns and giving everyone a chance of obtaining a competence and becoming self-reliant.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Petoskey has met in a large regime the only enemy light works that with the pounds pressure will provide 100 large power.

Comrade Wm. J. Morris, of Boyne City, has been commissioned Chief Mustering Officer of G. A. R., for the staff of State Commander Fisher.

Boston parties have closed contracts for the delivery of 10,000 ties on Frankfort docks. This or the Boston people expected ever ordered from Duane county.

Capt. A. E. McCune, now a lieutenant in the new volunteer service, has opened a recruiting station in Petoskey. Men are wanted for all branches of United States service.

Frank Frederick, of Traverse City had the misfortune to have a diamond ring from his dexterity sorting the pennies, while their have the trade of the people in the towns in which they live and do business.

Smoking on Water.

According to Prof. J. Joly of Trinity College, Dublin, a phase rarely glimpsed, and a curious property of water, consists in forming under the crests and troughs of waves, a film of water, which, if possessed of a certain size, may be seen under the sharp edge of the skate, along the shore, and in the form of curves which is at any moment in contact with a single point, to form a film of ice, and this gives the skate a "bite." When the film is very cold the pressure is sometimes inadequate to reduce the melting point sufficiently, and then, as all skaters know, it is difficult to make the skate bite. For very cold ice Prof. Joly recommends "bottom ground" skates because the friction of water increases with the thickness of the skate.

TRADE IN PLAGUE GERMS.
Are Exported to All Parts of the World for Study.

There is a phase of the situation which the imaginative or nervous will readily assume to be the worst of all—at least in the form. It relates to the exporting of plague germs to every corner of Christendom by the doctors and medical students who have gone to India, first from Japan and more from every part of Europe and America, to study the epidemic. For three years this monkeying of these germs has gone on, and no ... left India the Bombay Gazette declared that it still continues. "We believe we are right," the model writer, "in stating that perhaps none of the special medical officers who has left Bombay multiled to carry away with him a tube of microbes to enable him to study the plague. There is a Dr Haffkine who for him the cultures of microbes, or cultures on board steamers, and for the carrying of tons of gunpowder or dynamite is not so dangerous as the bits of cultures carried by an irresponsible medico. The possibilities of a little point of microbes are incalculable. They might decimate the population of a great city. The plan of the editor is that the carriers of plague cultures be made a criminal charge. One would imagine that though the Indian officials may show no concern at the loss of life of which they already have too much, other governments, at whose people the cultures are aimed, may realize the enormity of the crime.—Harper's Weekly.

AERONAUT SAVED BY A TREE.
Has Escaped from the Bottom and the Claws were Falling to Death.

C. C. Pamentie, an aeronaut, had a narrow escape from death in New York the other afternoon while making a balloon ascension in Ridgewood Park, on the outskirts of Williamsburg. In the presence of nearly 10,000 persons it was the first day of celebration of the five days' festival of the Plattdeutscher Volksfest verein. Bunnells had been engaged to make a balloon ascension, and while in mid air a unique performance and then descend in a parachute. While the men were filling the balloon with gas they failed to notice a slight leak near the top. When everything was ready, Bunnells took his seat on the trapeze and the balloon slowly moved upward. When he reached a height of about 100 feet it was noticed by the crowd that instead of giving a trapeze performance he was bobbing helplessly to the ropes. Finally the balloon began coming down slowly. Bonnetts was struggling to free the parachute from the ropes he fused to work. He cut the ropes while the balloon was floating almost over the center of a mile outside of the park, and, holding the parachute, let himself drop. Bonnetts was then about 60 feet in the air. He landed on a tree, instead of on the ground. A little later the balloon came down with a crash within a few yards from where Bonnetts had landed. Bonnetts was taken from the tree and found to have received only a few bruises.

Leadhey Microbes.

Under the above heading a writer, in Nature, or Pasteur, contributes an interesting article on spontaneous combustion, stating that when stored bales of cotton, tobacco, etc. take fire the cotton is in the first place the bacteria. In wet seasons such fires are most common and are due to wet cotton, etc. in a damp state, fermentation follows, with great rise of temperature—towards the middle of the action of chlorine; the day is changed to a dry, porous and carbonaceous condition, and it presently takes fire, it will consume slowly, until another fresh air to its help, when the bacteria make burnt bale fuses and the unknown "bottom ground" skates because the friction of water increases with the thickness of the skate.

FOUL PLOT IN KOREA.

DYNAMITE FOR HOUSES OF PROMINENT OFFICIALS.

Many Explosions Take Place and Six Native Officials Are Arrested, and the Japanese Legation Calls Upon the Government for Protection.

A letter from Seoul, Corea, gives details of a series of explosions that recently occurred in the city of Seoul, of which the first took place on the night of the 15th ultimo. Shortly after 9 o'clock a terrific explosion was heard in the direction of the Japanese legation, and members of the staff proceeded to the spot, accompanied by a Corean official, who, however, on being questioned, stated that he was ignorant of the cause of the explosion. Subsequently it was found that a dynamite bomb had been placed in the house of a Corean official, and had wrecked the building. The Japanese legation then sent a guard to the house, and, on being informed that the Corean authorities had arrested six persons on the charge of having placed the bomb, the legation sent a strong protest to the Corean Foreign Office, in which it was stated that the Japanese legation could not allow the Corean authorities to deal with the matter, and that the Japanese Government would hold the Corean Government responsible for the outrage, and would demand that the guilty parties should be punished, and that the Corean Government should pay an indemnity for the damage done to the Japanese legation and to the Japanese subjects.

Later on the same night another bomb was placed in the house of a Corean official, and, after the explosion, the house was found to be in flames. The Japanese troops were then called upon to extinguish the fire, and, while doing so, a third bomb was found in the house, and was thrown into the street, where it exploded, killing one of the Japanese soldiers and wounding several others. The Japanese troops then searched the premises, and found a fourth bomb, which they threw into the street, where it also exploded, but without doing any damage. The Japanese troops then searched the premises, and found a fifth bomb, which they threw into the street, where it also exploded, but without doing any damage. The Japanese troops then searched the premises, and found a sixth bomb, which they threw into the street, where it also exploded, but without doing any damage. —Frank N. Clark, superintendent of the U. S. fish hatcheries in Michigan, and one of the most distinguished men of his profession in the country, was in town yesterday and today, making a trip yesterday to the Beaver Islands. Clark is here to arrange for the collection of spawn under the new arrangement. Men will be sent here and to the Beaver early in October, and the gathering of spawn will be prosecuted with vigor. On Nov. 1st, the beginning of the closed season, if a sufficient supply has not been secured, fishermen, to be selected by Mr. Clark will be employed to continue the work during said the hatcheries are supplied. That period may extend into November, the work, but it is hoped to close in a week. Fishermen will be notified to stop fishing when the supply is secured, and the agent will and will be advised of the exact time so that fishermen doing business after that time do it at their own risk. Mr. Clark will be here again next week with a car of fry, and will then make further arrangements with fishermen.

DEATH OF RICHARD KNIGHT.

Another Aged Traverse Pioneer Goes to His Last Rest.

Hon. Richard Knight died at his home in this village last Monday night after a long illness.

Mr Knight's health began failing him a year ago, at which time he had a severe attack of grippe.

Hon. Richard Knight was born near Farnham, in the county of Surry, England, May 4, 1831, receiving an education in the common schools. In June, 1856, he emigrated to Canada, settling in the township of Woodstock, Ontario, where he learned the blacksmith's trade in all its branches, laboring at the forge and anvil for eighteen successive years. From Woodstock he removed to Stratford, and from thence to Eagle township, Waukesha county, Wisconsin, carrying on a jobbing blacksmith and wagon shop.

Growing accounts reaching him of the fertility of the soil in Northern Michigan, after a thorough investigation he determined in what is now the township of Banks, Antrim county, on the first day of January, 1863. Through all the cabin subject to all the inconveniences and privations incident to pioneering in the north woods at that early date, he has succeeded in clearing up a fine farm, where 30 years ago miles of dense forest extended in every direction from his humble clearing, the nearest grist mill being forty-seven miles distant over roads almost impassable at the most propitious seasons of the year. Mr. Knight has held the office of Sheriff of Antrim county, Justice of the Peace of his township for sixteen years.

In 1883 Mr. Knight was elected to the lower house of the State legislature, from the district embracing the counties of Antrim, Leelanau and Benzie, and represented the district with credit to himself.

Besides a wife, deceased leaves two children, Mrs. A. E. Palmer of Kalkaska, and Wm. Knight, of Banks.

Mr. Knight was a man of most sterling integrity and his death will be mourned by a large circle of friends. The funeral will occur tomorrow.

A TRAGIC END.

Death of Isaac Hogan—Was It Accident or Suicide?

Isaac Hogan was found dying at his home Friday evening, with a bullet through his head. Whether his death was due to accident or suicide will probably always be a mystery, but the burden of evidence is on the side of accident.

Mr. Hogan was night watchman at the Chicago resort. About seven o'clock, after eating his supper, he went up stairs to prepare to go on watch. The report of a revolver was heard upstairs, and the body of his wife, who had gone upstairs to see what was being planned his hand from side to side, and lodging in a rather shelvy place found he was dying, but had unconscious, dying soon after.

A coroner's jury was summoned, consisting of John Jones, M. J. Sheehan, Chas. Jones, Geo. W. Cook, C. Y. Moss and George Ingleton, and empanneled Saturday morning. The following facts were brought out: Only his step-daughter, Pearl Darin, was in the house at the time, N. F. Thornton, father-in-law was in a neighbor's house, and Mrs. Hogan was washing in the grove adjoining the house. After having the upper table House had gone to the grove and talked with his wife, returning to go up stairs. What the conversation was in the grove was not brought out. The theory of accident is strengthened by the fact that no powder marks were found on the head. A test with the revolver on a bucket at four feet distance, showed preliminary by powder grains. The fact, also that the revolver was discharged, and that the bullet went from right to left, weakens the suicide theory.

The revolver in question is surrounded by mystery, and the verdict of the jury was "that deceased came to his death by a revolver bullet accidentally discharged, or by his own hand while temporarily insane."

Deceased had been a resident of Charlevoix from boyhood. He was a member of the Chicago club, and belonging to the Chicago club, and belonging to the Chicago club, and belonging to

THE SAPATRADOS.

Strong Mountain Fortresses Possess Which Seems Unclosbreed.

There is a strong element in Spanish politics which seems to have been overlooked by some observers and upon which much was dreamed in the early future, says the North American Review. It refers to the land stress of repatriados, the unhappy soldiers who are returning to peninsula from Cuba and the Philippines. Save in size and locality, the circumstances of homeless exile and of a foreign administration. The conditions of the government in the African of one or three years ago, there are not, and now much less are prospects with or compensated. The newly formed Carlists has already expressed its intentions through Senor Vilar, who submitted a finance or paying up all arrears and placing Spanish finance upon a firm and honest basis. Already the organized protesting the Carlists pretensions have been crushed and are playing poorly in their efforts, pensioners are to be provided for the expense of the war and all claims are to be certain classified. Should these conditions be carried out, the repatriados may be satisfied with the life they know, but if the promises are broken, if the Carlists pretensions are not crushed, and the government, which is the government of Spain, is not sufficient to give their only to the soldiers and to the Spanish Empire.

The Terms of Life.

Human life has lengthened since 1841 by the production of cotton spinning and weaving machinery. Our ancestors of that date had to depend upon the slower and more laborious methods of spinning and weaving by hand, and the quantity of material supplied to each quantity and the quality of the fabric was in consequence very much inferior to that now in the market. According to Mr. Ellison, the average length of life of the population of Great Britain was then 40 years, and it is now 45 years. In long city, the Scottish and the Northern towns, it has increased by a dozen years.

Country Is Healthier Now.

Every month in the Southwestern is a month healthier for people in the country than it was a year before, and every year is healthier than the year before, and every year is healthier than the year before, and the average time in years, and the average time in years, and the average time in years

A distressing accident happened at Clark Lake Sunday, by which Wm. Hudson met his death. He started out in the morning in a small boat in company with two brothers, who were at work in the Ontonagon county mines and were under water in long. Where finally brought up he was unconscious was a very serious disorder. He was immediately taken to Pelosky for medical treatment. His mind had not cleared up and did not know how long he had been down, but finally pulled him up to make sure of his safety. He was doing about from dinner.

Some three weeks ago a man came here whose complexion is not just like the lily that grows up in the pond and registered at the Bellaire House, by the name of Geo. W. Travis, of Mt. Pleasant, saying he wanted to buy some low lands on a truck farm. Finally it was noised that he had purchased land on Intermediate river and lake, and on Grass and Clam lakes, for a distance of ten miles, then the people began to see the case was after a stock farm. It now appears that all the land he bought contains valuable marl deposits. Bellaire Sentinel.

Traverse City Herald: Capt. Jos. Hoffman is making improvements on the J. E. Gardner (Old Hoop) building, repaired, the back is being enlarged, the back is being enlarged nearly 100 feet. Captain Dancey has nearly completed his plans for the Michigan Central Dock. The factory buildings of the Michigan Manufacturing are practically completed and the work upon the equipment is now in progress. Mayor Frank Hamilton and family, Miss Hamilton and Miss Gertrude Hamilton, returned last evening from a summer full sailing trip to Manistee's cool Sunless bay. They were joined at Manistee Bay by George Dance of Northport and their catch was one of the finest of the season. They landed a large number of the finest specimens of speckled trout, among them many ranging from a pound to one and one-half pounds.

A Grand Village special of the 12th says: The second annual gathering of the Emmet County Indian Pioneer Association was held here yesterday. The village probably contains a great or Indian population than any other town or village in the state. It is an old missionary point, whose history dates back to the time of Father Marquette, and it is indeed a fitting place for a gathering of this kind. Owing to some misunderstanding among the promoters of the enterprise, the program as published, which was to consist of pony races, war and scalp dances, etc., was not carried out, but the Indians gathered in large numbers and had a jolly good time, according to their conception of the term. These Indians, who are mostly descendants of the Ottawa and Chippewa tribes, congregated from all parts of this region, and speaking with one in their native tongue, fancy was indulged in until a late hour, and the Indians offered some ways they might amuse the spectators. Altogether there were probably upwards of one hundred and sixty present, and the Village pioneers were a source of great amusement to the Indians from the neighboring resorts. People were covered to the scene of the sports from Petoskey and Cross Village, which from Village resta is a lonely full one, and the town if means the commercial center would no doubt make a thriving city. It consists mostly of two Indian wigwams, per haps 150 of both, all of the same type and pattern, unpainted, and each crowded with from five to ten families. The white residents are two good dwellings and there are several good stores. The old cross, said to have been erected by Father Marquette in his immediate successor, still stands upon the brow of the bluff, covered with moss, and is a Mecca for visitors. The old Indian cemetery near by, the graves of which are curiously and ingeniously decorated with entire trunks, etc., is another interesting scene, and the old Cross Village cemetery, now abandoned and partially destroyed, is daily visited by eight seers. It was founded in 1856 by Rev. B. Weikamp, an example and priest. Before going there he purchased what is now the famous Indian Village reset from the Indians for $100. When he first established the convent he excavated 30 rooms, within which he cells could be secured by body and the most daily with the neighbors to say prayers and meditation. The present place for the white people of Emmet county will be held at the same place Aug. 16 and the Indian pioneers to watch Indian dances, pow wows and dances at the association meeting.

Arrived: Than celebrated American ginseng, raw roots and dry, at Cobb's Bazaar.

Important Deal by Michigan Fish Commission.

(Special.) The most important deal which the Michigan fish commission has made in several years was brought to a head last Thursday when a contract was signed by Chairman Dickinson and Uncle Sam's government assumes control of the commercial fish hatching business in Michigan waters and in exchange gives to this state quite as much of a return as the state need to get by the expenditure of thousands of dollars. President Horace W. Davis, of the state commission, considers the matter of the greatest importance to Michigan and of equal importance to the government, and he is especially pleased at the outcome. The matter has been in the hands of commissioner F. B. Hickerson, of Detroit, and it was he who closed the negotiations.

The state has had absolute control of the white fish hatching business for many years, and the Detroit hatchery has been the most important station in the great lakes. The failure of the legislature two years ago to give adequate money for the continuance of the work, however, resulted in stopping the work of propagation at Detroit. The latest legislature did a little better by the commission, but did not vote an appropriation sufficiently large for continuing the work. Negotiations have been pending in the meantime with the government for certain privileges desired by the federal commissioners. They wanted to get a chance at the Detroit river fishing, and could not do so so long as the state was operating its own plant.

The government now assumes control of the situation catching in the Detroit river and in all Michigan waters for the propagation of the fish. It is given the use of the state hatchery at Detroit and some other concessions in return the state will receive 150,000,000 of whitefish planted by the government in Michigan waters, and also 50,000,000 of wall-eyed pike eggs for planting in the inland lakes and streams. The state does not surrender absolute control of the Detroit hatchery, but has the right to its use for the hatching of pike eggs.

A Saginaw special says: The case of one couple of the state of Michigan vs. Simon D. Johnston, who was originally arrested, charged with the violation of the fish laws, has been dismissed, a settlement having been effected between the state and Mr. Johnston. Other fishermen were involved in the case.

Johnston was taking eels, the catch of which was "one than 3[illegible] inches in length, which is contrary to law. When purchased, however, the nets were of legal size, but had been contracted through the effect of water and by tarring them. At the time the arrest was made, Mr. Johnston had about 2,500 pounds of under-sized fish in his possession, which were seized and held by the warden.

State Game Warden Morse, the prosecuting attorney, Mr. Johnston and representatives of A. Booth & Co. had a consultation, when a compromise was effected by the fishermen agreeing to put in a four inch mesh in their lifting nets and to throw back into the water all live fish of undersized fish, and to throw back all fish of less than two pounds weight to be thrown into the dogfish. The state, however, retains the fish seized from Mr. Johnston and in order to recover them or their equivalent in money he can test the law by bringing a suit, which may be done.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES.

An Important Question That Has Not Yet Been Settled.

The tire question is one for which the manufacturers of automobiles have not found a satisfactory solution. The most expensive part of the vehicle is the tire, and the wheels and it seems to require great skill and much experiment, and long made to meet the requirements which the conditions of each new engine thus it is not to be the main consideration of the business. The Quinby pneumatic tire are sturdy, and give the impression of a pneumatic and an elastic air cushion, and are very expensive. In consequence some people use tires of various other shapes and sizes, which have been made and are now in use, on the assumption of economy, which is not always the case. —The Beaver Island route is coming into prominence as a resort route. One day last week Capt. Campbell took over about thirty excursionists, and the island is growing in favor as a point of attraction. There are no more beautiful spots in this fair north than can be found on Beaver Island, and we predict a rapid increase in travel to that beautiful island. The steamer Hackley is becoming more popular every day, and next season will develop a big excursion business to the island. In this connection we have reliable information that a 75-foot tug, with good General backing, to build a steamboat on "Whiskey Point" next season. The scheme is to invest $10,000 in a house and grounds at the point, and a fleet of Beaver Island beauties that will make the old Minnesota get out of their graves.

—John Timmer has sold his interest in the Van Allsburg meat market to Gerrit Van Allsburg, and entered the employ of Geo. Wall.

—Clinton Cook, of Hending, was here visiting his brother, C. V. Cook, last week, but was called home by the destruction of his store by fire.

—The friends of Louis Sherman wish to express their sincere thanks for the many kindnesses received during their bereavement. Especially for the services rendered by Rev. J. P. Sanderson, and those who assisted with the music. The flowers were beautiful tokens much appreciated.

—August is closed and there is very little, if any diminution of resort business. Hotels are all full. There are some departures, and the influx almost offsets them, and with a continuation of the present weather, we may expect the season to extend well into September. But the substitutions of Old Sol alone will determine the length of the season. May it was hot.

—Detroit Journal, Aug 25. Major M. W. Ireland, recently surgeon of the Seventh and promoted, has been ordered to join the new Forty-fifth Volunteer Infantry at Fort Sheridan, Mich. Capt. O. H. Wood, of 42 Fifth ford street, Detroit, will succeed Maj. M. W. Ireland as surgeon. Capt. Wood served as assistant surgeon with the Thirty-second Michigan volunteers and was conspicuous for his untiring work during the fever epidemic at Tampa and Fernandina. It is as a reward of his assiduous attention to the ills of the Michigan volunteers that indorsements from Gov. Pingree, Hon. Gen. White, Brig. Surgeon Greene and others were settled for Capt. Dr. Wood's recognition. The order from Surgeon General Sternberg instructed Capt. Wood to report at Fort Wayne at once and he did so this morning.

—"Under the Dome" which comes to the Lewis Opera House Sept 11th, promises to be one of the biggest finishes winners of the season. It was first produced at the Lincoln theatre, Sept. 12 and around heavily. It is said to be well constructed and contains at least two remarkable scenes. The first of these, a realistic ferry boat trip from Jersey City to New York, is said to be absolutely perfect in detail. The wash of the water, the creaking of the engines, straining of the timbers and clanging of bells are all successfully imitated. The forward half of the boat is shown, loaded out into the stream and away from the audience which is supposed to occupy the rear of the boat. At first the lights of the opposite shore and the outlines of the buildings can be but faintly seen. As the boat progresses out into the stream these lights become larger and brighter and the buildings gradually assume shape. When the boat reaches the destination the buildings stand out boldly and brightly until it enters the ferry house. Morestarling is the brilliant scene. The first set shows the beautiful coral reef harbor at Apia, Samoa, the beach and the home of the U. S. Consul. This is followed by the hurricane scene. Forked spitzering, roaring winds, rolling thunder, blinding rain, and severe mountain high, combine to make a mass of war and finally wrecking the U. S. ship Trenton, strike an awe inspiring and blood curdling sensation on which and barely fail to move the more inane theater goer. In addition to these scenes, there beautiful scenes of familiar localities in Washington are shown. The most effective of these is the dome of the Capitol illuminated.

—The new railroad from Pinckney to Chelsea, is an assured fact. The right of way has been nearly all secured.

THAT CONVENTION.

Why the Commissioner's National Convention Did Not Come to Charlevoix.

[The following letter was written for the Chicago Hardwood Record, but, for reasons apparent, was not published in that paper. Mr. Johnson hands it to us for publication.]

Your editorial published Saturday July 15th, 1899 regarding the convention held in Milwaukee July 14th and 15th, may so far as it goes speak the truth, but it seems to me in justice to the large majority of the members of that Association and to the good name of Milwaukee, some explanation is due from the lumber interests of Milwaukee.

You say, "possibly the first mistake was made in calling the meeting in Charlevoix, Michigan." This I dispute, and claim it was one of the best things that the Association did at Cincinnati last fall. It would have been the manufacturers and buyers on a more friendly footing, forming a better acquaintance, with a better knowledge of how each other was conducted, cared for, inspected and shipped. The lumbermen of that vicinity were well prepared to do the honors as honors should have been extended. Of this I know whereof I speak, and they feel deeply grieved at the action of the committee in changing the place of meeting from Charlevoix to Milwaukee.

In attending the meeting in Milwaukee, from a business standpoint, it probably was a success. The attendance was large, pleasant and contained representative men of the trade throughout the United States. That they were somewhat disappointed is no fault of those Sou Lumbermen in this town who were not connected in any way as regards courtesies to be extended. The first that I know of a change from Charlevoix to Milwaukee was when about four weeks previous to the meeting of the Association, I was called by telephone to meet Mr. Whitridge, Col. Dutton, of Racine, the editor of the Hardwood Record, and was then introduced to Mr. Phillips at the Pankington House. Mr. Vinnedge was absent. Mr. Phillips greeting said, "Johnson, we are coming to Milwaukee with our convention July 14th." My reply was "We don't want you." He then asked the reason. I gave it to him that the hardwood lumber interest was not feasible in this town; that I feared we could not do honors as they should be done. Mr. Phillips at once spoke up and said "If that is the only objection to the Association coming to Milwaukee I will relieve you of that embarrassment. I will take care of the banquet." My response was, "Come on. We will do our best we can to make the convention a success." From that time on, in the morning of July 15th, I supposed Mr. Phillips was able to carry out his promise and give the members of this association a banquet at the Plankington House as he had agreed. I was astonished Friday morning when Mr. Phillips came to me and announced that a banquet would be given at the Hotel Pfister at four dollars per plate, each person paying for his own ticket. I consider the action thus taken as a direct insult to the few lumbermen of this city. From the time of Mr. Phillips's assertion he would care for the banquet until his remarks in the club room at the Hotel Pfister no lumbermen of this city was solicited or invited in any way, manner or shape to contribute towards a banquet, or even invited to assist in caring for the convention in any way.

They were totally ignored from start to finish. Upon my own responsibility I had interviewed three concerns, the John Schroeder Lumber Company, the Mueller Lumber Co. and the Hardwood Lumber Co. of this city. Each stood ready to contribute towards the banquet fully to be extended to this convention. To say that all took upon this as a one man rule is but a faint expression. I can say in saying this I wish to defend the good name of this city and the few lumbermen dealing in hardwood lumber who are residents of Milwaukee. It is just to them that those from abroad who do not know the history of this work it question should be thoroughly enlightened, and when I go to Memphis next fall, as I hope to do, I feel that it will not be laid up against me that I live in Milwaukee.

Very Truly Yours,
W. S. Johnson.

Dr. G. E. Ellsworth, the optician from Ann Arbor, will be at Hotel Bortlett, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Examined free, glasses ground to order. All work guaranteed first class.

Another Letter From Our Gossiper.

Norwood Mich. Aug. 25, '99.

MY DEAR SENTINEL:

I am wondering if a word of advice to those who have not as yet destroyed their noxious weeds, would be effective in getting them to do so. Nearly every year I can see a great growth in the size of the patches of various kinds of weeds on the farms it seems, and I can also see that where the right is kept up by others that the size of the patches are decreasing, if not entirely eradicated. Large patches of weeds on a farm will not so surely destroy its value and eventually cause the owner thereof to lose it, if they are not pulled or cut, as will the unpaid interest on a mortgage. I took a drive yesterday and saw over a quarter of a mile of bindweeds that had been cut, with enough life in the bindweeds stocks to finish accomplishing its work every seed. These seeds will not gathered in piles and burned, but be scattered broadcast, and have you people will wonder how it happens that bindweeds cause on their premises they had never had any there before. There is no denying the fact that it is a big fight to keep down the weeds, but it is a still greater one and the end will be very much more if it is not done. Friends and neighbors, you only have a few days more in which this work can be done, so take my advice, get at it at once and if it now we late in the season, do not stop some time, and we have them to be blown all over the country, and let every one do his duty. The fact that there is a stringent law in regard to this business, is positive proof that it ought to be done and it has been done. If anyone can complain to the road commissioner and he duty is to notify you to do it, or to get done it himself, and it then becomes a tax against your property, and it has to be paid with your other taxes. Another thing, you ought to have pride enough to keep your own surroundings tidy. Nothing so cold tends me to live in some people the one surrounded with weeds enough to see the entire place so much for weeds. I hope now that everybody is and pleased with the good roads that we have in Norwood township, and next year last we will do still better. Now that everyone has had an opportunity to ride over our roads, I am going to make a statement and it is this: We built more good road this year under the direction of our supervisor commissioner with $200 cash, that we have built in any five consecutive years under the old way of statute labor, the average amount per year having been between 7 or 8 dollars. In other words $200 money tax and a good commissioner has accomplished more than $2,500 under the old way. Which can deny it? It cannot, I know, but I honestly believe it to be true. It is a pleasure today to drive from Charlevoix to Norwood, after just strike the town line of Norwood.

I am glad to know that "all the hobbs are full and turning people away daily" for it only goes to show that I am a hatter prophet. The vendors of the Sanitorium will remember that I said last winter that we would need six hobbs with accommodations for 500 each, in order to take care of all the people who would come to Charlevoix this summer. Now we have only 1,000 for one. The Pavilion and The Bluffs, although the addition to the latter here is equal to a new hotel, the inn is so full that you can't dispose a cat lady in, and now is the time for all the present hotels to begin to spread on emerging their present quarters, making the best and most modern improvements, also for other good hotel men to build other good hotels, for as sure as God made mosquitoes, Charlevoix is destined to be the resort town of northern Michigan, and don't you forget it.

CORNELIUS H. VAN PETT.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. S. CHASE, COM'R.

The Charlevoix county Teachers' Institute commenced its first session in the court room in the village of Charlevoix Monday morning of this week with 42 teachers in attendance which number will be increased by Tuesday noon.

The Teachers' Institute could obviously be limited in time. The course of instruction in a normal school covers a period of three or four years, but the institute must do the work in one week, or four evenings, the customary period in the work, or five working days. From this circumstance it becomes apparent that a choice must be made between extension and depth. If more extension it must be done superficially. If thoroughness is the aim, a few subjects only can occupy the time.

The Institute for Charlevoix county has taken the latter course. The range of topics will be greater and progress apparently more rapid, but the thorough effect will not be so great.

The question then is, will the instructor tactfully or tender? The final test is limited by the unequal proficiency of the membership. Very frequently we find three classes in attendance, first, the intelligent, well informed and appreciative, who can appreciate the best that can be said; second, the attentive and willing, and congratulatively manipulated, who can appreciate only imperfectly, and comprehensively are on the verge of inattention and weariness; third, the indifferent who hang like a dead weight upon the instructor. A painful instructor utilizes a change each of these three classes with caution, if it could be instituted, but to instruct them simultaneously and with proof is a difficult task.

Taking into consideration the limitation of time, it must be evident that the Institute cannot undertake the instruction of teachers in subjects. It cannot give them the matter of instruction. A teacher who comes to the institute ignorant of geography, student geometry learn enough during the week to pass an examination. The attempt to repair ignorance on two or three subjects during the Institute is an absurdity. It must be assumed that the teacher has the matter of instruction and what he teaches is a review of methods.

Bedlam factories depending on water power are closed down for ten days on account of running low.

Charlevoix County Jail and Poor House Visited.

To the Editor:

The undersigned, in conformity with the law, visited the jail, August 17, 1899.

As the county seat is now off the wheels, either a proper jail should be erected, or the present one remodeled. There is no water closet nor bath tub, one window only, and that so high up as to be of little value for light, and no room for ventilation. The women's room is no from the men's cells.

Statistics for year ending Sept. 16, 1899: Received during the year, 17; average duration of imprisonment, 24.35; sent to state prison, 0; terms of conversion, 1; certain house of correction, 1; cost of maintaining, $401; paid district for board and lodging, $4.50; cost per week for board and keeping of each prisoner, $7.71. The proper council has been provided but I was informed the entire was not made in it, but in a small manner random lock.

The poor house visited Aug. 18, 30. The county having no farm, and leasing the property, a single for with two buildings, not erected for the purpose, has no poor house proper. Either a farm should be purchased or a building erected, or the paupers should be boarded in some neighboring county that has a proper house. In the meantime if this cannot speedily be done, screens should be put on the windows, the inmates should have at least a strip of carpet beside the bed, iron bedsteads should replace the wooden ones, a refuge of vermin. With wood and oil stoves there is free of conflagration, to extinguish which there is no means. At this writing there comes a newspaper notice of Mecosta county poor house burning, with loss of life. This was near a good sized village that must have two some fire protection. Present number of inmates, men 9, women 5, 1 young man, imbecile one of the women is probably insane.

Statistics for the year ending Sept. 1, 1899: Whole number of inmates, 15; male 7, female 2; sic out, expended in care and support of the poor, $1,31.20, poor house expense, $1,062.03; total, $2,393.23; medical attendance, $344.30; supplies, $821.41. In Antrim county, with a farm, the average number of inmates twice, food purchased, $276.75; farm products sold, $536. The total of poor house and poor farm expenses exceeded Charlevoix only $83.20, and the keeper's salary alone. It would be well for the citizens of this county to step at home and see their poor house. County papers please copy.

Cats Figured in a Recent Contest Over Land Ownership

From the Spokane Review. The condemnation suit which has for years played a prominent part in cases decided on the merits in Stevens county, involving considerable of the government land office, is ended, which is an event of importance to the parties in interest. The contest was for settlement of the land, and the case came before the land office in the form of a contest filed by Thomas Ward against the heirs of Thomas Ward, who was given to the possession of the land in question by virtue of a certain permission of the Indian agent, the land being located on the Colville Indian reservation. The case was tried before the land office, being remanded from the department of the interior for further testimony, and finally decided in favor of the contestant, the heirs of Thomas Ward appealing from the decision of the land office to the secretary of the interior, who affirmed the decision of the land office. The case was then taken into the courts, the heirs of Thomas Ward asserting that the land office had no jurisdiction in the matter, the land being in the Colville Indian reservation, and that the secretary had no jurisdiction in the matter, the land being located

HAYES MAKES APOLOGY.

Arrest in the United States Legation Explained by Mr. Hayes.

The State Department has received several dispatches from the United States minister to Hayti, Mr. Powell, detailing quite fully the circumstances of the recent attempted arrest of Pan Vilney within the United States legation. Mr. Powell relates in communications with Secretary Hay that the house floor of the minister's residence is used for the consular office, and it was into that the unfortunate Vilney ran when he found himself in legal sanctuary on Monday last. Mr. Powell says that the house floor of the minister's residence is used for the consular office, and it was into that the unfortunate Vilney ran when he found himself in legal sanctuary on Monday last. Mr. Hayes, upon being informed of the occurrence, at once ordered the release of Vilney, and it was then that the minister, who had been absent from the city, returned and tendered his apologies to the Haytian government for the violation of its territory. Mr. Powell says that the Haytian government has accepted the explanation of Mr. Hayes, and the incident is closed.

A REAL ROMANCE.

Lieut. Hans Kosina of the German Army Surrenders Unconditionally.

Large Truck of the Object of His Affections at Charlevoix and Sent to Chicago—Girl Turns up at Northport—A True Story.

Daily Democrat—Lieutenant Hans Kosina, the young German military officer and society chief who has been spending some time (Charlevoix Datelines, but left "the Beautiful" to continue his globe trotting expedition, and a romantic game of his American city which has been known to a few of his friends, may now with propriety be disclosed to readers of the Democrat.

Lieut. Kosina matured and planned a year or two in a tour of the world for the sole of studying the failure of steam engines. This being his work in his native land. Time of course, the pleasure of travel is various hard, offered no little attention to the young Prussian. He also had in view the publication of a book on his experience during the long trip.

But as fate would have it, he long gave up hopes of reaching home, for New York, something happened which made him think less and less of steam engines, trains or transatlantic mail steeds. A German merchant bound Posner took passage on the same vessel for New York, intending to spend several months touring the United States. With him were his wife and daughter, especially the latter, who she was young, beautiful and rich, and this Prussianette of aristocratic descent was the most fair of gentler sex. He surrendered unconditionally.

For a time everything went smooth. The parents had no idea that their daughter had made such a conquest, and looking upon the young man with favor, or at least without disfavor, allowed the girl to spend lengthy hours in his company, sometimes on the deck with pin cushion as the subject. But it soon became evident one there was no willing to stop at mere friendship and then "Vater and Mutter" took a new view. From that time on the only change the young man had to see Prussian Posner, was when the one came were dining, playing cards or otherwise engaged. This only served to make the young man all the more determined. Whatever the family Mas opposed for a few moments unstirred by his satisfied parents, the subsequent treatment was on hand to which side.

In New York he lost track of the party for a time but picked up the trail again and followed them through several states. Then the family came west to Chicago with the ardent Hans close behind. Here he lost their trail and searched for days in vain. Finally he heard from good authority that the Posners had gone to Lake Michigan to Charlevoix, where they would spend several weeks. He took the first boat for the north and settled down at the Pavilion determined to do all that could be done in this family. Not that he cared so much for the family as the subject, "Ze mother and ze father, they is not so well like" said Hans, "but I is in daughter which I love seeking."

He made a pleasant one over by hands, also inquiring at the post office and a number of private homes for a young girl in black dress. But no trace could be had of them. "I now he has gone back to Chicago to see if he can find a new and better chel. If unsuccessful in this he will continue his trip and world as planned. Perhaps when he back is published we can all read the last as well as the first chapters of the story, if he is entitled to interesting travel, steam engines and romance.

If I don't return send a copy of this paper by mail, which he sees his summer in print, but he should write still more when or sure then that the Herr Hans left home the Posner family are at present guests of the Tom Hackins hotel at Mackinac Island.

Northport Notes.

Grace Stafford has taken a school near Cedar and left on Friday to commence work Monday.

Roy Noteware, school teacher for Northport, is sick. No school opens the first Monday in September.

George H. Van Pelt and daughter Gertie left for Chicago Monday. Mr. Van Pelt goes to Grosvenor, Dorothy Gertina, to look music.

Elk Rapids is taking steps incorporation.

Early apples are sold to be ripe this season, and while the late fruit is by no means a full crop, there will be more than was gathered last season.

Boyne Cosmos—The railroad from for the H C & E on the Thumb lands extension, arrived on the company's steamer M. A. Neff, on Saturday.

The N W Odd Fellows' Association meeting at Bellaire last week Thursday was a success notwithstanding a small attendance. The next years meeting will occur at Elk Rapids.

Traverse City is all torn up over the water supply problem, and there seems to be a great difference of opinion on the subject. The good citizens will probably go to the head of East Bay for their water.

The following points are now be reached by the Northern Telephone company from Traverse City: Kewadin, Bellaire, Alpena Bay, Omena, Northport, Dechmond and Leland. At stations the three are ten phones, at Northport four and at Leland two.

The Petoskey Democrat objects to street improvements which are now being made by the enterprising business men and city fathers such as new stone gutters, cement sidewalks, etc. The Democrat objects to having the streets torn up or blockaded, and calls it an "outrageous imposition."

Petoskey Resorter—Capt. A. F. McKelvey left Monday night for Fort Sheridan and about Sept. 10 will accompany his regiment to San Francisco, leaving for Manila about the middle of the month. It will take about ninety days to the 20th, including four days at Honolulu. The company ninety Petoskey friends wish him the best of luck with a safe return.

Frank Jones, A. L. Conlee Deputy State Game Warden sailed long last Sunday on his way to Frankfort. All the local fishermen went into their cellars, crawled down with and hid in refrigerators until to regulate and shake the dust of Empire off his feet and was safely on his way to Frankfort, when they crawled out and took a long breath once more.

Considerable excitement has been caused at Boyne City by the arrest of T. H. Anderson, postmaster of the village, by United States Deputy Marshal Ed O'Donnell, for alleged embezzlement of United States funds to the amount of $100. Mr. Anderson is well known in church and society circles in Nahunta county and the story of his wrong doing comes as a complete surprise.

At Cross Village an old Indian named Shaw was he name. is turning white, and there are now only a few dark spots left on his face. He was a large man and says he is in excellent health. The change has been going on for several years. He was origin nally of a very dark color, darker than the average Indian, and he has not merely bleached out too lighter shade, but his skin is now almost entirely of a milk white color.

Traverse City Record—Mr. J. W. Beadle and wife of Detroit, and Mr. A. T. Beadle of Jackson, are visiting the family of J. T. Beadle of State street. Mr. Beadle of Detroit, is Mr. Beadle's brother and Mr. Beadle of Jackson is the nephew of both Mr. Beadle of "Traverse City and Mr. Beadle of Petoskey. Mr. and Mrs. Beadle and Mr. Beadle will spend several days in a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Beadle.

As a result of the test wells put down to determine the supply of water for the new water works system at East Jordan, it was found that and abundant supply of pure and clear ice cold water can be had at less than sixty-five feet. The experts are confident that any amount up to 3,000,000 gallons per day can be obtained. Chas. Pulsman, of Charlevoix has been awarded the contract to put down six wells.

The 9 o'clock dummy on the C. & W. M. for Belvedere ran into an hundred about a mile and a half south west of Petoskey one day last week and sent it flying through the air into Little Traverse Bay. The section men were on the car was the train bringing down upon them and jumped in time to save their lives. The hand car was wrecked into kindling wood, and a new engine had to be secured for use in place the one that had the set to with the car was being repaired.

The U. S. lighthouse board is according to secure title to two lots in the park belonging to the village of Mackinaw City, in order to move the big farm or seven further away from the light house. The situation caused by the big waste are shaking the lock structure to pieces. The villagers are contesting the condemnation proceedings claiming that the location of the fog horn in their park is by the residence portion, keeping people from sleeping late, depreciating the value of all real estate near by and is a nuisance to all the residents of the place. The report of the condemnation will be made next week.

Cadillac may have a hospital, the promoters of which expect to invest $10,000 if the city will donate a suitable site and building.

A very serious accident marred the pleasure of yesterday somewhat for some of the visitors. William McHay a veteran from Central Lake was crossing Pitkin Street at the corner of Front street when he collided with a rig occupied by Mrs. Moulton and Mrs. Lakeman. The end of one of the shafts struck Mr. McHay in the temple, inflicting a bad cut on the temple and when he fell his face was painfully bruised, and one or his shoulders hurt. He was picked up unconscious and at first it was thought he was killed, but it is thought he will recover.—Traverse bay record.

Daily Resorter—Among the most important real estate transactions of this year were the transfers last week of the old Park house and Davis properties on the park to Capt. Daniel Parr, of Lansville. The purchase includes all the land from the alley north to Bay street and on Bay street to the opera house and on this property will be erected one of the finest hotels in the country. The work will be started this fall and the hotel will be ready for next season's visitors. The Capt has spent the past eight years at this resort and is a strong believer in the successful future of this city. The hotel will be called Hotel Kentucky House" and will be managed by a Kentuckian "tried and true" whose residence is in Lexington, Ky., but whose name we are unable to learn.

Norway—To all concerned: I will not pay debts contracted by my wife, Mrs. Emma Cole.
[Signed] Hiram H. Cole.

The attempt on the part of certain leaders of the Democracy to create new issues and minimize the silver issue, is disturbing to the free-silver element in Colorado, the only "sure thing" of the southern states for the Democracy.

The determination on the part of India to adopt the gold standard will deprive Mr. Bryan of one of his stock arguments, and deprive Mr. Bryan of his text and was safely on his way to Frankfort, when they crawled out and took a long breath once more.

On Tuesday four tonghs who claimed they had been working in a Petoskey laundry, came to Charlevoix with a big basket of red paint and began painting it freely. They were very drunk and very noisy down town, and wound up at the lion, where special officers Mills and Alcock quelled them in one of them causing considerable trouble, striking the two officers. Two of them got a good dose in court this morning, and the other two were lambsled from the bullwick.

Hayes insists that the 16 to 1 policy shall be a prominent feature in the platform of the anti-to-beat-the-Republicans party in 1900. He speaks in Omaha, Neb., last Saturday and in referring to a report, sent out from Washington to the effect that the Republicans would be afraid to make the silver question the issue in the coming campaign, he said: "I never said to McKinley or anywhere else that the money question should be sent to the rear. I have insisted at all times and in all places that the money question will be before the country until bimetallism is restored. I have repeated over and over again that this nation must act alone, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation, and that 16 to 1 is the only ratio at which the mints can be opened. The gold men know that our abandonment of the ratio of 16 to 1 would be equivalent to the abandonment of the money question, and they know that an abandonment of the money question would lead to the surrender of all that the party gained by the Chicago convention. The Republicans fear the money question, and therefore the Republican papers are ready to praise the wisdom and courage of the prominence of any Democrat who will give out an interview against 16 to 1.

President McKinley, when he was consulted by the representatives of the citizens of the district of Columbia regarding the arrangements for the reception to Admiral Dewey in Washington in October, emphatically said: "Gentlemen, have plenty of money." As a result, there will be more red lights burning during the October, than ever before in the history of the capital city.

—Miss Kansas, who has been spending several months in Sweden, perfecting himself in advanced attitudes, which he has chosen for a profession, and in which he holds a position in as instructor in an eastern institution, returned home Monday for a vacation.

—The residences and places of business in Charlevoix are being numbered, and a city directory will be issued, the council having given its official sanction. The editor of this paper dwells at 229 State street, and don't you forget it. The SENTINEL don't know where it is at yet, but expects the "figgers" soon.

—Milwaukee Wisconsin. A duplicate of the consumer and freight steamer Gilmore, built last winter by the Chicago shipbuilding company for the Northern Michigan Transportation Company, will very probably be built during the coming winter at the same yard. The transportation company is highly pleased with its new vessel.

—Miss Anna Smith, aunt of W. Bates, of this place, died at the Pavilion last Saturday night, in the 75th year of her age. Miss Smith was born and spent most of her long life in Tyland. Recent years she has made her home with Mr. Bates. She was of most gentle and lovely nature, and the subject of her life has been made happy and peaceful. The funeral was held Monday morning from the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Ainsworth conducting the service.

—The case against G. C. Dutton, for alleged illegal fishing has been adjourned to October 31.

—Capt. Harrison Herdan returned home Wednesday from the Klondyke. Where he has been over a year.

—Dr. Bart Nanninga and wife, of Saginaw, are here for a few days, the guests of Hon. John Rathbone.

—J. W. Campbell & Co., the grocers, will close out their business this week, selling everything at cost.

—Mr. Underhill has accepted a position with the Phoenix Furniture Co., of Grand Rapids, and will remove there at once.

—Mrs. C. J. Leppert and daughter Lillian, who have been spending the summer at the Campbell residence on the north side, returned to their home in St. Louis last Friday.

—Capt. Finnegan is enthusiastic in his praise of the sea going qualities of the Illinois. Sunday was the first time she has been out in heavy weather, and in the big sea she rode like a duck, laboring very little.

—The labor celebration at Boyne City Monday was a most successful event, and was largely attended. The crowd was orderly, and everything went finely. The stalwart Hackley took a crowd over from East Jordan, and Capt. Campbell is loud in his praise of the conduct of everybody going and coming.

—The weekly "shoot" of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club scheduled for Monday, Harry Lake winning the trophy—a silver dollar, in a score of 17 out of a possible 25. Stars standard 15. Nobjectics 14, and Parsons 12. The club holds its weekly shoots on Tuesday of each week, and members of other clubs are cordially invited to participate.

—The Pavilion will close up the last of this week. This fine house has been a drawing card this season, by reason of its position of surpassing beauty and its superior cuisine. But a great drawback has been the need of sleeping rooms. Warner authorized to state that before another season opens a third story will be added to all this want. The Pavilion is a veritable Chautauqua.

—Saginaw special: President W. W. Crapo, of the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad, has been here two days and returns east tonight. The necessary consent of the majority of the stock of Flint & Pere Marquette, Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western and Chicago & West Michigan roads for consolidation has been secured, and the details are being worked out. It is expected that in about six weeks the new corporation will assume tangible shape. All stories regarding operating officials and location of headquarters of the road are purely speculative, and nothing definite will be decided until the new board of directors is elected. The Courier Herald will say tomorrow that name of the new corporation has not yet been determined, but that it is likely to be called the Pere Marquette.

The Fish Cases.

The Beaver Island closed season cases, in which Jas. S. Gallagher et al were respondents, were discontinued in Justice McArthur's court Monday morning by Prosecuting Attorney Harris, Game and Fish Warden Morse being present. This closes the tale of the record of unpleasant "fuss" growing out of the alleged violations of the closed season law last fall, and the hope at Beaver Island starts in again wiser by having suffering chunks of experience with the fish. The aforesaid law is still in force and Warden Morse is emphatic in the declaration that it will be enforced to the letter, at any cost. Meantime he desires fishermen to bring themselves to a realization and proper appreciation of the purpose of these laws. Like all laws they are intended for the greatest good of the greatest number. Time may develop defects in the fisheries laws, growing out of the influence of divergent interests upon legislative action, but the general intent and effect of the law is to benefit and perpetuate an industry that has, to an alarming degree, deteriorated in the past two decades.

The decadence is due solely to a reckless prosecution of the industry, and a lax enforcement of existing laws for its protection. The decimation of our freshwater food fish is just cause for alarm, and heroic measures are necessary to even hold what we now possess in this once mammoth and profitable industry.

In the past twenty years the State has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in artificial propagation of lake trout and whitefish, and the fact is manifest that what has been put into the lakes at this great expense has been taken out recklessly and unlawfully.

The fishermen's best interests lie in the direction of a cheerful and loyal co-operation with the State in this work of protection. In a word the prevailing idea of this work by violation of the law, is killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

By a recent arrangement the State turns over to the Unites States the work of fish propagation on the lakes, and under the superintendence of that great master in fish culture, Mr. Clark, the work will be prosecuted with vigor. Mr. Clark was here last week, visiting the island, and arrangements were made with certain big fishermen to take some trout during the spawning season (which is identical with the closed season.) At Charlevoix John O'Neill, H. O. Dodson and E. A. Sommerhouse have been engaged. These fishermen get the catch as compensation. Mr. Clark's man going in the nets and spawning the eggs. The period for such work is indefinite.

In the part of the game wardens, they wish it understood all operations outside this arrangement come under the operation of the law, and will be severely dealt with.

We counsel the fishermen to give careful consideration to these matters, and in their own interests, give hearty support to those to whom is delegated the enforcement of the law.

Contract taken for S. Chas. Gibbons of Kalkaska, is now in charge of the Lumber Company's factory. F. C. Gibbons and remains in charge of the planing mill department.

Cheboygan special. "James Carney, was stabbed in the back yesterday at this place and Jacob Duggins and Jesse arrested charged with the crime. Ferguson and his brother William, both of East Jordan, came from Black River on the noon train and quarreled with Carney and another sailor. In the fight that followed Carney stabbing was done. Both the Ferguson were arrested and arraigned before Justice Dwyer and are held in default of $300 bail for examination Saturday.

HAIR TURNED WHITE

TRYING ORDEAL A CHICAGO MAN PASSED THROUGH.

Finered Due Unsuccessfully—Hair Had Left on a Shelf in a New York Hotel—Much Time Could Explain Because His Business.

"Some years ago I was in the employ of a Chicago firm who had a contract with the Illinois Central railroad to deliver a large quantity of ties along its right of way in the Mississippi Valley. I used to make the rounds of the various towns and cities in the interest of the firm, and I had occasion to stop at a big hotel in a city in Illinois. I remember the place very well, because I had left my hair brush on a shelf in the washroom. I noticed the loss of the brush when I was dressing for dinner, but I was too tired to go back for it. I had a long journey before me that night, and I was anxious to get to bed. I was sorry to lose the brush, for it was a good one, and I had had it for years. I had a long, thick, black head of hair, and I was very particular about it. I had to be, because I was bald as a billiard ball on the top of my head. I had worn a wig for years, and I had to be careful of it, for it was a good one, and I had paid a good round sum for it. I had to be careful of my hair, too, for it was long and I had to comb it over the top of my head very carefully to make it look natural

THE LONGEST STAIRWAY.

It Is to the Tower of the Philadelphia City Hall.

A novel diversion is about to be inaugurated at the Philadelphia city hall. Within a few weeks this noble pile, already distinguished as being the highest municipal building in the world, will contain, according to the press, the longest continuous stairway in the world, and tourists will have hitherto unknown of their muscular ability in climbing the stairs of the Bunker Hill monument or Charlestown, the Washington monument or the monument to Don Quixote, but will tell their friends of their feat in ascending the last steps which lead from the seventh floor of the city hall of Philadelphia to the landing about the feet of William Penn. Tower-climbing is one of the fads of tourists. It taxes the Bunker Hill monument, with its 294 odd stone steps, and the Washington monument, which has a few more, have represented the zenith of popularity for feats of physical endurance. Among others of that stamp have been boasted of, and though both are easily the wonders of the log that the climber for an hour afterward is hardly able to walk upright, the distinction has the required pain. The building commission, adds the Philadelphia Press, is pushing forward the work on the tower stairway, and within two months it is expected that will be in readiness for climbers. It will extend from the second to the eighth floor and will contain just 100 steps of from seven inches about a square, carpet which will run an electric bell. To reach the tower stairway the climber will mount the 240 granite steps to the landing stairways at the northwest and southwest corners and thus making a total climb of 340 steps.

Hand Shaking as a Civilizer.

Congo Free State officers are being instructed by a hand organ. Lieut. Becker, a Free State officer, thought-lessly took one with him to his post, and finding that it was a source of pleasure to the natives he started to have them all the civilized creatures under their control to run round their cots and sing for night lessons of a month, hence white letter days in the Congo villages awake. Officers are also said to have improved years of hard work and stock fish and onions, cutlery, unbreakable, being the price of a glass of water. Not a few paid it, drank their drink and it is recorded, were remarkably alert. It is further stated that bodies were delivered near the nails, of the prisoners with numerous and allowed to remain until the smell abundant away. Even some hor-ses, specimens are said to have been subdominant. One of the natives, Tom Tucker was, it is offered, a machine like a flower, helped Brock with a case against the victim to the white man, and the white man, Brock, by the aid of the hand organ, has made the number of prisoners, arms and cloth, who reply the cage-over being 12,000. The following is only just to do of freq ency. Kelly, 10,000, Sally, 15,000, Wilson, 11,000, Smith, 7,000, O'Brien, 13,000, Byron, 27,000, Tom, 40,000, Connor, 14,000, O'Neil, 29,110, and Molly, 20,000.

Age of an Oyster.

He who wishes may find out the age of an oyster, though he has not the indisputable evidence to hand. The best is the growth of the lines of the shell, the ridges of which are the rings of the tree—that is, for in old oysters the ridges are so close that they are not easily distinguished, and the shell is smooth. Some oysters are known to be 20 years old, and one is said to have been 100 years old. The oyster is a very tough and hardy creature, and it is said that it can live out of the water for a week or more. It is also said that it can live in fresh water for a long time, and that it can live in a tank for a year. It is said that it can live in a tank for a year. CATTLEMAN IS GONE.

FRIENDS FEAR HE HAS BEEN KILLED

Has Been Mysteriously Missing for Some Time, and the Province Is Ingleing Up for Him. They Will Be No Stones Left Unturned.

Medicine Hat, as mentioned in our issue of last week, is minus one of its most prominent citizens, and every hour spent in Winnipeg, making the round trips of the various detectives, adds more to the mystery and increases the anxiety of his friends. Mr. Stephen Leacock, who left Medicine Hat on the 15th of last month, and who was last seen in Winnipeg on the 17th, is still missing, and no trace of him can be found. Mr. Leacock is a cattleman, and is well known throughout the province. He is about 40 years of age, and is married. He is a man of good habits, and is well liked. He was last seen wearing a light fall overcoat, and carrying a small valise. He was in good health and spirits when last seen, and had no cares or worries that anyone knows of. He had been in the city for some days, and had been seen by many people during his stay here. He was last seen on the morning of the 17th, when he left his hotel, the Dominion, and walked down the street in the direction of the station. He was not seen to board any train, nor was he seen to leave the city, and he was not seen to enter any other hotel than the one he left. He had no business that anyone knows of, and he was not in the city for any purpose

For the first time in the memory of the present generation, at least one of the high officials of the Shafarried on Beaver Island in person on a trip of duty

Much lies been said and written about the lawless people by present that have never had business to go on.

Therefore Mr. C. M. Morse, the State Game and Fish Warden, was most vigorously surprised to find simple, perhaps ignorant people, but a law-abiding, orderly and clean community, the like of which, he stated, he had never seen. Equally pleasurably were the Beaver Islanders surprised in finding in Mr. Morse an official and man who could combine in the execution of his duties, brevity, tact between heads, myself and observer.

The people interested alternately in Mr. Morse had to say about the laws which he thoroughly explained and he to return back in all their little grievances and personal relief.

Mr. Morse, in inspecting some 10 nets around the Beaver, showed that he knew his business as well as the fisher himself, and both enjoyed the rare opportunity of seeking things out. Neil Gallagher, the "Colonel" fisherman, acted as master of ceremonies and in having Mr. and Mrs. Morse and Hans and Louis, as well as a number of gentlemen visiting on the Island, had a most enjoyable and instructive trip. We also presumed to return to Beaver Island later in the fall. It is instinct to observe that others such as the Sun, will be welcome on the historic shores of the peaceful hunter of St. James.

He was discharged from the service in October received shortly after the battle.

The Nine Lewis Fishing and Sporting Club" is one of the established attractions of Petoskey and the county region. It is composed of a number of prominent business men from the Lake cities, and is one of America's most prominent fishing and sporting institutions. Its objects have been set by some to be the "obliteration of game laws and the relief of parent-ing this."

John H. Lawrie, an Indian soldier of St. Ignace, has retained Attorney James Brown to institute suits for damages against the Indian agent Warden for the loss of divers purchases of his annual and assorted with Inspector Conlter, of Charlevoix, a short time ago, who thought they were white-fish of illegal size, a rule in a year than, but friends there will furnish the funds needed to fight the case. The school lies were shipped to a state section.

Harbor Springs Democrat: Mr. H. Shoutoff of the place, that long and untiring energy, has succeeded in purchasing 1,000 acres of land in Pine and Cross Villages, which is a large deposit of mineral and has indications the eagle and the dagger. A great mill and a cement plant will be put in at once in what is known as Dutch river. It seems still is to be platted out near the canyon for a resort, and Lake and Cross Village will boom. There never has been a week of Mr. Shoutoff for three years at the is spent a lot of time and money with all the disappointments that could behind a man working up the project. But he has gotten through and now feels free at ease.

Traverse City Record: Well we received yesterday by Judge H. H. Campbell from Wm. H. McGillip of Muskegon of the death, Aug. 31st, of Lt Louis in South Chicago, of their old time friend Capt. Merriman. There are some people in Traverse who will remember Capt. Merriman. On April 3, 1866 the regiment entered Grand Traverse with Colonel Mills or Telegraph, reaching Traverse City April 5th. Hon. Perry Hannah and Mr. A. T. Lay were on board. Three or two years after Hannah, Lay & Co. had established their saw mill plant here. The Tribune was owned by Hannah, Lay & Co. and Capt. Merriman asked her for several years, whenever he having the Sun. He desired then it takes a good sower to reap, getting the home in the page.

Last Saturday at Alden, a rattlesnake about three feet long was killed by some lay visitors. The snake was first heard by them while breaking a stump and soon another big one came out and, when, they found the snake which is four feet before it had been killed by the big, its head being cut off and lost among the rubbish the logs were piled on. The body was kept and is now in the possession of A. Burnett of Alden. The snake had seven rattles and a button started. Another was heard by the men but was not seen.

On Wednesday last, in the Charlevoix boats stopped at Pinkney, John Gibson, of Allegan, who was standing in the front platform, noticed an old man getting off who reminded him of one of his fathers. He stepped up to the gray haired veteran, and said:

"Grandpa, will you please tell us your name?"

The old man replied, "Andrew Gibson."

Grasping the stranger's hand he said, "I am Jim Gibson, my brother."

"It must be true," responded the stranger, "then you are John, my brother." Whereupon the two brothers embraced each other.

It was learned that the two brothers had parted 46 years ago at Rock Island, Wis. The other one worked his way north and for been engaged as a fisherman on a little island west of the Beaver Islands in Lake Michigan. The younger worked his way east and settled in northern Michigan. The first railroad the old gentleman had ever seen was the West Michigan the day before at Charlevoix, and his last ride on a car was taken at Charlevoix to Petoskey, where the brother met him. Although he had lived on an island nearly half a century, where all were Indians but himself, he conversed intelligently on all the topics of modern interest. When asked how he had obtained his knowledge, he replied that he had taken the New York Tribune ever since he had been on his island, besides obtaining sometimes books and magazines that found their way through inches to the Island. He is now 70 years old and on Friday returned to what most people would call an island of exile, but the old gentleman was accounted in robust, and sang "Home Sweet Home."

Mr. Croker, of New York, it is said, has agreed to support Mr. Bryan if the latter will pulverize the silver issue. It is reported also that Mr. Bryan and Mr. Croker have come to gether on the anti-expansion question and that they will try to make this the leading issue of the Democratic campaign. On the other hand Senator Morgan has come to the support of the Chicago platform of 1896, and has given his adherence to Mr. Bryan on the theory that the silver issue is not to be interfloated and that the anti-expansion question is to be kept out of the platform. Senator Morgan regards Bryan as the logical candidate of the Democratic party, but he declares, in political party which would oppose the United States government in its determination to enforce its present policy in the Philippines would be sustained by the American people. He then sets himself at odds with Mr. Bryan, Mr. Croker and Judge Willett. Meanwhile an editor, formerly, Maryland is supposed to be grooming Judge Van Wyck as a presidential candidate in his own interest, and against Mr. Bryan's.

By A. Calkins, Antrim Co.

Also the teacher, so is the school. The future success of nature in life of those who are now [illegible] Counties depends largely on the kind of teachers they have, with the kind of text books, and cause in methods, multiplication of reviews, the school cannot be better than the teacher.

There are many conditions and circumstances, relations and forces that make or mar the teacher's work, but there is nothing that can make the school a success without a successful teacher. Patrons are demanding teachers with professional training, and it is as important for teachers as it is for doctors and lawyers to have professional training and successful experience before being allowed to practice upon their children.

The most expensive teacher that can be employed is the cheap teacher. The work of a teacher without a reasonable amount of professional study each year in order that the schools may be kept abreast with others educational thought. The teacher's position is second to none. No man living needs higher qualifications for his work than the teacher. We hope our teachers, in beginning work this term, will supply themselves with the Reading Circle set, the State Manual, the Teachers Institutes, and prepare for a campaign plan that will be beneficial to the patrons, the people and themselves.

British Sentiment.

New York Tribune. In the course of a speech in the House of Commons about a week ago Mr. Augustine Birrell told the members that if they hoped to "Nestell on Orange" they would not find "a single crime, however outrageous, a single felony, however elemental, a single misdemeanor, however unmentionable and disgusting, that had not at one time or another been committed by a member of that House."

Blue and Gray.

Whenever the Stonewall Jackson Camp of Confederate veterans, at Staunton Va., comes out to bury a comrade, as it did recently, a veteran of the Civil war who fought on the union side will be with the procession and participating in the ceremonies. —The Clayden Dry Goods Co. have a new ad. this week. Read it.

—The inn will close Sept. 25th, and the Defenders and Chicago Club Oct. 1st.

—Chas. Hoerr, was here yesterday looking after his life saving station contract.

—The East Jordan Lumber Co. in this issue, advertise for men to work on railroad.

—Col. S. M. Moore has been quite ill at his home on the Chicago resort grounds the past week.

—The State Fair at Grand Rapids will be held the last week of this month, the 25th to 29th.

—Miss Myra Hutchinson, who has been in Canada for several months, is here with her mother for the winter.

—Regular meeting of Charlevoix Chapter, No. 72, O. E. S. Wednesday evening, Sept. 20. Election of officers.

—D. C. Nettleton has been engaged for some days at St. Ignace compiling data for abstracts of lands on Beaver Island.

—S. M. Hine has entered the employ of the N. Y. State fish commission, and will gather spawn on Lake Superior.

—Miss Nellie Burnett, of this place, has been employed to teach the Harbor school, and began her duties Monday morning.

—Mrs Lillian Orr, of Manistique, who has spent the past three weeks with her friend Miss Julia Pitch, returned home Monday morning.

—Take a day off and go to the fair. This is an exceptionally good year for the farmers, and the exhibit is expected to be much better than usual.

—This will be the big year for the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society, and the fair should be made a big success by a big attendance.

—J. A. Heath has contracted to build an addition to the Bailey cottage on the Charlevoix Summer Home grounds. He will also reinforce the plumbing and erect a boat house.

—Jordan's Bryan and wife, of Chicago, have been in town the past week, visiting relatives and old acquaintances. Jordan is doing well in Chicago as a civil engineer, and Charlevoix people are glad.

—The Hawks & Butters real estate company secure the sale of Mrs. Fox's residence on Main street to Mr. Geo. F. Brown. This makes Mr. Brown a "summer and winter" resident, and Charlevoix is to be congratulated.

—The Charlevoix county fair this year promises to eclipse any previous exhibit, and it is to be hoped that the people of Charlevoix will give it a generous patronage. Thursday and Friday of next week are the dates.

—Commencing Wednesday, Sept. 13th, the Northern Michigan Transcontinental. City of Chesterton and Illinois, will start in on their fall excursion rates. The fare from Charlevoix to Chicago and return will be $1.00, meals and berth extra. The berths will be $1.00 one way and $1.50 for the round trip. The meals will be 50 cents each. Meal and berth tickets are to be purchased aboard the steamers only.

—Prof. Nansten, of the University of Indiana, who has been a summer sojourner here for several years, last week purchased three acres of land of H. W. Jones and twenty acres from A. Stone, all lying this side of Mt. Meshoka. He has already begun improvements on the property and will erect one cottage this fall and another in the spring. Mr. Nansten, a St. Louis gentleman, is negotiating for a strip of land along Lake Michigan beach, adjoining the Pattengill and Dennison places, and proposes to spend a summer home there. Just keep your eye on that north side. It is getting so you can't touch Judge Mayne, attorney Cutchshank, and the rest of those suburban fellows without a hot foot pain.

—The citizens of Eveline township held a meeting Friday evening, Sept. 15, at Bonton school house for the purpose of organizing a creamery company.

—Capt. C. H. Campbell, Capt. Geo. Weaver and F. E. Lewis went to the Boyne on the steamship Illinois Sunday night, and returned by the famous inland route.

—Chas. E. Sue is recovering rapidly from the effects of the recent surgical operation. He now takes his meals with the family, and will soon be as lively as ever.

—On account of Jordan East day, Davison's and Levinson's stores will be closed tonight (Wednesday) at 6:00 and remain closed until the same hour Thursday evening.

—On Saturday Capt. Hutme sold the schooner Peoria to Capt. M. J. Bonner, of St. James. Capt. Bonner will sail the vessel, and use her mostly in the Beaver Island-Chicago trade.

—The owners of the Manitou are said to be planning a new boat like her to form a daily line between Chicago and the Island. The treasure Northern people place two more of their magnificent steamships, and other lines may increase their passenger carrying capacity.

—Hemlock lumber is coming into still better demand and is bringing higher prices. There has been a rise of some three dollars per thousand in the price of pine, and this tends to strengthen the demand for hemlock, especially for rough boards and dimension stuff.

—Milwaukee Wisconsin: It is said that the Northern Michigan line steamer City of Charlevoix has been offered to the Holland-Chicago line for $90,000, and the latter company may buy her as she is sold to suit its needs to a nicety. In the event that the sale is made the Northern Michigan company proposes to let a contract for a duplicate of the magnificent passenger and freight steamer City.

—Traverse City Record: G. W. Winans, of Kalamazoo, has bought of Wm. Gill, "Carrying Point," a tract of 50 acres of land three miles north of Northport, and will make a summer resort of it. Six or seven cottages are already planned for erection next spring and a number of Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids parties will be interested. Carrying Point is a charming spot, and has one of the best harbors on the lakes, perfectly protected from all winds. Northport and the surrounding country will be greatly benefited by the location of the resort. The price paid was $2,000.

—The increasing business of A. T. Burnett & Co., the dry goods concern, has increased to such an extent, that enlargement has become necessary. To meet this growth, they have leased the upper story of the building occupied by them on the north west corner of Bridge and Main street, and are constructing a broad stairway in the front of the store, leading up to them and otherwise arranging the upper story to receive their stock of carpets, cloaks, etc. Their stock will be increased in proportion to the enlargement of quarters and improvements made to correspond.

—In a recent real estate transfer Charlevoix gains a distinguished summer citizen, and one who will, in the natural order of things, prove of great benefit to Charlevoix interests. We refer to the sale last week of the A. V. Nash residence, on the north side to ex-U. S. Treasurer John C. New, of Indianapolis. Mr. New has been a guest of the inn for two seasons, and is so well pleased with Charlevoix that he decided to spend his summers here as a permanent summer resident. The property is one of the most beautifully situated of any in Charlevoix, and Mr. New is fortunate in securing it. The consideration was $7,500.

—Cheboygan Tribune: That man with a quarter million farm located in any good northern or western state, who has a comfortable home, a good wife and a lot of bright young girls, and who is not in debt to exceed a thousand dollars to a reasonable limit of interest, should have no sympathy in providence, the government and the seasons. He lives on one of the best farms on earth, one of the best tables, breathes the purest air, enjoys the happiest child and religious liberty and his children the best educational facilities, and can be right in touch with all the marvelous progress of the age. For such a man to hard and whine, and be promoting the gospel of pessimism and calamity, is sufficient to even make the Lord wonder that he ever created such a being.

—Traverse City Eagle: The manufacturers of maple lumber adjourned their session at the Park Place hotel at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was decided not to hold a evening session for organization but to postpone such action to October 6. The meeting at that time will be held here and it is expected that interest will have been established among all the maple manufacturers and they will all be here. It may happen that the organization will take steps to bring the national association of hardwood lumbermen to Charlevoix at its annual meeting next year. All arrangements had been made this season to have the summer meeting at Charlevoix but after arrangements had been made a failure to secure transportation rates kept the meeting from going there and it went to Milwaukee instead. With an organization the maple men will no doubt be able to bring the meeting to Charlevoix.

—Eighty members of the Michigan Produce Dealers' Association, which is really an organization of potato buyers, were in attendance upon the second annual meeting of the society at Lansing on the day last over. The principal business of the association seems to be the blacklisting of reputable potatoes who do not treat the shippers fairly, and about 100 receivers are on the list. They will receive no more potatoes from the members of the association until they give promise of not rejecting consignments unjustly. Secretary Race of Detroit, says that Michigan shippers have lost at least $250,000 taken out of them by receivers who reject cars without reason. Local secretaries are appointed in all the large cities who, with two competent judges, inspect potatoes shipped by association members. If the potatoes are in good condition and are rejected by the receiver he is placed on the blacklist. Another object of the association is to compel transportation companies to pay claims for damages or overcharges promptly, and a bill has been prepared to hold the company receiving produce responsible to the shipper for damages or overcharges.

—It was a great pow-wow they had up at the station Monday night, on the occasion of the departure of "Billy" Steer and Lacy Crawford from the town. These two young St. Louis gentlemen have during the season been roaming Grace Newell and his orchestra, the chief sources of amusement at the bar hotel, and the occasion of their home-going was deemed worthy of a demonstration. Accordingly, Steward Terry and Mr. Newell, who jointly embody about as much originality and ingenuity as ever two noted men were endowed with, formulated and successfully carried out the most unique and unique parading demonstration in the history of man. A jury was made upon the township of Evelina for a yoke of oxen and a hay wagon. Conspicuously upon the outfit was displayed a banner upon which was inscribed "Steer & Crawford's Minstrels, en route." Into this wagon the boys and orchestra took oil and his orchestra, with Will Terry as director, and all garbed in the most grotesque costumes imaginable. It did not seem to move the earth where the railroad regulations say constitutes shall let go their anchors—the stakes and their dogs were driven upon the platform between the depot and the train. As Steer and Crawford signaled the orchestra played "A Bad Time in the Old Town" and other inspiring airs, and Billy Steer was compelled to mount the hay rack and sing "I Don't Like No Cheap Man," Crawford following with a speech. When "finally" the order came, such a characteristic Colonelsian speech, and the train pulled out to the strains of music directed by Terry's baton. About the only dignified members of the outfit were the livelies clerks.

The Infamy of the Age.

The foreign court martial on Saturday re-convicted Dreyfus, and sentenced him to ten years imprisonment.

But it was not Dreyfus who was convicted—France stands our before the world as the subject, and the world will not reverse the sentence until Captain Dreyfus is officially vindicated and restored to his position.

The ruin of Dreyfus has been accomplished by a cabal of generals who are the real traitors of France, because they have prostituted their, or to say their own infamy.

The end is not yet. France will suffer for its crime at Rennes. The trial of traitor officers and their immediate superiors for the

By CHARLOTTE M. BRAEME.

"I am going to the bank," said Anne. "So that one remark is to be operative throughout everything, mind! and you will go to the Pyramids with me."

Sir Gerald looked at his handsome wife—looking fairer and more lovely than ever in her mourning—and he sighed.

"I have not the heart to refuse you anything, Anne," he said, with a smile; "but I shall be very lonely without you."

"Nonsense!" she cried, with a bright smile. "Lady Jane will be with you, and you will not have time to think of me. Mind, we shall be back in a month at the latest."

"I shall count the days," he said, with a sigh.

"Now, Anne, I want to speak to you about Lady Jane. I do not like the idea of your leaving her alone in this house. She is so fond of you, and she has so few friends, and she is so fond of you."

"Lady Jane shall do as she pleases," said Anne, with a smile. "I shall ask her to come and stay with you while I am away."

"She will not be half so good company for you as you are for her," said Sir Gerald, with a smile.

"Lady Jane and I understand each other," said Anne, with a smile.

"Lady Jane and I understand each other," he repeated, with a sigh.

"Now, Gerald, you must be reasonable. I shall be away only a few weeks, and I shall be back before you know I am gone. Lady Jane will be with you, and you will have your friends to see you as much as you like. I shall be back in a few weeks."

"I shall be miserable without you," he said, with a sigh.

"Nonsense!" she cried, with a bright smile. "Lady Jane will be with you, and you will not have time to think of me. Mind, we shall be back in a month at the latest."

"I am very sorry, but I am quite sure you need not be alarmed—the master did not remain long at the Hall, he left for Paris at half-past nine. The letter came the first after him, and she was in a rage."

"Then where is he?" asked Lettice. "I know what must be done without your mentioning it, dear. John, you must come to the new address in the place and go in search of him. Many things may have happened, we know so little about Julian."

"To be sure, miss, we know nothing really. The master may have fallen and hurt his ankle, or he may have met a gentleman friend or he may have met some friends, and gone out of his way to see them. I wish we knew where he is, for Miss Gerald is in a fearful state."

"Gerald will be with Jessie at the Hall," said Lettice, with a sigh. "I wish I could be there to comfort her. Poor dear! I know how she must feel."

"Yes, miss, we know how she must feel

MAINE'S BIRCH TREES.

Consistent Suggestions for Their Origin in Your state.

Norway (Maine) correspondence of the New York Tribune: Since the paper-mill commenced to gnaw big mouthfuls from the Maine woods the people are serious rather lately has developed, and in some cases troubled. Next to Boston, the timber is greatest demand in cities and thrifty white birch, which is spoiled into lathe and sons, by the shipping is declined to be of use for thread spools. Nearly all the factories in the United States, and more than half of those in other countries, obtain their spool stock from Maine. According to a N. Y. Boston-ian Maine, who has spent the same part of his life in the woods as a lumber operator, Maine birch trees are due to the spiteful conduct of two employes of the Maine land office. Some French Canadians in 1820 squatted on a vacant land near the Androscoggin River and defied all efforts to eject them. Finally, in 1832, two special constables were sent to the place from the land office to Augusta, with instructions to make a clean job of evicting the Frenchmen. The constables, while taking the families out, set fire to the houses and barns. Twelve years later the French village was a bustling center of admin, and the big birch trees were known in the state was swinging north, turning off more than a million feet of sawed lumber a year, and doing more than $10,000,000 damage to the state lands. Many square miles of hardwood timber worth more burned over, the fire rather the best into the black pine logs that had been accumulating for years and years. It is a tradition that after burning Aroostook county, the fire jumped the St. John river and swept over New Brunswick, terminating in the destruction of Miramichi, in which 120 persons perished. The survivors of the fire, who were driven into the St. Lawrence, when they stood neck long in the water for two days and a night, say that the entire lower Canada and western states seemed burning a week previous from their cinders. After the fire had burned down and the land had absorbed the ashes of the ashes about 5,000,000 trees came up to be with cherry and white birch saplings. For more than 50 years the two species struggled for the mastery, and the birch, being the black knot, which had been imported from Europe lifted of the will cherry, trees, giving the birches the right of way. About 25,000,000 board feet of speed bars are now shipped out of Maine every year and the supply is still large.

Hair Preserved 100 Years.

Wilkesbarre (Pa.) Correspondence of Philadelphia: North American: Which men were dissolving when a cemetery was formerly located here, now across the house of a Wesleyan and attached to the skull was a coin of golden half-dollar, dated 1830. The coin was very much the color and softness scientifically preserved, although it had been buried for 100 years. On the plate of the coffin was the inscription, "Sarah, wife of John Fish who died in December, 1796."

Big Income.

Press is an important consideration to the Emperor of Germany. He pays yearly 100 cooking and state dinner, twice as many things and entertainments, and about the demi-mites the large income tax. Is all 1031 But there is one woman who has a still greater wardrobe. Indeed she has more gowns than any woman of this or any other age. 2,000, it is said, with 100 women to care for them. She is the wife of Li Hung Chang.

Labor-saving Shears.

A German who believes in inventing devices has patented a pair of shears with a spring attachment. When a lot has been made and the shears are closed, the spring opens the blades slightly. When they are wide open, ready for cutting, the attachment acts in the reverse way and assists in closing them. Hot actions lighten the work of the cutter.

TO SAVE NEW ENGLAND FARMS.

Secretary of Agriculture Will Try to Revive Their Industry.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is arranging for an "educational campaign" among farmers of the abandoned farms in New England with a view of their revivification. He has had some correspondence with the governors of the New England states, and has promised to send experts to the various state agricultural colleges and experiment stations to lend assistance to the farmers in the attempt to make the abandoned farms of New England productive and profitable. The secretary says that the time is opportune for such a campaign. Without having conferred with the president, he says he is confident of his ability to secure the cooperation of the agricultural colleges and experiment stations in the campaign he has in view. He says he has received letters from men who are in a position to know, and who are in sympathy with the movement, to the effect that the time is ripe for a movement of the sort

HOME TOPICS.

Question of Vital Importance to Charlevoix and Contiguous Fruit-Raising Region.

The marked increase in Charlevoix county shipments this season over that of any previous year again throws home to us a question that has long rather vexed us—namely, the matter of home production to meet the increasing and constantly increasing home demand.

The consumption of garden and dairy products, fruit and poultry in Charlevoix has long far to keep pace with our growth, and every course of the products can be supplied by our own people.

Manager King, of the Horticultural society, said to our reporter, Thursday afternoon, that he was at a loss to procure chickens, and more than 1000 pounds of them have been brought in from Rapids to Detroit. Farmers can raise spring broilers, weighing 1 pound and a half to 2 pounds, and yet we do not believe but they think they are selling them at a loss when they get 20 cents per pound, and sell a fowl for 10 cents per pound. A farmer boasted to us a few weeks ago of better than a dollar per dozen for his eggs, and told how he managed to get them so early, and we didn't want to interrupt him. As far as I am concerned, I would be glad to purchase everything we can raise at home, and I am sure this is true of the other homes, but as long as we cannot depend on a market for sale, I don't know how else to do it. Yet, we must do, with a certain and certain market.

What Mr. Foley says is true of other homes. Mr. and Mrs. Foley, on the 160 acres, Mr. Foley's landmarks. The benefit to be derived from this is manifest by our farmers, and garden sass and dairying is unmistakable, because it is sure to increase as the great Northern Michigan fruit belt, fruit and certain markets, at reasonable and sure prices.

Market gardeners should provide for meeting early vegetables, and the acreage devoted to the raise of potatoes, should be increased. The potato is practically unknown, and our natural climate is adapted to every feature of this demand.

There are features in this, as in farmers, even to the exclusion of grain and other staple field products. But traditional articles of wheat are unable to pay, can well be relegated to the rear, in the enhancement of this enormous aggregated industry.

In poultry raising, alone, the time we have suggested, there are unlimited possibilities for our farmers, and scientific gardeners.

We suggest a careful consideration of this subject, and hope to see every farmer, and the Horticultural society represented by organizing. What committee may be appointed by the Horticultural society, is yet to be determined.

Success of Rev. A. Clarke.

The Holland City News, with an excellent portrait of that energetic gentleman, the following concerning Rev. Alvan Clarke, of St. Joseph Charlevoix, Antrim, and Kewaunee counties:

Fifty resident of Holland who visited the social gathering of the city at home in Holland with the fine condition of affairs existing in the M. E. church, nearly brought about largely by the untiring efforts of the pastor, Rev. A. Clarke. Where he came here three years ago the congregation numbered 150 and attended services in an old frame building. Today the society has 350 members and worships in a modern brick structure worth $8,000. The same improvement is noticeable in every department of the church work and centres diagonally in the history and judgment of the esteemed pastor.

Rev. A. Clarke was born August 25, 1850, in the township of Wellington, county of Northumberland, Canada. His parents were of Canada from North Ireland in 1819 and his great grandparents were native to Wales. Shortly with his parents located at Charlevoix, Mich., May 20, 1864. He was converted by the writer of '74 and joined the M. E. church. Soon after he was called to preach and began to prepare himself for his life work. He graduated his course at the Ann Arbor city in September, 1881, at the age of 25 years. Three weeks later he married Grace Gibson, where he resided two years, when to gratify his denominational preference he went the next year to Allison, where he continued until he took a 1st change in 1886.

While in college Mr. Clarke distinguished himself as an orator and in the literary society was a member of debates. He is a gifted pulpit orator and never fails to get and keep the attention of his audience.

He entered the active work in the Michigan Conference in 1881, and joined the West was 21 E. Conference, staying long enough at Manistee, Scottville, Ludington and Big Rapids. Mich., and two years at Central and is now doing his third year at Holland. Next Tuesday he will go to Ionia to attend the annual conference, and the members of his church as well as the public in general unanimously desire his return for the fourth year.

It is not likely that the Democratic National Convention will be called in February. If the Democrats had any brilliant policy to propose they might wish to get it before the people in as soon as possible, but as all they appear able to do is to whine and find fault, they will probably wait and see what the Republicans will do.

Mr. Mac. Hyatt is surrounded by a crowd of free governor, he is the most blatant of the universe. When he is in a crowd of copperheads he is the most vociferous of copperheads. The result of all this talking on the part of the N-breakin is the distinct belaying of his presidential chances. He is growing smaller in the minds of people every day, and his constant twaddling with the political world soon will have him not a little to bring about his downfall.

Traverse City council has failed on last bids as the source of water supply for its proposed new plant.

Big Rapids people think they town ought to be a good summer resort and want some one to erect a hotel with accommodations for 300 to 500 people as a starter in that direction.

It is reported on good authority that the South Arm Lumber Company and C. H. & I. Ry. are now working on a deal by which they will assist the Fredrick & Chapman Co. and the adjoining timber lands owned by Davis Ward.

Three Portland cement companies have been organized at Hawkins. Options were filed by Fenton parties last week on 1000 acres of marl lands in Benzie county. A company of local capitalists will construct a cement works there if outside capital can be secured.

Northern Independent: Frank Wilkinson, of Atwood, enters the dental department of the University of Michigan this fall, while Alma begins his junior year in the medical department. These two, with Hyde and Scott Leavitt of this place, and another young fellow, will start a small boarding hall—a "Salute Rest" or something of the kind.

A stock farm will be established near Ironwood. Five acres of land on section 20, about three miles north of town, have been fenced in by a wooden palisade eight feet high, and will be stocked with skunks. A number of enterprising young business men of the city are interested in the project. It has been figured out that without nursing, twenty animals by the spring and have a progeny of over 3,000. This rapid increase is the foundation for large profits.

The Pinconing council granted a street railway franchise the day last week to a German band, and it does not seem to suit some of the people. An indignation meeting has since been held and the outcome is awaited with interest. Later The objection to the electric street railway franchise ran up against a hard proposition at the regular council meeting on 7th. The council had only refused to vacate its previous action, but took measures to have the ordinance published and to crush up all legal formalities necessary to make it binding. A street railway to Bay View is now a certain fly for next summer.

—Frank M. Sears went to Saginaw yesterday.

—Harrison Bedford has a new ad. this week.

—Two good big days of the fair yet left this week.

—Chas. E. See is waiting about town again.

—Miss Jennie Allard left for Chicago on the Illinois Friday.

—To-morrow will be the "big day" at the fair. Don't fail to attend.

—John Ackert, Jr., has accepted a position in M. V. Cook & Co's drug store.

—Lou See, Harry Luke and J. H. Jackson are at the beavers duck shooting this week.

—Mrs. H. L. Iddings and children left Monday for Allison for a visit among relatives and friends.

—J. A. Allen and wife, of Kane Co., Ill., are here visiting their daughter, Mrs. P. D. Campbell.

—The sissaw Hackley brought over a full load of fat cattle and sheep for Geo. Walt Saturday.

—M Savbin has a large special advertisement on our fourth page that will be of interest to our readers.

—A. T. Burnett & Co. are still too busy enlarging their store to write a new ad. Watch their space next week.

—The apportionment of state tax this year is 49 per cent higher than last year. Charlevoix county's share is $10,114.47.

—Miss Lottie West left yesterday all the stunnably illinois for Chicago where she will enter Armour institute for the winter.

—A. D. Cruikshank has bought another lot north of his place, on the north side, and will erect a cottage thereon this fall.

—The Clayden Dry Goods Co. this week advertise a grand fall millinery opening. Make a note of it. Friday and Saturday of this week.

—Capt. Weib, owner and manager of the Traverse Bay line of steamers, was here yesterday looking after the interests of his boats.

—Mrs J. H Atwood, who has been visiting her brother, E. N. Faulkner, for the past month, returned to her home in Albion, Ind., last week.

—Married, in this village on the 15th, by Rev. Father Alexander Zongolder, of St. James, Mr. Jas. J. Martin and Miss Nellie Johnson, both of St. James.

—At Nettleton, second son of D. C. Nettleton, has been here several days on a visit. At 8 with his brother Charles in Chicago in the embalming business.

—Mr. Williams, who has been in M. V. Cook & Co's drug store the past summer, has gone to Evanston, Ill., where he will enter the pharmacy department of the Northwestern University.

—Last week Forest Blanchard bought the old Aldrich house and lot on Main street, just west of the Harbitmore & Co. hardware store. It will probably be used for business purposes.

—On Monday Dr. Levi Lewis began the thorough overhauling of the north foundation of the opera house. A row of piles will be driven down twenty feet by the jet process, which will prevent any further slumping toward the river. The government revetment, alongside the opera house is in bad shape. The weight of dirt behind it has forced the revetment two feet into the channel.

—There is a chance of the Petoskey street car franchise, lately granted, that more or less remotely interests Charlevoix. The promoters of the enterprise, realizing that the resort business of this section is yet in its infancy, make no secret of their intention to run branch trolley lines to Charlevoix, Bay View and Harbor Springs. Petoskey people encourage the Charlevoix line, particularly because they claim the C. & W. M. discriminate against them in favor of "Charlevoix the Beautiful." But the project has yet to climb several heights as impossibles are to be taken and against the swing of the Charlevoix and it will be tough in the battle to the little end. The C. & W. people are said to be afraid of the opposition for obvious reasons.

—W. G. Myers, a veteran who lost a leg at the Battle of Dunwiddie Court House, has moved here from Saginaw to reside. Mr. Myers will be remembered as a brother-in-law of the late S. M. See.

—Married, Sept. 13th, in this village, by Rev. A. E. Cook, Mr. Elmer Grattan, of Chicago, to Miss Mabel Ward, of this place. Mr. and Mrs. Grattan left for Chicago Sunday evening, where Mr. Grattan has a position.

—On Monday Capt. A. G. Aldrich bought of Mrs. Mary Beattie, 10 acres of land on the cemetery road, adjoining J. M. Ackert's. It is the intention of Capt. and Mrs. Aldrich to build on the property and make it their future home.

—Caldwell & Loudon, successors to J. S. Baker & Co., have an ad in this issue. This new concern comes to Charlevoix with the highest endorsements for experience and business integrity. Mr Caldwell, the resident manager, invites the farmers to call in and get acquainted.

—The temporary fall schedule on the C. & W. M. Ry., taking effect last Sunday, and continuing until Oct. 1st, is as follows: Going south, 8:50 a. m., 3:10 p. m. and 8:10 p. m. Going north, 9:10 p. m., 1:40 p. m. and 12 noon night. The winter schedule will probably give us two trains per day each way.

—On Monday John O'Neill bought of Forest Blanchard the lot on Dexter avenue adjoining him on the east. Mr. O'Neill already occupies the Round Lake end of the lot in his coaling business. The consideration was $950. Mr. O'Neill has also bought the Robert McDonald 2½ acres on the Petoskey road, just north of town.

—Carl Clifford, son of the late Captain Walter and Mrs. Harriet L. Clifford, is here for a few weeks' visit with relatives. The Lewiston, Carl has a good position in the cash room of the treasury department at Washington and has a high mark as a clerk. He has just had a raise in salary from $1,000 to $1,200.

—Following are the N. E. appointments in this portion of the Grand Traverse district: Petoskey Elder, M. D. Carroll, D. D. Charlevoix, A. F. Nagler; Bellair, H. L. Hood; Boyne City, Kellier; Boyne Falls, C. S. Dean; Central Lake, L. D. Youngblood; Clarion, L. B. Carpenter; East Jordan, Spangler; Ironton, L. J. Moulton; Norwood, S. C. Tiney.

—J. Starr Anderson, editor and proprietor of the Antrim County Democrat, published at Bellaire, was in town last Thursday and called at our sanctum during the absence of the editor. We met Mr. Anderson the day following, but our editorial frazer was too drunk to visit, and we were deprived of the pleasure of making his acquaintance.

—Skunks are protected by law with the same care as whitetail and ducks and deer. The law says you must not kill a skunk just for the sport of it, but you may not catch white-fish in the close season. If, in a spasm of temporary insanity, you go out at night and shoot a skunk in your back yard you are liable to face Judge McCarthy the next morning as a law-breaker. It matters not that you honestly entertained observations that your lawyer argues that you were not responsible for your act; that there are times in a man's life when trouble darkens reason. You have erected a hive at the foundation principles of our institutions" as deputy attorney General Chase would say. It is vain to plead that the tears of your wife and children forced you to commit the act, you are as much of a law breaker as ever Hetty Chase and Bill Cal higher was. When the skunk crawls under your woodshed you should feed it during the autumn season of mast upon the same as you do the dog and cat. The editor of this paper lives next door to deputy game warden Coulter, and is dreading the hour when there comes from under the barn or woodshed a skunk, that he is one of the sin-producers of this fair land and yet is protected by the skin. There is some comfort in the thought that the deputy game warden is swearing too, but we know there is only one thing sweeter than a skunk and that is a game warden, and we are constrained to restrain. Well, we are a law-loving law-abiding citizen, and here's hoping that a good sized family of skunks get under the game warden's woodshed and spawn. Then, perhaps Coulter will go down to Lansing and set the skunk law repealed. Talk about the Dingley chief! It is a thousand times more the spectacled pain a whit worse than the spectacled nuisance. It is a disgrace to our commonwealth allowing and protecting a full grown skunk in our unmarkable the time of respectable citizens.

CHARLEVOIX FRONTENAC.

A New Resort to Be Established on Historic Beaver Island.

After peerless Mackinac, the most historic spot, by all odds, in the region of the great lakes, is that beautiful island directly opposite us, known as "Big Beaver."

Aside from its Indian and colonial history it is the only territory within the present Great Wall on which a kingdom existed. It is true, the king dom was of no great extent or duration, but, as many of our pioneers remember, it gave its surrounding neighbors of the middle of the century considerable trouble, and even Uncle Sam himself had a hand in gathering up the tattered ends of its monarchy. The note mention of King Strang and his followers brings up a host of memories and suggestions of pioneer days and of those decided people.

The island itself is the theme of a group of the same name, and is very attractive, with its two beautiful lakes, trout streams, and land-locked harbor, and evidences our royalist neighbors had an eye for the beautiful and tripoetful, as well as the secluded. Time and again this interesting epitome has been written up, and as the annual stream of excursions to this vicinity the desire to visit the historic island seems perennial.

To prepare ours for the crowd, which, no doubt will every summer look repose and recreation on it, a company, known as "The Fontenac Hotel and Resort Co." is now being organized for the purpose of building a large and handsome hotel, or t the planting of cottage grounds and a forty acre park at the entrance to the harbor.

This is one of the most delightful spots in the vicinity, and we prophesy for "Point Fontenac" a prosperous career. In good hands it will be time be a very active competitor for the increasing crowds of pleasure-seekers overrunning Northern Michigan.

We are permitted to say that the Hart line people and other transportation companies have taken stock, who are most interested in the project. It is probable that the beautiful "Chateau Fontenac" and its surrounding chalets and cottages will next season offer a new attraction to the multitude of pleasure seekers coming to our shores.

Nature has done everything for the locality; the architect will soon finish the remainder. The site selected commends itself to those who appreciate the beautiful in broad lake perspective and picturesque shore outline.

The Bridge Question.

The Township board is casting about for bridge information against the day, not far distant, when a new structure must be built. We are forced to this by two urgent necessities. First, the foundation pier upon which the bridge rests, (and which, when built, was below water,) is above high water mark, and is rapidly disintegrating. Secondly, the harbor engineers have absolutely refused to increase their estimates for harbor improvement until a wider draw is provided.

The cost of a suitable bridge will not be less than $20,000. The board in considering the counter-balanced bridge and one draw, but the double draw on a center pier will probably be adopted. Several bridge men have been here in consultation with the board, and plans and specifications are being prepared from which to re-

"The Evolution of a Bridge" would make an interesting chapter of the story of the growth of Charlevoix. About forty years ago, Capt. A. G. Aldrich built a log bridge across the river about ten rods above where the present structure stands. It was just about side-enough for two to pass, and rested on small pole piles.

Thirty-five years ago a pile bridge was built on the present site. It had one trap 10ft only wide enough to permit all boats to pass. In 1887 it was enlarged by the addition of another "trap" with a which on each side as lifting appliances.

The increasing demands of navigation forced that structure to the center of the Smith Bridge Co., of Toledo, erected the present structure which is a good one. It has been lengthened once since, and the plank foundation which was originally three feet below the surface is now more than a foot above.

We are "up against" the bridge question again with a vengeance, and provision must be made within a year for a structure that will tone down Charlevoix's geography and hold up street cars.

RECITALS OF CAMP AND BATTLE INCIDENTS.

Experiences of the Rebellion Boys Were Amusing and Startling Incidents of Marches, Camp Life, Foraging Experiences and Battle Scenes.

"When we enlisted in April, 1861 our company believed that the war would not outlast the 90 days explained in a recent issue of this paper, but the time of our enlistment was made without consideration, and that regiment had been called to our assistance, we would go home in company.

As a member of the three months regiment before, we stood a good and lively battle some days before the seven months, assuming to outrun and outmanoeuvre after a month spent in Texas, Kentucky, and Tennessee, some experiences that made us believe something of a "tough" proposition, right marching into the battle of Mobile. It was the hottest night of a hot day, bewildering and terrifying not to mention causing us to lose some of our equipment in our hurry to get out of the way, and we had the satisfaction of being called back to our regiment after several days, and finding our company in Mobile, where we spent the balance of our term of service, doing duty in the Quartermaster's Department.

Our company was composed of Germans, Irishmen, Scotchmen, and Yankees, and we had a good time together, and I believe we made a good record for ourselves and our country.

Company "K" was a company of Germans, and I believe that they were the most of them, if not all, Lutherans, and they had a chaplain who was a German Lutheran, and he was a good man, and he was a good chaplain, and he was a good fellow, and he was a good Lutheran, and he was a good German, and he was a good Lutheran German, and he was a good German Lutheran chaplain, and he was a good German Lutheran chaplain in Company "K" of the Seventh Illinois Volunteers.

Company "K" was a good company, and I believe that the Seventh Illinois was a good regiment, and I believe that the Seventh Illinois was a good German Lutheran regiment, and I believe that the Seventh Illinois was a good German Lutheran regiment because Company "K" was a good German Lutheran company, and I believe that Company "K" was a good German Lutheran company because the chaplain was a good German Lutheran chaplain, and I believe that the chaplain was a good German Lutheran chaplain because he was a good German Lutheran, and I believe that he was a good German because he was a good Lutheran, and I believe that he was a good Lutheran because he was a good German, and I believe that he was a good German because he was a good Lutheran German, and I believe that he was a good Lutheran German because he was a good German Lutheran, and I believe that he was a good German Lutheran Probate Order.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said County of Charlevoix, held at the Probate office in the village of Charlevoix, on Tuesday, the twelfth day of July, A. D. 1896.

Present, Henry Bergeson, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Jacob Bergeson, deceased. On reading and filing the petition duly verified, of Mathew Bergeson, praying that administration of said estate be granted to Mathew Bergeson or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered that the 11th day of August, A. D. 1896, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be held at the Probate office in the village of Charlevoix, in said County, and show cause why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted: And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix, three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing.

Marlin, No. 2.

The summer building made for bad duty by the present hot weather.

The Charlevoix Evening Association was informally organized by a social crowd.

Capt. John Martin purchased Capt. Wm. Cross in the tug Martin. Capt. Cross goes on a sloop this week.

The big tugs, Parker for Frankfort, Boyce of Traverse City, for lumbering to Stalwart & Tilton, the Denver Grand lumberman.

The tug Favorite is towed out of Waukegan's yard to be overhauled and towed for winter fishing. The Minnie Warren will be pulled out as soon as the Favorite is off the ways.

The lighthouse tender Dahlia was in port yesterday. Capt. Hubbard discovered and imaged a bowsprit unknown rock 2 ft. 6 in. in mid-channel Lansing Shoal gas buoy, usual depth of water 14 feet.

The contractor at Chicago who makes Thirlen has invented and had patented by the Dominion government a new kind of log wheels which is said to supersede the present device in 8 miles (city hall as month) and to equally long. Nagelsh is a month time the mechanism and a complete progress the sound.

Engineers of tugs Martin, Cross, they are entitled to better pay now that vessel property is making money, and will soon be in shape a demand in that direction. President George Ide of the National Marine Engineers' Association, is visiting the different lake ports, the organization for the purpose of ascertaining the views of individual members on the subject.

Friday, September 15th, is Charlevoix Day at the Chicago Exposition. Arrangements are being made for a big time, and the Boyce will be launching for a Chalfant Schooner.

Newport Notes.

The I. A. S. ice cream social at the hall was well attended. Net receipts $11.

Dr. Ferris was here last week and removed a cancer from the face of a Spaulding's girl.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church of this village was well attended $10 net, proceeds of which will go for church repairs.

Ben Pratt and Will Superniw have completed job of painting the Methodist church, which will add very much to the attractiveness of this village.

New York Excursion for Drake Day Celebration.

Time and excursion fare for the excursion trip via C. & G. T., M. Div., D. G. H. & M. R. R. and connections, Thursday, at the rate of 20 cents per mile, Sept. 22nd. Ask agents for notice.

Oscar Upright, an old-time resident of Charlevoix, but for several years a resident of Carthaginia, was here spending a week here, the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. Cross, Sr. Mr. Upright is deputy tax collector of his county, and is doing well.

Up of the tug Manager Jackson and Richard Terry are preparing to close the season. During the season the books show that 43,000 meals have been served. It is gratifying to learn that Richard Terry will be back with Mr. Jackson next season, and equally gratifying is the fact that the other, Mr. Jonas C. Bauer, will return. Much of the success and popularity of this house is due to the skill of this artist. Mr. Bauer goes to the other Northern Chicago, until the 1st opens again.

Last week Mrs. J. S. Baker took the Hotel Elston, and on Monday morning Mr. and Mrs. Baker assumed the management of that fine house. The Elston will be run on an all-the-year home, and will be in every respect run as a first-class house. Mr. Hamlin, the Pavilion chef, and a first-class cook, goes with the bakers into the Elston. Mr. and Mrs. Baker have moved to the Baker residence on Main street. The Hotel Elston is a house that Charlevoix may well be proud of, and we invite doubt that the new management will be success ful.

Found, on Antrim street, a wooden nickel. Owner may have same by calling at C. V. Cook's and paying charges.

School Commissioner's Column.
A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

Horace Mann's influence added to founding the first Normal school in the United States at Lexington, Mass., and a second one at Trenton, both in 1839, and a third one at Bridgewater in the fall of the next year.

The urban population in this country in 1790 was one in thirty of the population. It is now one in four. If we count towns on the railroads that are quite urban by their close connections with large cities, and the suburban districts, it is safe to say that now one half of the population is urban.

The struggle that is now going on in our schools up to eliminate rural methods and supplant them by urban methods. As villages grew, and after the railroad had connected them with the large cities, bringing them into contact with urban life, graded schools began to exist, and to hold longer sessions during the year. One of the chief defects of the rural district school was to be found in the fact that the man who taught the district school took up teaching as a makeshift. There was small chance for the acquirement of any knowledge of the true method of teaching.

Another evil was the letting down of standards of qualification. The average district could rarely achieve a high qualification, the township system (Massachusetts) a low one, or standard of efficiency than the district system.

When the villages began to copy the urban model and establish graded schools with a full annual session there came a demand for a higher order of teacher. This caused a comparison of ideals, and the most enlightened in the community began to criticism of the school system and suggestion was demanded.

In Massachusetts where the transportation of pupils was in force, this agitation resulted in the appointment of a State Board of Education in 1837, with Horace Mann as its secretary. He came to the head of education in Massachusetts at the beginning of railroad growth and the growth of cities.

He attacked with unsparing severity the evils of the schools as he found them. There evils being chiefly the survivals of the rural school system. He literally demolished the school district system. Side by side with the new impulse given to education by the villages, no doubt the district system received very bad. Finally the district system was broken up and the township system established. The district system opposed the central graded schools which were written in the population villages, but would break up the old district.

Horace Mann's efforts did not at once abolish the district system in Massachusetts but they prevailed to consolidate districts in populous sections of the state. He extended his criticism and suggestions to the examination of teachers, and their instruction at institutes, to the improvement of school buildings, the taking of school funds by taxation, the creating of a correct public opinion on school question which was the beginning of our present normal system.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

A skunk was run over by south bound train near Elmira the last Thursday evening and he is to the conductor was for a few minutes well nigh unbearable, in color a word.

Grand Rapids Herald: The G. R. & I. will construct a Kalkaska depot at Petoskey during the coming season and will make this the center of the resort traffic, which has year assumed greater proportions than any other point in the history of the road.

The recent rains have been very considerable to the potato crop in this region generally. While to some localities the continued drought has done considerable damage, in this section the potatoes hold their own remarkably well. A large crop is now assured, and the prospect is that good prices will prevail.

Thieves entered the C. & W. M. depot at Kalkaska one night last week. Freight and express matter was opened and thrown about the room, and coal pockets even (if open but only $1.20.) Money and a few articles of trifling value were secured.

Some interesting old state records have been discovered on Beaver Island. The first record of the post of Michilimackinac is dated 1795 in the twenty-eighth year of his majesty's reign, and is signed by Daniel Knowlton, captain commanding. The records of Michinac were used for a large extent of territory, among that included being the county of Wayne, state of Indiana and the territory of Wisconsin, besides the whole of the northern peninsula.

The South Arm Lumber Co. and the G. R. & I. railroad company have about consummated a deal by which the former will get all of Harvey Wardy's hardwood lands west of Alba, and the latter will get the Ward railroad. This railroad has been held for a number of years, but never operated. They will give the South Arm Lumber Co. control of one of the finest tracts of hardwood lumber in Michigan and will give South Arm and East Jordan national communication with the outside world.

The following item is clipped from the Pinconning (Mich.) Ex.: "This is what the G. R. & I. should have done long ago in their own interests as well as those of Traverse City and vicinity. The last move for the G. R. & I. to make is the vicinity, and in one of all others that would prove mutually advantageous, would be the extension of the Traverse City branch along the west side, thus opening a new and —Gold is on the boom as well as other "industries," and Charlevoix will expand in that line next summer. Prominent members of the Charlevoix Summer Home Association are negotiating with E. Carpenter, D. D. Redhouse and the Mason estate for the lease of grounds on the cemetery tract for mines. The land is splendidly adapted to the purpose, and if it is secured, as is confidently will be Charlevoix will be the biggest gold centre in the north.

—Congressman Mesick in a recent Grand Rapids interview said: "You remember that it was Editor Shuster of the Macatawa Herald who opened the attacks upon Governor Pingree in the last campaign, he stirred things up considerably, and almost immediately I received notice from the governor that if I did not call Shuster off the governor and his forces would put after me. I didn't call him off and the governor wind men up there to work against me." Mr. Mesick is correct, except in one particular, and that is that the Macatawa Herald opened the attacks on Gov. Pingree. The Charlevoix Sentinel opened the attack in August 1897, more than two months before the Herald, and was only criticised by that paper for so doing. The fact is, the SENTINEL was the first Republican paper in Michigan to attack Governor Pingree and is proud of the record.

—St. Wednesday evening next, Murray & Mack's "Finnegan's Ball" company will appear at Lewis opera house. The company is well known as one of the best.

—Mrs. Coulter, wife of Rev. Cyprian N. Coulter, of Central Lake, and cousins of Messrs. A. L., E. W. and Emmet Coulter, of this place, died at her home in Central Lake Monday after a long illness. Deceased was a pioneer of this portion of the Grand Traverse region, Mr. Coulter having been the Congregational pastor at Atwood thirty years ago. Throughout northern Michigan she will be mourned as one who made the world better for her living in it.

—The county treasurer has received a letter from the auditor general embodying the following instructions: "On and after Sept. 25th you will charge interest upon any taxes, paid to you, until further notice, at the rate of one per cent per month, or fraction thereof, from the date when the description of land was returned to you to the date of payment, with four per cent as a collection fee. On and after October 1st you will charge on all descriptions of land where taxes of 1897 or prior years are paid, one dollar for expenses, in addition to the interest and collection fee charged as above."

—Grand Rapids freight agents, after a week spent in northern Michigan looking after the coming fall shipments, report that the two fronts of the past week have raised the crop of about 1,000,000 bushels of potatoes throughout the state, or about 25 per cent of the expected crop. The fields throughout the entire northern part of the state are black instead of green, so severe was the cold snap. The early government estimate gave Michigan a crop of 95 per cent. The farmers now say that the crop of the state will not be above 70 per cent, and been contracted for by the buyers at the time of the frost. It is expected now that a large number of the contracts will be canceled. Corn was also damaged by the frost, but the loss will not be so severe as with the potatoes. Since the frost the price of potatoes has advanced.

—Rev. A. J. Eldred sends a communication to the Eagle in which he takes exceptions to an article taken from the report of the action of the recent Methodist conference at Ionia, relative to his position upon the temperance resolution offered in the Conference, claiming that the report does him an injustice. He says: "The truth is, I only objected to a single resolution in the report and that was a full endorsement against the government at Washington for the canteen system in the army. I held in my protest that the resolution was an unusually attack on the President of the United States, and was in the interest of demagogues. Also, such treatment of public officials was contrary to true patriotism, and that it was unworthy of an ecclesiastical body to indulge in it. On the adjournment of the government by such a resolution. For more than fifty years of ministry in Michigan, I have stood in the temperance ranks and aided my party in giving it, was never in any temperance or anti-saloon movement in this state. I have always sought to honor our chief magistrate, not considering his political affiliation, but as the representative of all the people." This is the utterance of a Democrat. It is also the utterance of a true patriot. Would there were more of them.

Marine Notes.

Capt. Wm. Cross succeeds Capt. Geo. Weaver in the tug Taylor.

The U. S. steamer Michigan has to off into port but Thursday, and again yesterday.

Capt. Geo. Weaver has accepted the position of first mate in the steamer City of Charlevoix.

The steamer City of Charlevoix shipped a trip last week, going to Ludington direct from Chicago.

Capt. Jesse Reid has been here the past week with the tug Protector and her big lighter picking up the boiler and other wreckage of the steamer Sidney, and will take it to Bay City.

The schooner Maine, which took lumber to Buffalo last trip, brought coal back to Washington Harbor. Her cargo from there to Traverse City to load lumber again for Buffalo, and will return with coal.

The tug Martin spring a leak on Saturday. She got into shallow water nearly to her center, and was taken to Washington's yard. When pulling on the ways, she slipped off and about half of her keel. The job was finished yesterday and turned out.

School Notes.

Emma Bird has taken up German. Calla Willier is absent on account of sickness.

The tenth grade are deeply interested in Latin and Algebra.

There are 80 pupils enrolled in the High School, five of whom are graduates.

Five drills are practised again. The school can be emptied now in a short time.

The Seniors will give a supper on Oct. 19. Particulars will be given later.

On Thursday and Friday of last week, the Fair proved more attractive than school.

Five from the Tenth Grade have taken up German and enjoy the work very much.

Vera Wagner of the Ninth Grade was absent last week on account of sickness.

Maude Bedford and Herbert Heath were absent part of last week on account of sickness.

Isabella and May Gellick have entered school and are taking the commercial course with German.

The membership of the Tenth Grade exceeds that of the Ninth by seven, that of the Seventh by eleven and that of the Twelfth by twenty.

The Juniors had a very pleasant hay ride on the evening of the 22d. They were accompanied by the Misses Hagerman and a number of the Senior class.

SIXTH GRADE.

Mason Hoe and Hinkle Parish have been absent on account of illness.

Hester Gallagher, who has been with us since the opening of school, left a few days ago for Traverse City.

School Commissioner's Column.
A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

Teaching is a profession. It requires not only skill but science. This science can be secured only by classical knowledge, which is education. Those who are true teachers will from time to time avail themselves of every opportunity to equip themselves for their profession.

There is a growing demand for teachers who have made special preparation for their work.

A teacher must know two things to make a success in the school room. What to teach and how to teach. The educational standard for teachers is higher than it ever has been. Examinations are more difficult; school boards and parents are demanding trained and well prepared teachers for their schools.

We hope the teachers of Charlevoix county will enter the work this year with renewed zeal. We want to make this the best school year that Charlevoix county has had. We want an tonic in the school room. Remember that fossils are important only as they contribute to true science.

While visiting in New Jersey and Pennsylvania recently we contrasted the district school house and grounds with the districts in Charlevoix county and we are glad to state that the district schools of this county compare favorably with any that we saw. It has been remarked to us frequently by visitors that the school houses in this county are better than the district school buildings in some of the older counties in this state. We hope the patrons will take pride in the country school house and make it and its surroundings the pleasantest place in the district.

The school house with its surroundings is a great educational factor in the child. The parent will feel a pride in seeing that the child has a pleasant, well kept room in which to spend the school hours.

Unless Mr. Bryan makes a radical change in his tactics before it is everlastingly too late, he will score nothing more enviable than he defeat in the next national Democratic convention. There is no doubt he remains the idol of many who supported him in 1896, but that idolatry has not reached the stage of blindness, and they cannot but see that he is in grave danger of being his own successor.

It is in many ways to be regretted that the Democratic party should, at the present time of the Democratic party policy is to form upon the country another campaign on the currency question. One would suppose that it there was an issue which a great national election and subsequent events had settled beyond the possibility of successful resurrection, it was that gold, and not silver, was to be the basis of value for the United States.—Boston Herald.

QUEER COAST RIVERS.

ALL STREAMS NOT NECESSARILY OF WATER.

Some Wonderful Things Flow from the Mountains of the Pacific Into San Francisco's River of Sand—Others of Rock and Stone.

"Among European books that persons who visit San Francisco should read, and the little city that wields up Mount Tamalpais in the Sierra Madre "but it is by no means necessary. As an example, look at Paris" and the speaker looked up the stone slope of the mountain as the car passed the curve. Reaching from the track which indeed had caused it was a chain of stones, both large and small, then a wished, and extended upward as far as the eye could see. The grade was very steep and in all cracks and crevices a clump of stone was to be seen. Only those who have gone over the road, and perhaps a few of stone groups, can appreciate the difficulties of the road. Some parts of it are so narrow and so close to the edge of the cliff that the wheels of the car seem to be within a few inches of the edge. Yet there are no accidents, and the cars are never overloaded.

"In a little conference on the globe with the exception of Mount Tamalpais and the Sierra Madre, there is a river of stone. The side of the city of San Francisco, the Pacific Ocean, the Sierra Nevada, the Pacific Ocean, the Sierra Nevada, the Pacific Ocean, the Sierra Nevada

INTERESTING PARIS RECORDS

Father Christmas' Has Curious History Extending Back.

Two interesting records have now arrived at the other end in the streets of Paris, says the London Daily Mail. One of them, "Father Christmas" (Père Noël), is well known, thanks to the Halles quarter. Père Noël is 89 years of age, and owes his name to the possession of a flowing white beard, like a Santa Claus. He was much lauded when accosted of being a vagabond, and in language more academic than the dictionary of police himself was one night of ruling by poisons on that the unknown had contracted an "abuse of authority." He pleaded exception of indulgence, and entered the magistrate on a charge of 40 sous, taking down that which a people possesses a box of money for which he can obtain shelter and food he is not a vagabond. "Father Christmas" scorned the idea that he was a beggar. He gave, he said, lessons in history to workmen, in cheap restaurants in exchange for his meals. "Father Christmas" has a curious history himself. He was a member of the peace in Paris, and he quite universally frequent for literature and science. He was formerly very well off, spent his fortune in feeding a Dictionnaire and fast life. After he was ruined he inherited another fortune of 12,000 francs, which he spent two months. "Father Christmas" (Père Noël) is an honest man, and has been sent to the old age retreat at Nanterre. The second arrest was that of an old woman found begging in the Rue de Dunkerque. At the police station it turned out that she was born on Feb. 29, 1840. Her first birthday dated in 1872, but she said it was "only" 28 years old. Her twenty years she has lived in secrecy in a cellar, and has existed on charity. "I live at 8 Rue de Clichy," said the old woman, "and you can send me to prison. It is quite sufficient to me where I pass the time I have spent in the cellar." The number of police sent Mrs. Harwell home and informed the chief could be found for her.

CONVICT ISLAND.

Where the Worst Type of Criminals Have a Chance for Reform.

Since the Australian colonies drop of Queen's convict ships to land the greater of the 30,000 of them, have been land on the Indian government as a penal settlement for the convicts. There, also, about 12,000 convicts in the aggregate are now. Port Blair, which is centrally, is a peculiar information for the reform of the criminals. Every convict knows that his treatment depends rather a certain preliminary on the number of years he has to serve. Moreover, the plan knows that good behavior will of itself shorten the job without doing of labor. There. A convict who has served a certain number of years, and earned the magistrate a character of 40 years, taking down that which a people possesses a box of money for which he can obtain shelter and food he is not a vagabond. "Father Christmas" scorned the idea that he was a beggar. He gave, he said, lessons in history to workmen, in cheap restaurants in exchange for his meals. AUSTRALIAN CAVALRY RUSH.

Bravery and Fine Horsemanship Are Needed to Check the Stampede.

From Chamber's Journal: When a cattle rush comes in the blanket of the night, among the thick scrubbers, low-limbed trees, with the nature and habits of the country unknown and invisible, to meet it calls for the finest and fleetest quality of horsemanship. As the cowboy swerves and swings in the saddle to avoid contusion from the cooking irons he must see to it also that the horse shall win to the lead of that thing rushing mountain beside him, behind and over may collapse it. And when he does the instinct of the ranger is still to come. The rider's (Jack) must do double duty now as he leans the horse and shoots the bullets as well. The real sense of the impact and disaster spread itself. The horse is dragged inward, the whip lashes and falls, the man, stung until now some items and hungs in the condemned battle ever. If the leading cattle swerve and delay a step, carrying confusion among the rear, and finding the direction of the herd, it is the doom moment of the drover's life. As the beasts that come thundering blindly on feel the controlling of the horse in hand and flank and hear the note of man's supremacy than they have feared some branding time, the tide spreads. The little rush becomes a stampede, the nonsatiers spread into shifts of confusion the clash of horns and hoofs mutter a sound from the rear until the rush and spreads out. When the sound arises of the monster blowing and sinking on the grass the horseman knows that his stage is past. Low down is an sea Wraiths of the storm, a white crest burns, is the herald of the dawn.

Death of a Noted Dog.

The death is announced of a dog famous in the Women's and Children's hospital, of Dark Ireland. Leo was his name, and he was well known, not only in Ireland but in many parts of England. Of singular intelligence, he was always in some sport, upon the street, with his master, a well-known Irish gentleman. Leo was the proud discoverer of carrying off the cup offered by the Prince of Wales for the dog who recovered the largest amount for a hospital and he was also known to the Prince of Wales, who frequently patted him. He is mentioned in the Bancroftian in his children's book, Leo.

Harvesters Unpacking With Their Wives.

Another harvest in Canada has been discussing with their wives in bed and breakfast. Some time ago, the wives members of the parliamentary had not been advantage of a convention hunt. There were nine of them before the parliamentary committee on the railway, amalgamation the other day, when Sir H. Pearce Fitzgerald, the chairman, remarked: "I am learned gentlemen would like to take off his wife to attend the committee." The day was boiling hot and thoroughly the nine who were coming on the table, and other barristers entered the room other wives were to avoid the number in the party disease.

Jumped Off Horse Over a Table.

At the age of 16 John Lenly Manning had left his working farm at the White Hart, near Aylesbury, to brought a circus and joined him over the table. Nothing was more than usual. In fact, the dancer was actually acting on the table, and he was jumped without a whole. The horse performed before about thirty men, who were dining in the phosphorescence, and may desire your readers to know that I am still living and hearty.

Huge Sold to Paris.

Chickens are sold in pairs in Buenos Ayres. They are dressed before being offered for sale, the only fowlers left upon them being those of the tar, the wings, and the feet. The chickens are sold at 1-3 of the dog's hair is left on the tail of the cock, which is carried it cooked. But this is not so much a waste as it seems, for the tar is the best and cover of the chicken, and the feet are used as a brave spirit into the body of the caller.

Curios Most Versatile.

A glass that will lessen pain with a toothpick or a glass of water, that has no leaves and yet sometimes weeps, that has no wheels and yet sometimes moves and moves in the night, that sometimes is actually wet, hot, and yet sometimes a couple of inches cold, that sometimes is entitled to be called the Jacob is entitled to be called the wonder of all the growing things on earth.

Water and Ozone.

The authorities of Lille, France, have conducted some exhaustive tests of the efficacy of ozone for purifying water. They find this method applicable on a large scale, and superior to any purifiers used. All pathogenic or saprophytic microbes inhabiting waters experimented upon were destroyed. After treatment the water is weakened in organic matter, less liable to putrefaction and more palatable—Pittsburg Post.

Vases Conference Note Paper.

The note paper used at the peace conference at The Hague was provided by the manager of the hotel where it served as headquarters, and is decorated with a fine design of Cupids, Jesus, Neptune, and Minerva. A little wonder has such across the hotel, where the records the business is, and the cannon is opened, and a store beside the office branch site entirely upon the Cupids.

Death Rather Than Bath.

New York Journal Hatter that takes a bath Clarence Morello hanged himself in jail Dobbs County (N. J.) jail, for not consent to bathe and commit the suicide when preparations were made to scrub him Sunday.

Cannon in Lieu of Lightning Rods.

Gov. Wood says that there are now 3,000 cannon in forts which will be used for lightning rods and were replaced by Gatlings. Gatlings are to be used in Boston for the same purpose. The cannon are from two to three inches in bore, and are placed on the top of the forts and connected with the earth by a wire.

Cure for High Degree.

New York Tribune. Royalty uses medicine even less than our other classes. Secretaries are engaged to see that all congratulations, regrets are acknowledged for royalty's sake, in the duties of royalty. The Prince of Wales uses Tarrant's cordial. He has one for home use, on which is written "Prince Albert." and the other for abroad, on which is his title. The Prince of Wales uses Jewsbury and Brown's Orientalis. Jewsbury and Brown are not any more Oriental looking than a sausage in the street, but they are royal purveyors, and as the royal commodities are not any more Oriental

SCHEME FOR DEFENSE

TO FORTIFY PORTO RICO, HAWAII AND GUAM.

Congressmen Have Will to Be Generous in Supplying Means to Secure General Watson, Taft, the Chicago Warriors, and to Give Alaska.

Hon. Jacob Wilson, chief of engineers, U. S. A., has begun a concerted effort to enlist the aid of Congressmen in the work of fortifying the Pacific islands, which have been taken by the United States since the war with Spain. Mr. Wilson has been in the city for a few days, and while here he had a long talk with Senator Hanna, who is a member of the committee on appropriations in the Senate. Mr. Wilson's plan is to have the islands fortified at once, and he has the support of the chairmen of the committees on appropriations in both houses of congress

BUY NORTH MANITOU.

Chicago Men Purchase the Large Island of Lake Michigan.

From the Chicago Interocean. Franklin and Benjamin Newhall of Chicago, now own the largest island in Lake Michigan—the North Manitou. Every Chicagoan who goes up north on Northern Michigan resorts passes close to this island, the entrance to the straits lying between it and the Sleeping Bear point, but not one in a hundred has set foot on it. Though thousands of tourists and "summer" pass and repass it every season, it is still undiscovered country to all but a few. This is the more surprising, inasmuch as Chicagoans flock to Glen Lake, Charlevoix, Leland, Northport, Harbor Point, Grand Traverse bay, and the resorts close by, and Chicago capital is becoming largely interested all about the island. Noteworthy examples of recent Chicago investments are the new hotel at Empire, just across on the mainland, and in Glen Haven bay, across Sleeping Bear point. The former plant is the largest and in Michigan.

The new owners have not decided just what to do with their new domain. They propose to make of it either a monster orchard, a stock farm of great extent, or a summer resort. Probably the island will be devoted to all three of these uses. Franklin and Benjamin Newhall, father and son, are members of the firm of F. Newhall & Sons, wholesale fruit dealers at No. 151 South Water street. Their attention was first attracted to the island to an investment by the possibility of making a great orchard there, where carloads of choicest regular bearing fruit farming could be carried out on a large scale. About 1,500 acres along the east shore of the island were purchased with this end in view, and a fifty-acre orchard has been planted as an experiment. On the success of this orchard will depend to a large extent the time to which a large portion of the island will be devoted.

The first purchase of 1,500 acres was from S. F. Boardman, of Chicago. After it was made the Newhalls became so attracted by the island and impressed with the possibilities that a large tract in the center of the island was secured from a factual man, and afterward a number of outlying claims were bought through Simeon Ford, of Evanston. Mr. Ford knew no more about what he had bought than the Newhalls, but he knew the island and the country round about it, and knew that the Newhalls, if anybody, could make a success of any venture they might undertake on the island. Since then Mr. Ford has been the agent on the island, and has made a study of the island and its possibilities. Some experiments have been made in planting some fruit, maple, ash, oak, and other trees, with a sprinkling of pine and spruce. The cleared portion is taken up in a few hundred acres, the outlying claims and the six or seven miles of "shore acres."

As was originally the project of Mr. Boardman, who bought the greater portion of the east shore of the island from the government, to make a stock farm of his holdings, Scott county, Illinois, lived across in primeval wild, and it is possible a portion of the island will be devoted to this use by the present owners. The original idea of the Newhalls is in the same way, one to devote the greater portion of the island to fruit farming, and some land will undoubtedly be used for the purpose at first. But neither of these projects is likely to be carried out in the entirety. The magnificence of the forest growth and the natural beauties of the place seem too precious for the new owners to sacrifice to purely utilitarian ends. It is not that what grows on the island, the strawberries should not be cleared, or the wild pasture to the island conducted to business. Hence the summer resort plan is now made considerable as the most promising, since it will add the natural beauties of the place enhanced.

The Newhalls have already made several improvements on the island. They have rebuilt the dock and provided a deep water landing for the largest lake vessels. This is attractive on the east side of the island in a small bay, and is protected on all sides except from the northeast. When the wind blows from this direction it is impossible for steamers to make the landing. The Newhalls have asked the government to build a breakwater to the north of the harbor, and hope the work will be undertaken next spring. During the winter the grounds will be added to and improved. They have also another improvement on the northwest side of the island in a little bay. The two landings will be connected by a wagon road and will only be four miles apart. One of the other will be sheltered in any weather. The orchards to be planted will be along this road.

North Manitou island lies about 25 miles northeast of Chicago, nearly due west of Traverse City, and forms the well known "sleeping bear" beach land. It is about seven miles long by four and one half wide, containing 14,000 acres of hill, valley, forest, meadow and inland lakes. The approach at the east harbor is by a bay with a sandy beach and a gradual rise of meadow land, dotted here and there with cottages and the old farmhouse buildings, and extending to the hills a half mile distant. Here the woods commence, extending to the surrounding Manitou lake, near the center of the island and continuing on in unbroken lines of maple, maple and beech—the high hills overlooking lake Michigan at the northern and northwestern limits of the island. The ground is a succession of valleys, plains, meadows and hills, from the highest of which a view of the surroundings for fifty miles or more may be obtained. The Fox Islands, twenty two miles to the north, South Manitou island four miles to the south, Sleeping Bear point twelve miles to the southeast, and, on a bounty of fifty miles or more, the main Michigan shore with its high sandy bluffs can all be plainly seen on a clear day.

The lake in the center of the island is about one and one half miles in length by one half mile wide, and is exceedingly deep. It is almost hidden to view by the thick woods surrounding it, and is famous for its small stunted black bass fishing. A bass weighing over six pounds was caught there a few weeks ago by James Hewitt of Chicago, and half a dozen weighing over five pounds each were caught by Chicagoans this season. Black bass over two pounds are rare, and six pounders come very close to equaling the record for the fish. The lake is seventy feet above the level of lake Michigan, and is fed by springs. It has a small, windy 2 mile inlet to Lake Michigan. The Newhalls own all the land about it, and have decided that no hunters shall be built near it with the possible exception of a small white birch cottage.

The cottages of the summer resort are near the landing on the east side of the island. They belong entirely to Chicago people. F. H. Peale, James Hewitt, Howard W. Fowle, J. H. Keating, George Hossom and W. L. Shepard are among the owners. A large party of Chicagoans spent the summer there.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Judge Fred H. Aldrich of Cadillac has decided to enter upon the practice of law at Detroit as soon as his term upon the bench is concluded, and will probably open an office in that city before the end of the present year.

H. P. Wing and wife, of East Jordan, expect to start for Kansaville, Tenn., next Monday. They intend driving through the entire distance. The trip will be made with the hope of benefiting Mrs. Wing's health.

While at Chicago last week, W. J. Pinney, of the East Jordan Tinshop, purchased new stock for some time extension of their business. The new goods will be delivered in the fall. Mr. Pinney thinks that which they are now using, and is expected sure next week.

Petoskey Democrat Clips. Wright returned last week from Grand Haven, where he took the examination for a license at that place preliminary to the great tests on steamships under 15,000 thousand tons. We are glad to learn that he passed the "review" successfully.

Petoskey Democrat Clips. H. G. Rose has platted a portion of his land situated about two miles and a half west of this city, and has named the resort Chippewa beach. The property is very pretty situated and is an ideal place for such a purpose.

The Benzie County Herald says that the corn crop in that county is so "immense" and that complaints are coming in from farmers that the corn grow so tall it shut the wind from the wheat fields and they had to resort to the plunge immediately in order to supply the stock.

Elk Rapids is agitating to secure a railroad facilities and the leading business men of the place are using every influence to induce the C. H. & O. to extend its line from Traverse City to that place. It is said that such a is probable and that the railroad company is seriously considering the question.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of some people to trample upon that year's game. Several counties have more wheels than teachers and it will be necessary for the commissioners to grant special certificates enough to fill the vacancies in order that all the wheels may be supplied. The low wages paid teachers during the past few years has driven many to seek employment in other channels, and the inevitable result of the present condition will be a general advance in the salaries paid competent instructors.

Petoskey Democrat The editor of the Democrat visited this week the quarry which has just been opened on the land belonging to Lacey Long and his son Charles, on the east bank of Mud Lake, about a quarter of a mile beyond Kegonsa, and in our opinion the discovery which has been made this summer is likely to be of great value to Petoskey in the near future.

An important law suit has just been compromised at Suttons Bay. The mill and docks owned by Grellick Bros. of that place have been sold to A. H. Dubay, of the Empire Lumber Co. and C. D. Stanley, manager of Mr. Dubay's Suttons Bay store. The new firm will continue to operate the plant on an extensive scale.

Grand Traverse Reporter. W. F. Gill, of Gill's Pier, has extensive lumbering interests on the Beaver islands and is there now looking up the advisability of running his mill at Gill's Pier to the islands to cut out the timber owned by him there. He has now a small mill there but is considering the matter of carrying his big mill to facilitate the work.

There is a class of people who enjoy the whole of fair weather periods of pre-hoeing storms. When there is nothing really serious to alarm anybody, the chronic pessimists give us sermons of their own creation. Whenever the country is enjoying a period of business prosperity they are sure to be heard trying down the lack of the periodicity of panics, and predicting one of unusual severity within a year or two. If crops are good for two or three successive seasons, lest we should become over-confident, conscious prepares an elaborate magazine article proving that the world's wheat-producing capacity has been reached, and that from now on population is going to outrun the means of subsistence, until we shall have to look to wars and pestilence for relief, and Malthus will be vindicated. When this time is expended, or its repetition becomes too monotonous for anybody to read, the habitual alarmist takes the reverse tack and proves by statistics of decreasing birth rates in this or that country that the race is degenerating and will become extinct at no distant period. Finally, if nothing else satisfactorily gloomy suggests itself they figure out the rate at which the earth is cooling, and how soon we shall all be frozen up, or proceed to unfold some mathematical calculations to the effect that in a hundred years or two this planet will be hit by a comet and broken into fragments.

—"The Arena" is the name of a new paper started at Boyne Falls by H. H. Eaton & Sons.

—Mrs. Dr. Lamb left yesterday for Philadelphia, where she joins the doctor for the winter.

—C. V. Cook and wife left yesterday for Sandy Creek, N. Y., where they will spend the winter.

—Mr. R. F. Church, G. P. A. of the N. Y. C. Co., of Chicago, spent the Sabbath with a call yesterday.

—Chas. Levinson has gone to Chicago after goods, and will have a special announcement next week.

—Do not see the great and only "Murray & Mack" in "Finnegan's Ball" at Lewis Opera House tonight.

—Mr. Geo. W. Miller will be at F. M. Sees' clothing store on Oct. 9, 10 and 11, with samples for special orders.

—B. N. Faulkner, Frank Brown, Forrest Bartholomew, Walter Clifford and Frank Sears went to Chicago on the steamer Illinois last week.

—Wm. Holland died at his home in Bowne last Wednesday. Deceased was a pioneer of Charlevoix county, having located in Eveline in 1866.

—Miss Carrie Hilliker left yesterday for Mount Carroll, Illinois, where she will spend the winter. She was accompanied by Mrs. Hilton, who goes to Detroit.

—The remains of the late Mrs. Louis Miller, mother of Geo. W. Miller, who died in this village about 3 years ago, were removed to Traverse City last week.

—Listen for the last big carnival of the season on Oct. 21. The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church will give their annual chicken pie supper Wednesday, Oct. 25.

—F. A. Bates went to Chicago yesterday to attend the convention of the National Bankers Association which there he will take a course in the science of exhausting.

—The fifteenth annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the seventh district, of Michigan, will be held in the Congregational church, in Traverse City, Oct. 10th, 11th and 12th.

—Last Thursday night the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Moulton in the southwest portion of town was destroyed by fire with all its contents. Mr. and Mrs. Moulton were only able to save themselves. The property was covered by insurance.

—The Grand Rapids Bark and Lumber Co., who have a large tract of cedar, tamarack and hardwood land near Ellsworth, are putting in a saw and shingle mill at Bellaire village. They will have a big three years cut. They will handle cedar principally the coming winter.

—A. A. McKinnon and J. A. Heath have formed a co-partnership for the handling of second hand furniture and household goods. They have leased the store in the Alves building and will open it up about the first month. Mr. Heath will have charge of the establishment.

—Hardwood as a source of profit to agriculture, to mill men, and to the city or community in which it is manufactured, is made the theme of a recent bulletin of the Michigan Forestry Bureau. Attention is called by the bulletin paper to the fact that the unprecedented levels of Michigan timber are rapidly being bought up by manufacturers and that the opportunity which now exists will soon be lost to Saginaw forests. It may be remarked in this connection that Cadillac gentlemen have had been sleeping while the hardwood harvest was in progress. If Saginaw and other pine cutting cities will continue their sleep a little longer they will be all come to an awakening and to the remaining available hardwood, so far as Cadillac is concerned.

—On Monday the new steam heating and ventilating plant, installed in the central school building by the Kalamazoo Supply and Construction Co., was formally accepted by the school board, who, with a delegation of leading citizens under an inspection of it. The plant works to perfection.

—The annual outgoing excursion occurred yesterday, and was the largest that ever pulled out of Charlevoix. The train numbered ten coaches, and every coach was crowded to its utmost. Teams from the country began to arrive at an early hour, and the omnibuses were kept busy making trips from about town. Charlevoix never before took such a cleaning out.

—Capt. Sliffield yesterday took a charter for the schooner Grover, Bayne City to Buffalo, staple lumber, at $1.00. and has an option of a charter from St. Ignace for hemlock at $1.50. Two years ago shippers did not have to hunt long for charters for hardwood to Buffalo at $2.50. Times have changed, and yet there are those who will vote for Hyland again next fall.

—Traverse City Eagle: Editor Smith, of the Charlevoix Sentinel, devotes nearly half a column to pitching into the law passed by the last legislature for the protection of skunks. Smith pitched in at a terrible rate, and declares that he "knows there is only one thing greater than a skunk and that is a game warden." From this we infer that the editor would have no closed season for game wardens. We would remind friend Smith that a skunk is a very pretty and perfectly inoffensive animal so long as you let him alone. To do this, we admit it hard for a man of the peculiar temperament of the editor of the Sentinel, but he must learn to curb his inclination to "stir up the animals." Besides he must remember that the law for the protection of skunks and game wardens was enacted by a legislature the members of which he himself worked hard to elect.

—Traverse City Record-Eagle: Under W. S. Anderson was in Chicago last week and returned Sunday night on the steamer Illinois. When the steamer was entering the port of Manistee two colored waiters at a game of cards became engaged in a fight and one of them drew a razor and slashed his opponent with the weapon. A deep gash was cut on one side of the face from the ear to the mouth and ear for prompt treatment the wounded man would probably have bled to death. On board was a young physician, Dr. Willard, recently graduated from college, on his wedding tour with his bride, who tendered his professional services and Candidate Anderson accepted them in sewing up the ugly cut received by the negro. This is probably the only case on record in time parts where a doctor and and undertaker have been similarly engaged. The injury was properly treated and the man will recover. After the encounter the negro who committed the act, effectually disappeared and it was subsequently learned that he was from the boat. The police of Manistee were notified and before the boat left the man was safely under lock and key in a jail. The wounded man was taken to the hospital.

—"On the Canadian River," now in its third season, come to the Lewis opera house Oct. 9th. The play is, as evidenced by the title, a story of southern life, love and hate. The plot is powerful, touches of pathos here and there, plenty of genuine humor and human interest throughout. Years before the play opens a Col. Mason goes away to fight in the Confederate army, leaving his estate in charge of a human vulture, one Caleb Cross, who manages to get all the property in his hands. When Mason dies his daughter, Dora, is adopted by Col. Clayton. He plans a marriage between his son Frank and the girl. Caleb Cross has a mortgage on the Clayton home. The colonel borrows the money to pay it, they quarrel and the mortgage falls. Clayton, his son, coming to on the scene is felled by a blow on the head by Jasper Hawk, a relative of the family. Dora, the girl, has just had her sight restored and Jasper, who has been her guide, the shock renders her blind. The son is made almost as blind by the blow on the head. He is taken home to his father's, murdered. Sliffy Mayson will again be seen as the old colored woman, "Aunt Dinah," who, the first one Fountain City remembers.

The editor went to Chicago yesterday in the Illinois.

—Corporal Elmer Carmer has opened a recruiting office in the Court House. He was detailed in advance by Lieut. Harry H. Bandholtz, late Major of the 35th Michigan Volunteer Infantry, who will arrive here Thursday morning, with Dr. Alexander M. Campbell. Dr. Campbell will perform the physical examination of the recruits. Enlistments will be for both the regular and volunteer army.

The consolidation of the Flint & Pere Marquette, the Chicago & West Michigan and the Detroit Grand Haven & Western railroads now only waits the formal action of the stockholders to make it a reality. President Heald returned yesterday from the East, and thinks the 8th is fixed the name of the company will probably be the "Pere Marquette," thus eliminating the name of this city from the official title of the road. Details as to the location of headquarters, the transfer of the road and other matters which are subjects of a good deal of curiosity and interest, are not to be made public as yet, although they are doubtless well outlined in the minds of the committee which has had the matter in charge of the arrangements of the deal. Upon this subject President Heald had nothing to say, but the future is more pleasant than ever that executive head of the "Pere Marquette" will be the general chief official of the two local roads.

The Evolution of a Bridge.

Beardstown, Ill., Sept. 29th, 1899. Mr. Editor:

In your issue of Aug. 23th that appeared a bridge article you say "the evolution of a bridge" would make an interesting chapter in the story of the growth of Charlevoix that Capt. A. G. Aldrich about 40 years ago built a foot bridge across the river about ten rods above where the present structure stands. Now if that is the fact of the case there is one bridge left out of the evolution of Beardstown. I reached Pine River about the middle of August 1865, and there was no bridge across the river then and no sign that one had ever been erected. Several settlers came in that summer and all settled on the south side of the river. The postoffice was at Mr. Dixon's on the north side, and no way to cross but by a canoe or small fishing boat, and frequently neither could be found and we would have to walk around the head of the upper river where John Horton and his "long Tom" canoe was most always ready to sit us over. To obviate this inconvenience it was thought best to bridge the lower river. Late in the fall a "bee" was called and one week, blustering day a foot bridge was thrown across the lower river almost such a structure as Capt. Aldrich describes his to have been. All of us who helped construct that bridge fastened ourselves that we had helped build the first bridge across Pine River. Now it seems that ours was No. 2 and six years higher than No. 1. The foot bridge, as we called it in those days, the "old State road" bridge, was built in the winter of 1865 and was considered a big thing for Pine River, the name of the settlement in those early days. I write this because I still have an interest in "the Beardstown" and as that when the future historian comes moving among your files for material for his work he can refer to your issue of September 29 as one of the many make shifts of the early pioneers. We worked with willing hands and very freely, believing that time would reveal as with the gratification of seeing a village at the river. We now can say that we labored in vain or that our hopes were not fully realized, though others who know more of our struggles, are reaping the benefits.

CHAPTER XVI.

Lord Vernon came down to breakfast next day looking very pale, but he did not exhibit the slight of his guests—it brought with it a longer, the old "Hallowe'en." Lady Vernon, the queen, was in the drawing-room when the gentlemen came in, and Lady Vernon, who was a great favorite with all, had a word for each as she shook hands with them.

"Lady Vernon," said Lord Ashton, "I hope you will not be disappointed at your guests. We have not been quite up to the mark since we came to Vernon Court. Lord Vernon looks as if he ought to be in bed, and I—I have a headache that I cannot believe in. I think we all have—we look so pale and tired."

"I hope," said Lady Vernon, "that it is not the effect of my hospitality."

"Hospitality!" said Lord Ashton, with a laugh that was not pleasant to hear. "We will talk of that by-and-by when every one is well."

CHAPTER XVII.

Lady Vernon noticed a marked change in her husband's manner when he came down to breakfast. He was more silent than usual, and he seemed to be in a state of great nervous excitement. He ate and drank but little, and he was pale and haggard.

"Are you ill, Lord Vernon?" she said, as he rose from the table.

"I am not well, Lady Vernon," he replied, with a strange, nervous laugh; "I have a—a headache."

"Shall I send for Dr. Lane?"

"No, no, on no account!"

"Shall I—shall I—" she hesitated, for she was afraid of his displeasure, "shall I send for Lady Ashton?"

"Lady Ashton!" he repeated, with a strange, nervous laugh. "Why, she is the cause of my headache! Lady Ashton, indeed! I—I—"

He rose from the table, and left the room, and Lady Vernon, with a sigh, followed him.

The day was a long one for the guests. Lady Ashton was not seen at all, and Lord Vernon was seen only for a few minutes at luncheon. He was very pale, and he ate and drank nothing. He was very kind to his guests, but he was evidently suffering from some great nervous excitement.

Lady Vernon was very anxious about her husband. She had never seen him like this before. He was not ill, he was not feverish, but he was in a state of nervous excitement that she could not understand.

"Is there anything," she said to him, "that I can do for you?"

"Nothing, nothing," he replied, with a strange, nervous laugh; "I have a—a headache, that is all."

"Shall I read to you?"

"No, no; I shall be better by-and-by. Do not trouble about me."

Lady Vernon was anxious that the day should pass quickly for her husband, and she had arranged a variety of amusements for the guests. There was a drive to Hallowe'en, which was to be the last festivity, and there was a dance in the evening. Lady Vernon had hoped that the excitement of the drive would do her husband good, but he had declined to accompany the ladies, and they had gone without him.

The dance was a success, and Lady Vernon was the center of admiration in her dress of white and silver, with her diamonds and her pearls. She had danced with her husband, who had roused himself for her sake, but he had left the room soon after the dance was over, and she had not seen him since.

Lady Vernon was anxious about her husband when she went to her own room that night. She was afraid that he was ill, and she was very much hurt at his strange behavior to her. She was sitting in her room, thinking of him, when her maid came to her with a message that Lord Vernon was very ill and had asked for her.

She found her husband in a state that alarmed her. He was lying on the sofa in his dressing-room, his face flushed, his eyes bloodshot, his hands burning hot, and he was muttering to himself in a way that was very strange to her.

She knelt down by his side and spoke to him, but he did not seem to know her. She ran for her own maid, and they bathed his head and gave him some cooling drink, and he became quiet for a few minutes; then he started up, and his wife had to hold him on the sofa by force.

He was muttering something about his wife, and she was afraid that he was delirious. She sent for the doctor, and he came in haste. When he saw his patient he shook his head gravely.

"Brain fever," he said to Lady Vernon. "Your husband must be nursed very carefully."

"Is there any hope?" she asked, with a pale face.

"Hope, dear lady? There is always hope."

"Tell me the worst," she said, with a pale, proud face.

"The worst is that your husband may be ill for weeks, and that he may never be quite the same again."

"Tell me the worst," she said, with a pale, proud face.

"The worst is that your husband may die."

Lady Vernon's face did not change; she only bowed her head for a few minutes in silence.

"Do your duty, Dr. Lane," she said, in a low, sweet voice, "and I will do mine. I will nurse my husband."

The doctor looked at the beautiful face with admiration and pity. He had seen many a brave woman in his time, but he had never seen a more courageous face than that of Lady Vernon.

"I cannot but compare the husband and wife," he said to himself, "and I wonder what has caused this illness. It is not the illness of a happy man."

A week passed, and there was no change in the patient. Lady Vernon was with him night and day, and she would not allow any other person to share her duties.

"Do you not think, Lady Vernon," said the doctor, one day, "that you are rendering yourself needlessly anxious? Your husband is not in danger, and you are killing yourself by your anxiety."

"I cannot leave my husband," she said, with a pale, proud face.

"Lady Vernon," said the doctor, "I have known your husband from boyhood, and I know that he would not like to see you ill on his account."

"I cannot leave my husband," she repeated, with a pale, proud face.

"Lady Vernon," said the doctor, one day, "I have known your husband from boyhood, and I suppose you know what a wild, reckless, fast life he led before he came to his title and his property. I suppose you know that he was—"

"I know all that you can tell me," she said, with a pale, proud face.

"I thought you did not," said the doctor, with a grave, sad face; "and I thought it was my duty to tell you that your husband's life has been one of dissipation and—"

"I know all that you can tell me," she said, with a pale, proud face.

"Lady Vernon," said the doctor, one day, "I have known your husband from boyhood, and I know that he would not like to see you ill on his account."

"I cannot leave my husband," she repeated

By CHARLOTTE M. BRAEME.

CHAPTER XVII.

Lady Vernon came, in breathless and tear-worn state, to the house in Mayfair, which she had never thought, with such a pang as she felt on this occasion, to call her home, to present her prodigal son to Miss Adela Lennox, the woman he had chosen to be his wife.

"Why, Adela, I thought you would have come to me," she said, as the girl came to her side.

"I was so tired," she said, in her sweet, low voice, "that I thought it better to wait for you."

"Then you may imagine my surprise when I heard that you had left Vernon Court for good!" she said, with a little frown.

"Oh, I thought you would have guessed that I could not stay!" she said, with a little shiver.

"Why, what has happened?" she asked.

"Lord Vernon has—I mean, Sir Philip has—"

"Do not stumble over your own name, Adela," she said, with a little sigh. "I know what you mean. Sir Philip has—"

"Sir Philip has—I mean, Lord Vernon has—"

"Why, what has happened?" she asked, with a little impatience.

"Lord Vernon has—I mean, Sir Philip has—"

"Do you mean that he has married?" she said, with a little sigh.

"Yes, I mean that he has married," she said, in a low, sad tone.

"Then, I suppose, I must call him Lady Vernon," she said, with a little sigh.

"Lady Vernon!" she cried, with a little shriek.

"Why, what is the matter?" she asked, with a little frown.

"Oh, I thought you would have guessed that I could not stay!" she said, with a little shiver.

OLD PLANTS

That Have Disappeared for Decades Revived by Chance.

Some twenty-five years ago, while some lot of soil produced by the annual floods in working the mines of Lansing, near Aiken, was removed, in order to be reworked by more efficient modern appliances, the seeds of a kind of poppy of the genus papaver, which had lain undisturbed during a dormant condition for a long time, sprung up again and spread over the ground. A number of such cases, this year, was described in the Revue Scientifique, under the heading of "Plants Revived from Ancient Times." The author, Mr. Gaston Bonnier, of the Sorbonne, Paris, has shown that the seeds have retained their vitality so long seems very extraordinary, but there are other instances quite as remarkable. The Indian lotus, for example, could be kept in a cool place for twenty years or more, and yet when placed in water would germinate as readily as those of any other plant. Some years ago, a Chinese junk, which had been sunk in a gulf about thirty feet below the surface, and subsequently had been there about the second century, were successfully planted. In another case, the skeleton of the Pompeiian Cynodectus, dug up from the bottom of a sealed well, when they were believed to have been buried for nineteen years, were still vigorous and produced healthy plants.

The Island of Ram in Private Property.

The island of Rum, says London Truth, is a recent acquisition to private property, and the owner declined to allow any outsiders to set a foot on it. The sportsman discovered was made the other day by an artist who intended to come there for sketches. There is a lake of steamers calling regularly on the island, but the boat on which Gwen Ellen omitted to mention to the artist took his chattels ashore. As passengers are allowed to land, the boating close to Rum, and viewed from the deck of the steamer, tempted the artist had to go back again. He unceremoniously cast his effects on to land to meet certain permanently at the island, who is an inhospitable person.

Hair to Draw the Prisoner.

New York Sun: A prisoner guard frank caused considerable embarrassment on a Grand Trunk train at Toronto Junction, in Canada. When sent for his breakfast the man was found to be lying in his cell with all his clothes off and no chance to put them on except in his cell, except as he was. The officer had to handcuff him and drag him in some in Parman custody some years ago, when Mr. Justice Galton was judge, a case of a girl and member, a lady in Scotch woman who was a prisoner in the county jail, adopted a similar measure for keeping out of the court. The sheriff reported to the judge that the lady was completely disrobed and refused to come out. The judge directed him to wrap a blanket around her and bring her to the court, insisting this order one Richard herself and with the officers without further parley.

Valuable Pollution.

Rochester Special to New York Herald: Petroleum is being used daily in the new Lansing House, this city, in a manner not by any hitherto in business. I have traveled all over the world and I never have been so well taken care of as where else do I expect to be you. I will remember this as my will. Was the cooking done to this several years ago by Charles A. Lansing, a wealthy resident of Canandaigua. Mr. Swan on Monday received a letter from James Mackie, superior of the wall of Charles A. Lansing, calling Mr. Swan to appear in Canandaigua September 5 and testify a legacy of $100 bequeathed to him by Mr. Lansing.

Six Year Old's Long Journey.

From the drawings of the White Star Steamship Cymric there was brought to view the other day a little boy of six, who is on his way from Glasgow to his home at Ft. Dodge, Iowa, in Rock county, Wisconsin. According to tag which he wore he was sent to his mother, the president's house in Ard Venter. The tag, which was also an open letter addressed to the president, was signed "Mrs. Bryce." It said that the boy was a good boy, and that he was to be taken care of by the conductor, and send him off by rail on his journey to the west.

Some Day Spoons.

Miss Ella Wheeler Wilcox, of Stamford, in the possession of the most remarkable chafing dish spoons in this country. Miss Wheeler, who was a poor girl, several years ago. The gift of Fort Dodge workmanship and their author demonstrates may be carried with it is stated that the twelve dozen silver spoons are kept in a box in ordinary cherry chest. The curved handle, which holds the bowl, is one of the most wonderful examples of skilled handiwork in existence. It is exquisitely carved and mounted in fine silver and ivory stand.

Five Days with Broken Neck.

Philadelphia Record: After living five days with a broken neck young James Murray, of No. 1924 Ellsworth street, was revived his injury by during of a cancellier jail, near Newark, died in the Pennsylvania hospital. The case from the first was considered hopeless by the hospital physicians, and no operation was resorted to. The spinal column was kept as straight as possible by means of weights, in the hope that the fractured ends of both bones, jaw, but death came in the sufferer's relief before there was any signs of union.

An Interesting Whale Hunt.

A highly interesting whale hunt took place off Hoxa, on the west coast of Shetland, Scotland, recently, resulting in the capture of three whales. The whales were seen near the entrance to the Hoxa Sound, and were distinctly startled by parents, the others, who were joined with the young, leaping and lay weapons they could, finally the whole shoal was successfully driven on the beach, where the work of slaughter was commenced. The whales were from twenty to twenty-five feet in length.

Asbestos Separator.

New York Post: Another explosion will soon crowd the discovery of a world-wide in point of popular interest, so, I hear that three experts are preparing to start for this region in 1892, or thereabouts. The Hungarian government has sounded a description from the Royal Society and the Royal Geographical Society that it would assist the expedition and of before filled one source Asbestos, made by Nessen and Sir Henry Stanley to the Antarctic region. The Society is to be thinking of assuming a plan of action that is to set an Antarctic continent at the mining International Congress of Geographers in Berlin, April 10. Nessen, on Count Mustek and Sir John Murray will consult with Prof. von Drygalski, the head of the German expedition.

Stars to and Comets.

Philadelphia Record: Prof. Mellish, a astronomer aboard the steamer A. Mayo, reports that in his nothing at the Western cold storage warehouse docks, was struck by an odd product of the cold goods, which fell into the hold of the vessel and survived. The McWhirter arrived as assorted meat, and for two days has been unloading, at the cold storage warehouse. Mellish was working with several men in the hold of the boat. They piled up the meat in a place which measured the engineer in hand and the hole fell into the deck and the hooks slipped and the bale fell in four feet into the hold, narrowly missing Mellish's head. He suffered only a sharp wound and a sprained shoulder. He was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital.

How to Paper Whitewashed Walls.

It is a great to make paper stick to walls that have been white-washed by frequent whitewashing. The smooth finish may be scraped off by the artist, or he may be changed were a coat of varnish applied to the wall, but it is the following manner. Put one part of flour in a saucepan and add to one quarter of cold water. When smooth add two quarts of boiling water and let it cool. Then add a dull up once, then strain and mix with a little paste over the walls and allow it to dry. When you are ready to paper the paste will stick to the paper on the paper and hang it in the usual manner.

Nansen's First Street Car.

New York Tribune: The first street cars ever seen in operation in this city passed along Bleecker street yesterday, and after a little delay caused by the rain, the horses started off and was soon selling gaily along on the direction of the Fifth avenue. The cars proceed very successfully, and after a few days to get things in order will be ready to run with the regular schedule, and will be selling passengers to and from the pavement. The start of the car was made at about quite a crowd of people now and along Bleecker street.

Newfoundland Iron Men.

The Newfoundland pioneer was a rugged man, with a rugged constitution, tough, strong frame and, before the invasion of manufactures on the west coast, shotgun law was the order of the day. He was clothed and fed by the assistance paid the fishermen, whose supply consisted of eight or nine months' fish and the well and the unvarnished man and equal to the occasion. He would hitch his mill off in front of his life for many years.

END OF THE WORLD.

Persons That Is It Time Billions Years Ago.

Persons do queer things sometimes. One of them has attempted to state in cold mathematics how long we may expect the judgment day to come, prepared a paper on the subject which he expects to read before a scientific association on the occasion of meeting, says the Newspaper. Starting with the total mass of our globe in the sun and the rate at which it is cooling (or the equivalent mechanical energy equivalent) in a given space, and 2 5 such are the units we find it is one of the most beautiful calculations, and of all results 1,000,000,000 years supposing, before a single diminution of the quantity of energy given can be detected. Up to this distant period successive alluvial rivers will deposit soil upon, and animal life will grow very much as it does today. Yet, despite that a due energy, as sun, and, transmuted itself in some form, either as growth, decidedly simple motion. It is easy to see that the motion is low-level rather than great. At any rate, the world is 1 hour to stop going for a few years, something to life reasoning. Some day of the children of the force that cannot not go or from the physical source of earthly life may be gained, be sure, by considering that if the energy that the sun gives to the earth in a single hour could be bottled up and defended against Niagara Falls it would cost that a cask full of water to dash up and for 1,000 years. It would take a bottle other of heat if would raise every living creature instantaneously night and wither; the heat of the polar world be melted in one and three-quarter minutes, and the machine stores seconds all the ocean would be turned into steam. If transmitted into electricity a 12 inch would flash from the earth as far as the planet Jupiter. It collected into a ray around the vibration thereof would not only touch every cardinal in the world but would upset the giant trees of the forest and even level mountains. It charged like a moderate flash of light its burst would be, in rending as to penetrate the walls of the deepest dungeons and destroy the life of every living creature. In brilliancy this flash would exceed the brightness of the sun itself over a million times. For one first to repeat an amount of energy equivalent to that which the earth receives from the sun in the tenth part of a second he would have to work hard continuously for 10,000,000 years. This calculation is remarkable in that its result differs by more than 3,272,000,000 years from the period when scientists generally believe that the world will come to an end. Such experiment Darwin and Huxley believed that it could not sustain life two million years hence.

Distortions in John Bull's Postal Status.

Among the reformatory tests in the British postal service, proposed by Henniker Heaton, M. P., is the providing for the sale of postal cards at their face, or stamp, value, the cards to be purchased in sets in the standard of the postal union. Another case for the reduction of the registration fee to one shilling, instead of the unapproachable eight or nine times the telegraph rates, the telegraph being under the control of the postoffice in England. It provides that the sum and address of the sender of a message shall be free, or a charge made of twelve cents for twenty words.

Tobacco in Scrubber.

Tobacco is the most sensitive thing in the world to take on odors from the class, city or elements that ever was made. In lightning over a smoky lamp of gas, for instance, the finest tobacco ever saw, doesn't taste good after you have been eating onions. Again, you should rinse your mouth out after a meal, or go to a cigar-store before lighting another if you do you will find that nearly every one has the self fragrance of the morning cigarette, instead of the 4 o'clock of the last pipe.

Celebrated Her 107th Birthday.

Chattanooga, in Annan northeast of Dumfries, the reputation of being the oldest town in the world, the average rainfall being 107.17 inches. In 1891 it had the second of six months in which 107.17 inches fell. This year it seems bound to beat all previous records. Nine inches of rain having fallen between Jan. 1 and the middle of June, the 24th and 25th inches, or 24.75 inches, over six feet of water, fell in a single week.

Emperor as Guarantor.

The German emperor has consented to stand godfather to the twin sons of a coachman at Potsdam. He has made their parents a handsome present of money and has given permission for the babies to be christened William I and William II. These names will appear in the church registers. The twins are the seventh and eighth sons of their parents.

Expensive Fever.

Almost every nation, with the exception of the United States and Great Britain, is overtaxed to meet the expenses of maintaining its army and navy. France runs behind in the amount of $1,000,000,000. Austria has an annual deficit of $30,000,000, Russia of $50,000,000 and Italy of $30,000,000.

Heavy Earrings.

In the early day of Rome the ladies of that city were such heavy earrings that they made their ears sore and underlined into the holes. Tiers were fashions whose holdings are chiefly to bear now than injured.

Sleeping in Corsets.

Sleeping in tight laced corsets was once the custom of Scotch ladies, girls with shoulder shoulders had to lie on a piece of board bound upon their backs to keep their shoulders straight.

Ancient Specific for Epizootics.

Onions are recommended as a specific against outbreaks of stock and meat in a room, where they will absorb any atmospheric noxious.

Antiquity of Tobacco.

Tobacco is a plant of great antiquity. Among the Indians it was used for the purpose of making the pipe of peace. Its use was known to the Greeks and Romans. It was introduced into Spain in 1559 and into France in 1560 by Nicot, from whom it received the name of nicotine.

Ancient Sacrifices.

Among the Greeks and Romans it was customary to sacrifice a bull to Jupiter, a boar to Mars, a ram to Neptune, a goat to Bacchus, a dog to Mercury, a cock to Mercury, a lamb to Venus, a sow to Ceres, a mare to Juno, a bitch to Diana, a cow to Minerva, a bull to Jupiter, and a bull to Mars

NEW RIFLE ADOPTED.

THE NAVY TO USE THE KRAG-JORGENSEN.

Change Is Made to Procure Uniformity in Arms and Ammunition in Land and Water Forces—Suffering Forces on Mackenzie River.

The Navy Department has concluded to make a change in the small arms used in the service and will adopt the same rifle as is known as the Krag-Jorgensen. This decision has been reached solely in an effort to the good of the Michigan of the small arm, and has the advantage of having a uniform arm and ammunition for both the army and navy. Considerable of the other considerations. The navy uses only 30,000 rifles, and these will be in use for many years, and, if the latter could not make a change in the order of war, the navy will be obliged to do so.

ROBBERS WANT $15,000 BAIL.

Aged Mayden Women Is Bound with Ropes by Thieves.

A woman and another aged woman, either of the city of Hamilton, Canada, were robbed of $15,000 in cash and bonds, with her widowed daughter, was tied hand and foot by two men who entered and robbed them. Burglars thought the women had a large sum of money in the house, and had been watching the house for days. The women had been to the bank and had drawn the money, which was to be used in the purchase of a home. When they had lived a whole year in the house, they had kept the money in a trunk in the house, and had the money with them. The women had been bound with ropes and secured with the $15,000.

Democrats in Search of a Grave.

The caucus committee of the Massachusetts Democratic convention last Wednesday reported a resolution denouncing the prompt and vigorous prosecution of the campaign in the Philippines and repudiating Agoncillo's statement that he held the support of the Democratic party in the United States. Mr. Jaquith, who introduced the resolution, gave the committee an opportunity to disavow sympathy with Agoncillo. The committee in reporting the resolution accepted Agoncillo's statement as a virtual cooperation between him and the Democrats and declared it to be one the leaders of the insurrection against the United States government. On the rejection of his resolution Mr. Jaquith resigned from the committee.

At a meeting of the Democratic state committee in Massachusetts in 1897 a resolution was introduced declaring that "in the present emergency the Democratic party, forgetting all its feelings of mere passion and resentment, will remember only its duty to the whole country." It was laid on the table and there was adopted in place of a resolution declaring that the Democratic party would support honestly and all efforts in the line of the administration for success of the present unpopular civil war for the purpose of subjugation or extermination." But when the Massachusetts Republicans offered a resolution which pledged an unwavering and patriotic support of the national government in its efforts to suppress the rebellion the house was joined 20 to 1 in refusing to tell away from their party and the Republican candidate for governor who claimed by a majority of 11,277.

In 1864 in 1862 the Democrats made an issue of sedition by denouncing the Lincoln administration for the arrest of Vallandigham. On that issue the largest vote ever polled in the state by Republican candidate for governor obtained a majority of 60,000. In New York in 1863 the Democratic convention protested against the arrest of Vallandigham, and nominated a judge of conspiracy and the suspension of hostilities. The Democrats had all the machinery of election in their hands, but upon this issue Chauncey M. Depew, Republican, was elected secretary of state by a majority of 20,676, whereas governor Seymour, Democrat, had been elected by 10,848.

In every state in which the supper had been was presented in 1864 the people sustained the Union or Republican candidates. In Illinois the cry of peace party was shown in the action of the Democratic legislature which was sent home by popular votes. In Indiana the democratic legislature attempted to retard the organization of Indiana regiments by tying the hands of the governor. At the next election in 1864 the Republicans carried Indiana by a majority of 20,000 and Morton was shown in the same year. In Ohio

SOCIAL HINTS.

How to Make One's Guests Have a Good Time.

The social status of any family can be gauged most accurately by the person who answers the door bell, usually the tenderwoman. A slatterly servant means a cheerless welcome, for what is almost as bad, an incapable one. For the mistress of the house herself to open the door when so expected that she feels compelled at once to plunge into a tirade of apologies is a confession of inexpertness and bad taste. The visitor who is received by a speechless or unkempt child also receives an impression of the household that is jointly unhappy. Under wrong methods of training and discouragement at home, whole lives frequently result therefrom. In search of entertainment, it must every realized that home should be something better than a dull place to eat and sleep in. Men hate women's tea parties and large show functions, and their little dinner and supper parties, many families refrain from entertaining because they cannot do so on an expensive scale. It is, however, possible to give small dinners and suppers that are both enjoyable and inexpensive. Ask people who either do or will like each other, and be sure that the women to have a good time have just as many men guests as women guests. If the men are to have a good time make sure that some of the women are young and flattering. Men like to be deferred to, yes, they do. One of the secrets of having such good luck is never all the best food but and all the cold cuts. Always vary the menu plans upon which to serve hot food. The afternoon is often chosen when where people are calling upon other people whom they do not know well enough yesterday to broken up by offering some sort of refreshments. The act of eating and drinking inevitably destroys self-consciousness and renders all concerned less stiffly formal. It does not matter very much whether it is coffee and doughnuts, chocolate and wafers, a cup of tea and a biscuit, or what not so long as it is something. It adds charm, however, to have whatever is served brought in daintily and served daintily. One of the saved ways to be avoided "by company" is to try to do everything one's ordinary maid is hired every morning for a period, then it should be changed, but the most delightful company manner is a natural manner when it is natural to be charming. The rule of the charming is an agreeable manner is to seem wanted—that is to have something to do, to say worth hearing, and to say it pleasantly and unmeaningly, conveys to them appreciatively what others speak.

A QUEER LETTER.

It Was Written on Thin Shells of Wild Swans.

"The queerest letter I ever saw in my life," said Washington engineer, who is a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "was shown me at the home of an army officer who is now on duty in the war department. It is written on a couple of thin shells of gourds which each child six inches broad and its stem is rather remarkable. When Gen. Crook was chasing the Apache chief Geronimo, across southern Arizona in 1886, the officer to whom I refer commanded a company of infantry and while the main command pushed west, along the little river, he took a couple of troopers and struck out southward on a reconnoiter. They had been gone about two weeks, suffering all manner of hardships and living exactly like the Indians themselves, when the captain decided to send one of his men back with a verbal report. He was anxious to embrace the opportunity to also dispatch a letter to his sweetheart, who was then a young belle in Washington society but there was not a scrap of paper of any kind to be found, nor, as much as a morsel of pencil. Knowing he was scarcely waiting now from the front he racked his brain and finally answer some smooth fragments of shell which had chipped off from a young Indian. That sobered the problem. He pondered two the pieces, drew a pencil outline from his left and scribed his lover with the point of his bullet. Leaving the frames face to face, so that the writing would not be rubbed off by attrition, he tied them firmly together with strips of a handkerchief and wrote on the address on the outside. Nothing remained but to get it to the ranch, which I need hardly mention, I did as soon as he arrived. He sent the parcel in his blouse and allowed it to safety, and mailed it at Washington. It required three months for the letter to reach its destination, and when it finally reached the center of romance the rose was sadly crushed and the lover was long gone. The book contains an account of his adventures and sufferings in this campaign.

A story has been found in a church in Mexico City, which is a curiosity of a superstition. The story is assigned to the eleventh century, a Spanish Count Alphonso sent a cask wine over all women living in a cottage on the road to Madrid. If a stranger came to the door alone, these ladies transformed into a sightly maidens, if with some other animal, and said him, "Take the cask and drink to the health of gallantry." One day there passed some thirsty road a young man who was leading a donkey and a dog. The three transformed into Monkey, Donkey and Dog, and the gallant after the transformation in this way, with his horse, dog and donkey to another shape. Nothing more was heard of the gallant, but the donkey who could do conjuring tricks became the property of Count Alphonso the great grandfather of the present Count.

Rome is cut up underneath like Paris. Those subterranean passages were in existence in the earliest days of the Christian era, but were closed and forgotten till the seventeenth century, when they were discovered by one known their extent, though they may measure easily 1,000 miles.

A Working Nun.

The nearest thing to working nuns is one of white duck, with a band of pale blue linen around the skirt, finished with four rows of very narrow white tape. A panel effect in front and a little blue cross in the bodice outlined in braid.

The conventual nun wears a bag plait in the back and the front fastens with interlacing tabs of blue buttons of the small pearl to blue the habited sailor collar is of blue trimmed with four rows of white braid. The blue puffs have the interlacing tabs fastening with pearl buttons.

A City Built of Ice.

In the Tradewind, on the eastern bend of Africa, is the Samoan village in the world—Brava, a town 1000 of ship. The buildings are outlining the public buildings, the residence of the chief, the mosque, the music hall, and all of stone. The fever of vacillation and the greed for gold was at an end and the influx of immigrants so rapid that the town was built in six months.

Washington and Baltimore are about to make a Junior Brooklyn, or nearer still, Bronx the little Bronx will come in 1897 the total increase was 14,445 million, or 8.8 per cent. The same year the total length of railroad in the United States was 184,278 miles, an increase in five years of 3.6 per cent. North and South America and the West India Islands are credited with over one-half of the total mileage, or 236,219 miles.

Sleep and Rest Prostration.

The first essential for enduring hot weather spells is to get plenty of sleep. There is eminent medical authority for the statement that most prostrations are due which Kills in the exhausting incident to insufficient sleep on successive hot nights than to the actual intensity of the daily heat. Anything that deprives us of our sleep must be shunned during the heated season.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

Mrs. Edgecombe the Heroine of a Pretty Little Story.

The Hon. Mrs. George Edgecombe, who has just died in Florence, was the daughter of Sir John Shelley of Maresfield Park, and nearly related to those other Queen Bessings of whom the poet was one, says the Westminster Gazette. She was the heroine of that charming little scene commemorated by Sir Walter himself in his "Diary" for May, 1826. The London season was at its height, and Sir Walter was enjoying his full share of what he calls his "busy idleness." He had breakfasted—early as was his wont with that "good fellow" Richardson, had given Chantrey another sitting for his bust, and had gone to a second breakfast in Chester square, as the guest of Lady Shelley. In the brilliant company assembled to meet him a young lady, the daughter of his host, asked him if he might have a lock of his hair. The good-natured lion refused, he allowed Miss Shelley to possess herself of the "thin white" locks, and gave her the blue for which he had previously stipulated. Mr. Edgecombe wrote on occasions with a chair she paid with her father, Sir John Shelley, in the 18th on Abbotsford. One morning when, after breakfast, Sir Walter had retired to his study to add a chapter or two to "The Talisman," Sir John appeared, tailed, from the Tweed salmon he had landed of a magnificent salmon. At once Walter cried, "The talisman" quite forgotten in the joy among the lar omen in contrast task of weighing the relics for which the whole party (Miss Shelley being one) descended to the kitchen—Sir Walter adjusted the scales and noting the weight with a pencil on the wall, the young lady gone forgot. Equally characteristic and memorable were the resolutions of the delightful evenings at Abbotsford when the great poet and romancer would enchant to the simplest hearers, illustrating shrewd remark with apt, picturesque anecdote.

On the morning of the departure of the Shelleys, Sir Walter conducted his young friend into the library, and, after some inevitable hints as to reading, in which manner and manners had each their proper part assigned them he took down a translation of "Tasso" into Italian, and having inscribed her name in the book, presented it to her. This she always kept, as a remembrance of the occasion, the lid to the gift, and it was her pleasure and delight in after years to watch the reflexes of the mighty author on contemporary literature.

SUBWAYS IN EUROPE.

With this century's close has come a revival of the business in the local historian. Most wonderful changes have taken place since 1800, in cities where soft felt and deep hills were not known, and it was as late as 1840 when silk dress hats were first introduced in this country, this being a French invention, and all silk hats used for hats in the world was up to this time, made in France. When Kossuth came to America he introduced the soft felt hats, wearing one himself. It did not take American hatters long to take up the idea, and in less than one year old and aching heads were covered their heads with Kossuth hats. They were in shape nearly the same as tourist hats now, only being trimmed up with a silk long ostrich plume. Along about 1845 an English tourist came along with the derby hat, and in a very few years they became the popular hat throughout the country, and up to the present date the demand for our hats and derby hats is nearly evenly divided. In those days all the best class of soft hats were imported from France and still follows from England. This, however, has taken a material change, as American hats are now sold in all parts of the world, and it is known fact that we produce the most tasty and best hats made. Before the arrival of Kossuth and the English tourist, however, the Americans did not go bareheaded, but contented themselves with capped otter and capped beaver hats, for the more expensive, and the so-called scratch-up or brush hats for the cheaper. Brush of scratch to derive their name from the fact that the nap was combed up by means of a kind of brush constructed of wheel-wire.

Changes That Have Taken Place in Manufacturing Business.

OCEAN DERELICTS.

Necessity for a Patrol System to Find and Remove Them.

New York Sun: The French steamer Touraine, which recently arrived from Havre, reports sighting the abandoned wreck of the bark Bidfastle, waterlogged and almost awash. The topless craft had been deserted three weeks earlier by the bark Cape Breman, being afloat in the transcontinentals wandering, as she is a peril to navigation. The Touraine passed close to her in broad day, but the thought of a collision on a dark night or in a dense fog was not agreeable. This is only one more of a list of experiences which have become familiar to ocean travel, but not on that account the less disgusting or the less urgently demanding relief. While maritime counties pay some attention to wrecks of their coasting vessels, especially when with valuable cargoes, the subject of clearing the ocean of dangerous derelicts, floating wrecks carried often drift through the action of the gulf stream, are driven by winds across the traveled paths of the steamship lines. Again and again there have been made to bring about some international system of policing the seas with a view to removing these sources of peril. It is evident that such a system is needed, because, apart from the expense involved in finding wrecks and towing them up, authority to do so would need to be obtained by the agreement of nations, for globe-spanning claims for Europe Yours for, however, so practical progress has been made toward such an agreement. Our country has been prominent in urging it; and, indeed the thought that some of those lost craft of many years past, whose fate remains a mystery, may have gone down as the result of striking such waterlogged derelicts, is enough to stimulate efforts to clear the seas of these perils.

PLANTS SEEN IN QUEER PLACES

Ten story Factory Blossoming All over with Flowers.

Flower pots exposed along the window sills, golden chest tulips in bloom. There is no better sign. All winter the little Gardens have shown behind the glass of the panes, but now they are in the open air the invalids confined for long, but convalescing. They are curious things, flower pots, and evidence that the love of nature born in us and staying with us to our latest end. They are seen, too, in the most curious places. There is a huge three-gabled factory on the west side, ten stories high. The air about it is thick with coal dust and soot. Yet all summer its ledges brown the general. One knows that many girls work in that factory. The flowers are spots in the caps that are carried full and overflow the long length of the hair in the luncheon hair hour. Men would not take the trouble, but the woman who does not love bulb and bloom is a rare as the women who does not love babies. In either case by thinking machinery has slipped a cog or was "wrongly" to begin with. The flower pots and little nosegrounds woulnot each up above the sills were go together as naturally as turkey and cranberry sauce.

Small Boy's Idea of a Certain Lucky Quartet.

A Milwaukee boy has suffered at that age when he no longer answers orders. Among the other blessings his grandfather succeeded in wrenching from the weird paradox to situation from "Ivanhoe" to which he has always had an unmeasurable sympathy for this great victory he is, of course, most justly proud, and takes delight in reminding his younger sister who hates to wear rubbers as much as he that she is not obliged to do them. Last week the first sixteen of the season disturbed the domestic tranquility. Some one happened to pass the nursery door, and saw the little Ivanhoe exposed. It is likely to go down the line as a cincher in political debate "Why has my sister worn rubbers," the tyrant was calling. A fallen and wounded enemy. "Why?" "Cause," replied Jamie, swelling his little chest, no doubt, there is only four people on earth who don't have to wear rubbers—God and Jesus, and McKinley and me."

HUMOR OF THE LAW.

The opinion of a New York lower court, as printed in a certain report, has caused to little smirkings of a reflexive. "The report is so exhaustive that the court could not improve on it." This is modest, of course, but judges do not always realize how exhaustive their opinions are.

A rural justice on being asked by an attorney in a certain decision of his was "accurate to the code," replied, "I dunno whether it is or not, all what's more I don't know! I ain't got no code now; here some Tuesday, we's a month new, when I hit a new code on the head with it an' sell it all to pieces."—Atlanta Constitution.

Judge Brackbridge is replenishing his stock of anecdotes by the story of a rolling film a crowded. The prisoner pleaded, "Oh, I am not as green as represented as your honor—name me to my."

"Put your hands closer together," ordered the judge.

Sir Henry Hawkins was once presiding over a long, tedious, and uninteresting trial, and had listened patiently with great attention to a very long-winded speech made by a leading counsel. After, as he made a point all memorandum, folded it, and, addressed by the usher to the Q. C. in question, who unfolding the paper, found these words: "Pulling compositions, Gold medal. Sir Henry Hawkins." Amidst laughter.

In a motion over the claim in field of Jones, plaintiff, proposed to make a second "said like the deacon's shay, it's made it stronger in the weakest point." Then the court said: "It is not the plaintiff's fame, though, that the court thinks should be made strongest in the weakest point, but the grounds by which he claims and obtains the right to build the house. However, as far as they have gone, they case is truly like the deacon's shay—it has collapsed entirely, and, like the house, they are on the rock for they are out of court."

You Should Smile.

Dr. John H. Philosophia has found near Dunwood, Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania, a two-headed snake. One head was called a food, while the other was feasting on a ground mole. "Why do you smile?" asked a friend on "ring" stake. "It had the snake of the mouth of the gopher." The specimen measured three inches from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail. It was slightly less than the tail head and continuation seemed to be the tail of the head, the right head sort of a graft set in the tail head. The two heads were nearly three-quarters of an inch apart, with the tail head on each side from the corner of one mouth to the other. This was the tail gullet, which came to gether so that it was capable of eating food with the mouth. The left head was a little larger than the right.

Man Dreamsakers.

There were men Dreamsakers before Noah. The first celebrity made quite its mark in this particular line was Epicurus, who lived 300 years prior to the establishment of Rome. Our day in the month of May, 1776, a beautiful equipage was seen driving along Paris with an elegant lady in the shape of a corset, with an open pair of scissors in the middle of the corset on the point of her nose, and a small thoroughbred coat of arms and it had the dog tale. He was a junior in his way. He readily made a dreamsakers of the lady and gave her income of $2,000. Under the free system of price and the restoration being supplied from the ranks of the lady of the court and the higher nobility from his splendid mansion in the Rue Richelieu.

Bottles and Call of Convenient.

Prof. Ivan Ishikawa of Tokyo, Japan, has invented a bottle and call of convenient. It serves to so that our own people are not at the great convenience, as they need to be. Butter or cottered and bottles are sold in Japan, which are like boxes and nobody cuts pulse, the curt dodger, and the Ishikawa pot is so popular as they need to be. As fog is a bottle and cooking of it has to come a lost art, alas! We change this change, in part at least, to the bottle and call of cooking. Hitherto of the modern cooking stove and bottle, it takes a great big open fire place and a southern negress with a wet handsome on her head, to make potage convinced. Now will any man or woman, read meat pie, for the purpose. Hesian power meat is to be boxed.

By CHARLOTTE M. BRAEME.

A gentle knock, this hesitant, timid knock which a practiced ear knew, had yet a strong, with a pretty voice behind the door, that she had fancied could be her husband's—such as the least scrupulous wife would have thought it her duty to listen for. Jealousy, fear, and hatred had been violently at work in her heart; they had transformed the little trusting wife into a watcher, ready to hear everything, to see everything, to be on the alert for every word, every look, every movement. The knock, the voice,

Parrots Rice Once a Forest.

Puerto Rico, say the scientists, was originally an immense forest from the sea shore to the mountain summits. It is doubtful if there is a single foot of its land area which was not at one time covered by tree growth. From the diminutive mangrove bushes on the coast to the giant trees of the mountain side and top, nature's still wooded. In the sense that "it is dotted by many beautiful trees, the island is now largely deforested from a commercial point of view.

SOLDIERS AT HOME.

THEY TELL SOME INTERESTING ANECDOTES OF THE WAR.

How the Days of Hath Armies Wasted Away Life in Camp—Foraging Expeditions, Dreamers Marches—Exciting Scenes in the Battlefield.

When the first gun of the late war was fired in Charleston harbor a quiet gentlemanly young fellow was chewing an Alabama cigar for the moderate sum of $30 a month.

The clerk had spent three years seeking the very highest position he could reached the topmost round of the ladder. In his line of business there was no promotion or a bigger salary, and it was out of the question for him to make a start for himself, he could not command the necessary capital.

In another the situation were the fifties opened and looked upon the course of events. Tempted his limited education, he was not deficient in mental discipline, and a trip to New York the year before had opened his eyes.

"There are no chances of people rising in life" he said to his friends. "They are content to live in one, and they have all the energy of the Dutchman and the Irishman and practically all the money. We may stop there if these conditions in our east, but we are in for a struggle of seventy years. With this idea in his mind, he was able to see far ahead, thinking for several years. This he enjoyed the longest period of his life, he got.

He increased some money and started a small fruit factory. Orders poured in and he had to hire a dozen hands in a short time. He refined his credit and purchased on a heavy margin in other lines, and became interested in other cities, and finally he was made a government with capacity and ability and was soon in a position to turn from military service and engage in a number of important enterprises.

Very soon he had a monopoly in one line, and was able to keep it in his hands without fear of competition.

The Civil war came and Chase, Wadleigh and other returning to his office, and with the letters to men of wealth and influence, he was able to raise the money to start the factory, which was in operation during the war. The profits were large, and he was able to turn from the factory to other lines, and he was able to keep some of the soldiers to their employers and friends.

A year or two after each Chase, Wadleigh and other returning to his office, and with the letters to men of wealth and influence, he was able to raise the money to start the factory, which was in operation during the war. The profits were large, and he was able to turn from the factory to other lines, and he was able to keep some of the soldiers to their employers and friends.

Now let us look at the person which the war brought to the people of the cities. They men obtain $1.65 a box for their goods, and they sell them.

Last year the prosperity which commenced with Gettysburg and Vicksburg, and which has been continued and kept up ever since, was the greatest in the history of the country. Men who were able to work all the seasons of the year, and to keep, once in seven, the dollars coming in, and who were able to keep the dollars coming in, and who were able to keep the dollars coming in, and who were able to keep

BLACK SWAN OF AUSTRALIA.

It an Impressive Feature of its Beautiful Surroundings.

The native game of Australia is not the very beautiful white bird which adorns so many of the English estates, but the more ordinary-looking black swan, which is invariably an ornament to zoological gardens, and is noted for its capacity for its fecundity and strength, says Chambers' Journal. As for its appearance, the black swan is certainly not an attractive one. Some ornithologists consider neither could "lead a prepossessing life in addition to an English landscape, but while swans in native style sailing in state on lakes, peacefully, contentedly and apparently with perfect quietude of disposition on some sheltered lagoon, amid surroundings of rising country clothed with rich verdure and thick virgin forests, the presence and appearance is most impressive, and causes one to feel that the beauties of the country around would scarcely be little without the living complement of feathered creatures so amicably and tastefully gliding on the water's surface. It is a matter of regret that trivial little trouble to obtain specimens alive in their immense flocks, but one thinks it is not impossible that another range, and in hunting the black swan it is generally a pleasure and a pastime to the amateur sportsman, the sport is not simply a pleasure and a pastime to the amateur sportsman, but also a very practical purpose, and their acquisition is considerable value, it seems hardly credible to me, to those who are not in a way to mentioned that some obtained from a single shot, which probably is exceptionally favored by the circumstances, the number of black feathers being removed before the down could be applied to the wound, the extent of one breast is small, the is so wonderfully thick and so overlapping that it can be divested up the down, many hundred of the finest and softest examples.

FORTUNES IN HARE WOODS.

Its Advance in Their Values During the Past Year.

The hare skin industry has increased to such enormous proportions in the last decade that Chicago is now the largest consuming market in the world. The receipts of hare skins last year reached the 10 January tanners have been placed on the forty-five hares skins, amounting to over millions at upward of $3,000,000. The tanners of the east and west of Chicago are at the furniture factories, the body plants and organ makers, the agricultural machine manufacturers, the piano makers and the building interests. An inventory compiled a year ago showed 3,000,000 hare skins in stock at the Pullman works. Increased demand for black walnut lumber has depleted the Southern supply of that wood, leaving only enough to meet the piano and organ manufacturers' requirements, and thus the best hare skins in the world, equal in quality of the valuable wood in rail and cut off at the rate of one for every remainder of third trees, and these skins are now being sought for the veneers, which can be made into table and small stable pieces. One tree last season, Mr. Webster with the Kinsey Furniture company, sold for eighty trees brought $20,000. Very rare shipped to Europe and for Lion. The finding veneers is valuable. Finding a bright red with brilliant dot, it is used mostly for small fancy pieces. While the best hare skins are for carriage by coachers and makers for upholstery and decorative and chemical fuse, one of the coffee.—Chicago Chronicle.

SCAT DRILL IS TERRIFYING.

Performances Almost Only That Always Inspire the Passengers.

A local drill is an interesting performance when one goes it for the first time provided he knows that it is one, but its terrors are real for those who do not, except to our unfortunate wheel it almost. "The second day out while I was sitting on deck and a woman who crossed the ocean this summer, I heard the bell ring "to drill" and immediately the Indians around. I was two mile around deep side a heavy hose and to another, and the wind was turned a full force. Then the crew began to appear on every hold and to tear about in the without way. Meanwhile the bell continued to ring and the captain stood on the bridge giving orders. I wondered if I had time to go for my pocketbook or for a life-preserver. I did regret that I had not read more carefully the directions for putting on the life-preserver. Meanwhile I tried to find out how near death we were, and just that was the longer we stood on deck but the men to whom I addressed were so much frightened as to be useless as I. The ship's on fire, answered one. Another said to hide know whether there was a fire in the hold or whether something had broken about the engines. The crew is busy getting the lifeboats over and boats' then to a crew any questions. I saw two women trying and clinging to their husbands and one woman was about to leap overboard when she restrained by a man in a white coat and spoke what I think, was a such a lap. The cook's boy told me at last that it was a drill and not a fire. Don't try to scare me, I protested. I would rather know the worst. I guess I was down over to fire salamander but I learned in that time to feel what it meant to be sure of death at sea. I asked the captain why he didn't warn the passengers of what was coming. Because he said we would have had no peace and I wouldn't find out, then how many men shot on deck.

CURIOUS ALBINO TREE.

Are Discovered Growing in a Garden in London.

Nick Dillard has been caused lately by the appearance of a home chestnut tree in the Tiberanian. The summer tree in the Tiberanian avenue the lower part of the trunk have a pure white foliage, while the upper part of the tree is a dark green, where to unknowingly can develop on account of wear of light. The entire whiteness of the service is also possible in a few of the neighborhood branches through the crown to the top. People are often puzzled at the cause of the peculiarity and many strange explanations are sometimes given. The singular appearance of the tree has been noticed regularly for some years. This particular tree, which is about 50 years old, has been attacked by a swarm of caterpillars and other creatures of the same order and the branches had already been destroyed, but still masses of caterpillars continued to crawl up and down the trunk and finally clung there in tongue. To remove the beautiful tree, after these means had been tried in vain, a solution of acid was poured into the ground around was wounded with it, as well as the trunk and the branches which were specially attacked. This treatment proved successful. The trees appeared recovered and now stands in its full strength and freshness. But are red ants and this age to recognize at 600 years. Their vitality is perfect.

TARANTULA HAWKS.

A Wasp that Preys on the Dangerous Insects.

Love down on the Rio Grande river, and a man from Texas, where the ranch are loaded almost red hot in the sun, there grow the biggest centipedes, the biggest rattlesnakes and the biggest tarantulas in the world. If you can look at one of these tarantulas when he is pinned fast to a board with a natural steel pin, and you are sure you are to good and dead and can not spring at you and shove one pinch into you, he horns in interesting subject to study. They are hairy looking hairy things, with eight legs and eight eyes. They colors are dark brown and black. The female tarantula is said to be a little sparse and to have a nominally way, all her own, of getting rid of her consort when she is tired of him. She woos and winds all right and assumes the entire care and support of the young family. The first matrimonial lie she has she turns to and kills her husband. Not content with killing him, she eats him. The female is the larger and stronger of the two; they are simply ghastly for spiders. I have seen three that measured six inches between the stretch of their legs. They are the terror of man and beast. But there is one little animal of the insect family that Mrs. Tarantula stands in no both dread of as man stands in dread of her, and that is a big wasp that in Texas he knows by the name of the tarantula hawk. The tarantula hawk has an exceedingly long cylinder of the tarantula. It will fly around over the head of the tarantula, make a lightning-like dive down, get a good chance on the monster spider, fly away home with him and then all the tarantula hawk family all come to sup. The tarantula hawk will not hurt man. On the contrary it is a loosing and you never hear of a western man having one of them. It is said that these Rio Grande cattle rangers are indebted for the tarantula hawk to an old New England gentleman, who, while there in that country in pursuit of his studies, as a naturalist, was stung by one of these monster spiders, and nearly died and would certainly have died had it not been for the whisky flask of his guide. In 1840 Prince Maximilian collected tarantulas and centipedes are as big and as plentiful as ever. He knows his home without his whisky flask. Shortly after the old professor left that part of the country the ranch owners received a small lot of these tarantula hawks with instructions as to what to do with them. He turned the big wasps loose, they increased and multiplied, and now they are holding their own against their enemy, the tarantula.—New York Sun.

A WOMAN'S PARADISE.

Southern Women an Absolute Queen Over Her Sex.

Over of the Sun.

The last place where one would expect to find a born wholly submissive woman is in the state of Indianapolis, where, if anywhere, the Indianapolis is something out of the ordinary, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. I spent a week in Mr. J. B. Schwerts, a lawyer of Indianapolis, who has published a pamphlet having a number of vital and valuable points going into Fletcher's task with a regrettable of the opposition result. The lawyer had a certified check on file for some time the Hudson, which had been given him for his interest in the patent. The man was presented and the rubber began piling out lots of bills. When the full amount had been placed on the floor the underwhelmed Mr. Schwerts to count it and see if it was right. He counted with tears because he sorrow that he could not have the money. He counted in high piles of bills, and finally pushed all back and said: "Oh, I cannot do it right. Give me a certificate of deposit." It was the Mrs. Schwerts that did. The incident was quite amusing in contrast with the Mr. Schwerts in at the time. When asked about it Mr. Schwerts denied being excited or nervous. He said that the money he just received as a result of five years work, he said it was the return parade that earlied him. Mr. Schwerts is a prominent attorney, living at 1126 Brookside avenue, with an office at 1414 East Washington street. He was born in Berlin, Indiana county, Ohio, in 1858 and since attending school at that place and at Pittsburg, Pa., went to Brazil Ind., where he was admitted to the bar and practiced there from 1880 to 1884. He went to Indianapolis in 1890, and shortly after, on account of frequent use of a typewriting machine, became taken with the idea of inventiveness of the machines of the American Museum of Science and Art. Wooden Seventy-ninth street, and was put him in charge of the work of collecting and arranging curios for the Chicago Museum in Chicago. Mr. Wortmann has actually begun work on the new plans and is best digging out relics of prehistoric monsters who left their bones in the Indiana marshes some 5,000,000 years ago. His policy is to employ men who are interested in the prosperity of the American Museum of Natural History, which, as Dr. Hasbrouck of Binghamton, gives probably the finest policy double of the kind of any museum in the world.

BOSTON CLUB RAIDED.

WEALTHY MEN ARE ARRESTED FOR GAMBLING

The Sequel of One of the Players Causes Police to Descend Upon the Prince Trade Card and Need To Go Quietly Home.

The Hub Club, a well-known social organization, with leading business men among its members, was raided by the police and 100 members and visitors arrested for playing at games of chance. The raid was made at 10 o'clock, when the club was going a-full tilt of gambling with full blast. Lookout men were stationed in the adjoining rooms, and when the police came they found the place in possession of the gamblers, who were going a-plenty. Chief Inspector Wall led the raid, and he was followed by a dozen of his men. The place was entered by the front door, and the men who were in the rooms were taken by surprise. The gamblers were made to surrender their money, and a search was made for the evidence of gambling, such as the boards and scores of cards.

NEWSPAPER ASSURED AND CREW AFOUL.

Shipping Day Marked by Wrangling and Worry—Ballot Is Cast.

The Western line steamer Hon. William L. Ewart, of Detroit, was moored to the Chicago docks, and a new total wreck was added to the list of the year. The steamer while going in to the dock struck the pier head with a terrific force, and the damage done to the boat is considerable. The steamer was loaded with about 1,000 tons of coal when she left her moorings in the morning. The ship struck while going in at a speed of about 10 miles an hour, and the force of the blow was so great that the boat was moored at the dock when she struck the pier head with the two mooring cables she was carrying. The force of the blow opened the bow and the forward compartment was soon filled with water. The damage done will be quite a big item, and it will be a long time before the Ewart will be ready for duty.

SWORD GIVEN TO DEWEY.

Tribute Paid Cleveland's Hero by the People of the Nation's Capital.

The presentation to Admiral Dewey of the sword which would not help to frighten the people of Manila took place at Washington Tuesday in the presence of the President and the cabinet officers, and a great crowd of people who had assembled to see the ceremony. The sword was presented by the Washington committee, and it was received by the Admiral in a speech in which he said that he was proud of the honor done him by the people of the city of Washington, and that he was sure that the sword would be used by him or his successor in the service of the country when occasion should arise.

RETAINS THE CHRONOS.

Vanderbilt Wins the Wind Race in Fine Weather.

The Vanderbilt Challenge Cup was sailed for in a fine breeze on the course Tuesday. The sport in offering the cup for competition was the outcome of the success of the Vanderbilt yacht Alva in the cup race last year at the conclusion of the cup contest. The Vanderbilt challenge cup was then offered for competition by the Vanderbilt family, and the Alva was entered for the race. On the other hand the Kaiser offered a handsome cup for which all the only equipped yachts in the world were invited to compete. The Kaiser's cup was offered for competition by the Kaiser himself, and it was the cup for which England challenged Germany to contest with her in a race for the cup.

SAD FAMILY STORY.

Enticement Woman Through the Hell to Divorce.

A Kalamazoo special of a recent date says: Several years ago Mrs. Anna F. Winsley sued for divorce from her husband, Frank Winsley in this Kalamazoo county court. It was proven that he was negligent and cruel, and Judge Buck compelled, in this instance, it was the duty of the sheriff, as Judge Buck says, for the complainant, to notify the defendant for he never owned such million, although as was living in Charlevoix at the time.

Mrs Winsley, thinking herself free, married Wm. T. Doyle and to him two children. Frank Winsley recently appeared on the scene and demanded possession of Ethelga, a daughter. A equitable counsel and the matter was again brought before the circuit court of Kalamazoo county. After hearing Mr Winsley's case, the court set aside the former decree, leaving Mrs. Doyle, the legal wife of her first husband, and sadly entangling their domestic ties. Judge Buck says that as the law he could under the circumstances and cause that death alone split the scheme of his complainant is not complying with the law in serving a subpoena upon Doyle, the proper manner.

The Detroit Tribune says the following editorial comment on the subject: "A sad commentary on the business of divorce proceedings in a state census from Kalamazoo, where a woman, who attached a divorce, married again. Two children were the result of the second union. Later, the first husband appeared and claimed his daughter by the first marriage, claiming that he had not been properly notified by subpoena in the divorce proceedings, although he was living in Michigan at the time. Judge Buck ruled that it was the duty of the complainant's solicitor to notify him, and that divorce was set aside, ingenuously tangling their domestic relations. The judge claims that he is the best he could under the circumstances, but the law is plain on this point that defendants in divorce proceedings must be notified of the proceedings. This leaves the two children by her second marriage without legal title and the only recourse when she has appears to be to apply for a second divorce from her first husband and marry her second husband. Whether this program can be successfully carried out is a question, but on the face of the decision, the courts should adjust matters so as to give the innocent children, victims of a tangling lawyer, a standing in society.

The Republican Editors.

The meeting of the Michigan Republican Newspaper Association at Owosso last Tuesday and Wednesday was an event of more than passing interest, bringing together as it did not only the leading editors of Michigan's Republican newspaper writers, but a galaxy of Michigan's most distinguished public officials.

The feature of the meetings that portrays of the nature of a public function was the banquet tendered by the city of Owosso to the editors. Four hundred people had their sips under the sumptuous table and celebrate affair. A most notable and elaborate affair. A guests of the association and ex-Senator U. S. Senator Burrows, Congressman Wm. Alden Smith and Washington Gardner. As members of the association there were present James O. Crosswell, of Jackson, Chas. S. Osborn, of Sturgis, and Perry I. Powers, of Chelsea—men of state and national fame, and all orators. The post prandial program was brilliant and inspiring, embracing as it did, speeches by all these and other distinguished men.

Owosso, that beautiful little city of Shiawassee county, did herself proud in the courtesies extended to the editors and was voted as hard now for another event like this editors to meet in. It was voted to hold two conventions in 1900, hence presidential year—one at Charlevoix in June or July, and one at Saginaw in October.

Charlevoix—mind you, Charlevoix! Now it remains for Charlevoix to receive the editors in a manner befitting the importance of the event and the reputation of the town for hospitality. It can be made a big event for Charlevoix, and must be. Let us prove to the association that if Dr. Duncan so admirably "J-ay-ed" us she distinguish all complete."

DISMISSED.

Ensign Van Orden, a Charlevoix Cadet, Out, in Trouble.

A Washington special of Oct. 23, says: Acting Secretary Allen has dismissed the service of Ensign Arthur Warner, in the matter of charges of Naval Cadet George Van Orden, attached to the Hornet, who was tried and sentenced at Castle Hogg at sea to dismissal from the service for leaving his station without being regularly relieved. One of the seven members of the court in consideration of the youth and inexperience of the accused, recommended him for clemency, whereupon the Assistant Secretary instructed the accused to the time of their sentence in his grade. Van Orden having in the meantime been transferred to the marine corps as a First Lieutenant, Acting Secretary Allen has set aside the sentence, calling Admiral Watson's attention to the fact that the statutory law forbids a commutation of sentence of this kind."

It would seem from the above that the original sentence of dismissal from the service, will stand, although it is hoped that President McKinley will give the boy another chance.

Young Van Orden was sent to Annapolis Naval Academy from Indiana during Congressman Overstreet's first term. He who graduated and toward the top of the class in 1896. His two years past graduate cruise was made in the marine. Marblehead, and embraced active service during the Spanish war.

At the close of the war he was put in waiting orders and spent several weeks with his parents in Petoskey, mentioned marrying on his graduation. The young lady in question hailed from Indianola, Ohio. It seems he was transferred to the marine corps.

The young man took the greatest pride in his profession and had the brightest prospects. His bearing and discipline is none of prime might never been surpassed, but according to the rules of war, of course, a serious matter. We are sincerely hope he will be reinstated.

CONVICTED.

In quashing the sentence of the court-martial of George Van Orden, a naval cadet from Michigan, the president and navy department took advantage of a technical violation of the law in the case of a cadet on duty. Van Orden was appointed to the naval academy from Michigan in May, 1893. He graduated in due time and served through the Spanish war on the Marblehead as a cadet, his total service amounting to over two years, when, last summer, he was appointed a first lieutenant in the marine corps. Van Orden was serving on the gunboat Helena in the Philippines when the sentence that led to his court-martial was passed upon him. He was serving as officer of the deck one night and was found sleeping on duty by the officer who came to relieve him. His trial followed and as the vessel was practically in the presence of the enemy and the offence not denied, the court had no option but to sentence him to dismissal from the service. Admiral Watson ordered the sentence mitigated to that Van Orden, in lieu of dismissal, should lose 25 numbers in the marine corps, which would prevent him, to the bottom of the list of his commrades. Then the official sent the sentence to Washington for approval. The president and secretary of the navy in looking over the case, found circumstances that went far toward exonerating the lieutenant. It was learned that on his night of the offense, Van Orden, who had served nearly for some hours, went to bed when his watch was ending 20 minutes or so and, to awake his relief. He left the deck in charge of a warrant officer, who was on duty in accordance with the regulations. He returned to the deck in about 10 minutes, and it was within the next eight or ten minutes that he was found fast asleep. Hence it was doubtful whether he deserved any punishment, but the president took another course of pleading Van Orden out of the scrape, by noting that Wabash had no authority to mitigate the sentence, and that consequently it was not vitiated the whole proceeding. It is probable that during the next year Van Orden will reach the grade of captain.

The cardboard of telling the school ma'am in many instances is not in strict conformity with the law. In some districts the board is been to make the teacher from a M. or a Sp of the school district to be the party, by an unanimously authorized committee, the district. This plan would be perhaps, in a very small district, but in a populous district it would not do. The changes that a board would make or removals from and into the district cannot be carefully ascertained without a canvass, and, from the fact that the board is seldom in session to bring on a body of the boundaries, it would be necessary that the district should be canvassed from residence to residence, even though the commissioner thinks he knows every child in the district.

This is the state of the law, as I understand it.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of the director on such other person as the district board may appoint, within ten days next previous to the first Monday in September in each year to take the census of the district and make a list in writing of the names, ages and residences of all the children between the ages of five and twenty years, residing therein, and also the names and residences, giving street and number in cities and villages, of all the parents or guardians of such children and a copy of said list shall be sealed by the oath or affirmation of the person taking such census by affidavit appended thereto or endorsed thereon, setting forth that it is a correct list of the names and residences of all children between the ages aforesaid, residing in the district, which affidavit may be made before the clerk of the township, and said list shall be returned with the annual report of the director to the township clerk.

Sec. 3. Any person intentionally giving to any census enumerator or school children any false information as to the names or ages of school children, or as to the names or residences of the parents or guardian of any school children, or any enumerator who shall perform his duties carelessly or negligently, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be liable to a fine of not more than five dollars or to imprisonment in the county jail for not more than five days in the discretion of the court.

St. Ignace Enterprise: Signor Tomlanione, of Ecorome, Italy, and Washington, D. C., has been chosen to create the Marquette monument, a statue of the famous priest in heroic proportion, for Mackinac Island.

Benzie county farmers are making an exceedingly good thing this year out of cabbages, which they planted in great quantities. The price has risen from $3.50 to $10 per ton, and as the stock is about one ton to the acre, the growers figure that they are doing better than they could with sugar beets or anything else, especially as the crop is bought right on the ground by Chicago houses, and the farmer doesn't have to bother with shipment at it.

Thomas S. Anderson, ex-postmaster of Rapid City, indicted for embezzling money order funds, was arraigned in the United States district court at Grand Rapids Tuesday afternoon for sentence. He was sentenced to the Detroit house of correction for two years and six months and to pay a fine of $12,000. He was represented to the custody of the marshal. The Grand Rapids Herald says: Mr. Anderson is a badly broken up man and keenly feels the disgrace he has brought upon himself and family.

Manistee Herald: Some time jealously exists between our neighboring villages, Bellaire and Central Lake but notwithstanding this fact the latter town sent a delegation of between three and four hundred people to Bellaire during the fair and thus added materially in swelling the crowd and gate receipts. The Torch says this big delegation was sent down—or rather that they sent down the fair—in an opportunity to show the people of the county real town that they honored to feelings of ill will toward them, which was a very magnanimous action the part of Bellaire's enemy's town.

The perusal of a letter recently received from Boyne City by the post-master at that place is a pretty one the blues. Here it is, word for word and letter for letter: "Dear Sir—I said letter for letter "Dear Sir—I write to inform you that I will write to Mr. D. C. as you know that the boat are would not be 25 Coats from Bay City to Boyne if it is only 25 from Ohio to Boyne so you look that up and I will by further said I should look after you."

Elk Rapids Progress: Last week we told our readers a new industry was underway for the benefit of Elk Rapids, the details which at that time had not been completed, are now finished, and work has already commenced on the buildings necessary for a little mill. A company has been organized to be known as the Wilkinson Manufacturing Co., their object being the Manufacture of bath. The company have secured a location for buildings etc. near land owned by Jas. Ross Co. directly back of the planing mill company on the Kalkaska branch. The main building will be a substantial beginning, 30x40 feet, two stories and will be completed as rapidly as possible. Mr. E. F. Sheppard, of Gaylordsville, will have charge of the mechanical part of the business while the offices of the concern will probably be located in some town down county which will be mined up into suitable office apartments. The plant will have a capacity of one car load of bath per day, and will run during the winter season, employing from twelve to fifteen hands besides the lay labor that can be used in tying bundles.

FIRST PATENT IN AMERICA.

Was issued in 1646 by the General Court of Massachusetts.

From the Boston Transcript. To the general court of Massachusetts belongs the honor of granting the first American patent, this was in 1646, and was then designated as a monopoly. It was confined to the region controlled by Massachusetts, and the one name applicable included all the functions of the inventor combined with engines that expanded upon water for their motive power. The first of the monopoly was fourteen years, and the court not only retained power to forbid exportation, but to prevent exorbitant charges upon the people for their use. The patent was issued in this form: "Liquor Monopoly.—At a generall Courte at Boston, the 6th of the 8th Mo. 1646. The court considdinge yr ocasinity of erecting such manufactures of engines of sale to go by water for ye speedy dispatch of much worke with yre hands, and being sufficiently informed of ye ability of ye petition by ye former such workes grant his petition and do order that there shall not any one sue any such invention, or made for fourteen yeares without ye license of ye inventor upon pen of the 8th Mo. 1646. The court considdinge yr ocasinity of erecting such manufactures of engines of sale to go by water for ye speedy dispatch of much worke with yre hands, and being sufficiently informed of ye ability of ye petition to forbid such workes grant his petition and do order that there shall not any one sue any such invention, or made for fourteen yeares without ye license of ye inventor upon pen of the 8th Mo. 1646. The court considdinge ye ocasinyes any such new invention, & so it may be lawfull to ye court to restrain ye exportation of such manufactures & ye prices of them by moderation or otherwise as occasion." This inventor, Joseph Jenks, or Jenkes, as it would now be spelled, came from Hammersmith, England, settled down in Lynn in 1611 and died in 1680-83, aged 81. He was a blacksmith and mechanic, made the dies for the coining of the "pine-tree" shillings and built the fire engine in this country, altogether a man of great inventive genius and the ancestor of a large number of descendants. One of his sons removed to Rhode Island, where he took another wife.

What One Freethinker Drank.

A French alcoholic patient, the keeper of a Paris wine shop, gave the doctor the following statement about his drinking habits: At 6:30 a. m. I rise. At 7 I drink three or four glasses of white wine, and perhaps eat a little cheese with it. Between 9 and dejeuner I usually take three or four Anisettes, absinthes, Vermouth, or absinthe. For my second breakfast I have one litre of wine, and then coffee and rum. During the afternoon I take various consumptions between 5 and 8 p. m. I take some more aperitifs, on an average about three or four. At 8 dinner. I have my dinner or supper, with which I drink one litre of red wine. Between this and nothing I consume a few glasses of beer or liqueurs.

How to Get Rid of Water.

The well-known attorney, J. Willis Good of Topeka, is going to Wales on business, and Howard Jones has been instructing Mr. Good "how to act for two glasses of ale in Wales." This is the proper version: "Bydeath mor ardeg y defed o ha ysbeliad ar ddwr ac ymrwymo ei hun i ymgadw oddi wrtho yn ystod ei oes." Mr. Good will be where he can get plenty of beer.

Sewer Berth Ordinance.

Berth lookouts are strictly forbidden to sew sewer catchers backs stitched with wire, as Edward Jones and Howard Johnson have been traced to premises from sewer catchers.

Walking Contestants.

Two residents of the same population (Tarporley) are about to start on a walking contest, one to go to Chester, the other to Liverpool, and back, having one member at Chester. We are not at liberty to speak on the place of the next heat, but one will not only be able to cross the shallow waters of Dutchgeel river, but to weather any storm on the ocean.

Carter Notes.

Capt. Jepson of the steamer Crypter has purchased a good sized scow, which he will fit up for heavy hauling on the Pine Lake route. He will fit up the coming winter.

The grade Gold Tailings, which was called for from Hancock at Lake Mineloungy, went ashore on the rocks in the bay at Waukesh and was pounded to pieces. No lives were lost.

Neill Gallagher has to split a stone boat at Muskegon, and is due at St. James with her today. It is understood that she will be run on a north shore route. It is also understood that Mr. Gallagher has sold his St. James job business to the Wolverine Fish Co.

Last Wednesday the schooner Conde, lumber laden Charlevoix to Sand Island, struck the mother in the side of Wagenhaus and was driven back short a photograph. In entering the river she struck the bridge pier and broke her jibboom. She was fixed up and left Friday.

Hickory Reporter. Mr. A. J. Hamill has decided to sell the summer house, the handsome little boat which ran on route to the Tripleshee between Tuphatee and Carbonyon. The Tenne is a fine little boat and well adapted for inland lake business, but Mr. Hamill in conjunction with another capitalist, intends to build a new and powerful boat to make the run between Tuphatee and Machinac, and, thus saving one transfer at Charlevoix. We are not at liberty to speak on the place of the new boat, but one will not only be able to cross the shallow waters of Carbonyon river, but in weather any storm on the ocean.

NAMING IT.

A Car-many Arranged by Chance Entirely in Paris and Japan.

The naming of the child in Paris is made an event of great rejoicing and a time for the gathering of relatives. When the guests are assembled ceremonies are entered and then the infant is the swaddling clothes is brought in and laid on the carpet in the center of the room by one of the priests. Five names are written on as many slips of paper and placed between the leaves of the Koran; a chapter is read from this book and then, one of the slips is drawn at random. The name on the slip is the one the child has to bear through life, and the priest takes up the slip, pronounces the name in the child's ear and places the piece of paper in its clothes. Gifts and congratulations follow. The custom in Japan is for the parents on the thirteenth day after the birth to take the child to the temple they attend and the father gives three names to the priest, who writes each on a piece of paper. These are then shuffled about with certain incantations and thrown up to the air. The first that falls is the one chosen. This is then written by the priest on a consecrated piece of paper and given to the child's parents to preserve. The child then receives certain gifts, two of which are important. If a boy, two fans are presented; and if a girl, a pot of pomade, and in each case a packet of flax thread is added, which signifies good wishes and a long life.

Long Street Car Ride.

New York Journal: Some 37,160 miles traveled in one street of St. Louis is the record of the street car driver in the Indian Rubber who has had the longest uninterrupted service. For thirty years this man has been pursuing his monotonous career on the front platform, and during the whole of this period he has been absent only eight days, from illness and one day because he was laid off having been caught smoking a cigar while in duty. Max Dooley, the driver in question, has worked 365 days a year, averaging 24 miles a day, or two miles a year. His hours being sometimes by day and sometimes by night, and he has received $2 a day for his labor, so that he has earned $18,000 from his employers, and has taxed them enough to have gone eleven and one-half times around the circumference of the earth.

Hitches Are Now Against Makers.

In the harbor at Port Elizabeth, Capt. Cudmore, the other day, on inspecting boat race was held, a crew of British blockjackets being pitted against a Wales fishermen. The five seamen who represented the British navy were selected from the crew of the cruiser Dixie, the flagship of Rear-Admiral Sir Robert H. Harris, one of the senior admirals of the navy, and now in command of the Cape of Good Hope and West Coast of Africa squadron. If the seamen thought they were going to have a waterover they were greatly mistaken. The Malays gave them a good race, sometimes the naval crew led, and then again the Malays would be ahead. Towards the finish, however, the seamen obtained a decided advantage and managed to win with about a dozen lengths to spare.

Chasers of the Year.

As an illustration of the strange chances of the turf, and of what goes before, such a thing happened in 1881. It is stated that Mat Edwards (Jesse's brother) which won the great Ulster Handicap, or 1,000 sovereigns at the town racet, beating ten of the best horses in England, was bought and long ago at an Irish county meeting for £40. The horse has won 1,000 sovereigns in several small races, and as little was thought of him that he was sold for this trifling price.

—I. D. Bartholomew & Co. have a new ad. in this issue.

—November comes in this morning with snow in the air.

—Signals are up to-day for dangerous northwest gales.

—The Clayden Dry Goods Co. calls your attention to bargains this week.

—The Charlevoix Lumber Co. is establishing its winter lumber camps.

—Miss Maude Sen, who has been seriously ill for some time, is improving.

—Supt. Frank N. Clark, of the U. S. Fish Commission, was in town yesterday.

—Mrs. West left Monday for Chicago, where she will probably spend the winter.

—On Monday Dr. F. W. LeFevre bought the Hanna house, on the north side.

—J. H. Diemer, of Buffalo, was in town Saturday, going to the Beavers over Sunday.

—Mrs. Henry Brigham has returned from Madison, Wis., where she has been visiting relatives.

—M. Sachs, the enterprising dry goods and clothing merchant, has a new ad. this week.

—Charley Levinson, the opera house block sheriff sale dealer, has new goods and a new ad. this week.

—The close season is on, and fishermen are taking in their nets. The catch of trout last month was satisfactory.

—Acting Assistant Surgeon O. B. Weed, of Fort Wayne, Detroit, well known here, has been ordered to Manila.

—The Ferry Seed Co. last week received a carload of onions, which they will set out near here for seed. There will be fifteen acres in the patch.

—Grand Junior Deacon Terrill, of Bellaire, representing the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., dedicated a new hall at Boyne City last night.

—We are working hard to give you a good paper. We are doing it, and shall keep it up. Show your appreciation by calling in and paying your subscription.

—Geo. Pappin returned from Houghton Saturday, and leaves soon for Louisville, Ky., where he has a situation as engineer on a dredge tug on the Ohio river.

—R. N. Faulkner opened up his "blacked" store Saturday, and the place is a credit to the town. About everything that was ever thought of is found at the "blacked."

—W. S. Johnson, of Milwaukee, was in town Monday. He says that without any doubt the Hardwood Lumbermen's Association will hold its convention here in July.

—At the Inter-county reboot last week, J. C. Warne, of East Jordan, took the first prize, and J. R. Parsons and Harry Lowe, of this place, the 2d and 3d prizes, respectively.

—A number of friends surprised Rev. and Mrs. J. Allworth at their home last night, spending a very pleasant evening and leaving Mr. and Mrs. Allworth a purse of $25.

—All members of the Amateur Association who have the uniform at home are urged to be present at a meeting called for Friday evening, Nov. 3d, at 7:30 o'clock, in the high school room.

—If you want your town to grow you must exhibit a spirit of enterprise. You cannot make a town by sitting down and waiting for something to turn up. The first thing necessary is to make good streets.

—The potato crop of the United States for this season is reported to be greater than an average yield, notwithstanding the disappointing results in Michigan and some other western states. The higher prices of last season stimulated the planting for this year, and it is estimated that close to 3,000,000 acres were planted to potatoes in the United States, an area estimated to yield 242,000,000 bushels, the heaviest estimated yield since 18-. The largest increase in acreage and in yield is reported from the New England states, with Canada by what favored with a true crop. It will be safe, however, for Michigan growers to hold their potatoes for a better price than is being offered at present.

—White supervisor R. J. Gallagher, of St. Ignace, was here last week talking with the poor farm committee, his mother died, the Hackley keeping the news in blue Saturday. The tug Avery took him to the island Sunday.

—The following one-day farmers' institutes are announced: Charlevoix Dec. 1th, Bay Shore Dec. 5th, Horton's Bay Dec. 6th, Hoppe City Dec. 7th. A two day institute will be held at East Jordan soon after date not yet fixed.

—The W. R. C. will give a tea social on Friday evening of this week, Nov. 3d, in the Ayers building now occupied by J. A. Heath. Bill of fare, pork and beans, bread and butter, pickles, salad and pumpkin pie. All are invited.

—Rev. J. Allworth, pastor of the Congregational church, closed his ministerial services here last Sabbath, having resigned the pastorate. Mr. Allworth and family will leave the week for Chicago, where they will spend the winter.

—H. Gallow Johnson succeeds in pulling the National Hardwood Lumber Association here next July he should be called the Freedom of the city. He generally takes it but it should be made a matter of record, as a matter of justice to the Milwaukee humbug. Johnson lives [illegible] and Charlevoix lives Johnson.

—The poor farm committee of the board of Supervisors have been looking about the county the past week looking for a suitable farm. It is understood that the committee have the matter narrowed down to a choice between two places, but we probably will not know the choice until the report is made at the special December meeting of the board.

—On the night of the 25th Fred Schlaikjer's team, in his township, was struck by lightning and burned, including three horses. On the following Saturday, the Farmers' Mutual through Col. Booth, paid him $150, for which the loss was insured. The Colonel informed us yesterday that the company now pay $1,000 on stock, and is increasing.

—At the Tarbush plowing match last week the following were the prize winners: First class, sod: 1st, H. Hisek; 2d, Geo. Anderson; 3d, Geo. Dall; 4th, H. Dixon; 5th, F. Bennett. Second class: 1st, Walter Hack; 2nd, Ed. Shephon; 3d, Jas. Wells; 4th, Will Bennett; 5th, Will Shepton. Third class, boys: 1st, Will Trimbler; 2nd, Will Clark; 3d, Harry Mitchell; 4th, Howard Gornell; 5th, Will Wallace.

A matter that must soon command our attention is the improvement of Bridge street. Charlevoix is able to afford a better principal business street than it has, and it should be improved, even if it has to be done at the expense of other streets and roads. Union avenue is at all times a well improved and hard road, and our principal business thoroughfare is as we terse, covered with mud. Some of our neighboring cities have stone crushers and road rollers. Charlevoix does not need a crusher. Within about a mile of town is an almost inexhaustible supply of limestone chips, such as is now used by the city in the Elston house drive, that can be had for the hauling. But another problem is linked with this, and that is the necessity for a main sewer before any permanent work is put on the street. A two foot sewer should be put through the center of the street. Just the fact remains, Charlevoix should be rid of these things at a time, and build a hard crushed stone street, with brick gutters.

—Detroit Journal: A large party of friends and well-wishers of Dr. O. H. Weed of this city, gathered yesterday morning at the Michigan Central depot to bid him farewell and Godspeed as he began the journey to Manila, where he will be surgeon of the Forty-second regiment, which is about to leave Fort Niagara for the Philippines, in the San Francisco. Dr. Weed's leave-taking was not much in accord with his original plans. He served with the Thirty-second Michigan during the Spanish war, and was mustered out with his regiment, and returned to private practice. Later he secured a commission in the regular United States army, and was stationed at Fort Wayne, expecting to remain at this post. After only about one month of this service he was ordered to the far east, and accepted the command in spite of a clamor among his patients that he resign. Dr. Weed is 40 years old, a graduate of the Detroit College of Medicine, and has lived in Detroit 15 years. His wife resides in Detroit at the present time. He has two daughters having been recently married, one of them to E. P. Goodrich, of the United States navy, now stationed in Brooklyn, N. Y. The other, Mrs. Frank E. Lehr, lives in Centerville, Mich.

Serious Sickness Reverses.

The British army suffered a slaughtering reverse in the Transvaal on Monday. In a battle near Ladysmith two of the finest British regiments of the army were surrounded by the Boers and captured, after heavy losses on both sides. There is great excitement in England over the disaster.

A Prosperous Church Year.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning, Rev. J. Allworth, in addressing the Church upon the close of his work reported the finances in a very prosperous condition.

In addition to meeting the current expenses of the year, a deficiency of $187 on the previous year's account had been wiped out, old debts of several years' standing, to the amount of upwards of $187 were paid, and the building recently insured for three years, thus placing the church in better position financially than it has occupied for a number of years.

Whilst this was accomplished the current expenses were somewhat increased, the amount given to missions in 1898, $95, was the largest in the history of the church therefore, but for the ten months of 1899, offerings to missions were made amounting to $108, towards which the Sunday School contributed $13.35; Christian Endeavor Society, $11.42; Junior C. E., $10.25.

The Junior Society, in addition to its missionary gifts, contributed $17 towards the expenses of the church, and placed on the honor roll at Traverse City Convention.

Mrs. L. M. Rowan, of Petoskey was appointed Grand Chaplain of the Grand Chapter of the order of the Eastern Star at Saginaw last week.

It is reported from Detroit that at a meeting of the state board of pardons held in that city on Tuesday a decision was reached on a pardon, Charles T. Wright, the wealthy lumberman who killed a supervisor and a deputy sheriff in Ionia county about two years ago, after he had served two more years. Wright was found guilty of murder in the first degree and would have been hung had there been a capital punishment law in Michigan. He had wealthy and influential relatives who have stayed another time no money to create a sentiment in his behalf.

CHAPTER I.

The morning of the Majestic in the second disaster of the Delta Line was dawning in the Mediterranean. The sun was just rising in Marseilles, and the Cannebière was filled with a motley crowd of sailors, porters, and passengers, all hurrying to the quay where the great steamer was lying, with her huge funnels belching forth a spiral of smoke, which, in the morning air, hung like a pall over the city. Some passengers had arrived the night before, and had gone on board to secure the best cabins, and now were leaning over the bulwarks, watching the busy scene below them.

Lady Beauchamp was one of these early birds. She had arrived at Marseilles from Nice the evening before, and had secured the best cabin on the ship, which was a large one, with a bath-room attached, and had spent the greater part of the evening in it, lying on the sofa, and feeling very sorry she had ever left her home in Nice, which Lord Beauchamp had left a week before.

She could quite explain to herself why she was such a dread to Hela Grant's coming, and so unwonted in Hela herself that it was clear to her that she was unhappy about something. She drew a long breath of relief when she heard the steward say that he was expecting no more passengers, and so, relying on the fact that she was safely on board, she had fallen into a deep sleep, from which she was awakened by a knock at the door.

"Come in!" she said, sitting up and rubbing her eyes.

"Lady Hela's maid, my lady, and she says she hopes she may speak to you before she goes to her cabin," said the steward, who had opened the door and spoken to someone in the passage.

"Why, what can she want?" thought her ladyship, but she only said, "Let her come in, of course."

Hela Grant was a tall, handsome girl, with a quiet, self-possessed manner, which had gained her the name of a very cold girl. She was not cold, however, when she came into her mother's cabin that morning, for her face was flushed and her eyes were bright, as she said, in answer to her mother's inquiry, that she was very well, but had something very important to say to her.

"Shut the door, mother, and sit down by me," she said, as her mother came into the cabin. "I have something to say to you which will make you very angry with me, I fear, but which I must say, for your happiness."

"What is it, child?" said her mother, with a sinking at her heart that she had been wrong in her conjecture that Hela had come to her with some news of her marriage with her cousin, Lord Beauchamp.

"Mother, I have seen Lord Beauchamp!"

"Hela! Not—not—"

"Not what you think, mother. I did not mean to do it, but I was so angry with him that I—I—I forgot myself, and I told him that I would not be his wife, and that I would not be his wife, and that I would not be his wife!"

"Hela, you must be mad! Why, he is a rich man, and a nobleman, and you—you have nothing!"

"I know that, mother, and I told him so. He knew my poverty, and he knew that I had no fortune, and he knew that I was proud, and he knew that I was a girl who could not be bought and sold like a slave. He knew all this, and he thought that I would be his wife, and I—I—I—

MEN OF MARK.

Wm. H. White, the Boyne City Lumberman and Railway President.

The Michigan Tradesman.

Three years ago, when the credit of Wm. H. White hung in the balance by reason of the unexpected action of a certain banker in "calling" him for a large amount, the Tradesman met a leading Michigan lumberman and asked him what the outcome would be. "The outcome is uncertain," he replied, but you can rest assured of one thing—White will either be a pauper or a millionaire. There is no middle ground for him." The writer met the same gentleman the other evening at the Pentwater Club and asked him what he thought of White now. "He is on the sunny side of fifty-three," he replied, and nothing but death can prevent his reaching the rank of millionaire inside of five years." All of which goes to show that when a Scotch Canadian starts out to accomplish a certain object, no obstacle is allowed to deter him from his purpose or stay him from reaching the goal of his ambition.

William H. White was born at Owen Sound, Ont., April 12, 1850. His antecedents being Scotch-Irish on his father's side and the same on his mother's side. His father's occupation was that of a cattle merchant and his early education was obtained in the public schools near his Canadian home. His first business experience was at Essex, Ont., where, when only 15 years old, he took charge of a crew of men. The winter he was 20 he boarded and contracted for men in the woods. From the cutting of logs and other forest products he naturally drifted into the sawmill business, superintending the manufacture of lumber, and he has since done everything pertaining to the business from now down and has charge of, including the felling of the tree, sawing it, sledding it, loading it on sleighs or cars, driving teams and handling the axe. He is familiar with all parts of the mill and has stood at each post and taken a man's place. He naturally finds it a great advantage in handling his business to have a practical knowledge of each part of the work, together with the sale of all the material.

In the fall of 1881 Mr. White removed from Essex to South Arm to take charge of a sawmill plant. He remained there until February, 1883, when he went to Boyne City and rented a small sawmill and began to cut green hardwood, but as soon as some brown hardwood lumber was wanted there was a demand for it at a price and slow sales, he sent out of that business and into the lumber business in 1885. His first contract was made with Detroit parties for hardwood and maple. Gray elm was something that could not be sold at that time. He was compelled to give $2 per M feet royalty for the use of the money to buy, ship and manufacture lumber and get it ready for shipment. Since that time he has stuck close to the lumber business, but his ups and downs, losses and gains, he has always had faith in the business and never became discouraged. Every machine is mortgaged to his care. The hum of the saw, the ring of the anvil in the shop, the puff of the locomotive and the hoarse roar-roar of the whistles all serve as a stimulus to further effort on his part and contribute in no small degree to the pleasure of his daily duties. In 1890 he started in cutting for M feet and is now manufacturing 30,000,000 feet, with twenty years cut ahead, thirty-five miles of railroad, 100 heavy dump cars, three sawmills and a fully equipped steam barge to take the lumber to market.

Coincident with the remarkable development of his lumber business has been the inauguration and development of the Boyne City & Southeastern Railroad, which runs in a southeasterly direction from Boyne City to Otsego county, crossing the G. H. & I. at Boyne Falls. This line was originally constructed with reference to its use as a logging road, but the increase in both passenger and freight traffic has been so marked that two passenger trains are now running each way daily. The road is now completed to within five miles of Vanderbilt, and will ultimately be extended to some point on the Michigan Central.

Mr. White was married June 29, 1880, to Miss Wiggle, of Kingsville, Ont., with whom he lived until her death on February 9, 1893. Two children were the fruit of this union. He recently formed the acquaintance of Miss M. Louise Reeder, of Lake City, which he led to the altar at the family residence this morning. Miss Reeder is the daughter of Daniel Reeder, who is well known throughout Northern and Western Michigan as a successful dealer in timber and a banker, having acquired a comfortable fortune, and is now living a retired life. Miss Reeder is a thoroughly educated and cultured lady, being a graduate of Alma College and an accomplished public speaker, and is well known and identified with Christian and benevolent work throughout the State, and is much sought after as a public speaker in district and State meetings of the associations with which she is identified. Mr. and Mrs. White left immediately for Detroit and the Flat on a wedding trip, expecting to be absent about two weeks. On their return they will take up their residence in Mr. White's beautiful home at Boyne City. Mr. White is a member of the M. E. church at Boyne City.

Mr. White attributes his success to absolute and untiring devotion to his business, not only in the large affairs pertaining to it, but to its every detail, the strictest integrity in dealing, and entering push in its prosecution.

Six Terrible Failures.

Six terrible failures of six different doctors nearly sent Wm. H. Mullen of Lockland, O., to an early grave. All said he had a fatal lung trouble and that he must soon die. But he was cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. After taking five bottles he was entirely cured. It is guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. The Republican Candidate for Governor.

Two of Michigan's brightest newspapers, James H. Bennett, of the Jackson Citizen, and Chas. S. Osborn of the Sault News, are Republican candidates for Governor. Either one would make an excellent governor, and either one would be a strong candidate.

There can be no question about the fact that nominees of either, or both are, to a certain extent, considered fractional candidates. And as conservative workers are grooming John Patton, of Grand Rapids, as a compromise, and it cannot be denied that he is a dangerous man for the journalistic candidates. Charlevoix people may expect to see and hear all of these next campaign on the occasion of the convention here of the Republican Newspaper Association.

Charlevoix' people have found Patton, and that he is well liked in this neck of the woods goes without saying. As a United States senator he was a credit to the party and the State, and as governor would prove himself equally strong. But Patton will meet a strong opposition from Senator Burrows and his friends. It is not that one of the three, however, will be the candidate, seems certain now, with the chances in favor of Patton if the latter's friends put vigor into his campaign. This seems to be the light of the politicians' crystal ball at the time; but the fighting lines are yet far apart, and the battle grounds are far apart.

Whatever the result of the contest for the plum to Republicans there is satisfaction in the thought, at least, that every day between now and January 1st, 1897, brings Michigan near the closing end of Congress and Congressman Smith and a cause that has constituted the greatest danger to Michigan Republicanism that has been in existence for years.

Congressman Smith, perhaps, who will step in when the demagogue steps out?

Senator Wm. L. Mason, of Illinois, says that if the next Republican National convention declares in favor of silver, he will resign. That the convention will so declare is as certain as that Wm. R. Mason is at present a senator from Illinois, so why should not Mr. Mason resign now? It would greatly please Republicans throughout the country, and be superlatively in tune of Illinois. We understand Mr. Mason is one of the sons of the United States. The Junior senator from Illinois has a wonderful fund of wit, and an equally wonderful stock of science. He will have about as much influence in the senate after he resigns as he has now.

A Detroit special says: It is very evident that many friends of ex-Senator Chas. Saxton propose to make a vigorous boom for his nomination for governor. As far as known nothing has been said broken on the subject, but for one all days politicians from various parts of the state have been dropping remarks of a character. It looked out that there was a conference here this week at which it was arranged to start the ball rolling. The argument is that Mr. Patton stands pat with no fanfare, or hesitancy, that Grand Rapids has never had a governor and neither has Western Michigan, and that now that Burrows has been taken care of his friends should be willing to fix up the Burrows-Patton feud by aiding the latter to the governorship.

PLAN LONG RAILWAY.

PRELIMINARY STEPS ON PAN-AMERICAN LINE

To Proceed to Survey from the Southern Border Into Central and South America—Properties May Extend Indiana Back Into Canada.

F. G. Scandlin, a prominent American engineer, now in the City of Mexico, is at Atlanta, Ga., on his way to Washington to lay the preliminary groundwork for the formation of a company to survey, which is better known in the Mining Exchange in Washington as the Mexico and Gulf Railway, which is one of the three projects which have been in the minds of some men for the construction of a long railway through Central and South America. The long range project of Henry Meiggs in Peru is the most ambitious of all of the projects, and the half built railway is a monument to the enterprise of the man who planned it. It is understood that the three organizations are going ahead independently, but giving mutual assistance in the acquisition of the property. Mr. Scandlin is the man who has been engaged to make a survey, outlining just the route which the railway should follow. He is spoken of as a businessman, practical and conservative. He is known in Atlanta, upon whom Hugo Fugo hinged in his plan to build a road from the Atlantic to the Gulf. Also a method of payment for the work was devised by the Gomez Brothers at Paris in the same manner as Meiggs found and put into effect in Peru.

Special Privileges Sought and Asked.

The organizations are asking special privileges in the shape of bonuses, in the acquisition of the property, and have asked the Mexican government for a guarantee of a certain number of years, during which no competition shall be allowed to come into the territory covered by the road. Some of the privileges asked are the following:

Exemption from taxation for a period of years.

Exemption from duties on all material used in the construction of the road.

Exemption from duties on all rolling stock and other equipment.

Exemption from duties on all supplies used in the operation of the road.

Exemption from duties on all material used in the construction of the telegraph and telephone lines.

FORTUNATE TO PLAY EVEN.

Hardwood Men Stop on the Downward Lumber Situation.

The Chicago Hardwood Record of last Saturday has the following to say of the Michigan Hardwood Association, recently organized:

"The primary object of this association is the attempt to secure a portion of the going prosperity for the manufacturers of Michigan hardwoods, principally maple. The fact of the matter is that the Michigan manufacturers have not shared in the good times, as yet, to any appreciable extent. The prices of everything that enters into the manufacture of their product have advanced. Wages, labor, machinery and other items have increased in price, but it is a conservative statement to say, that, including the advance in timber and the increased cost of logging and manufacture, it is now costing well and cost in the future $2 per thousand feet more to produce maple lumber than it has in previous years.

"The Michigan Association submits these well known facts to the trade for fair and impartial consideration. They do not expect to accomplish or even to attempt anything 'quick.' The co-operation which they make is that they will have to go out of business or get more for next season's cut.

"This has been an unfortunate season in maple business. Those buyers who contracted for last winter's cut when congratulating themselves that they were going to do well, when the lake freight rates began to advance and kept right on advancing until they had absorbed all the advance in price and practically all the profits for the trade. The dealers will be fortunate if they play even on the season. Dennis Bros., of Grand Rapids, Mich., informed me last week that they were unloading a cargo of maple at Buffalo at that time on which they had a net loss of $200, and W. H. Kemp & Co., of Chicago, state that owing to the scarcity of lake vessels they will be crowded in some of their best efforts to carry over quite a large stock of maple in Michigan until next season, or else it will cost to a point where they can afford to move it by rail shipment.

"The fact is that maple is and has been too low in price and dealers and manufacturers should work together to force it higher. The thing is certain and that is that there has been but little money made on maple by either the manufacturers or dealers this year.

"There gentlemen who are pushing the association are able and broad men who will use every effort in behalf of the organization. Hereafter the association will meet on Tuesday after on the first Wednesday of each month."

Marine Notes.

The steamer Hiawatha has laid up at Boyne City for the season.

Fred Paukert has rented the big Marion to Capt. George Thompson and Eli Moorehead.

On Thursday Nell Gallagher arrived here from Muskegon with the steamer Jer, which he bought there. Jer has been laid up there for Hackley. She will run between Manistique and Mackinac Island, van steamers, carrying freight. Big Walker, one from the same tug, has laid up for the winter at Beaver Harbor.

Capt. Dennis O'Neil went to Pinckney last week and bought the tug Fred. Green, which will be added to his towing outfit here next season. The bringing of the tug here was attended with considerable trouble, as a storm came from nowhere in Green Bay and Pete Kelsey the inspector refused to work, and the actions of the tug brought out the life saving crew. The inspector was fired, again early, and the tug started out again, but she had not gone far when an impetus pipe burst, and the tug again showed evidences of distress. Capt. Miller had been watching her, and again went out the crew, which hauled the tug Ashpark, which was passing, and the Green was towed back to Frankfort. The pipe was repaired and the tug came through without serious mishap. Capt. O'Neil is enthusiastic in his praise of Capt. Tip Miller's life saving crew.

Pies Like Mother Used to Make.

East Jordan's foot-ball team, after winning several games from the mining towns in Northern Michigan went to Ludington and was defeated.

The whole island of Mackinac which now constitutes the township of Holmes in the county of Mackinac, is to be made "the city of Mackinac Island."

The pipe lines for the new system of water works at East Jordan are nearly all laid. The tower which is to support the 55,000 gallon tank is more than half completed and when finished will be 87 feet from the ground to the top of the sentinel, and from top of tank to lower pipe on Main street, over 150 feet.

Central Lake Torch: The Atwood tannery will close down for the season in a few days. It has had a prosperous run and has met with favor among the tanners. It is thought that the business will be doubled next year, as the farmers have every confidence in the management and it has proved to be a combination of profit to the community in which it is located.

Elk Rapids Progress: As we go to press, we learn that commencing next Monday, Oct. 30, all day laborers in the employ of the Elk Rapids Iron Co. now getting $1.50 per day, will have their wages advanced to $1.60, and all employes not receiving a stipulated salary will receive the benefit of an advance in their present income. This puts the common laborer on a better basis than he has been in years, and all employes of the Company who congratulate themselves that they are going to do well, since the lake freight rates began to advance and kept right on advancing until they had absorbed all the advance in price and practically all the profits for the trade. The dealers will be fortunate if they play even on the season. Dennis Bros., of Grand Rapids, Mich., informed me last week that they were unloading a cargo of maple at Buffalo at that time on which they had a net loss of $200, and W. H. Kemp & Co., of Chicago, state that owing to the scarcity of lake vessels they will be crowd, in some of their best efforts, to carry over quite a large stock of maple in Michigan until next season, or else it will cost to a point where they can afford to move it by rail shipment.

"The fact is that maple is and has been too low in price and dealers and manufacturers should work together to force it higher. The thing is certain and that is that there has been but little money made on maple by either the manufacturers or dealers this year.

"There gentlemen who are pushing the association are able and broad men who will use every effort in behalf of the organization. Hereafter the association will meet on Tuesday after on the first Wednesday of each month."

Marine Notes.

The steamer Hiawatha has laid up at Boyne City for the season.

Fred Paukert has rented the big Marion to Capt. George Thompson and Eli Moorehead.

On Thursday Nell Gallagher arrived here from Muskegon with the steamer Jer, which he bought there. Jer has been laid up there for Hackley. She will run between Manistique and Mackinac Island, van steamers, carrying freight. Big Walker, one from the same tug, has laid up for the winter at Beaver Harbor.

Capt. Dennis O'Neil went to Pinckney last week and bought the tug Fred. Green, which will be added to his towing outfit here next season. The bringing of the tug here was attended with considerable trouble, as a storm came from nowhere in Green Bay and Pete Kelsey the inspector refused to work, and the actions of the tug brought out the life saving crew. The inspector was fired, again early, and the tug started out again, but she had not gone far when an impetus pipe burst, and the tug again showed evidences of distress. Capt. Miller had been watching her, and again went out the crew, which hauled the tug Ashpark, which was passing, and the Green was towed back to Frankfort. The pipe was repaired and the tug came through without serious mishap. Capt. O'Neil is enthusiastic in his praise of Capt. Tip Miller's life saving crew.

Harbor Springs special: H. J. Atkinson of this place, has obtained a collection of curious relics and curios of great value. He was recently on a hunting trip at a place a few miles northeast of here, known as the "Indian Garden," famous as having been the scene of a bloody Indian battle many years ago, where he saw an old gun barrel protruding from the ground. He pulled it out, and found it to be part of an old flintlock rifle. Digging down further he struck an old grave, 6ft-4 with kettles, brass and silver medals, etc., together with the skeleton of a man. The skull was surrounded by a silver crown prettily ornamented, and among the artifacts found was a small silver bottle. The Indians here say the grave is that of the famous Ottawa chief, Little Turtle, who took part in the battle that resulted in the extermination of powerful tribe known as the Musquotens. The most valuable part of the collection was found in the kettles. One contained some brass and red was paint and a beautiful stone of variegated colors. Mr. Atkinson sent some of the paint to the University of Michigan for analysis, and was told that it was of a purely vegetable matter. The ingredients are not known to modern chemists, but it is not poisonous. The stone is called the "rainbow stone" and was held as sacred by the Indians. In another kettle was found several calumets and smaller pipes of different makes, one being a peculiar shaped clay pipe made in Scotland, and bearing the inscription "H. D." What Mr. Atkinson considers the most valuable article is a tomahawk found in one of the kettles. It is exceedingly heavy, of a peculiar silicon formation on the outside and covered with what seems to be hieroglyphics. After this discovery Mr. Atkinson found many other articles, such as crosses, finger rings, "Astor" coin, wampum, beads, knives, arrowheads, etc., that it would take columns to describe, but all indicating the greatest antiquity. Upon one medal was engraved a wolf, the totem of the Ottawas, and other exquisite ornamentations. The other articles in the collection are the skull of a bear, found in the sand near Five Mile creek, in the center of which is imbedded a steel arrowhead. Some ancient pottery unearthed a few years ago near Waquetosing, at least four feet under the ground and beneath logs and wood that seemingly had laid there for centuries. Taken altogether, it is the rarest collection of Indian relics ever unearthed in Michigan.

A Common Danger.

If you have ever had a cold which you permitted to "wear away" it may interest you to know it was a dangerous proceeding. Every cold and cough which is neglected paves the way for consumption, bronchitis, asthma or catarrh. Ottoe Cure, the famous German throat and lung remedy will cure any cough or cold and save you from consumption. Sold by all druggists. Prices 25c. and 50c. per bottle. 31

Six Frightful Failures.

Six terrible failures of six different doctors nearly sent Wm. H. Mullins of Lockland, O., to an early grave. All the doctors said he had a fatal lung trouble and that he must soon die. But he was urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. After taking four bottles he was entirely cured. It is positively guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs, including Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Whooping Cough. 50c. and $1. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hires & Co's drug store.

—One of the biggest catches of lake trout ever brought into this port came in Saturday on the tug Turnstiles for the U. S. Fish Commission. The catch numbered 861 fish, and weighed 7,140 pounds. The spawn of spawn gathered was very unsatisfactory.

The body of the late Mrs. D. S. Way was found on the beach near the scene of the wreck Chippewa Saturday. On Monday the bodies of Way and his wife arrived at Alden, where they were interred. There is no information that the body of Pradine has been found.

—The item going the rounds of the press that Chas. J. Strang, former postmaster of Charlevoix and editor of the Charlevoix Journal, had taken up the ministry and is preaching at Eastport, is an error. Clement J. Strang, a brother of Chas. J., is the man.

—Rev. G. S. Morehouse has accepted the pastorate of the Congregational church at Boyne. His services are as follows: Sunday morning, Christ-evening, X. P. S. C. E at 6:30; preaching service at 7:30; Sunday afternoon at the Mountain school house at 2:30; Wednesday evening in the church, at 7:30.

—The Petoskey Enterprise of last week had an editorial under the head, "Tried to Convert Capt. McGraw." In it editor Hampton names several leading Republicans who had tried to convert Capt. McGraw to Democracy, but failed. Capt. McGraw did not recognize conversion—he was already converted. Some time during June or July, Capt. McGraw told the editor of this paper in Petoskey, that if he lived he should vote for McKinley. He did not then expect to go to the Philippines.

—Rev. Father Alexander, of St. James, was to town yesterday on his way to Traverse City. The reverend gentleman is busy these days in building an addition to his church.

—The following is a Grand Rapids Herald special: "Some time since a farmer near Advance, Charlevoix county, in digging a well, discovered a vein of coal about four feet thick at a very shallow depth. Nothing more was thought of the matter until now. It has developed that Frank M. Sears, of Charlevoix, has been quietly at work and has secured an option at a nominal figure for the purchase of all the land for an area of a mile square or more—also a lease for a period of five years, for the privilege of exploration and development. This enterprise bids fair to be the greatest "bonanza" ever struck in Michigan, as the coal proves to be of an excellent quality, and Mr. Sears is just the one to promote such an industry."

The Railroad Consolidation.

Articles of association of the Pere Marquette Railway company were filed with the secretary of state on Thursday last. The capital stock is $20,000,000, of which $16,000,000 is to consisted and $12,000,000 is preferred stock, with preferential dividends of 4 per cent on the preferred stock, no dividend to be paid on the common stock until this is provided for. The purposes of the company are declared to be the purchase of the rights, property, privileges and franchises of the Flint & Pere Marquette, Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western and Chicago & West Michigan railroads, the whole comprising 1,600 miles of road. The directors are S. F. Crane, Paris C. Wright, Chas. M. Heald, H. C. Potter, Jr., and Edwin Saunders of Saginaw; Charles M. Heald, J. E. Howard, Uriah H. Rogers and Russell Wallace of Grand Rapids, and Fred. Stick A. Stone of Muskegon. The state was paid a franchise fee of $10,000. Thirty days from yesterday the final steps will be taken in the consolidation of the F. & P. M., the D. G. H. & W. and C. & W. M. Yesterday the articles of incorporation of the Pentwater & Manistee were filed. That road took the privileges, property and name of the Pere Marquette Railway company, which was incorporated thirty days ago. After the original Pere Marquette Railway company was put out of the way the Pere Marquette Railway company was again created as told in the Lansing dispatch. It is owned by President Houk of the C. & W. M. and the D. G. H. & W., that the reason for the formation of the Pere Marquette Railway company is that there was no doubt, when the deals could not perfect the consolidation under the provisions of the corporation settlement, in consequence of this, according to the laws of the state. Mr. Heald says thirty days are law. Final action cannot be taken at the meeting of the F. & P. M. stockholders tomorrow, and the C. & W. M. and D. G. H. & W. stockholders on Monday. A second meeting will be called thirty days from now at which the last steps will be taken in the consolidation.

Republican Gains Elsewhere.

Special to the Sentinel.

Returns in the early hours of this morning show the election of Nash, Rep., in Ohio, by from 30,000 to 50,000 plurality.

Taylor, Rep., in Kentucky is elected by from 7,000 to 10,000, and a Republican legislature, which insures the election of a Republican U. S. senator from that state.

Iowa goes 60,000 republican.

South Dakota 10,000. Carried for Bryan in 1896.

Maryland, Democratic by 15,000.

Massachusetts, Rep. by 65,000.

New York, republican gains in Assembly. Albany and Troy go republican for the first time in years.

Nebraska, fusion by increased plurality. Bryan's own precinct went Republican.

Republican gains in Rhode Island.

Indiana the Republican gain is only 15 per cent over 1896.

School Notes.

Celia Wilcox was absent last Friday.

The 7th grade is taking a review of grammar.

Dur Caldwell has entered the sixth grade.

The physical geography class are greatly interested in their work.

Will Harting, one of the Juniors, is back in school again.

The Seniors are the proud possessors of their class pins and rings.

The tenth grade has a larger roll than any other grade in the high school.

The tenth grade have been doing better work in algebra, during the past week.

The plants that were placed in the school some time ago, are flourishing with vigor.

Mr. Hornberger, book-agent for Hazel, McNally & Co., visited the high school last Friday.

The geometry class is working on the construction of angles. The study of angles comes later.

The high school is divided into three divisions for club swinging. Great interest is shown by the pupils in this work.

It is hoped to be given to the room having the highest percentage of attendance. The high school will have it for this month.

The attendance for the past month was best in the high school, being 99 per cent, followed by the sixth grade with 98 per cent.

The commercial students are not so slow as anyone might think. Last week in one of their spelling lessons, they came across the word "superficial." Their speller defined it as "on the surface." One of the students in making sentences with the word had written "The best part of milk is superficial."

A Disappointed Democracy.

These are sad times for Democrats. There is disappointment for them at every turn of the road.

A non-partisan commission has knocked the bottom out of their claim of branding Grover Washington Simon Bolivar Buckhounds a mercenary adventurer and declaring in emphatic terms that to patriotic, self-respecting American will for a moment think of leaving the Philippines. There is gall and wormwood for Democrats in this report.

Then this man Lewis! When Dewey was yet at Manila the Democrats said he was not experienced, and they wanted to run him for President. They longed for the hero when he would return home and welcome Mr. Kinley by a declaration against his policy of "criminal aggression."

But Dewey says, as one of the commission that it would be criminal to abandon the Philippines; that they are ours by every right known to international law. He also says, on the this level he endorses every detail of the report.

The old political conglomeration known as democracy is in a bad way. Whenever they turn for bread they are given a stone. It is sad, sad!

HOLD THE IRON ANVIL.

To the Advice of Philippine Commission.

The preliminary report of the Philippine commission, received from Secretary Root, McKinley's top speaker, means and just exactly public, is a logical document, quite fully into matters of present interest in connection with the situation in the islands. The report is unanimous and signed by all the commissioners, namely, Admiral George Dewey, Charles Denby and Dean C. Worcester. In brief the report declares that the war waged by Aguinaldo for his own purposes, that it only involves the Tagalogs in the government, leaving the Visayans, Ilatangas, Mindanao, Bicucos, Nueva Ecija, Pampanga Infanta and Tayabalos, having a total population of 1,500,000 out of whom are in sympathy with the revolt. That there never has been a time after the American landing when the United States could honorably withdraw, and that the end is approaching.

The report starts out with a history of Filipino aspirations against Spain up to 1896, and that Dewey's victory, followed because of Spanish oppression and bad faith. Meanwhile the Tagalos are asked to show what Aguinaldo's in his exclamation for absolute Filipino independence never had any encouragement from Great Britain and Germany allied the admiral or the American troops against the Spaniards. After Filipinos was fired on from a Spanish gunshot at Manila on the night of Feb. 4, 1899, when the insurgents attacked Manila. Apparently because Dewey could not the maintained that gets of their preliminary report in the protode ever since. His alleged peace commissioners have simply been expelled from and to the Americans to gain time.

The report then says: "After the breaking of our troops Aguinaldo broke up his name that it would be necessary to fight the Americans, and after the making of the treaty of peace in Paris this determination was strengthened. He did not openly declare that he intended to fight the Americans, but he excited everybody and especially the military men by claiming independence, and in his doubtful whether he had the power to check or control outrages at the time hostilities broke out.

"Deplorable as war is, the one in which we are now engaged was unavoidable by us. We were attacked by a bold, adventurous and ruthless adversary. No alternative was left to us, except ignominious retreat. It is not to be conceived that any American would have abandoned the surrender of Manila to the insurgents. Our obligations to other nations and to the civilized world, our duty to ourselves and our flag demanded that Manila should be met by force.

"Whatever the future of the Philippines may be, there is no course open to us now except the prosecution of the war until the insurgents are reduced to submission. The commission is of the opinion that there have been no atrocities since the destruction of the Spanish squadron by Admiral Dewey, when it was possible to withdraw our forces from the islands either with honor or dignity or with safety to the inhabitants.

What the Is Says.

Prof. Worcester said:

"I believe the Filipinos are in a very sad plight. Their condition at present seems to me to be terrible. Nothing now but a policy of doubt, confusion and misery on our part can encourage the Filipinos to continue."

"It was early yesterday morning that the fishermen living in the huts near the place where the vessel struck saw the schooner drawing helplessly before the fury of the storm. Soon the watchers on shore made out the figure of a man in the rigging, and presently a boat was seen that it was lashed there.

"Later on when the wind had driven the boat nearer to the shore the fishermen, by the use of glasses, made out that the man lashed to the rigging was dead. Presently the boat struck, and there it remained, pitching and rolling in the angry waves all day long. The high sea made the launching of a small boat so dangerous that it was nearly night before an attempt was made to get to the wreck.

"When a boat finally reached the wreck, it was found that the body lashed to the rigging was that of the captain. There was an ugly gash in the forehead. He was a man of evidently 55 years of age. His hair is silvery and he wore a mustache tinged with gray. His clothes were the conventional blue and very neat fitting. He was evidently an amateur photographer, his well-equipped paraphernalia was found on board, the supplies for which had been purchased at Charlevoix, Mich.

"Papers and effects found in the cabin of the schooner indicate that the captain's name was D. S. Way. It is supposed the bodies of the crew are washed overboard and strewn along the shore of Lake Michigan. Among other articles found was a woman's wardrobe, some parts of which were of a costly fabric and of the latest pattern.

MONSTER NEW BOATS ORDERED IN ENGLAND.

They Will be Larger than the Oceanic and Are Intended to Ply Between Seattle and Japan Taking Passengers in the Air.

A DISPATCH received recently from L. J. Hill, now sojourning in England, by the commissioner of immigration of this state, states that the Great Northern intends to build a fleet of three steamships for service between Seattle and Japan. The new ships will be larger than the Oceanic, which now is the largest on the Atlantic. Each will be 700 feet long and 70,000 tons burden. Each will have to be equipped with a 1,000 horse power engine, and consequently occupy the space of 40 ordinary freight cars. The cost of each will be $1,000,000. The ships will be ready for service in the Pacific in 1903. Mr. Hill intends to make Seattle the terminus of the Great Northern's Pacific line, and will make it a port of call for the Japan ships. Mr. Hill has not yet decided on the name to be given the ships, but it will be one of the Great Northern's Pacific coast cities, such as Seattle, Tacoma, Everett, Bellingham, Port Townsend, Anacortes, Blaine, Vancouver, Victoria, Port Angeles, Port Gamble, Port Blakely, Olympia, Aberdeen, Cosmopolis, Ilwaco, Astoria, Portland, Kalama, Longview, Pasco, Spokane, Wenatchee, Bellingham, Sumas, Oroville, Republic, Marcus, Northport, Newport, Metaline Falls, Kettle Falls, Bonners Ferry, Rexford, Troy, Libby, Eureka, Whitefish, Kalispell, Belt, Great Falls, Lewistown, Harlowton, Livingston, Bozeman, Butte, Anaconda, Deer Lodge, Helena, Townsend, Garrison, Drummond, Missoula, Superior, Haugan, Avery, Troy, Yaak, Jennings, Sheldon, Ft. A Letter From George Van Pelt.

Chicago, Nov. 2, '99.

MY DEAR SENTINEL:

This is a good time to set our trees and I again make the following offer which appeared in the SENTINEL in April, 1899:

"I hereabb offer the sum of $15 in a prize divided into three amounts the first $7; the second $5; the third $3, to be paid to the party or parties who will this fall or next spring set out the river hard or a sugar-maple from the woods shall be more to September 1st along the sides of the road commencing at the dwelling line of the north side of the village of Charlevoix and extending along the highway, via inwood parishes, including all the streets in the village of Nowood, then south via the residence of Mr. Archer, our old stage man at Hartwick.

"The lands shall be trees five inches in diameter, two trees that are three and one half inches at 3 ft around the one are made trees, and three trees that are two or two and one half inches in diameter shall count for one. Six inch trees; all measurements to be taken at the trunk of the tree four feet from the ground.

"The money will be deposited with Hon. A. Hudson at the Charlevoix County Bank with orders to be paid in September, 1900 by the committee which I shall appoint, consisting of F. J. Mauch, of Charlevoix, G. W. Nash and Hon. Wm. Marks, of Norwood.

"Those competing for these prizes must satisfy the committee that they have spent as much money or its equivalent, as will amount to the value of the prize. The committee will take some pleasure for work expended on the lawns and fences about their dwellings, the land being in beautiful condition and in fine shape by making it the common driveway and to pole path between Traverse City and the lake.

"My object in stipulating maple trees is that in a short time we will call our driveway Maple Avenue and inasmuch as our government is taking into consideration the plan of destroying all scale matters to the farmers, and are now experimenting on same, when this end is fully decided we will be the leaders in the procession."

Mr. Jerry Sullivan was the only competitor for these prizes and honors. If it is not an honor to have a nice row of trees along the side of the road in front of your place, it surely is a source of satisfaction for you to stop and rest under your neighbor's shade trees as a lay to summer and I will be the same satisfaction to others for their to stop and rest under a tree you have planted. Only think what a pleasant drive it would be if from Frankfort to Charlevoix, or better still, from Traverse City to Ottawa, there were a row row of maple trees on either side of the road, so that one could drive the entire distance in the shade. I do not suppose that this is an opportune time to talk about shade trees as it would be on a hot August day, but on a hot day you can't set out trees and expect them to live. At this season of the year there is at a mean between Charlevoix and Traverse city to do it take time to set out shade trees if he felt so inclined, and some could set out a good many before it freezes up. This work can be done much better and at advantage than in the spring. During the winter I shall see some of our resort friends in the city, and solicit money from them to increase the prize and make it more of an inducement. I of our home friends to set out trees instead of, I was talking about the other day to a friend of mine and he said: "Why should I pay a farmer for making his property more valuable? I should think that they ought to do it of their own accord because they certainly is what it amounts to." And of course I had to admit, "that's so," and said "what are you here?" I feel sure that I can get somebody to add to the sum, and if any of the readers of the SENTINEL wish to do so, they can send their contributions to Hon. Archie Hudson, cashier of the Charlevoix County Savings Bank and he will acknowledge receipt of same. Now my farmer friends, lets set out lots of trees and have maple avenue, if we do, others will between Charlevoix and Petoskey, and also between Freeport and Traverse City. It will do more to give our country a good name than anything else we can do. Enough good work.

Mating Notes.

The fishing tug Elizabeth G. left for Sheboygan Saturday for winter fishing.

The steamer City of Charlevoix was here last night on her last trip of the season.

The U. S. revenue cutter Morrill was in port Sunday night, on her way to the S. I.

The schooner Maine is still in the lower lakes, and will probably not come home this fall.

Twenty seven vessels cleared the port of Charlevoix for up lake points last Monday night between dark and daylight, and seven more before noon.

The schooner Kate Lyons went ashore in Wednesday night's steamer near Cathead Point. Two fishermen rescued the crew and two women with considerable difficulty. The vessel lies in about nine feet of water. She was loaded from Chebogan to Chicago with a load of cedar ties. The Kate Lyons was recently purchased by Lumsden of Milwaukee, who expended $2,500 in remodeling the boat. This is the first trip the schooner has made since the change in ownership. The cargo is insured but the vessel is not. Kehl Bros. of Northport, bought the wreck and cargo, and will try to save both.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHASE, COUNTY SUPT.

We have been urging our teachers to keep something from their school work for our county exhibit next year. It is necessary to begin now. The directors of the Agricultural Society offer liberal prizes for certain lines of work. What we value most is the educational factor comprised in the exhibit. We hope to see every school in Charlevoix county represented in the school exhibit in 1900.

The following letter recently received shows that some interest is being taken in our exhibits outside of the county:

Charlevoix, Mich., Oct. 30 '99.

A. W. CHASE, Boyne City.

Dear Sir:—I have been informed through the Department of Public Instruction that the schools of your county make exhibits at the County Fair. Will you send me one of your circulars outlining the work exhibited, and oblige. * * *

A great many useful lessons can be taught the pupil while preparing the work, namely: neatness, carefulness, order, etc. The resolution papers, examination papers, etc., with a very little care a small expense can be easily arranged for exhibit and we are sure that the teacher and pupil will be well repaid for the trouble it may cost.

The teacher who is looking about for something interesting in her school work, can prepare the following during the winter, and find the work very beneficial to her pupils next spring and summer:

Print on a manila sheet the following topics to be used for any flower, and have the children to find out what they can by themselves.

Calyx: sepals, number, color shape, cohesion, adhesion, free, distinct, monosepalous, polysepalous.

Corolla: petals in same way as sepals, polypetalous, monopetalous.

Stamen: number, filament, anther, adhesion.

Pistil: number, ovary, style, stigma.

Is the flower complete, regular, symmetrical, alternate, imperfect? Has it scales, spurs?

Where are the tube, border or limb, the throat, if any?

Is the corolla rotate, cup shaped, campanulate, urn-shaped, funnel-form, salver form, tubular?

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25 cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of a certain mortgage made by Frank Bogue and Julia Bogue, his wife, of Charlevoix, Michigan, mortgagors, to the Nelson Lumber and Manufacturing Company, a corporation, mortgagee, dated the second day of April, 1898, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, on the 17 April 1899, in Liber 19 of Mortgages, on page 25. The mortgagee hereby declares that the whole of said mortgage is due at the date of this notice, and that there is due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of Twenty Dollars and Sixty cents ($20.60) principal and interest, and the attorney fee provided for in said mortgage, namely, the sum of Twenty Dollars (the sum of Twenty Dollars being a reasonable attorney fee for foreclosing said mortgage, and being the sum actually paid by the mortgagee for such attorney fee) and no suit or proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: Lot 3 in Block 3 in Bogue's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix, according to the recorded plat thereof, at public vendue, at the east front door of the Court House in the Village of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 18 day of December, 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to pay said mortgage debt, with interest and the attorney fee and costs of foreclosure, as in said mortgage provided.

Dated, Charlevoix, Mich., Oct. 18, 1899.

St. Ignace Republican. Articles of association have been filed by the Mackinac Island Waterworks Co with a capital stock of $10,000.

John Monroe's steam pile driver, which was at work on the Oval Dock's dock at Traverse City, was sunk during the late storm. She was in shallow water however, and can be raised.

It is authoritively stated that the G. R. & I. will next season extend its tracks to a point three miles beyond Harbor Springs, thus affording railway connection with Earnest Beach, a rapidly growing resort.

It is said that the starch factory at Traverse City will buy first bitter potatoes, making no distinction in price between them and good eating potatoes. A good thing for farmers if true.

Manistee Herald: The fact that Eden township has purchased a stone crusher at an expense of about $900 would indicate that there is one township in the county at least that proposes to have decent roads.

It is claimed, says the Traverse City Eagle, that the crop of potatoes in the county this year is the largest of which there is any record. And this is owing to the large acreage, and not to the yield, which is less in many parts of the country than an average.

Traverse City Eagle: Joseph Highland, who put up the smoke stack at the starch works, said the starch company before Justice Hoven to recover $25 on contract. The company claimed the stack was not put up safely, factionly and proved it to the satisfaction of the court, and the action was dismissed this morning.

The city of Petoskey has an original way of dealing with criminals, and an effective way too, although it savors strongly of the barbarities of the dark ages. Recently an Indian committed an offense against the public peace and he was promptly chained to a tree until he could be otherwise disposed of.

Central Lake Torch: Miss Laura Parks' many friends will be pleased to learn of her marriage, which occurred at Boyne City last Saturday. The lucky man is Bert Van Buren, a young man of excellent reputation and good standing where home is at present place. The Torch extends best wishes to the happy couple.

The government preservation on Bois Blanc island, in the straits of Mackinac were sold at public auction at the land office at Marquette Tuesday. The sale was made in five lots. The purchasers stated that the stand is alive with deer. The northern end of it is still maintained by the state as a game reserve, no hunting being allowed there.

East Jordan, Herald: A big deal has recently been consummated, by which the East Jordan Lumber Co. secures the timber lands which the Barker Cedar Co. owned south of this place, and the latter company purchases the holdings of the East Jordan Lumber Co. in the vicinity of Levering. The Barker Co. will at once remove their Jordan mill to Levering.

St. Ignace is having a boom that exists in the previous booms way to the shade. It has lately secured a large bath factory and now knowing even say that a portland cement factory is soon to locate there, while the projects for a new hotel were never better, and has, but not least, the 1m people iron Company has doubled the employes of a mine in Negaunee, to take effect Oct. 30th. Yet, there are people who insist that the wave of prosperity promised by the Republicans of McKinley was elected, hasn't put in an appearance yet.

Traverse City Record: The regular monthly meeting of the Michigan Hardwood Association was held yesterday at the Park Place hotel with President D. H. Day, in the chair. The principal item of business was the instruction of the delegates to the National Association in regard to some proposed changes in the inspection laws. They are to use their influence to have the laws changed so that No 1 shall include boards 6 inches and wider, and No. 2 boards 4 inches and wider, and boards 14 and 16 feet in length to admit of one more defect than boards of 10 and 12 feet.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of a certain mortgage made by Frank Bogue and Julia Bogue, his wife, of Charlevoix, Michigan, mortgagors, to the Nelson Lumber and Manufacturing Company, a corporation, mortgagee, dated the second day of April, 1898, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, on the 17 April 1899, in Liber 19 of Mortgages, on page 25. The mortgagee hereby declares that the whole of said mortgage is due at the date of this notice, and that there is due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of Twenty Dollars and Sixty cents ($20.60) principal and interest, and the attorney fee provided for in said mortgage, namely, the sum of Twenty Dollars (the sum of Twenty Dollars being a reasonable attorney fee for foreclosing said mortgage, and being the sum actually paid by the mortgagee for such attorney fee) and no suit or proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, viz: Lot 3 in Block 3 in Bogue's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix, according to the recorded plat thereof, at public vendue, at the east front door of the Court House in the Village of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 18 day of December, 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to pay said mortgage debt, with interest and the attorney fee and costs of foreclosure, as in said mortgage provided.

Dated, Charlevoix, Mich., Oct. 18, 1899.

—Hemlock bath that could be bought for $1.75 to $2 one year ago are now in eager demand at from $3.50 to $4.50 per thousand. This increase in price is due to the extraordinary increased demand, and the same is true of the increased prices in most other lines of productions. There is no bark used, but there is that which is very much better, and that is an unprecedented bath demand, that permits bark for active trade and higher prices.

—A down east editor has drawn up some new game laws which he wants adopted. The following is a summary: "Book agents may be killed from Oct. 1 to Sept. 1; spring poets, from March 1 to June 1; mosquitoes, from April 1 to Feb. 1; umbrella borrowers from Aug. 1 to Nov. 1 and Feb. 1 to May 1; while every man who accepts a newspaper two years —upon every pretension that he also says: I have ordered it, may be killed on the spot, without receive or relief."

—There will be many Michigan farmers before long who will conclude that they don't know beans. The price of the staple army food went to $1.50 per bushel a short time ago, and although that is more than any farmer ought to expect to get for his crop lots of farmers who had big supplies on hand declined to sell, preferring to wait for a further advance of twenty five to fifty cents per bushel. Now the price has gone down again, and the house who held out for $1.75 for their wheat when the price went to $1.50 three years ago, they will probably in the end sell for half what they might have gotten.

—Cadillac News: The penny slot machines have been officially characterized as games of chance by the officers of Grand Rapids and other Michigan cities and their further use has been forbidden. It is admitted that the principal objection to them is that they lead to child gambling, the same abuse has been noted here in Cadillac. Saloon boys have been permitted to use the slot machines in some places with the same freedom granted to mature men, and parents have protested against the demoralizing interest and excitement the habit has produced. The question of the question by game is chance and their public display and use should be forbidden.

—Kalkaska Special: In the divorce matter, and both were granted to the Frank Wesley of Charlevoix, the circuit court ordered that their daughter Gladys, be given into the custody of the mother. Wrisley refuses to give up the child, and has been ordered to answer a charge of contempt of court.

—There are a number of villages in this state where the council or board of aldermen have enacted an ordinance to encourage the building of substantial walks by property owners, the modus operandi will pay one-half the expense of laying the walks. Where it is constructed of cement or material of that nature. Many cities and village in the eastern States are working upon that plan, and the result is excellent walks are built which do not have to be repaired every two or three years. How would it be if our city fathers would investigate this way of encouraging the building of good walks and act accordingly.—Manistee Herald.

—Frank H. Sears is very fond of his home, and is equally fond of his baby. The baby is "onto his job," and comprehends the situation of his dad whenever the latter is in the house. Frank sings the baby to sleep, and the song Frank sings is the only lullaby that will induce the "youngster" to slumber. Any other song but that little one knows with precipt and emphatic protest. The song itself is one that no parent ever heard outside the Sears dwelling, and has as distinct characteristics as the howl of a big dog in a trap. But we will let that pass. As a rule when Frank sings the baby wakes up at once. During a recent veiling period of paternal song and fatherly wakefulness, Frank, in his desperation, thought of a scheme, and now he has two baby lullabies, one the song, and a phonograph—the same one you have heard warbling "After the Ball" at the store. Frank sings that song into a blank and now when the kid shuts its eyes Frank reaches over to the table, starts the machine, and sleep follows soon. It works like a charm, and one of the greatest lullabies that a parent ever sang is thus perpetuated for future generations.

Obituary.

Marshall F. Sherrer died at his home in this village on Friday last, after a protracted illness, or, nearly three years. Deceased was born in New Hampshire in 1830. February 6, 1862, he enlisted in Co. E, 10th Michigan Infantry, and participated in the battles of Corinth, Bonnerville, Nashville, Stone River, Mission ridge, Chickamauga, Bonnell's Bluff, Dallas, Peach Tree Creek, and the siege of Atlanta, marching with Sherman to the sea. He was mustered out February 5, 1865. The funeral was held from the M. E. church Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of Hatter Post, G. A. R., of which he was a member, and was largely attended. He leaves a wife and four children.

Sibert Ackert, of this village, died at his home early Monday morning, of Lagrippe complicated with what he had been afflicted many years. Deceased has been for many years a resident of Charlevoix, and was the brother of John M. James and Hubert Ackert, and of Mrs. Ella Giddings, of Portland. He leaves a wife, a daughter of Mrs. Ella Mace, and two children. He was a member of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 293, F. & A. M., under the auspices of which he will be buried to-day.

Daniel Inskeep, an old resident of Beaver Island, died at St. James on the 9th, aged 91 years. He was born in Dutchess County, Orleans, and came to America in 1851. Three sons and one daughter survive him—John, of Chicago; James and Lincoln, of St. James.

More Fish Wrinkles.

Charlevoix Fishermen Are Up Against It—Arrested for Big Legal Fight Pending.

On Thursday morning of last week deputy game warden W. K. Brewster, commodore in command of the State fisheries patrol flagship, Columbia, Capt. Webb, seized over three tons of lake trout at this place, took them to Boyne City and turned them over to the Booth Packing Co.

The seizure included two tons brought in by John O'Neill's tug Parnelee, about one ton of Gilbert's and about three hundred pounds from the tug Fearless, owned by Sommerman. The nets of all, used in catching these fish were practically seized also.

Thursday afternoon the Columbia seized a big catch brought into Petoskey by Booth's tug, On Saturday O'Neill and Gilbert went to Petoskey to confer with the Booth people in the matter, and both were arrested at the instance of Brewster, who was there with the Columbia. They were arraigned and the trial set for yesterday, but as understand the case was adjourned to some future date.

All the parties mentioned will fight the case, and have retained counsel to that end. The situation is thus briefly mashed up: Under the law enacted last session, the United States Fish Commission are permitted to employ fishermen to continue fishing in the inland waters for gathering of spawn, the period of such fishing to be at the discretion of the Commission. On Tuesday morning nets were set under this authority, and on Tuesday night orders came to discontinue fishing, and no nets were set Wednesday. On Thursday the Tuesday nets were raised, and the seizure occurred.

The fishermen claim they were acting in the utmost good faith, and were innocent of any intent to violate the law. They claim they are caught between the United States and the State—the "nipper and the nidder" difficulty of the law, and are victims of wrong understanding between the two departments. Hence their determination to fight. They claim to be able to prove conclusively that the U. S. representative, on Tuesday authorized them to set three gangs each, or two days' lift.

On Thursday, after leaving Petoskey, the Columbia met the Beaver island, the scene of former noisy and spectacular forays, but Mr. Brewster is loud in his praises of the island fishermen. There was not a tin or a thread or wet twine in sight, and the light of the Columbia went to Beaver

HOBOKEN, June 9, 1895.

IN a canon over the Jordanwalls of a deserted tomb for Mr. Talmage there are two words, only the letters of a hammer, broke into a tomb. To my Father-in-heaven, one word, "Come."

Here is a burial of no dense mist in a cloudy day. The darkest night I ever saw. Christ died. Sorrow on all Christian hearts. Sorrow on the Christian nation. Sorrow on all who love humanity. Sorrow on the angels. Sorrow on Christ himself. He knew the sorrow he was to cause. He knew the sorrow he would feel. He knew that because that through death he would destroy the devil and his angels and save the world. Christ died. Let the sun hide behind the cloud. Let the moon put on a mourning robe. Let the stars be extinguished. Let the rainbow be unstrung. Let the Christian harp be hung on the willows. Let the Christian nation put on sackcloth. Let the angels of God fly to the tomb of their Lord. Let the Christian world weep

THE FLAIL.

Its Sweet Music Departed from Nearly All the Farms.

The sound of the flail has departed from nearly all the farmsteads and the thalling of the thresher has gone with it, says Notes and Queries. Yet for some time after harvest was over there was no more familiar sound in the country places than the rhythmic beat of the flails as they fell upon and beat out the grain on the bare-thrashing floors. There remain, however, some barns in which the old-time thresher occurs, but the use of these grain mills and flails is about four ago some friends were in a country place where a part of the thrashing is done with the flail. A corpse of the implements were hanging on the barn wall and a lump of straw was on the floor. The use of the flail was explained and demonstrated for the benefit of those who had never seen this "weapon of husbandry." Incidentally it may be mentioned that the surname, "Swan like a thresher" and "Works like a threshing" came from that occupation, and the "as old as Adam." It looks easy enough; that can't be very hard work," said one of the company, a remark which led to the flail being put into his hands for a trial at the "easy work." One swing was enough for the amateur, for before each caught him a "Monday stitch" which probably he will remember to the end. It also frightened the inexperiment upon his neighbor that "working like a thresher" as he had done had not led to "singing like a thresher." "You'll get a good flailing," that our reader gave the last employed as an effective weapon? When used by an old hand there is no standing against it.

Greatness due to Mines.

Spokane, Wash., owes its greatness to mines. It boasts the first bank in the country which failed during the panic and afterward paid all its creditors, $200,000, to depositors; every cent of which went from individual stocks which at the time of the failure were worthless and valueless. At least 75 per cent of the male citizens own mining stocks which is a record nowhere else in the country. In the last twelve months money made out of mining stocks amounting to $2,000,000 has been invested in real estate in Spokane, most of it going to redeem property from eastern and foreign investors who have heretofore been the largest water power in the United States. The Spokane river carries a minimum of 2,000 cubic feet a second, with a fall of 150 feet within the city limits. It has the channel contract street lamps at the price being $1.25 each for 2,000 candle-power arc lights. Its people consume more drinking water per capita than those of any other city, the record being 2,242,742,200 gallons during the last year, and the population about 20,000.

Accompanied a Gigantic Foe.

Dr. Widdoes the new bishop of Calcutta, has accomplished a gigantic feat. Six months after his arrival he took a full confirmation service in the Bengali dialect at Hanagar to the number of baptisms. There were over 1,000 in the epicenter who take up the rear, and he was a fully tired of work when that strain at a gnat and swallow a camel." Symmetrical, good for, so well that, besides the confirmed, he has already given a six men to the Bengali ministry, and he is the one mostly spoken in the Calcutta dioceses.

A Fertile Table.

The British are about to commence their Pacific cable, extending from Vancouver via certain islands to Australia and New Zealand. It will be 8,000 miles long and complete the electric circuit of its globe. The cost is about $7,500,000, and it is to be worked at a rate not exceeding 4 shillings a word. The British government, but chiefly by Australian capital, is to unite the scattered fragments of the empire more closely and also to reduce cable rates.

SURE OF FRESH EGGS.

Dealers in Germany Are Fined Fifteen Eggs for Every, Note Has.

The Germans are a practical nation. Having realized that by proper organization they can keep within the German border the $50,000,000 marks, or $12,500,000, which the people of the empire now pay to foreigners for poultry and eggs, they have formed a club for the purpose of developing a home poultry business. Egg depots are to be established in the principal cities, notably at Chemnitz, Dresden and Leipzig. The public are to be supplied with eggs, the good quality and freshness of which will be absolutely guaranteed. This system will give confidence to customers and at the same time give poultry raisers a more certain and a quicker market for their product than they could otherwise secure. In order that not eggs may be traced to their origin, each poultryman is required, before sending his eggs to the depot, to mark them with a sign previously determined upon, which will designate them as fresh eggs and denote their source. For each egg sold which proves to be inedible the poultryman is fined fifteen pfennigs (about 4 cents). Dating all the way from the end of the seventeenth century the collection exhibits in a very instructive way the primitive origin of the mechanical arts, and gives one a idea of the simple instruments used to do the greatest music components. The oldest instrument on exhibition is a small clavichord of the seventeenth century, measuring thirty-four inches with twenty-eight two-choral bound octaves. Another of equal antiquity takes back-four full octaves, and is provided with three bass, built in the shape and possessing a rich and beautiful tone for singing accompaniments. The strings are rifled with silver and gold quills. Such instruments date from the time of Handel. Bach and Gluck, the instrument was made in the first half of the eighteenth century, and is a bound clavichord of four and one-half octaves fifty-eight tones and forty strings. There is the harpsichord from the second half of the last century which possesses five and one-half octaves. The last two are supplied with strings tipped with brass, and their immediate followers were the piano pieces of 1700 and 1800 by Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, etc. Leschmann Hartkody, Caspin, and Franz Liszt during their youth.

To Aid Lu Divorce.

In Lithuania a province of Russia it is customary that the bride's very first words to her husband after the ceremony. The reason for it is to prevent the wife should her marriage prove an unhappy one, in which case she will sue for a divorce, and her plea will be that she was forced into the marriage against her will, and on that ground the verdict of the judge will be in her favor.

SAILOR'S SUPERSTITION.

Some of Its Things Will Bring Good Luck to a Ship.

Pets are believed to bring good luck, and when in the recent war with Spain a sailor was seen and sailor of a narrative such on the Texas, all the sailors in the fleet said it was because the battleship was such a lucky craft. Sailors are a superstitious lot, and the sailor's bad reputation among seafaring men, most of whom believe that the ships they look to a ship. If a sailor is lucky and is drowned (the chances against it are almost equal), the ship that was lucky is drowned, and believing the ship is drowned, and I have heard sailors over here tell the case of the old Kearsarge as proof of the truth of the belief that the frigate carried a jinx and a brother. Sailors feel and believe, therefore, that if their ship is lucky, they are safe. One night, Jacko, Jacko, poor Tom overboard, rushing along the rail and shaking like a dead as the unfortunate poor disappears in the leaping waves. The crew were rushing too high to see if it hadn't been a man, and poor was left to a watery grave, but not without many gloomy forebodings which were realized soon afterwards, when the Kearsarge struck on the total reef. To fall down without any apparent cause is a warning of death to the sailor, and, according to an American critic, was lying off Nice a few years ago, an a sailor fell prone on the deck. Upon rising, he went to his tank, and, to the astonishment of a ship of paper leaving his mother's address in the hand of a messenger, saying he did not expect to see home again. For the rome to the ship, the dress is believed to be lucky to forecast death in as many days or weeks as there are drops of blood. You may wear a saint ring if you, but be lucky wearing, exercising the injunction to bring a horseshoe, or a lemon applied to the remark "Throw a horseshoe after here." Self-Culture.

GO TIRED.

Why the Heartsick Woman Indulged in a Few Sad Tears.

"I am so tired of people who will not mind their own business, and of people who look for the minutes with out dragging in the domestic affairs of others," said a weary woman whom I found on the sofa.

"I am tired of the unnecessary bother of the street—noises which some inventive genius might, at some day not, turn into motive power. I am so tired of seeing heroes driven with blinkers. I am so tired of hearing groups of men on street corners make senile remarks about every woman who passes. I am very tired of seeing women handle their skirts sideways in making curtsieses of them. I am in a miserably tired of the quotation fend. I am so tired of Japanese people of people who set out themselves, or allow others to drift, with the current but never to attempt to stem or stream. I am so tired of married men and sighing single, and of women who wear their hair fitted on their noses. I am so tired of envy and jealousy, and of people who carry a small barrow compelled about their persons, to be used for their friends and neighbors' convenience. I am so tired of all the pages, of all the girls in every form. And, O, I am so tired of the people who shake their heads at a gnat and swallow a camel." Symmetrical, good for, so well that, besides the confirmed, he has already given a six men to the Bengali ministry, and he is the one mostly spoken in the Calcutta dioceses.

The high school leads this month with a percentage of attendance of 90. The sixth grade comes next with 96.9.

We are pleased to note the increase of various well-kept-for more improvement in the future.

The following rooms had no tardiness during the month, Central building: Eighth grade, Edith Flanagan teacher; Seventh grade, Lillian Vowles, teacher; First and Second grades, Lettie Dunn, teacher; Lake cottage building, Third and Fourth, Amelia Fanning, teacher.

For the entire season the number of visitors for October exceeds that for September by 25. There is still room for improvement.

Our per cent. of attendance this month is 15 better than it was last month.

Respectfully,
J. Dwyer Rice, Supt.

Marine Notes.

Owing to scarcity of cargoes and high wages demanded by sailors, some lake lumber carriers say it is better for them to tie up for the winter now than to risk vessels in possible storms. At present few are the exception is considered unusual.

The Emerson fishing tugs Valiant and Peter Cook, of Manistique, arrived here Saturday for laying up.

The steamer Mary of St. Ignace, will be here this week to be hauled out at Washburn's yard.

Chapel's Seventh Annual Holiday Display.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

In our visits to the schools this year we hear a great deal of complaint coming from the teachers, owing to the lack of proper text books. In several instances where we questioned the teacher in regard to the classification and gradation of the school, she began to complain about the inefficiency of her work owing to a lack of text-books in the classes. It is one of the great drawbacks in our schools.

We are confident that no one factor would be of more benefit to the schools of Charlevoix county than the adoption of the free text book system. We are confident the attendance in school would be largely increased. A great many children stay out of school owing to the fact they are not supplied with proper books, and their parents cannot or will not supply them. There is scarcely an instance on record where the adoption of free text books by a school district did not increase the attendance.

In some states the law is mandatory, in Michigan the law is optional, and the people have not ceased to look upon free text books as an innovation. Philadelphia was the first city in the United States to furnish free text book, and has furnished them for 50 years. New York city has furnished free text books for 45 years; Bristol 50 years, Patterson, Elizabeth and Newark, N. J., for more than 40 years. The entire state of Massachusetts for 16 years; Saginaw, Mich., 14 years. And there is no hesitation on the part of these schools to return to the old system. Detroit, Menominee, Muskegon and West Saginaw have adopted free text books. More recently Battle Creek adopted free text books, and the increased attendance in the Battle Creek school necessitated more school room.

We have a compulsory school law in the state, and we firmly believe that free books would solve the difficulties in enforcing that law to a great extent.

In fact we believe that a state that would enact a compulsory statute should also enact a free text book law.

A sense of shame in the poor boy's mind, because he cannot provide himself with the proper books, keeps him out of the higher grades, and he quits school years before he otherwise would.

We hope to see the day, and that not very distant, when every school in this county will adopt the free text-book system. We shall have more to say on this subject during the year.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The Central Lake schools have been closed on account of scarlet fever.

St. Ignace News: A schooner is taking on a cargo of 7,000 cords of cedar at the mill dock. The lines will take it to Milwaukee where they will be sold for Christmas trees.

The C. & W. M. Ry will extend their line from Bay View to Harbor Springs next season, and the G. R. & I. will extend their line three miles beyond Harbor Springs to Harbor Beach, a rapidly growing resort.

Hesperia Chronicle, Nov. 27: Tuesday was about as near a big black locust as a stranger in this part of the world. It came over the D. G. A. S. R. R. on Tuesday morning, towed by No. 1. A 40-ton engine, heavier than any of its predecessors and compelled to haul heavier loads.

The surveyors finished their full work on the electric line route from Petoskey to Cheboygan. The distance is about 37 miles. We hear of no snags to speak of, and about the only trouble experienced was when numbers," said Engineer Northrup. The survey is on the beach most of the way leaving it comparatively an easy place.—Ind.

There is more trouble for the deputy game wardens. A Harbor Springs man has a cat that is an expert at catching trout, and which has so far proved to be a good deal of a nuisance to relation thereto. This cat recently came in from a fishing excursion with a fine brook trout that weighed over a pound.

East Jordan Enterprise: The East Jordan Lumber Co. has purchased a third locomotive this week, and it will be brought up by W. R. Malpas. It is a freight locomotive, somewhat lighter than their big No. 3 but a considerably heavier than their No. 1. It will come by the car ferry across the Lake to the Ann Arbor road at Frankfort.

Petoskey Democrat: One of the saddest happenings of the year occurred the Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Jordan passed away at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Darling on Day street, as the result of bright's disease. She had been ailing for a considerable time, but nothing serious was thought of it, and death came as a surprise. The funeral occurred at the home Thursday afternoon and the services were conducted by the Rev. Countryman. The magnificent floral tributes, which practically filled the house, testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held by hosts of friends. The remains were taken to Flint this morning accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Beahan. The party will be met at that place by the Rev. J. G. Inglis and Mrs. Jordan will be laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery which contains the remains of her mother. The deceased was twenty-three years of age and since her mother's death, which occurred at Sioux City, Ia., thirteen years ago, has made her home with her grandparents, who will feel more keenly than any others the absence in the loved one. She attended the high school until she had completed the work of the eleventh grade, and then went to Alma college for a year's work. She had always taken an active part in society and church work and was possessed of a loving, happy disposition that endeared her to all. A certain sadness will be a part of the lives of many of our people for a long time to come as a result of her death.

PHOTOGRAPH TABLES.

Ideas That Will Be Welcomed in Every Household.

A new style in tables shown in the swell furniture stores which could easily be duplicated in lace or other materials and places to more than one room in the house. We all know how photographs accumulate and how hard it is to keep them from dust and also from fading. This table is designed especially for photographs and will fill a long felt want. It is about as big as the old-fashioned work table, 32 like it, has a top which opens disclosing a box lined with satin and divided into compartments of different sizes for the reception of photographs. The top is of plated satin brocade, so arranged that pictures can be placed in it anywhere, and when opened the top forms a pleasing ornamental background for the faces of our friends. The imported model is very beautifully and expensively upholstered in heavy Prussian brocade of an ecru color, possessing with small flowers. In copying this pretty invention for the preservation of photographs cheaper stuff can be used, and the covering may be of some inexpensive silk cretonne or plush.

The Baker and Its Sermon.

In a social story about the baker, William is made to use up his only ability as a preacher. In his well known lines he says: "Some people go around the Republic in the health of mankind, doling out to every disease more than necessary or a cure; others go about the country like parsons with a sermon in the recent trip the officers of the Humanitarian society found a sailor during divine service and calling for a doctor. After service the captain ordered the sailor before him, gave him a good calling and sentenced him to two days' arrest. The captain afterward inquired the officers of the sleeping sailor, and the gentleman replied on him. "Was he on watch the night before" asked the Baker. "He was, your honor." "Then, let the poor devil off." Results, it wasn't much of a sermon, anyhow."

Local News.

—Capt. H. O. Rose, of Petoskey, was in town Monday evening.

—Dr. Attebering returned home from his northern hunting trip Monday.

—Jas. McCann, of St. James, was here yesterday on his way home from Chicago.

—Geo. Wait and wife left for Holland, Mich., Saturday to be gone several weeks.

—A. Ward, of Frankfort, is establishing two lumber camps near the south end of Beaver Island.

—Mrs. Emma Cole returned home Friday after a lengthy visit with friends in Detroit and Fenton.

—Tom Shier, who went to Canada some time ago for his health, returned home Saturday very much improved.

—Miss Emma Bennett was called to Warren, Ohio, yesterday by a telegram announcing the death of a sister.

—Married, at the M. E. parsonage Thursday, Nov. 16th, James E. Morgan and Lettie S. Dow, both of Boyne City.

—Supt. Martindale wishes us to state that the city's electrical supplies will hereafter be found at Iddings' hardware store.

—County treasurer Ward has received the primary school money for the county. The amount is $1,962—the largest ever before received.

—There will be a box social at the home of Myron Geer, Tuesday evening, Nov. 28, the proceeds to be used to purchase a bell for the school house. All invited.

—M. J. Stockman was the first deer hunter to return, arriving home last Friday. He reports the killing of several deer by his party, but Morris failed to secure any game.

—We cannot help admiring the nerve of the Grand Rapids Herald in appropriating the SENTINEL's fish picture item of last week, verbatim, and using it as a "special," without credit.

—Rev. A. P. Nagler, of this place, is in attendance on the Grand Traverse District Ministerial Association, at Central Lake. He preached the annual sermon before the association on Monday evening.

—The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Geo. Pettinger on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A report of the National Convention held at Seattle will be given by Mrs. Palmiter. A free o'clock tea will be served. All ladies are welcome.

—Mr. A. L. Finch, of Livingston county, a graduate of the Michigan University law department, has located here as the partner of A. D. Cruickshank. Mr. Finch comes well equipped in legal acquirements, and we have no doubt of his success.

—Mrs. Mary Gunson died at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. Kane, of Hayes, last Thursday. The funeral occurred at Burgess school house on Saturday, Rev. A. P. Nagler, of this place, officiating. Deceased was a sister of Justice Chas. D. Long, of the Michigan supreme court.

—The W. C. T. U. held a reception for the teachers and ministers of the school board on Wednesday evening last at the residence of Mrs. W. Kerry. Mrs. Gertrude Minor, of Traverse City, state superintendent of School Savings Banks, was present and explained the advantages of the system in the public schools.

—The fact that smallpox in a mild form, but unmistakable, exists in ten places in Michigan, has induced the State Board of Health to issue a warning to the people of the state. The board states that when the cold weather arrives it is to be expected that the disease will be more dangerous, and unless greater care is taken, more wide-spread. In order to prevent an epidemic of smallpox in the state, it is urged that all citizens and physicians co-operate with the health authorities by assisting in acting promptly when they have reason to believe that a case under their observation or may be smallpox. The protection of the public health is best served when physicians and citizens give to the public health the benefit of any doubt which they may entertain as to whether a given case is or is not smallpox.

—Mr. Kinsleau, for many years past the keeper of Beaver Harbor lighthouse, has been transferred to Ahnapee, Wis. An assistant keeper at Ahnapee takes Mr. Kinsleau's place at Beaver Harbor.

—The ladies of the Eastern star chapter will give a supper on Friday evening, Nov. 24th, at Tuttle's restaurant, for the benefit of the Masonic Temple fund. Supper served from 5 to 8. Adults 25 cents; children 15 cents.

—The Charlevoix Roller Mills are still working overtime to supply orders. A pioneer Ilinois farmer last week consulted to the editor of this paper: "The Iron Duke flour, made in Charlevoix, is the best I have ever used."

—The Charlevoix life saving station will be completed this week and turned over to the government. The grounds have been nicely graded and covered with soil that is fit for seeding. Charley Dipple has been employed as watchman for the winter.

—Mrs. R. W. Kane, assisted by Miss Florence Smith, will give a recital for two of her pupils, Misses Maude Scott and Ruth Smith, at the residence of S. M. Moore, on the Chicago road on Friday evening, of this week. Invitations are out.

—The third annual exhibition of the Northern Michigan Poultry Association will occur at Petoskey, Dec. 5th to 9th, inclusive. Dr. H. G. Porter, of Petoskey, is president of the association, H. W. Cook, of this place, is one of the vice presidents, and Richard Shapton and Dr. J. A. Auld are members of the executive committee.

—Dr. W. F. Lewis was called into Manton Sunday night to attend Harry Hollis, a shot gun victim. He was out hunting rabbits. He had occasion of a stump, and the gun stock slipped over the edge of it, striking the hammer and discharging the gun. His left hand was so torn that it was amputated at the wrist. Soon of the shot passed up through his chin into the side of his head, ruining one eye.

—A St. Joseph special of the 20th says: "The tug Columbia, with assistant state game and Fish Warden Brewster on board, put in here Saturday night and left Sunday. It is believed that the Columbia will lay in wait for the fishermen who moved from this city to Indiana, and raid them, while if they are violating the law."

—Do not fail to attend the one day session of the state Farmers' Institute to be held at the Court house in this village, Monday, Dec. 4th, beginning at 9:30. Peter Voorhees, of Pontiac, one of the most successful and famous fruit growers in the state, will be in attendance, and a good programme will help to make the meeting interesting and instructive.

—We have been shown samples of white and red brick made from clay lately uncovered on the Weaver place, in this township, (now owned by J. Mile Mason) and properly tempering. Mr. Henry Barber has secured the manufacturing right, and has already formed not a stock company. The brick are pronounced excellent by experts. Mr. Barber will put in machinery in the spring and push their manufacture.

—The State tax commission has pursued its investigation far enough to be convinced that timber lands, timber plants, etc., have never been anywhere near adequately assessed, and the members propose to start a crusade against the conditions that have thus far prevailed and to place what is left of these classes of property on the rolls at something like their true cash value. With this object in view President Campbell has prepared a circular, a copy of which will be sent to each supervisor in the State asking for information.

—A case is going before the Supreme Court from Grand Rapids on the outcome of which nearly every municipality in Michigan is interested, as it involves the question of how great a tax can be levied upon transient traders in the way of license fees for the privilege of doing business. In our City the name of Alexander was arrested in Grand Rapids for the violation of a city ordinance relative to transient dealers, because he failed to pay a tax of fifty dollars for the first month, and ten dollars a week thereafter. He fought the case upon the ground that the tax was excessive and therefore illegal, but the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and the case goes to the Supreme Court. The matter is something that has bothered every city in Michigan, and it will be well to have a decision that shall settle the question as to just how far a municipality can go in the taxation of itinerant dealers.

—H. L. Gitzberg & Sons, of Benton, have bought the old iron of the Ironton furnace plant, and the remains of what was once a hive of industry will soon be cleaned up. The consideration was $700. It is the purpose of Mrs. Adams, the new owner of the Ironton property to make a general clean up of the premises, and convert the place into a resort. The old coal kilns will be torn down and the brick sold, and old buildings and tramways removed. Already several lots have been sold and trees are spoken for. Once the ruins and rubbish is removed, Ironton will be one of the most attractive resort locations in the northern region. Located as it is at the junction of the two arms of Pine Lake, it is an ideal spot for a summer outing. There is no question about the success of Mrs. Adams venture.

—Let us be up and doing! These are days of progress and advancement. Money is seeking investment in lucrative manufacturing enterprises. Towns all about us are securing establishments that employ labor. Charlevoix possesses advantages for manufacturing second to none in this northern region. Why should we sit with our hands folded when others are securing the plums. What has become of the Charlevoix Improvement Society? Shall we do something this winter, or shall we be content to pay for another resort hotel and another ten acre addition to the golf links? Perhaps someone will erect a summer cottage next summer, or some enterprising outsider come in and open another pop-corn stand. This "charlevoix the beautiful" business is good as far as it goes, but let us make it "Charlevoix the Wide Awake." Something may strike us at we wait sleepily and quietly, just as one of the falling meteors may drop down upon one of our beautiful terraces. Let us be up and doing!

—Hon. C. B. Penton, of Mackinac Island, was in town Monday, on his way to Chicago by steamer Illinois. The visit of Mr. Fenton awakens a memory of ancient local history that succeeds smile and wink from any of those who were in the scheme. In 1871, when Mr. Fenton was a member of the lower house of the Michigan legislature, that body, in violation of the constitution, made an appropriation for the improvement of Charlevoix harbor—the first appropriation, by the way, it ever received. The bill which thus trenched upon the functions of the general government, provided for an appropriation of 16 sections of swamp land "for the reclamation and drainage of lands on Pine Lake." As there never was, since the bed of Pine Lake was scooped out, over ten inches fall between Pine Lake and Lake Michigan, it will readily be seen that the said appropriation did not drain an acre. But the scheme worked, and the joke was on the legislature. Old Henry Morgan took his pay for building a sort of surface breakwater in sorts, and Nat Stickney received the same sort of pay for dredging. D. C. Vettleton was made local commissioner, under the provisions of the act. It was pretty near as big a swipe as the Petoskey breakwater, but it gave us a start.

—We venture the opinion that not more than half the people of Charlevoix have an appreciative knowledge of the natural beauties of the Mt. Michaels suburb, lying over to the northwest. As you leave the beautiful home of north Bridge street, and Petoskey avenue behind you and skirt the sand dunes that lead to the Pattengill and Dennison cottages, you pass into a bit of rural nature, almost before you know it, that is like an old New England landscape sketch. Through winding, embowered paths under the hills you wander, to your right a level plateau, to your left perpendicular hillsides. The hills become higher and higher until you reach the base of old Mt Michaels, around which lie some of the most beautiful spots that the sun ever shone upon. You look upward, and almost in the clouds is the old observatory. If you like climbing you can mount to the top, from which you can see Harbor Springs 20 miles away, and almost you a cyclorama, of lake and field and forest and hills that baffles description. Then, while you are in the wandering mood, you can go a little farther, to the old church, where Capt. Tom Palmer and his comrade Hathaway, two old civil war veterans once happily swept the lines of their fleetfooted years, sang and conversed, the broad lake on the one hand and the irregular hillsides on the other. Up there, within two miles of the hotel, is a bit of nature that brightens the day from which you take the hour of leisure.

CHAPTER VII.

It is to Paris and not to the Scottish Wilds to which Lady Emmeline Vane has taking refuge.

A little discussion will arise "Paris good," he says to himself with a pleasant shrugging of the shoulders, "is the land of the wonderfully beautiful and the ridiculously ugly. Perhaps the object I long sought a little longer."

The second day of this arrival, they make a turn in the Tuileries. The Tuileries is to be their first movement.

While the Vanes (and Vane's three dismal whispers to his Presidential Engineer, his companion is still fair-moving Pauline, who has evidently a keen eye for beauty, for her sake, and in memorable time of a large picture of Jeffrey holding the head of Herodotus. He turns indignantly from Jedrich and glances at the object of the Prince's admiration.

"Ha Handsome!" he cries. "And that lady? Why, I know that face! We have never seen her."

"Yes, we have!" Lord Ernestine utters under cover of his younger brother, and nearly loses his balance.

"Hush! Hush! Do not are you?" he whispers with a lowly, sing-song tone, with a lowly, sing-song tone, and in the Hebrew, in the Hebrew, in the Hebrew,

Charlevoix Sentinel.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

If the status in which elections were held last week had been confined to presidential electors (or McKinley and Bryan, McKinley would have received 142 electoral votes and Bryan 25. And some of our democratic friends seem to be quite surprised and thankful over receiving the 25.

The meteoric showers predicted by astronomers to assist the sun which failed to fill its appointment, and now a distinguished savant says the announcement was made a year too soon. The only question now is, will the least Joshua Shelterpole "make haste to express applause" or shall we grope in ignorance as to the accuracy of the astronomical forecast? We shall continue to have our bedroom window curtain up until we hear from East Jordan.

Anti-annexationists and their organs are much more moderate in their utterances since the preliminary report of the Philippine commission, and especially since Prof. Worcester, in his writings and lectures, clearly proves that the administration's policy is the only one consistent with our national honor and international law. It is daily becoming more apparent that the wild, rabid anti-expansionists go off half a single sound or logical argument.

Aguinaldo's army is scattered and Aguinaldo is a fugitive, with certain capture in store for him. There is every probability that the insurrection will be crushed by Jan. 1st, 1900, and that American authority will be firmly established throughout the islands. What will the copperheads then have to growl about? Even the Detroit Journal admits that "the Philippines question may be considered as was Manila some days ago—out of sight." Perhaps Aguinaldo and his friends fully Manila will prove Lazarus in prophecy and resurrection.

The East Jordan Enterprise "makes haste to express applause" of the action recently taken by our government in the Philippines. Now let the war go on. Taken with the recent report of the Philippine commission, this newspaper of the Enterprise will do much to encourage the administration in its work of pacifying the islands. The Enterprise may yet turn out to be a Republican paper. It is the Democrat party. It always "makes haste to applaud" a good thing when it is completed by the Republican force of fact, demonstrated by somebody else.

Michigan manufacturers and shippers are enjoying as they never have enjoyed before for want of adequate transportation facilities by rail, and now for lack of boats. Lumber shippers from as far north as Indian River are shipping their product to market by way of Chicago, and paying the freight charges over the Chicago & West Michigan railway, not only to Grand Haven but to points south of Grand Haven. Fruit growers are shipping their product to Chicago and paying the freight charges over the Chicago & West Michigan railway, not only to Grand Haven but to points south of Grand Haven. Manufacturers are shipping their goods to Chicago and paying the freight charges over the Chicago & West Michigan railway, not only to Grand Haven but to points south of Grand Haven. Why? Because there is not a single steamer or barge plying between Chicago and Grand Haven. Why? Because the Grand Haven & Milwaukee Transportation Company, which promised to place a fleet of steamers on the route last spring, has not done so. Why? Because the Chicago & West Michigan railway

To accomplish this he employed Mr. Arthur Lemon and 100 other men, twelve of the Yukon Field Force Mounted Guards, who accompanied them as guides. Marine Notes.

The tug Gilkers towed a schooner to Good Hart Saturday.

The Beaver Island steamer Joe was here Wednesday.

The tug Sprat, of Lexington, was in port Monday, bound north.

Both N. M. T. boats are yet running and have full loads of freight both ways. They will probably both run until Dec. 1st.

The lighthouse tender Hollyhock left here Saturday morning for Sturgeon Bay, going as Chicago, to lay up all the aids to navigation and shove them here.

Capt. Peterson's boat, the schooner Sam Ittle and H. D. Moore, are making their last trips for the season. The Moore left yesterday; the Sam Ittle is loading at Petoskey.

Kehl Bros., of Northport, have sold the wreck of the schooner Kate Lyon, ashore at Traverse Point, to Capt. J. F. Emery, who was here Sunday with the steamer Onekama, taking sub-marine diver Rose back with him. Capt. Emery says the vessel is in good condition, and expects to get her off. The Lyon registers 290 tons, and is said to be a very good vessel.

Capt. E. S. Chase, of Traverse City, has purchased the schooner Harvey Bateman, lately owned by Capt. Gallagher, of the Beavers. The Bateman is a staunch and fine little craft and well suited to the shipping of freight between lake ports. The vessel is finely built and was recently fitted up and stretched for a trip around the world, by a noted Haven physician.

The insurance men's association of Traverse City, have forwarded to the Michigan senators a series of resolutions urging the construction of a breakwater in Grand Traverse bay at that city. For some time past the subject has been agitated among business organizations, and all who vessel interests have cordially approved the movement.

The Northern Michigan Transportation Co. has been notified that a claim has been lodged against it of $6,250 for failure to comply with the provisions of the boat law. The secretary of state of Illinois recently sent out blank forms to all Illinois corporations which each had to fill out, declaring that it was not a trust or part of any trust. The fine imposed for the penalty for non-observance of the law requiring the forms to be filled out and returned.

What an altogether desirable and effective thing it would be, if Charlevoix and all up-lake towns would this winter join in a terrific effort to secure a big appropriation for Charlevoix harbor, which, in the official designating, contains the upper channel, but which, including the oldest inhabitant, ever heard of any up-lake effort in this direction? Every detail of the work on this harbor for the past thirty years has been done by clear heads, and who have been the great benefactors? This is a matter for our up-lake friends to think about.

The steamboaters H. J. Worthington, towing the large H. H. Martin, bound from St. Ignace to Chicago, lumber laden, stopped here Sunday night and picked up the tug Sprat. H. Wilther, also lumber laden, passed the Worthington and let two consorts are owned by S. S. Chamberlain, of Chicago; the captain of the Worthington is Wm. Chamberlain, father of the owner, and the master of the Wilther is a son of the owner, and grandson of the master of the Worthington. The 70 year old skipper of the steam-er is as lively as a grasshopper of the Wilther's quarter-deck.

For a comfortable smoke call for the "Brevet."

Close Season Spawn Gathering.

That provision of the fish laws which permits the U. S. Fish Commission to employ fishermen during the close season to catch lake trout for the gathering of spawn, is manifestly wrong.

The law confers the commission with a broad discretion as to the duration of such fishing, and the character and extent of the outfits employed. The arrangement with the fishermen employed, does not limit them to render impossible the close season, for during the continued fishing, business is by virtue of the contract between them and the commission, the fish caught are turned over to the fisheries and taken for food for their services, the commission retaining only the eggs.

From the fact that the period of fishing is the most profitable of any during the year, those employed in the work are favored above their fellows. The wrong is made more manifest from the fact that only the larger plants are employed, those using steam tugs, thus shutting out inferior fishermen, who should have equal rights before the law, whether in benefits or its penalties as involved.

There can be no more striking illustration of the force of this argument than the work in these and contiguous waters. One proprietor fisher must caught twenty-five tons of lake trout; others from ten to fifteen tons, yet the poor sailboat fishermen must fish their nets on the out and stand by and look on.

In the prosecution of its work, which is, the continuity of institution brought to the fishing industry, the commission should own a quarter the craft which are used in the work, paying the fishermen employed and selling the fish on their own account.

As it now is, there is much dissatisfaction and ill feeling among fishermen, and justly so.

But if this system is continued in operation, at least there should be such joint action on the part of the fish commission and the warden's department that justice may be done to those who are favored above their neighbors in the distribution of benefits.

We might say nothing to prejudice public opinion pending the trial of a case in court, but we believe that two departments the heads of which are distant from the field of work, and separated from each other, should establish a joint bureau of information for their mutual benefit and to further the ends of justice.

The famous "Brevet" cigar is a favorite with all smokers.

—Ed. Burnett went to Cross Village this morning.

—Anent the fish egg question, with which Charlevoix has had so much to do this fall, the fact has been made apparent that Charlevoix is the logical location for a permanent fish hatchery. When the State had control of fish propagation an experimental hatchery was established here, and the water commission were entirely satisfied from results—so much so that they would have recommended a permanent hatchery had it not been for the action of the legislature in cutting down appropriations during the session of 1895-6, and that of the subsequent session in turning the work over to the United States commission. The fact remains, nevertheless, that the erection of a hatchery here by the government would be empty well expended, and our people should make an effort to bring it about by every means in their power. The reasons for the establishment of the Northwestern depot here, apply with equal force to fish propagation. Charlevoix is the natural commercial and industrial center of the fishing interests of the straits and bay regions, and a accessible by water more months in the year than any point within a radius of 100 miles. We are convinced that the right kind of work at at Washington would result in success, because we have the odd facts to support our claim—facts that are easy of proof—facts backed up by experience and figures.

—Hookey Records: We are very much pleased to note various references in the state papers to the next meeting of the republican newspaper association at Charlevoix. We hope that our Charlevoix friends will spare neither pains nor expense to make it a successful affair, because for that occasion Charlevoix is acting for all of us, and represents the combined interest of little Traverse bay towns. The fact is that the time for small jealousies and rivalries has gone by. Men with prophetic vision see the thrifty and beautiful stores of Little Traverse bay from Charlevoix the beautiful, round to Cross Village dotted with handsome summer homes, beautiful lawns and wooded parks, blended so diversely with rural farms on hillsides and their close, and to this larger development local jealousy has no place. The building of the Department Development in Petoskey last June cost Petoskey a few hundred dollars, but we believe that no man who contributed to the fund regrets its personal gone. It was a great advertisement not only for Petoskey but for Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, and Bay View. We heard Petoskey citizens say that in Philadelphia and scores of men will be here next year with their families and every year thereafter, who were never here before last encampment. In a similar way the state convention of undertakers, brought here by Hinsha & Son, and the Kentucky editorial association, brought here by Mr. S. Peck, of the New Arlington, last summer, were of the greatest on and benefit. Therefore we are glad that our Charlevoix friends are to have the Michigan editorial fellows with them next June, and we hope that they will give them that cordial, open-handed entertainment which is a characteristic of our northern people, and send them home in love with Charlevoix and the beauties of Little Traverse bay.

Call for the "Brevet" when you want a satisfactory smoke.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

It would be a very easy matter for each school district in the county to establish a school district library if the matter was attended to in due season. The matter should be brought before the annual school meeting and if approved by two-thirds of the voters, a report of the action should be filed in the office of the township clerk.

The school district is then entitled to its share of the volumes in the township library, also its share of money in the School Inspector's hands for library purposes, and thereafter the district will receive its share of library money at the time of the appropriation, all of these dividends to be made pro rata.

Nearly every one of the so called district libraries have failed to report to the township clerk, and a number that are reported to the department of Public Instruction as school district libraries have been starved by donations, socials, etc., and the library being placed in the school house is generally known as a district library, when in fact the library cannot be recognized as a legally organized library and loses a great many volumes of vital interest to the school district. We wish to call the attention of school patrons to this subject.

Organize a district school library. Use a portion of your one mill tax each year in supplying your school library with supplementary reading matter, and see what an impetus you will give to your school.

It is unnecessary for me to go into detail and enumerate all the benefits to be derived from a good working school library. Every parent of the school must acknowledge the necessity of a good library in this age.

Look up this subject and think it over, and when the proper time comes take the necessary legal steps to organize a good working school district library.

A nine pound boy at Tom Nowland's house.

—Miss Kate Kirkpatrick returned home from Grand Rapids yesterday.

—I. G. Mosier has begun the work on a residence on his Petoskey street property.

—Miss Carrie Gelken left Monday for Big Rapids to enter the Ferris Industrial School for the winter.

—There will be a Thanksgiving supper at Barnard church on Thursday evening for the benefit of the pastor.

—Rev. A. F. Nagler spends next Sunday at Elk Lake, at the re-opening of the new M. E. church at that place.

—John Mitchell and wife, of Evelina, returned last week from their old home in Scotland, where they spent most of the summer.

—Mrs. Lewis Miller, of Traverse City, has been here the past week visiting her sisters, Mrs. R. N. Faulkner and Mrs. Ella Fox.

—Priest, the photographer, will have an ad. next week, concerning special work in his line, including picture frames and mouldings for the Christmas trade.

—Mrs. Kane's "musicale" at the Moore cottage last Friday evening was a very enjoyable event, and constituted another milestone as marking musical advancement in Charlevoix.

—Circuit court is in session this week. Last night one case had been disposed of—that of Morris Dorris, of Clarion, for violation of the liquor law. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Sentence deferred.

—The Buckley's hunting party returned from the north shore Saturday and unloaded seventeen deer, several coons and a wild cat. The boys about all had a deer or more to their credit, and had a good time.

—We carelessly omitted, last week, to mention the death of Miss Ione Newland, of this place, which occurred on the 15th. The funeral occurred at the Congregational church on Saturday morning, Rev. A. C. Cook officiating, and was largely attended. Mrs. Newland was a daughter of Mrs. James Martin, of this place.

—Tomorrow will be Thanksgiving day. We have much to be thankful for in a general sense, and locally we have "no kick coming." It is evidently proper to observe the day in accordance with the ancient American usage—expression of gratitude to the Giver of all good and perfect gifts, and the good cheer of the family circle.

—The Charlevoix Jr. H. boys are to have a "shoot" up on the north side at 10:00 tomorrow, the losing side to pay for a supper at the Hotel in the evening, and a great time is expected. All are invited to participate in the supper. Bill $1.00 per couple. Those desiring supper please notify Messrs. Kenyon, Pearson or Paddock, committee.

—On Saturday last Register of Deeds Pearson received for record a certificate of discontinuance of suit commenced in the circuit court of Ingham county, in January, in 1887, by the State ex. rel., against the G. R. & I. R. R. Co. et. al. The instrument operates as a discharge of its jewelers. The suit involved the question of the right of the said railroad company to hold lands under the old government grant, and consequently involved the title of many well improved farms in northern Michigan. This discharge clears all titles, and lifts a cloud from the mind of many a farmer.

—An Escanaba special of the 20th says: The steamer Columbia, with Deputy Game Warden Brewster of Michigan, and Deputy Game Warden Hissenger of Wisconsin, arrived here last evening. The wardens found a party of fishermen engaged in their work on the Menominee, and made a big seizure. Seventeen hundred feet and width of nets were taken, and the following tugs: Ehman, Fishback, unknown, and schooner Brewery City. All were actively engaged in fishing in the closed season for trout and whitefish. Fourteen fishermen were arrested and will be prosecuted on several different charges. The work was being done for the A. Booth Packing Co.

—F. A. Watson has opened a music salon opposite the Hotel Bartlett, and besides handling the Baldwin & Co. pianos and organs, will keep small musical instruments and general current supplies, including sheet music, to which department special attention will be given, the latest productions both in vocal and instrumental to be kept in stock. An institution of this kind is something Charlevoix has long needed. We hope it will be a success, and think it will, if encouraged by musical people and musical students.

Emma S. Parry, wife of James Parry, of this place, died at her home on Sunday morning last, of pneumonia. Mrs. Parry was born in Nova Scotia 62 years ago, the early part of her life being spent in Boston and vicinity. She came to Charlevoix with her husband in 1884. She was a great sufferer during the two weeks of her illness, but "died and was peace." The funeral occurred Tuesday afternoon, from the residence. Rev. E. A. Cook officiating.

Marine Notes.

The st. James tug Clara Elliot is here to be hauled out.

The steamer Mary, of St. Ignace, arrived here Monday and will be hauled out at Wadsworth's yard for repairs.

Last Christmas Capt. Pete Campbell, of the Hackley, ate his turkey at the Beavers and the season before experts to be running that late this winter, and perhaps later.

Capt. J. M. Emery and S. M. Rose returned the schooner Jack Lynn of Traverse Point last Wednesday night, and took her into Northport. Monday the tug Taylor went from here and took her to Manistee, where she will go into dry dock and be repaired, she is injured not very little.

Harbor Springs Republican: The steamer Joe, now of St. James, Capt. Neil Gallagher, flying the colors of Wolverine fishing company of Detroit, was in the harbor Monday leaving in the evening for St. James. The Joe is a recent purchase of Capt. Gallagher. He informs us that next season the boat will be placed on the route between the islands and the shore making regular tri-weekly trips from St. James to Charlevoix, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Cross Village and Sturgeon Bay. We trust this announcement will be carried into effect.

Norwood Notes.

Charles Brown, of Manistique, was here over Sunday.

The schooner Maize is due here tonight from Milwaukee with grain for the roller mills, and will lay up.

The mighty hunters of this town have all returned except Nick Sherer, who is expected on Wednesday.

W. H. Sugerman has resigned the office of town treasurer, and Robert Trimble has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

The N. O. T. M. together with the rest of the people, will have Thanksgiving dinner at the town hall. The whole day will be given to this celebration, closing with an oyster supper in the evening.

The East Jordan Lumber Co. is now employing upward of seven hundred and fifty men.

The East Jordan Lumber Co. are said to be getting up a large stock farm south-east of town, and across the line in Wilson.

The Methodists at Acme have just completed the building of a neat little church, they and the Bellaire members will take place Thanksgiving day.

Geo. H. Mattis, who for a number of years was proprietor of the Bank of East Jordan, and later interested in a bank at Lacota, has just opened a private bank at Harbor Springs.

The surveying of the route of the proposed electric railroad from Traverse City to Old Mission, has been completed. The road will be seventeen miles long and will be a great factor in developing the peninsula which it will traverse.

Considering the fact that the secretary of state reports that 10 per cent more patents have been issued to deer hunters than ever before, and that, consequently, more book fire in the woods, few complaints have been received of illegal hunting. Game Warden Moore has been particularly vigilant and his deputies have been instructed to be on the alert all the time. The game warden stationed at deputy Conifer of Mackinac City this season for the last time, with good results, owing the fixing here, after the first few days after the opening of the season that had evidently been billed for some time, as some of them had been salted with all were "strung." Mr. Morse makes the suggestion that, as the law allows five days after the close of the season for the shipment of deer, it should also require that five days should elapse from the opening before any could be sent out of the vicinity in which they were killed, so that would help do away with the now prevalent practice of so many hunters that go to the woods a week before the opening of the season for sake of having the first shot before they are legally entitled to it. As the law stands now, a license can be purchased almost any time, but Mr. Morse thinks that if it were impossible for him on until immediately preceding the legal time forever violations of the law would result; as now, would wait for their papers. Reports of returning sportsmen show that more deer are being killed this season than for many years past.

Harvey J. Cook, the old soldier of Charlevoix who had both feet cut off by C. G. R. & I. engine, at Petoskey, during the encampment in June, has commenced a suit in the Charlevoix county circuit court against the road, claiming $25,000 damages.

The Torch says that the Intermediate Valley Spiritual Association have rented of T. B. Hudson a piece of ground at the head of Thomas street, in Central Lake, containing the natural spring and grove, for a term of years and will hold camp meetings there a part of July and a part of August hereafter.

A man named James Harris, who had been cutting wood for the Antrim Iron Co., at Edwards siding, on the C. H. & L. road, went to Elmira last Friday, got intoxicated, and his dead body was found by the side of the railroad track the next morning. It is supposed he was struck by a train. The last is he was struck by train.

It is said that in the consolidation of the F. & P. M. and the C. & W. M. railway systems, although the name is to be "Pere Marquette Railway," the different parts will still retain their present name as a division. Thus Bay City will be called the C. & W. M. division of the Pere Marquette Railway.

A deed is being recorded in the counties from Grand Traverse to Emmet, conveying the tax railroad from Traverse City north to Hey Vaux, from the Chicago & Northern Michigan Railroad Co., the name of the corporation which built the extension to the Chicago & West Michigan Ry. Co., in consideration of the deed is also authorized the consideration named for the entire property is but one dollar, or it is said to be presumed by with internal revenue stamps to the amount of over $1,000,000.

Traverse City Record: The case of the village of Central Lake against E. W. Hubbell of that city, promises to be of more than local interest, as there may be a decision involved that will virtually annul all village license ordinances, in so far as they refer to the selling of goods by agents for firms outside of the state where the goods are out of the state at the time of sale. Briefly stated, the case is as follows: Mr. Hobbell is taking orders for silver ware for the Mutual Manufacturing Co. of New York. He takes orders only for future delivery, and for goods that are outside of the state at the time that the orders are taken. His house has instructed him to pay no village licenses, and that they will back all suits arising from this nonpayment. The village of Central Lake requires a license fee of $1 per day for all peddlers, hawkers or sellers of goods on foot, and the failure to pay this license fee caused the suit. The case was tried in the court of Justice Caleb Green, and the defendant admitted all the facts claimed by the plaintiff in the complaint, but E. W. Fletcher, was on the ground that the ordinance, if enforced, would be a practical annulment of the clause of the constitution which provides that "congress shall make laws regulating the commerce between the different states. The jury in the case court sustained the ordinance, and fined Mr. Hubbel guilty as charged, and a fine of $5 and costs of $15 was imposed. The case was at once appealed to the circuit court, and will come up at the next session for Antrim county. It is probable that the two parties to the action will agree upon a statement of facts, and submit the case to trying to the court without the taking of testimony. In case of a decision against him in the circuit court, Mr. Hubbell will appeal to the supreme court. Mr. Fletcher seems confident that the case must be decided in favor of the defendant, and expressing reasons why authorities should do so cite in the case. The trial will occur at Bellaire before Judge Mayo, probably next week.

Marine Notes.

The tug Gilbert towed a schooner to Cedar bay Saturday.

The Beaver Island steamer Ivy was here over Sunday.

The tug Spear, of Burlington, was in port Sunday, bound north.

Both N. M. T. L. and G. R. railroads are now full loads of freight both ways. They will probably both run until Dec. 1st.

The lighthouse tender Dahlia left here saturday morning for Sturgeon Bay canal and Chicago, having taken up all the stakes buoys and stored them here.

Capt. Peterson's boat, the schooner Rosa Belle and H. H. Moore are making their last trips for the season. The Moore left yesterday. The Rosa Belle is looking at Petoskey.

Reid Bros., of Northport, have sold the wreck of the schooner Kate Lyon to Capt. Peter Petzer, of Capt. J. U. Emery, who was here Sunday with the steamer Onekama, taking and marine diver Rose back with him. Capt. Petzer says the vessel is lodged but little, and expects to get her off. The Lyon registers 230 tons, and is said to be a very good vessel.

Capt. E. E. Chase, of Traverse City, has purchased the schooner Harvey Hanson, lately owned by Capt. Dellingler, of the Beaver. The Hanson is a staunch and true little craft and well suited to the shipping of freight between lake ports. The vessel is finely built and was originally constructed for a trip around the world, by a friend Hanson physician.

The business men's association of Traverse City, have forwarded to the Michigan senate a bill of sixteen lines urging the construction of a breakwater to protect the harbor of that city. For some time past the subject has been agitated among business organizations, and all lake vessel interests have cordially approved the movement.

The Northern Michigan Transportation Co. has been notified that a suit has been lodged against it of $5,120 for failure to comply with the provisions of the river law. The secretary of state of Illinois recently sent out blank forms to all Illinois corporations which each had to fill out, declaring that it was not a trust or part of any trust. The fine imposed is the penalty for non-observance of the law requiring the forms to be filled out and returned.

What an altogether desirable and effective thing it would be if Charlevoix and all up-lake towns would this winter join in a bonafide effort to secure a big appropriation for Charlevoix harbor, which, in the official engineers, certainly is worth the money. But who, including the oldest inhabitant, ever heard of any uptake effort in this direction? Every detail of the work for this harbor for the past thirty years has been done by Charlevoix and who have been the great sufferers? This is a matter for our uptake friends to think about.

The steamboat H. L. Worthington, to sling the large D. R. Martin bound from St. Ignace to Chicago, lumber laden, shipped here Tuesday night as I picked up the large Johnson, Wilson, also lumber laden. The Worthington is tied for two months as owned by S. H. Chamberlain, of Chicago, the captain of the Worthington is Wm. Chamberlain, father of the owner, and the master of the Wilson is a son of the owner, and grandson of the master of the Worthington. The 70 year old skipper of the steamer is as lively as his grandson of the Wilson's quarter deck.

For a comfortable smoke call for the "Brevet."

Close Season Spawn Gathering.

That provision of the fish laws which permits the U. S. Fish Commission to supply hatcheries during the close season to catch lake trout for the gathering of spawn, is manifestly wrong.

The law confines the commission with a broad discretion as to the date also of such taking, and the character and extent of the nets employed. The arrangement with the fishermen employed, does no less than to render inoperative the close season law during the season of such taking, inasmuch as by virtue of the contract between them and the commission, the fish caught are turned over to the fishermen as compensation for their services, the commission retaining only the eggs.

From the fact that this period of taking is a local prohibition of any during the year, those employed in the work are favored above their fellows. The result is made more manifest from the fact that only the largest plants are employed—those using steam tugs—this shutting out the poorer fishermen, who could have equal rights before the law, whether to benefit or to penalize are invoked.

There can be no more striking illustration of the force of this argument than the work in these and contiguous waters. The prosperous fisheries caught twenty-five tons of lake trout; others from ten to fifteen tons. Yet the poor outcast fellows must get their nets on the reef and stand by and look on.

In the prosecution of its work, which is unquestionably of limitless benefit to the fishing industry, the commission should own or charter the craft which are used in the work, paying the hands employed, and selling the fish on their own account.

As it now is, there is much dissatisfaction and ill feeling among fishermen, and justly so.

But if this system is continued in operation, at least there should be such joint action on the part of the fish commission and the warden's department that justice may be done to those who are favored above their neighbors by the distribution of benefits.

We would say nothing to prejudice public opinion pending the trial of a case in court, but we believe that two departments the bonds of which are distant from the field of work, and separated from each other, should establish a joint bureau if information be their mutual benefit and to further the ends of justice.

The famous "Brevet" cigar is a worthy with all smokers.

—Ed. Bennett went to Cross Village this morning.

About the fish egg question, with which Charlevoix has had so much to do this fall, the fact has been made apparent that Charlevoix is the logical location for a permanent fish hatchery. When the State land commission of Michigan, in an experimental hatchery was established here, and the State commission were entirely satisfied with results—so much so that they would have recommended a permanent hatchery had it not been for the action of the legislature in cutting down appropriations during the session of 1895-6, and that of the subsequent session in turning the work over to the United States commission. The fact remains, nevertheless, that the creation of a hatchery here by the government would be money well expended, and our people should make an effort to bring it about by every means in their power. The reasons for the establishment of the lighthouse depot here, apply with equal force to fish propagation. Charlevoix is the natural commercial and industrial center of the fishing interests of the straits and bay regions, and a hatchery by water now months in the year from any point within a radius of 150 miles. We are convinced that the right kind of work at a Washington would result in success, because we have the cold facts to support our claim—facts that are easy of proof—facts backed up by capricious and figures.

—Petoskey Record: We are very much pleased to note various references in the state papers to the next session of the republican newspaper association at Charlevoix. We hope that our Charlevoix friends will spare neither pains nor expense to make it a successful affair, because for that occasion Charlevoix is acting for all of us, and represents the combined interest of Little Traverse Bay towns. The fact is that the time for small politics and trivialities has gone by. Men with prospective vision see the thrift and beautiful shores of Little Traverse bay from Charlevoix to the beautiful round to Cross Village dotted with handsome summer homes, beautiful towns and another parks illighted by electricity, with rapid transit trains at their door, and in the larger development fund prosperity has no place. The holding of the Department Encampment in Petoskey last June cost Petoskey a few hundred dollars, but we believe that no man who contributed to the fund regrets his generous gift. It was a great advertisement not only for a month's but for Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, and Bay View. We heard Petoskey talked about in Philadelphia, and most of men will be here next year with their families and every year thereafter, who were never here before that encampment. In a sensible way the state convention of undertakers, brought here by Hentka & Son, and the Kentucky editorial association, brought here by Hi. A. Peck, of the New Arlington, last summer, were of the greatest use and benefit. Therefore we are glad that our Charlevoix friends are to save the Michigan republican editors with them next June; and we hope that they will give them that cordial open-handed entertainment which is a characteristic of our northern people, and cause them to fall in love with Charlevoix and the beauties of Little Traverse bay.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. COBB, COM'R.

It would be a very easy matter for each school district in the county to establish a school district library if the matter was attended to in due season. The matter should be brought before the annual school meeting and if approved by two-thirds of the voters, a report of the action should be filed in the office of the township clerk.

The school district is then entitled to its share of the volumes in the township library, also its due share of money in the School Inspector's hands for library purposes, and thereafter the district will receive its share of library money at the time of the appropriation, all of these divisions to be made free rate.

Nearly every one of the so-called district libraries have failed to report to the township clerk, and a number that are reported to the department of Public Instruction as school district libraries have been started by donations, socials, etc., and the library being placed in the school house is generally known as a district library, when in fact the library can, at be recognized as a legally organized library and loses a great many volumes of vital interest to the school district. We wish to call the attention of school patrons to this subject.

Organize a district school library. Use a portion of your one mill tax each year in supplying your school library with supplementary reading matter, and see what an impetus you will give to your school.

It is unnecessary for me to go into detail and enumerate all the benefits to be derived from a good working school district library. Every person of the school age acknowledge the necessity of a good library in this age.

Look up this subject and think it over, and when the proper time comes take the necessary legal steps to organize a good working school district library.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made by Ira Ingersoll and Ella Ingersoll, his wife, of Detroit, Michigan, to Jacob Kotzebue, of Detroit, Michigan, dated the second day of April, 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, on the twelfth day of April, 1894, in Liber 15 of Mortgages, on page 500, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of Twenty-Three Hundred Dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof; and the undersigned, the assignee of said mortgage, hereby gives notice that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, I, the undersigned, will sell the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, with interest and costs, at public vendue, at the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the first day of December, 1899, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day. The premises covered by said mortgage are situated in the Village of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, and are described as follows: Lots 1 and 2 in Block 1 in Ingersoll's Addition to the Village of Charlevoix, according to the recorded plat thereof. The land and the appurtenances will be sold to satisfy said mortgage, the principal and interest thereon, with the costs, taxes and attorney fees allowed by law, which are hereby stipulated and agreed to be a lien on said premises, and the expenses of said sale, and the attorney fee stipulated in said mortgage.

—Miss Kate Kirkpatrick returned home from Grand Rapids yesterday.

—I. G. Mosier has begun the erection of a residence on his Petoskey street property.

—Miss Carrie Gotken left Monday for Big Rapids to enter the Ferris Industrial School for the winter.

—There will be a Thanksgiving supper at Barnard church on Thursday evening for the benefit of the pastor.

—Hev. A. E. Nagler spends next Sunday at Fife Lake, at the re-opening of the new M. E. church at that place.

—John Mitchell and wife, of Ironville, returned last week from their old home in Scotland, where the great treat of the tourist.

—Mrs. Lewis Miller, of Traverse City, has been here the past week, visiting her sisters, Mrs. H. N. Faulkner and Mrs. Ella Hay.

—Priest, the photographer, will have an ad. next week, concerning special work in his line, including picture frames and mountings for the Christmas trade.

—Mrs. Kane's "musicale" at the Moore cottage last Friday evening was a very enjoyable event, and constituted another milestone, as marking musical advancement in Charlevoix.

—Circuit court is in session this week. Last night one case and been disposed of—that of Jerome Jenkins, of Charlton, for violation of the liquor law. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Sentence deferred.

—The Hackley's hunting party returned from the north shore Saturday and unloaded seventeen deer, several bears and a wild cat. The boys seem all had a deer or more to their credit, and had a good time.

—We carelessly omitted, last week, to mention the death of Mrs. Geo. Nowland, of this place, which occurred on the 16th. The funeral occurred at the Congregational church on Saturday morning, Rev. A. E. Cook officiating, and was largely attended. Mrs. Nowland was a daughter of Mrs. James Martin, of this place.

—To-morrow will be Thanksgiving day. We have much to be thankful for in a general sense, and lastly we have "the kick coming." It is evidently proper to observe the day in accordance with the ancient Anglican usage—expression of gratitude to the Giver of all good and perfect gifts, and the good cheer of the family circle.

—The Charlevoix K. P. boys are to have a "smoke" up on the north side in 1902 tomorrow, the today title to pay for a supper at the Elston in the evening, and a great time is expected. All are invited to participate in the supper. Bill $1.00 per couple. Those desiring supper please notify Messrs. Kenyon, Dashow or Hadlock, committee.

On Saturday last Register of Deeds Pearson received for record a certificate of discontinuance of suit commenced in the circuit court of Ingham county, in chancery, in 1891, by the State of Mich. against the G. R. & I. R. R. Co., et al. The fact must operates as a discharge of its pendency. The suit involved the question of the right of the said railroad company to hold lands under the old government grants, and consequently involved the title of many well improved farms in northern Michigan. This discharge closes all titles, and lifts a shadow from the mind of many a farmer.

—An Escanaba special of the 23d says: The Menominee Columbian, with Deputy Game Warden Brewster of Michigan, and Deputy Game Warden Blessinger of Wisconsin, arrived here last evening. The wardens found a party of fishermen engaged in their nets off Beidler's Point, and made a big seizure. Seventeen hundred dollars' worth of nets were taken, and the following boys: Bluto, Fishhawk, Oshkosh, and Scanor Brewer City. All were actively engaged in fishing in the closed season for trout and whitefish. Fourteen fishermen were arrested and will be prosecuted on several different charges. The work was being done for the A. Booth Packing Co.

—F. A. Watson has opened a music store opposite the Hotel Bartlett, and besides handling the Ballwin & Co. pianos and organs, will keep small musical instruments and general musical supplies including sheet music, to which department special attention will be given, the latest productions both in vocal and instrumental to be kept in stock. An institution of this kind is something Charlevoix has long needed. We hope it will be a success, and think it will, if encouraged by musical people and musical students.

Emma S. Perry, wife of James Perry, of this place, died at her home on Sunday morning last of pneumonia. Mrs. Perry was born in Nova Scotia 62 years ago, the early part of her life having been spent in Boston and vicinity. She came to Charlevoix with her husband in 1884. She was a great sufferer during the two years of her illness, but "her end was peace." The funeral occurred Tuesday afternoon, from the residence. Hev. E. A. Cook officiating.

Marine Notes.

The St. James tug Chas Elliot is here to be hauled out.

The steamer Mary, of St. Ignace, arrived here Monday and will be hauled out at Wilson's yard for repairs.

Last Christmas Capt. Pete Campbell, of the Hackley, set his turkey at the Beaver, and the same skipper expects to be running that into this winter, and perhaps later.

Capt. J. M. Emery and S. D. Rose released the schooner Kate Lyon off Traverse Point last Wednesday night, and took her into Northport. Monday the tug Taylor went from there and took her to Manistee, where she will go into dry dock and be repaired, she is injured but very little.

Harbor Springs Republican: The steamer Joe, now of St. James, Capt. Neil Gallagher, flying the colors of Walworths fishing company of Detroit, was in the harbor Monday leaving in the evening for St. James. The Joe is a recent purchase of Capt. Gallagher. He informs us that next season the boat will be placed on the route between the islands and the shore making regular tri-weekly trips from St. James to Charlevoix, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Cross Village and Sturgeon Bay. We trust this announcement will be carried into effect.

Norwood Notes.

Charles Brown, of Mancelona, was here over Sunday.

The schooner Maine is due here to-morrow from Milwaukee with grain for the roller mills, and will lay up.

The mighty hunters of this town have not released Lempi Nick Brown, who is expected on Wednesday.

W. H. Sugerman has resigned the office of town treasurer, and Robert Trimble has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

The K. O. T. M. together with the rest of the people, will have Thanksgiving dinner at the town hall. The menus day will be given to this entertainment, closing with an oyster supper in the evening.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The East Jordan Lumber Co. is now employing upward of seven hundred and fifty men.

The East Jordan Lumber Co. are said to be doing up a large stock farm south east of town, and across the line in Wilson.

The Methodists at Acme have just completed the building of a neat little church there and the dedication services will take place Thanksgiving day.

Geo. H. Martin, who for a number of years was proprietor of the Bank of East Jordan, and later interested in a bank at Lansing, has just opened a private bank at Harbor Springs.

The surveying of the route of the proposed electric railroad from Traverse City to Old Mission has been completed. The road will be seventeen miles long and will be a great factor in developing the peninsula which it will traverse.

Petoskey Record: The last issue of the state reports that 10 per cent more licenses have been issued to fishermen than ever before, and that, consequently, more men are in the woods, few complaints have been received of illegal hunting. Game Warden Morse has been particularly vigilant and his deputies have been instructed to be on the alert all the time. The game warden and deputy Coulter at Mackinaw City this season for the last time, with results, several deer being seen before the first few days after the opening of the season that had evidently been killed for some time, as some of them had been salted and all were wormy. Mr. Morse makes the suggestion that, at the law allows five days after the close of the season for the shipment of deer, it should also require that five days should elapse from the opening before any could be sent out of the vicinity in which they were killed, so that would help do away with the now prevalent practice of so many hunters that go to the woods a week before the opening of the season for sake of having the first shot before they are legally entitled to it. As the law stands now, a license can be obtained almost any time, but Mr. Morse thinks that it is were impossible to obtain one until immediately preceding the legal time fewer violations of the law would result, as men would wait for their pastime. Reports of returning sportsmen show that more deer are being killed this season than for many years past.

Harvey J. Cook, the old soldier of Charlevoix who had both feet cut off by a G. R. & I. engine, at Petoskey, during the encampment in June, has commenced a suit in the Charlevoix county circuit court against the road, claiming $25,000 damages.

The Torch says that the intermediate Valley Spiritual Association have purchased the Hotel Ottawa, on ground at the head of Thomas street, in Central Lake, containing the usual spring and grove, for a term of years, and will hold camp meetings there a part of July and a part of August hereafter.

A man named James Harris, who had been cutting wood for the Antrim Iron Co., at Milworts setting up to the G. R. & I. road, went to Elmira last Friday, get intoxicated, and his friend took him home by the side of the railroad track for the most of the way. It is supposed he was struck by a train. The fact is, he was struck by something.

It is said that in the consolidation of the F. & P. M. and the C. & W. M. railway systems, although the name is to be the "Pere Marquette Railway," the different parts will still retain their present name, as a division. This there road up here will be the C. & W. M. division of the Pere Marquette Railway.

A deed is being recorded in the counties from Grand Traverse to Emmet, conveying title to the railroad from Traverse City north to Bay View, from the Chicago & Northern Michigan Railroad Co., the name of the corporation which built the extension to the Chicago & West Michigan Ry. Co. A peculiarity of this deed is that although the consideration named is nominally one dollar, it is one dollar, it is said to be plastered up with internal revenue stamps to the amount of $1,000.

Traverse City Herald: The case of the village of Central Lake against E. W. Hubbes of this city, promises to be of more than local interest, as there may be a decision involved that will outlawed sound all village license ordinances, so far as they refer to the selling of goods by agents for firms outside of the state where the goods are out of the state at the time of sale. Briefly stated, the case is as follows: Mr. Hubbell is taking orders for silver ware for the Mutual Manufacturing Co. of New York. He takes orders only for future delivery, and for goods that are outside of the state at the time that the orders are taken. His house has instructed him to pay no village licenses, and that they will back all suits arising from this necessary procedure. The village of Central Lake requires a license fee of $1 per day for all peddlers, hucksters or sellers of goods on foot, and the failure to pay the license has caused the suit. The case was tried in the court of Justice Caleb Green, and the defendant adjudged guilty as charged, and a fine of $5 and costs of $15 was imposed. The case was then appealed to the circuit court, and will come up at the next session for a jury trial. It is probable that the two parties to the suit will agree upon a statement of facts, and submit the case to writing to the court without the taking of testimony. In case of a decision against Mr. Hubbell in the circuit court, Mr. Hubbell will appeal to the supreme court. Mr. Fletcher has intimated that the case could be decided in favor of the defendant, and in preventing numerous authorities as objective to cite in the case. The trial will occur at Bellaire before Judge Mayon, probably next week.

CHAPTER IX.

"Dear Sir:—Now, I'm sorry to be obliged to write to you in this way, but I have been waiting and hoping for a long time for you to come to your senses, and I can't wait any longer. Unless you come home at once I shall be obliged to—well, I don't like to think what I shall do, but I can't stand it much longer. Your whole heart seems to be given to your business, and there is no room in it for me. I can't blame you for being so fond of your work, for I know how well you succeed in it, and I know how proud I am of you. But I want your heart, too, and I can't stand this much longer. Come home at once, or I shall do something desperate.

"Yours in haste,
"ALICE."

"Well, I'm sorry, of course, that she feels so, but I can't help it. I can't leave my business now, and she ought to know that I can't. I wish she would be reasonable and not make me feel that I ought to give up everything for her. I can't do it, and I wish she would understand that I can't. I'll write to her and explain to her that I can't leave my business at this time, and that she must be patient a little longer. I can't be disturbed in this way."

Lord Vincent, sought by letter and by telegram, but in vain, to induce his son to return to his home. Lord Vincent was a proud man, and he was hurt and angry at his son's neglect of his wife. He had taken a great fancy to Alice, and had looked forward to her coming to his home as a welcome addition to his family circle. He was disappointed and grieved at his son's neglect of her, and he was indignant at the manner in which she was treated by her husband. He had written to Alice, and had received a letter from her in which she had spoken very lightly of her husband's neglect, and had made excuses for him, saying that he was so busy that he could not leave his business for a day or two. She had said that she was very happy in her new home, and had spoken very lightly of her husband's neglect, and had made no complaint of it to her father-in-law.

ALUMINUM IN LITHOGRAPHY.

Advantages of the Metal Plate Over the Cumbersome Stone.

A steady demand for at stones is sustaining up in various kinds of printing processes, as well as on the continent. When its surface is properly prepared it is capable of taking also a secondary lithographic stone. The advantages of having instead of cumbrous and heavy stones, which can be handled only on special slow-motion elevator machinery, a thin sheet of metal which can be bent into a circular form and placed on rotary presses, are obvious. In Germany five-pound sheets of aluminum are being used as substitutes for the usual Solenhofen limestone slabs weighing 50 to 100 pounds. After being polished with pumice powder, the aluminum sheets are dried and washed with a patent acid solution, and after a second drying are ready for the impress. The sheets can only be used on the stone, to correct an error in the ink has simply to be wiped out with acid; there is no inability to transfer under heavy pressure, and each space is always ready and kept for drawing are stored. The quality of work done on the metal plates is superior, and many establishments in Germany are now using aluminum plates and rotary presses.

ELECTROPLATING SHIPS.

Experiments with Copper on a Tug Press Successful.

From the following report on the condition of the bottom of the tug Sagamore of the navy department it is evident plating of iron hulls with copper appears to be a success. The Sagamore was electroplated with copper to a depth of one-twenty second of an inch when launched in 1890, and which it was taken out of the water at the Norfolk navy yard a few days ago it was found that practically no electrolysis had set in and that the bottom was about clear of barnacles and other marine growths. At the time when it was launched here the Sagamore been docked or cleaned. During the four years it operated a number of hard knocks and bumps on the dockers, their County Wicklow coal from 10 while, and nails and shoulders of men and women. Even some parts of some recently influential Members of the Dublin corporation, and people from the county and district in, and other, were amongst those who had to be kept in bed. Gathering or the Sagamore is finitely novel in Ireland, and it was clean and musical and the sale go freely.

HOW DICKENS WORKED.

He Paid No Attention to the Warnings of the Doctors.

Charles Dickens, son of the great novelist, has had blow recklessly his father killed himself by giving public readings. "There was something of a mania, willful exaggeration," he says "of a defiance of any possible consequence of mind or body, in the fourth, suit of energy" with which these readings were carried on and carried out. It would almost seem that he might have been living and writing novels to this day if he had not persisted in spite of all warnings in giving public readings which, as happened his strength and estimators killed him. Among other serious symptoms he noticed that he could read only the leaves of the letters and the stop dose on his right. The end challenge was imparted, the old attacking signs often followed. One night at the St James hall I remember he was unable to read his notes, and called it all sorts of nerves caused by a bad cold. Another night, I remember at the occasion of the front rows which always were reserved for his family and friends. In fact, when my father deserted himself, in a letter written to Mr Dilly on the eve of the breakdown, as being a little ass of sixty, he was in fact on the brink of

WISE WOODPECKERS.

How They Drive Worms from the Inside of a Tree.

A Chicago professor who has been in the Maine woods this summer tells an interesting story of the intelligence of a family of woodpeckers which he encountered near the headwaters of the Allagash and which were seemingly delighted lords. As every one knows who has observed these birds at all, they feed in the worms which burrow into trees. Any worm with a fair amount of activity can have a gallery three or four feet long in a tree in a single season, to find and prey the woodpecker has to make several holes in the tree in order to get at his victim. This particular family of woodpeckers, having some difficulty in getting at the worms after they had driven a hole into an gallery, proceed to save themselves unnecessary work. And what do you think they did? In the Allagash woods grows the "Indian pipe," a plant with large white flowers, which are particularly disagreeable to all animal life. And so these Allagash wood

WOMEN POLICEMEN OF LONDON

Queer Occupation of a Crowd of Women Once Thence.

London has many queer things in the base extent of its area, but none queerer than its women guardians of the streets for London, unknown to most of its inhabitants, has a police force of women, of which from not even in any other city on earth. In order to see it work you must get up very early on Friday morning and visit Covent Garden market. There you will see such a block of traffic and such a crowd of angry and unreasonable drivers that you will not be surprised at the Metropolitan police giving up the duty of keeping order as an impossible job. But still you will find that things come right in the end, and on looking to find how this is brought about you will probably be surprised to discover that Covent Garden has a force of women at its itself in the shape of some hundred or so of old women. They dart in and out among the cars, the horses and the stop, or back their horses or more on. They shout and sweep and shake their fists, and calm

MARCONI'S NEW MARVEL.

Twelve Messages from St. Paul at Sea in the Mouth of England.

The Marconi Line steamer St. Paul, which arrived at Southampton the other day, had a short passage for a boat so powerfully equipped. Signor Marconi, from apparatus attached to the mainmast, satisfactorily communicated with wireless telegraphy with Poldhu, on the Poole coast, several dispatches from such points as Jersey, the Channel Islands, the Lizard, and the Scilly Isles. The coast of the United States (Nantucket and one or two inland stations) also responded, and we understand that the St. Paul, when off the Lizard, heard the signals from a station on the other side of the Atlantic. The station at Poldhu received twelve messages from the St. Paul, which was at sea, and forwarded them to the Marconi House, London, and to the Marconi station at Ballybunion, Ireland, from which place they were transmitted to the Marconi station at Clifden, Ireland, and thence by cable to London. The long distance at which the St. Paul was from Poldhu when the messages were received is not known, but it must have been very great. The St. Paul is the only boat equipped with the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy, and it is the property of the Marconi Company. The boat is 4,000 tons, and is 400 feet long. The system is also very powerful.

WILL MANUFACTURE PULP.

Michigan and Chicago Capitalists Interested in Project.

Negotiations have been in progress for some time between Chicago and Michigan capitalists and the firm of W. B. Mershon & Co., of Saginaw, with a view to the erection of a pulp mill, which will be supplied with the spruce and poplar which are so abundant in Michigan. The Mershon company owns 300 square miles of timber land, and has been supplying the Saginaw mills with logs for years. The new company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, and will be known as the Michigan Pulp Company. The company will manufacture pulp for the market, and will also supply its own mills with pulp. The company will be organized and incorporated in a few days, and will begin the work early in the spring. The company will have a capital of $1,000,000, and will be known as the Michigan Pulp Company.

PLAN A NORTHERN WATERWAY.

Project to Connect Grand Forks N. D., and Duluth by a Canal.

A project for a canal from Grand Forks, N. D., to Duluth, connecting the rich school region of the Red River valley with Lake Superior water, is spoken of by prominent Minneapolis and Duluth capitalists who have been in conference for some time past. The project is known as the Grand Northern Canal and Navigation Company. The canal would be about 150 miles in length, and would connect the Great Northern at one point with the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic at Duluth, and with the Canadian Pacific at Winnipeg. The canal would be 100 feet wide and 10 feet deep, and would be used for the transportation of lumber, ties, and other products of the forest, and for the transportation of grain and other products of the farm. It would also be used for the transportation of passengers. The canal would be fed by the Red River of the North, and would be navigable for the greater part of the year. It would be the longest canal in the United States, and would be the first canal in the United States to be used for the transportation of passengers. The canal would be the first step toward the completion of the Hudson Bay Canal, which would be the shortest route from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean, and would be the first step toward the completion of the Great Lakes-to-the-Gulf Waterway, which would be the greatest waterway on the continent. The Duluth Commercial Club is the main force in the work, and has appointed a committee to confer with the Minneapolis Commercial Club and the Minneapolis Commercial Club has appointed a committee to confer with the Duluth Commercial Club. The Minneapolis Commercial Club has also appointed a committee to confer with the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern with a view to the construction of the canal on Canadian soil. OVER A HUNDRED BRITISH SOLDIERS ARE CAPTURED.

Armored Train Falls Into an Ambush—Lieut. Churchill Among Prisoners—Boughers Tore Up Track and Wrecked the Train and Its Armament.

Intelligence from Natal by way of London Friday was reassuring as regards the safety of Ladysmith, but conveyed the news that the Boers successfully ambushed a armored train in an armored train and captured over 100 British, including Lord Randolph Churchill's son, Lieut. Winston Churchill. Reports indicate that the Boers are moving in the wind in the hope of cutting off the British communication. The reported death of Lieut. Hobson is discussed at the war office. The armored train where the Boers attacked was previously described.

Master "Brent."

The report of the Philippine commission to the secretaries of Admiral Dewey, the authorities of Father Doucy, and the confidence of every intelligent and observer of prominent men interrogation, continue to dispose of every thing and question upon which the so-called democratic orators of anti-imperialism has thus far back based. With other circumstances added the American people would be with the administration, as to the President's Philippine policy is concerned, in not less than twenty to one. No other attempted political issue of recent years has proven so ineffectual and hurtful to its promoters as has the greedy overbuilt of imperialism.—Detroit Tribune.

• • •

"Within five years from the present time," remarks the Kansas City Star, "the Philippine islands will have the best government of any land in the tropics—a government that will give the immigrant protection for life and property that will develop the native capabilities of the native not only for self government but also for the acquisition of wealth, and that will accomplish more in twenty years than has been done in the last two hundred years to make the islands a prosperous and happy land with a happy and prosperous people. Yet there are some Kansas people in this country who have so upset themselves up to the incomprehensible belief that the extension of the principles of the American government to this Pacific archipelago is a menace to the stability of our government on the continent."

Dewey has made a statement in which he says: "When I made over my house to my wife I thought that I was doing the most generous act an American gentleman could do. I thought that the people had given me the house to dispose of as I chose, but it seems that I was mistaken. I never would have sold, given, willed or disposed of it in any manner contrary to the family, but I believed that I had a right to give it to my wife. Mrs. Dewey informed me that I was thus I did the feelings of the people not declined at first to permit the transfer. Mrs. Dewey consented only after arrangement was effected whereby not only the house but her entire personal fortune which is considerable, was unconditionally to go to my son, George. I would never have believed it possible, the admiral continued, with tears in his eyes, "that the American people who made such a hero of me two months ago, could wave in this brief period so turned upon me as to fill columns of the papers with the most evil of stories." Dewey further said that he felt like throwing up everything, going on the retired list and living abroad. He added, however, that the had fought the battle of Manila.

General Joseph Wheeler is an American soldier whose opinions are to be taken with a great deal of serious consideration. He expressed on behalf of our government and its purposes. The distinguished general has been some time in the Philippines and has made a careful study of the conditions. He will not return to the United States in time for the opening of congress, but he has made known his sentiments regarding the duty of the government in the Philippines. He has written a letter which he has requested to be submitted to the house of representatives which reads as follows, in unmistakable terms: "Congress, if it occupies the first day of the session in passing a resolution declaring in unmistakable terms that the sovereignty of the United States is to be maintained in the islands, thus disposing Aguinaldo, delusion that the anti-imperialists can assist him, will be performing a service for which such a resolution would have the lives of many American soldiers and of thousands of deluded Filipinos, would avert famine, suffering and desolation from these islands, and would render unnecessary the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars." These sentiments from General Wheeler, whom all Americans respect for his patriotism, ability and as a person capable to rank as Bryan, Atkinson, Shurz, Mason and others who have been endeavoring to make a leader of Aguinaldo and patronize home in this following the defeated of our administration of the United States. Whatever the gentlemen mislead may believe regarding the Philippines, the opinions of men like General Wheeler will have weight with the American people and it's course will properly considering the politics which will come before that body.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. COON COMER'S.

Reading is the art of getting knowledge and is the one study of school upon which all other studies are based. It is the most important of all. The great end in reading is enjoyment. The teacher's duty is to see that pupils understand, completely comprehend, that they constitute an incident if, thinks, know it.

It is a sad fact that only those children who like to read ever become good readers. To secure the best results, intention and position in reading must be different from that which is in vogue in many schools. The thinking faculty must be emphasized rather than the vocal one.

The pupil must indeed be required to render each piece, but after the endeavor the question depends total by on his understanding of the thought and the appreciation of it, careful study must precede vocal effort.

Make the mind understand and feel and nature will provide the expression.

All the talented treatises in the world will all their force and bodies cannot enable a person to read orally and correctly a piece that he can not comprehend.

Pupils should not be confronted with isolated letters or words, they express no thought. In every exercise the beginner should have only complete thought, and from the first he should comprehend these thoughts thoroughly.

The teacher should never allow the pupil to attempt to render a sentence unless he has mastered the meaning and use of each word, and the complete thought expressed in the sentence.

The practice of prefacing the lesson with a few words for special study should be abandoned. The pupil is apt to think that the study of Pupil and teacher are a all that is necessary when he really should master and understand every word in the lesson.

Thus reading is a process whereby a second person obtains the thought of a first, and not one by which the second person conveys the thought of the first to a third. Books often are the best thought of the ages. Reading is the act of receiving that thought. Reading is a master mind for the mind than for the ears, and as such it should be taught.

The best reader is the one who, in silence, appropriates the meat that is good in the printed thought and sentiment of the page, and is stimulated and assisted most in his own thinking thereby.

The large warehouse on the steam boat dock of the Northern Michigan Transportation company, at Traverse City, which was filled with produce and merchandise, gave way Monday night shortly after 9 o'clock, and damaged from the 100,000 bushels of potatoes, 1,000 barrels salt, 200 bushels corn and oats, six pianos and a large quantity of furniture, groceries and merchandise. Damage to the dock and warehouse is estimated about $2,000. Some of the merchandise can probably be recovered. About 100 people left the interior of the wreck, as give way.

State Game Warden Morse is making a record for vigor and decisiveness that is creditable to him in every way. His energetic manner with which his department has gone after the illegal fishermen on the great lakes is having epidemic results. Near the bridge.

Little Mysteries.

Little readers are frequently puzzled to know the modern equivalents of little measures. Such persons will be interested in the table below given. A day's journey was about thirty miles and one mile. A Sabbath day's journey was about one English mile. Zoheleth's reel was near eleven feet. A hand's breadth is equal to three and four-fifths inches. A finger's breadth is equal to one inch. A shekel of silver was about 50 cents. A shekel of gold was about $8. A talent of silver was $1500. A talent of gold was $30,000. A piece of silver, or a penny, was 12 cents. A farthing was 2 cents. A mite was less than a quarter of a cent. A gerah was one cent. An ephah, or bath, contained seven gallons and five pints. A hin was two gallons and two pints. An omer was six pints.

The World's Largest Bell.

The largest bell in the world is in a Buddhist monastery, near Canton, China. It is sixteen feet high and forty-five feet in circumference and is of solid bronze. It is one of eight great bells which were cast by orders of the Emperor Yungle about A. D. 1400, and is said to have cost the lives of eight men, who were killed during the process of casting. The whole bell, both inside and out, is covered with an inscription in enclosed Chinese characters whose half an inch long, covering even the handle, the total number being 84,000. The characters tell a single story—that of the Chinese classics.

Electricity in Lighthouses.

It is generally conceded that the air light is unsatisfactory for use in lighthouses, partly owing to the scarcity machines to generate the gas. In fact, in this respect, many are farther ahead than in the best oil lamps used in light houses. The air when compressed to a specific gravity is seen to be rich in the blue and violet rays, which are easily absorbed by fog or mist, although they are being made to use large reflectors and lenses in lighthouses, as the large proportion of red rays that they contain are reported to pass through fog better than those of the air light.

Latest in the "Fishometer."

Of the travelling of long-fed cruising sharks there seems to be no end. The latest of these is an instrument to which it is said to record automatically and note the distance traveled by a shark, but also the various observations encountered during the journey and the time expended and consumed. The record of direction is obtained by means of a compass. The device is attached to the top of the fashion eider, on the apparatus is called. It really adorns the tops to which the records are taken.

MONOTONY

Lower Size to Have Sympathy Then Any Other Crime.

One would be pardoned for thinking that a man who carried his livelihood by working in the fresh air of the country, surrounded by sights sounds to use an ear and refreshing to the mind, would be far less liable to bitter illnesses than the man who toils in a stuffy atmosphere of the stuffy atmosphere of a smoke-dried city. But if statistics prove anything they prove the worthlessness of that possible supposition. More agricultural laborers go mad, per cent for per cent, than any other workers. It is monotony which earries disintegration, which changes into delusion, which changes into mania, which ends perhaps in a cure, possibly in a suicide act, normally in an asylum. It may allow be said that sanity saves thousands upon thousands from the madhouse. It is the one break from week to week which thousands of laborers demand. The agricultural because the artisan, and other similar classes of workers live on sunshine, broken here and there by a short incident which is thus become itself monotonous. A man, perhaps, drives team, he plows, tends every day of the week except Sunday; every morning of his life he moves his plough. He has no interest in his work he does it as a drudge for 5.30 on Saturday. He has one thing to do, and the more he does that the less does everything else. Occasionally the team becomes wild for want of work given on one Sunday and will go runaway. A She Gong is a healthy hobby when it does not become a habit. Indoor occupations, in a word, healthy recreation keep people out of the madhouse that, forbidding the doctors could not successfully ask the cods with it. Let it pass by, and it will answer excellently for boxing when a blow fit or regardful.

Halftone Photographs.

What is called photographing in relief is done by a Frenchman. The method is to place the concentrated light falls upon him from opposite sides, producing the effect necessary to produce photographs. This successive lines are taken, and a plate made from these after the lines have been already engraved.

Accidents with Kerosene.

Kerosene is a dangerous thing plays should be of high or medium, large lamps are caused by plants, burn on right, result, ashes.

Metals Get Vision.

Strange as it may seem, metals do living beings. Telegraph wires are lashed in Pennsylvania on Monday than on any day in summer or their Sunday rest, and a test of three weeks adds 10 per cent to the conductivity of a wire.

Bills Payable in Russia.

The year that not being a leap year in the Gregorian calendar, where it is so in the Julian model of calendar, the old style in Russia, will so from March 1, until be thirteen days behind the new style. This is a point of the utmost importance in regard to bills payable in Russia. Indeed, it happens very often that bills of a new upon from the later date, and the slightest error is sufficient to render void a promissory note or even an the events are very strict about loose matters. It is therefore, inadvisable to mention the old style in any such documents. The Russian calendar is quite necessary as Russia contains law provides that bills payable according to the new style, which is followed by nearly all the countries of Europe.—London Financial News.

Today Every Strength.

It is not widely known that M. Zola's early manhood suffered a blow of strange against poverty and despondency. Until he was a spotted child, but on his father's death he and his mother became the battle of life in Paris. Of this dark time Zola himself wrote: "Often I went hungry for days at a time that it seemed as though I must die. I scarcely tasted meat, from one month's end to another, and for two days I lived on a piece of bread. Of those days, and nights, was the unfortunate man who I should get a candle, by the light of which I might study at night."

A Startling Discovery.

A Pinole married couple in Belfast, Me., received a startling shock recently. They carried their baby to a photographer for a picture. In due time the proof came, amount fell to pieces at first failed to recognize it. The baby's features were there all right, and so were the pearly teeth and all the other features of a healthy baby, but the face had apparently grown a full beard while before the camera. The artist had used in the room a plate in which an incorrect picture of an old man had been taken and the two impressions combined so well that he saved the plate as a curiosity.

Biggest Wonder.

The Chicago girl portrays the highest wonder she is able to the world, that one of them, man, woman and child, has the sense of good hard and necessary for from the government for three years.

A Chinese Prayer Book.

The Chinese are not addicted to the use of machinery, but they know some. Using about interweaving devices, a man who got as well acquainted with a manufacturer that he dropped into the place to chat, one day noticed a queer little pile of rice paper over on the bench. Each sheet was interlined with numerous horizontal lines, and the Celestial was inquisitive and the Celestial was to know what it meant. He replied that it was a prayer book, and went on to say that he had a dozen such every . . . before going to bed, so as to expose it from opposition for the ensuing day. Rather than the Christian was shocked, the Celestial assured him that the prayers were fictitious in every particular and such other than he could compose himself. He added that these queer prayer books came from Paris, and the Chinese government allows none other than this brand to be issued.

Filipino Swimmers.

The courage shown by the Filipinos in battle with Americans as well as with Spanish troops long ago proved their natural bravery. An intelligent British traveler, Warren Hyde Lake who has received a careful education, both in Europe and America, writes thus concerning the feeling of his countrymen in time of peace: "The natives are all excellent swimmers, and are absolutely fearless in the water. I have seen groups of men diving thirty or forty feet for pennies dropped into the sea by friendly naval officers. Many miles with the greatest ease, and I to see uncommon sight to see groups of naked men plunging with great heartiness into a shoal of sharks, and which they fight with a ferocious that always results in victory."

A Long Pedigree.

The emperor of Japan is entitled to be considered the most aristocratic ruler on the earth. The royal family of Japan has a genealogical tree which reaches to Adam. There have been 121 "sovereigns" of Japan, and they all belong to this family. The first one reigned Japan 660 years ago. He was on the throne 300 years before Alexander the Great thought he had conquered the world. The Japanese have the history of all of their emperors from that time down to this, and the whole nation feels that it is an honor to be descendant of the first emperor.

THE SEA'S DEPTHS.

Where the "Deeps" Are Deepest—A Cool, Dark Bed.

London Globe. Next to Sir William Wilson's address the paper of greatest interest was that in which Sir John Murray described to the members of the international section the conditions of life in the great depths of the ocean. Of the 195,000,000 square miles which the ocean floor measures, more than half lie still, with a depth of between two and three ascertained miles, on the Challenger charts all the areas where the depths exceed 2,000 fathoms had been called "deeps," and distinctive names had been conferred upon them. Forty-three deep-sea areas were now known, 24 in the Pacific, 9 in the Atlantic and one in the Southern ocean. Within these "deeps" 24 soundings exceeding 4,000 fathoms, including three exceeding 5,000 fathoms. The greatest depth of all was in the sea of Filippino Islands, in the Tonga trench, where the depth was 5,000 fathoms, again 1,000 feet more than the level of the Alps. The highest peak of the Himalayas was above it, in the great depth lying below two geographical miles the water was very little above freezing point and was a region of darkness as well as cold, for the twilight rays of the sun were wholly absorbed by passing through the superficial layers of water. Vegetation was quite absent over 50 per cent of the ocean bed and that cold, dark floor was filled in dead marine organisms. In Sir John Murray's own words, "It may happen that over nearly the whole floor of the ocean we have little more than the remains of animals which had lived at the surface of the water in frigid, temperate, and the remains of those which had sunk down in the tropic seas and at a temperature near to the freezing point of water."

No Women as Funerals.

One of the curious social laws of Dyo-Dyo, women are not invited funerals, and they do not appear at work, or entertainment they are very intimate friends. When a funeral procession passes through the streets the coffin is carried upon the shoulders of the pallbearers, who are followed by an empty hearse drawn by two, four or six horses, according to the means of the mourners and their desire to display. All the male members of the family and friends of the deceased follow on foot, with a line of empty carriages behind them.

PLOT OF OFFICIALS.

CONSPIRATORS PLAN DEATH OF THE SULTAN.

Turkish Officials Discover Second Attempt to Kill the Commander-in-Chief—Ali Rifat Pasha Is Shot Dead in the Palace Precincts—Other Items.

At 1 o'clock yesterday morning a second attempt was made on the life of the Sultan. Ali Rifat Pasha, the commander-in-chief of the Ottoman forces, was shot dead in the palace precincts by a Turkish officer, who was subsequently killed by the guards. The plot was discovered, and the conspirators were arrested. The Sultan is now safe. Ali Rifat Pasha was a prominent figure in the recent war between Turkey and Greece. He was a Circassian by birth, and was married to a daughter of the Sultan. He was a man of great ability, and was considered the most capable of the Turkish generals. He was also a man of great personal bravery, and was very popular with the army. He was appointed commander-in-chief of the Turkish forces after the war with Greece, and was at the time of his death still in the position. The Sultan is said to be very much cast down by the news of the attempt on his life, and has ordered that the conspirators be punished with the utmost severity.

DAWSON TAKOTT IS IN JAIL.

Man Who Embezzled Among A. J. Small Adjudged Insane and Committed.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Dawson Takott, who is charged with embezzlement from A. J. Small, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, and who was arrested in Milwaukee on the request made by Mr. Small, was adjudged insane by Judge Kohlsaat in the United States court today and committed to the county jail. Takott was employed by Mr. Small in the Western Union office in Chicago. He was arrested on the request of Mr. Small, who charged that he had embezzled $1,000 belonging to the company. Takott's father, who is a wealthy resident of Milwaukee, came to Chicago and made the statement that his son had been insane for some time. He said that Takott had been in the habit of making extravagant presents to his friends, and had recently purchased a valuable piano for his sister. The young man's father said that he had offered to make good the money embezzled by his son, but that Mr. Small had refused to accept the restitution on the ground of insanity. Takott's father said that his son had shown symptoms of insanity for the past three years, and that he had recently had a violent attack of mania, during which he had attempted to commit suicide by throwing himself from a window. He said that he had placed his son in a private asylum in Milwaukee, but that he had escaped from the institution and had come to Chicago, where he had been employed by Mr. Small.

FIRE FOR NORTH DAKOTA.

New Policies Which Will Make Liquor Available for Use.

A most important proposition is to be submitted to the people of North Dakota at the November election, which will result in a great deal of discussion. This proposition is the question of the adoption of a state constitution which will make it possible for the people of North Dakota to secure the benefits of the local option law, which has been in force in South Dakota since the time of the division of the Dakotas. The question will be submitted to the people of North Dakota in the form of a separate article in the new constitution, which will be submitted to the people at the same time as the constitution itself. This article will provide that the people of any county may, upon the petition of a certain number of their fellow citizens, vote upon the question of the adoption of a local option law for their county, and if the majority of the people of any county shall vote in favor of the adoption of such a law, it will be the duty of the county officers to see that it is enforced. This provision

NORTHERN SURVIVAL.

Charlevoix and Antrim counties have remained about stationary and are progressing; build less than ever before.

A beautiful wild white swan was killed near Gaylord a week ago that measured 7 feet 2 inches from tip to tip of its wings.

Saint Joseph Sentinel: John Gillespie, who for a number of years resided on a farm farther west contiguous to this place, has removed to Saginaw. Mrs. Gillespie started for that city on Friday morning of last week.

Petoskey is now exploring in the finest lighting station in Northern Michigan. On Sunday two new 1000 candle power gasoline arc lamps were substituted with the system purchased by the city last year, but where service has been before been kerosene oil lamps.

Petoskey Enterprise: The Northern Michigan Transportation Co. brought in this city this week two car loads of groceries and provisions for the general store that it soon to be opened at Boyne Falls by Cobbs & Mitchell, the large lumbering firm at Cadillac.

At Frankfort Mrs. Mary Ludington, a divorced employee at Hartley's board ing house, is dying from a bullet wound in her head, received Thursday morning. The shooting was purely accidental and was done by a child who found the weapon, a 32 calibre revolver, lying on the floor.

The Montague Manufacturing Company which is doing such fine work in Hogan's last year. The new addition makes it the largest tub producing concern in the world. Six new hands (about 40 men) will be given steady employment there, and of this number about two-thirds will be from Manistee.

A Frenchman living near Manistee found a small quantity of tobacco on his place the past summer and the week is sold by commission to that section who have tried it, to be of fine flavor. Wm. Cowan had what some day the joint business of the up per peninsula may become great in Indian plantations, and then and at other to the list of things for which Michigan is famous!

The wind up for charity at Petoskey died hard, but when last year some young men gathered a lot of good cheer charity among the patrons of their charity balls had to give Thanksgiving night charitable. Petoskey gave a social reception at the Cushman under the auspices of the local benevolent society. Recitations and music took the place of the balls. Over $200 was realized for charity.

Port Huron Times: Mrs. Jane Gillespie, whom we mentioned as having suffered from a severe attack of rheumatism, and who since has been down 5 out nearly entirely, died at her home in Yale township, Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie belong to the pioneers of this county. Mr. Gillespie was in the mercantile business in Yale for many years, but of late years has been a big lumber operator. We mentioned in the Times some time ago that Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie had celebrated their golden wedding, and at that time they were in fine health and spirits. Mrs. Gillespie was about 70 years of age.

Grand Haven Tribune: The goods that were precipitated into the lake by the collapse of the warehouse Monday night, are all coming ashore, and the loss will be light. Nearly all of the goods, if not all, accounts fully perfectly fair, all the sacks of potatoes and the barrels of apples were found to be damaged potatoes were sold to the starch company. There was a fresh current on the east, the time long as it began to blow.

Central Lake Herald: It looks as if Old Antrim may have our against a snag in the county S. Judson, who is confined to his home in Bellaire, is quite sick. Dr. Dickerson, of Chicago, Mr. Fullerton may be mistaken in the premises, and may possibly learn another point of law. It may look, that it is a fair chance to test a point that stands, although Central Lake Herald expects this to have to pay for the enlightenment of the rest of the state.

Petoskey Democrat: Several weeks ago while apparently enjoying the best of health, Mr. Geo. Hamm was stricken with apoplexy at his store on Howard street. Since that time he has been at the home of his son-in-law, W. H. Seibert, hovering between life and death. His condition was considered more critical last Monday morning and in the evening he passed away. The deceased has been in Petoskey 21 years up to the past one years have been spent in America. Over years ago he came to this city from Chicago and opened a grocery store which he conducted until his retirement. He was a genuine, upright citizen and had many friends and enjoyed by to this city but in the surrounding towns. The funeral occurred Wednesday from the home of W. H. Seibert, and the services were conducted by the Rev. J. W. Armstrong. The deceased leaves a wife and three children.

Lake Point Sun: Hermann place, on the north road in Antrim, is a horse, dark brindle, with no hair, weighs about 1400 pounds and. Lower Antrim lists at this office, or with H. Sorrell.

Traverse City Eagle: The winter schedule of freight rates (with the closing of navigation) went into effect yesterday, and the result was that potatoes for three points today every one today's price. 75 cents bring said for the load, and the market being heavily supplied. The freight rate for many 15 cents a hundred and it now advances to 19 cents per hundred. The 19 mill cut was about eight cents a bushel and under the present rate it is 11 cents.

Traverse City Eagle: Mr. Crane of Omena the reports brought back to the other business, that the bears another spread the last season the year. It was impossible to track bear, and after they were wounded it was impossible to follow up and end the carcass. On several occasions we would come across a flock of crows wheeling around the carcass of a dead bear by the hunter who had brought it down. At the slaughter Wednesday evening the deputy game warden who was showed from St. Ignace with the taxidermist had quite a trip and examined the deer to find it rightly shipped, had examined 1200 head of venison. Last year at the same time the number was over 3,000, and later for the season.

Boyne Citizen: Thumb Lake reports. It is now a national station, with one of the finest mixed lakes which abound in Northern Michigan. A new mill, store and post-office, a big little steamer on the lake to carry excursion parties, and a ten hard working, intelligent settlers to shout all the canal want, but now with the completion of the Boyne City & South Eastern Railroad, the good fortunes of that country feel that their future prosperous is assured. With the road completed to Vanderbilt, as it will doubtedly will be in the near future, there it will connect with the Michigan Central road, it will be of easy access to any point south and east, by the G. R. & I. south and west. Yes the prosperity of Thumb Lake is assured.

Capt. Neil Gallagher was in the harbor Monday with his new boat, Jessie, which he recently purchased at Muskegon. The boat is a stanch boat about the size of the Hazel, but with out the luxurious deck. Mr. Gallagher will rebuild the upper part of the boat this winter and put her in first class shape and next season expects to put her on the route between St. Joseph, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs. It seems as though there should be room for a boat over in one of this kind, and hope it will meet his expectations. We also learn that he has the ear of the mill which he now has at the Big Point from a stanch and safe mill, and will put in another larger one which will cut lumber of all kinds and have a planing mill in connection. There is yet a large quantity of valuable timber on the island which can be utilized for lumbering purposes.

There is yet a large quantity of valuable timber on the island which can be utilized for lumbering purposes.

Petoskey Enterprise: The goods that were precipitated into the lake by the collapse of the warehouse Monday night, are all coming ashore, and the loss will be light. Nearly all of the goods, if not all, accounts fully perfectly fair, all the sacks of potatoes and the barrels of apples were found to be damaged potatoes were sold to the starch company. There was a fresh current on the east, the time long as it began to blow.

Central Lake Herald: It looks as if Old Antrim may have our against a snag in the county S. Judson, who is confined to his home in Bellaire, is quite sick. Dr. Dickerson, of Chicago, Mr. Fullerton may be mistaken in the premises, and may possibly learn another point of law. It may look, that it is a fair chance to test a point that stands, although Central Lake Herald expects this to have to pay for the enlightenment of the rest of the state.

Petoskey Democrat: Several weeks ago while apparently enjoying the best of health, Mr. Geo. Hamm was stricken with apoplexy at his store on Howard street. Since that time he has been at the home of his son-in-law, W. H. Seibert, hovering between life and death. His condition was considered more critical last Monday morning and in the evening he passed away. The deceased has been in Petoskey 21 years up to the past one years have been spent in America. Over years ago he came to this city from Chicago and opened a grocery store which he conducted until his retirement. He was a genuine, upright citizen and had many friends and enjoyed by to this city but in the surrounding towns. The funeral occurred Wednesday from the home of W. H. Seibert, and the services were conducted by the Rev. J. W. Armstrong. The deceased leaves a wife and three children.

Select Commissioners' Column.
A. S. GREEN, CORSON.

You can judge a township's teaching corps by the production that reaches educational journals. Show to the county that teach locally, and we will show you the county that is farthest behind. A very, very few of the teachers in Charlevoix county do our local educational journals, and those few are being silently and quietly retired from the ranks.

In our rounds of visiting the schools we are often asked, "What education, or courses do you take?" As a general thing, we can answer the question for the teacher who does not read a journal before we ask it. The illiteracies and listlessness of the teacher's work tells the tale.

The following rules from the Minnesota Teacher, on saving time, should be practiced by every teacher:

1. Come to school with a definite plan of work for the day.
2. Never permit a partially prepared lesson to pass.
3. Hunt down hard on the essential points of the lesson.
4. Don't talk too much yourself.
5. Take plenty of time for assigning the next lesson.
6. Follow your program to the letter; never allow a recitation to run over time.
7. Require neat work on the slates and on the blackboard.
8. Keep your pupils so busily engaged at their work that they will have no time for unlawful thinking.
9. Be careful to have the right temperature and the room properly ventilated all the time.
10. Have method in calling and dismissing classes; in passing to and from the board and in distributing pictures and other intermediates.

Fishing or Hunting.

Beds should never be passed directly in front or windows. For no person they are dangerous even to adults. If today must be so placed, the windows should be screened. In the summer in case of thunderstorms or rain or disturbance possible, too in any case of stormy authorities to resist the violent of a person feeling against it.

The Smallest City.

The smallest city in the world is Vatican, a beautiful little hamlet of less than 100 people situated on the south side of Rome, Italy, Rome, Rome miles to the south and west of St. Louis. It is the only incorporated city in the world and has been incorporated for more than twenty-five years.

Contraries and Weak.

That wind will stand the passing of ourselves as well as ever is proved by the unearthing near the Nile, in Egypt, boats nearly 4,000 years old, which are in good condition.

Sudden's.

The output of sardines on the Maine coast in Hancock is to be increased from sardines cans in 1899 to 2,000,000 cans for, in consequence of the introduction of a new canning machine.

On Country Theatres.

There are 1,000 theaters in the United States. Of these, than 2,000 are fairly sizeable as buildings and over 1,000 are devoted to vaudeville.

Glass Doors in Ovens.

Glass doors are used in some of the new cooking stoves, to enable the cook to watch the food in the oven without opening the door.

Artificial Paving Blocks.

The newest artificial paving blocks to be adopted in Germany are made by combining coal tar, sulphur and chloride of lime.

Fate.

It is an unusual thing for a vessel plying between Japan and London to carry Lincoln fate as a single item of its cargo.

Marine Notes.

The tug Martin left here Saturday for Manistee to have her boiler repaired to meet government requirements.

The schooner West Side which left here Friday for Chicago, lumber laden, is at Bailey's Harbor, Wis., wind bound to-day.

The tug Gossen left here Friday morning on a cruise about the village fishing grounds, with Deputy warden W. E. Brewster and A. L. Cooper on board.

Navigation is open at the port of Chauncey yet. The schooners Morning Star and West Side, and the steamshipes M. C. Neff and Sidney O. Nef left during Friday and Saturday, and the schooner Bayne is due on her way to Chicago with a cargo of lumber. Other vessels are expected yet this season to load at up-lake ports. The Lake boats are making regular trips, and the Hackley still goes to Beaver Island.

Capt. Henry Bunday of gospel ship fame has disposed of his last ship Gleb Talinge. This craft, which was built two years ago and is a small schooner, was sold lately to C. E. Crego, H. A. Clark, D. C. Gregory and Frederick Blamer, Chicago businessmen. The Gleb Talinge is 98 feet long, 11 feet beam and 1 feet depth. Capt. Bundy has not announced what sort of a craft he will have next season, to use in the work of saving mariners souls.

Dec. 5th a 10-inch steam whistle was established at the light station, on the northwesterly extremity of Lighthouse Point, in the westerly side of the entrance to grand Traverse bay, nominately part of Lake Michigan, to sound during thick or foggy weather, alternate blasts of three and six seconds duration separated by alternate silent intervals of 12 and 24 seconds, thus: Blast three seconds, silent interval 12 seconds; blast six seconds, silent interval 24 seconds. The fog signal building is a buff brick house, with red roof and a tall chimney, and stands 100 feet south, by east (s. e. ¼ e.) from the light tower.

Norwood Notes.

Jerome Valentine of Two Rivers, Wis., is here and will stay until spring.

Since stalled who has been teaching school near Clarion for the last three months, is home for the winter.

Christmas exercises will be held on Sunday evening, Christmas eve, at the church in Norwood. There will be no tree this year.

Bertrand Knapp and Dollie Chamberlain, of Banks, were married at the parsonage in Norwood by the pastor on Sunday, Dec. 3d.

Louis Owens and G. V. Nash were in Grand Rapids last week looking up the matter of an electric light plant which Mr. Nash expects to put in his saw mill this winter.

The Thanksgiving dinner given at the hall, under the auspices of the N. U. T. M., was a success at least as far as numbers were concerned. Two hundred took dinner and over two hundred and fifty attended the oyster supper in the evening.

L. J. Nash has bought of the G. R. & I. R. R. company 480 acres of Sec. 3, in Banks, and 240 acres on Sec. 31 in Norwood. The with timber already to hand insures the stocking and ranging of the mill for the next 4 years at least.

Elder Tinsy, pastor of the Norwood church, has been holding spelling bees in Farmers the past two weeks. On Thanksgiving evening he was presented with a fine overcoat, the gift of the young people of the Norwood and Norwood charge.

There has lately been organized a tyrosis at this place. Dr. Decker was chosen president; Marlette Valentine, vice president; Roy Network, secretary; Wilbur Cline, treasurer. They will give entertainments at the hall alternate Tuesday evenings.

HARDWOOD CONDITIONS.

Chicago Hardwood Record Sizes up the Situation.

The Chicago Hardwood Record has the following to say concerning the hardwood conditions as they exist today:

Nearly every day some lumberman comes into the Record office in a condition of doubt. It is getting the time of the year to make contracts and the question is whether it is safe to do so under present conditions at present prices. And it is an important question in the answering of which two things must be taken into consideration, namely, the possible supply for the coming year and the probable demand.

In order to know the present supply it seems just a year ago and in other lines it is true, in northern hardwoods, such as maple, birch, beech, basswood, etc., we believe that the supply at the close of navigation is below, considerably below, the average. As to the amount of logs that will be got in in the woods this winter, a great deal, of course, depends on the kind of weather we have. One thing is certain, the coming season cannot be a better one than here and the chances are too to one that it will not be as good. A greater effort will be made this winter to get in logs than there is scarcer. Taken all in all, the manufacturers will be very fortunate if they get in as many logs this winter as last. Last winter's large input of logs was cut into lumber and the lumber has been cleaned up so thoroughly that there promises to be a squeeze before navigation opens. As we view the matter it does not seem possible that the supply of northern hardwoods for the coming season will be excessive.

To summarize, the present supply of hardwood lumber is no greater than it was a year ago and the prospect for the coming year is that, except in oak and ash, the output will not be greater than in the past year. So much for the general and prospective supply.

The demand for hardwood lumber is much better than at this time last year. Labor troubles are interfering in some localities, but in most cases factories are cutting up lumber at a great rate, and they have orders on their books and in prospect which insure at least six months of good business.

It seems to us that next spring should usher in a considerable improvement in the building trade throughout the United States. After a business depression like that extending from 1893 to 1899 it takes two or three years of prosperity to restore the building trade to a normal condition. It seems to us that a building boom is the about next spring. Farmers have money to an extent never before known, laboring men and mechanics are well employed at good wages and times now are making money. Rents have advanced and vacant property has filled up in a remarkable manner, and unless all signs fail the building season of 1900 should open early and continue active.

Central Lake Herald: About a hundred men and boys searched the woods between here and Ellsworth all last Saturday night, and all day Sunday for Mrs. Robert White an aged lady who lives about five or six miles north of town near the lake. She left home shortly after dinner to go to look for the boy who had gone to look up the cows, and become lost in the woods, and becoming bewildered lost herself and wandered about aimlessly until discovered late Sunday afternoon near John Crawford's place, more than two miles from her home. She was seen by the trainmen on the switch of the Central Lake Lumber Co. working Sunday, and had to be removed from the track on two occasions, but they could get no word from her and supposed her to be a Holland woman who could not speak English, and for that reason paid no attention to her. She is still at Mr. Crawford's where she was first taken and it is thought that she will fully recover.

Just Saved His Life.

It was a terrible escape that Charles Davis, of Hewerston, O., lately had from a frightful death. For two years a severe lung trouble constantly grew worse until it seemed as sure as fate of consumption. He at last began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and lately wrote us it gave him "perfect and effected a permanent cure." Such wonderful cures have for 25 years, proven it's power to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle is guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. G. Mistletoe is Disappearing.

The mistletoe has been in so popular use a Christmas decoration in Michigan that it seems there to be exterminated in certain places. It was formerly permitted to grow in many apple orchards, sometimes specially planted the trees but with the increased demand that has all been removed. In some places store are being taken to propagate it, and young apple trees can now be purchased on which the parasite has become established.

Rugs of Cocoa Fiber.

It is sometimes difficult to keep a "short" carpet in good order and so rugs of matting are generally used in a sleeping-room, because they can be removed for shaking at least once a week. China fiber is used in manufacturing the Brussels rugs a kind of heavy matting especially made for use in a sleeping-room. It keeps clean longer than a woolen rug.

A Prime Leopard.

Visitors to the Berlin zoological garden are greatly interested by an animal which combines the spots of the leopard with the form of the American lion, or puma. The sire of this curious menagerie, which is said to be the first of its kind ever known, was an Asiatic leopard and the dam a South American puma.

Alcohol for Automobiles.

The majority of motors are now driven by petroleum, but a French engineer contends that the use of alcohol instead, and motors are being altered to adapt to it. There is no fear of explosions with alcohol, and it is said to be less costly than petroleum.

No Runways in Russia.

Russian horses are unknown in Russia. No one drives there without having a thin sapling with a running noose around the neck of the animal. Warm or cold, rain or shine, in the pasture, and the horse stops as soon as he feels the pressure on the windpipe.

Dancing in France.

Dancing in France is said to have reached such proportions that the government has begun to worry the companies authorized. It is estimated that half of the families in Paris are due to lessons in the dance.

Elephants Have Slight Teeth.

Elephants have only eight teeth, two upper and two above and four below. All they employ for food are the grinders, which are about 14 plates of, and a new set grows.

Iron Mummy.

Scientists have discovered that the mummy is stronger in manner than in wooden. Among the newer form of the mummy are two much fresh, two of which are in a good state of preservation, too much attention.

Water as an Absorbent.

Place a bottle of clean water in the room it will not be noticed, it will have absorbed inherent smoke from the room, the atmosphere, in fact, enough that a wisp of hay on top of the water.

Siamese Superstition.

The Siamese have so strong a superstition against even somebody that they will have none of them. The sight of a cookie in a house, of windows, or doors in a room, even of cages in a ladder, must always be avoided.

Gold and Working Metal.

The Russian element from the Ural Mountains which has supplied it now to the fashion to other Europe and Asia, and the Ural have passed and at the time of the year, which by bridge.

Bell Plants in Paris.

Paris is to have its bell plants and to the entertainment of its population. The street, however, is to be a little more expensive than the bell, which is now, relative inferior, for, by its trade.

It is currently reported that the East Tennessee people are preparing to return to the Republican fold.

H. S. Pingree says the Detroit Free Press to pay his salaries for damaging his reputation. Just think of it!

The attention of the game vendors is respectfully called to the fact that they are using a dog net at Lansing (Sunny Brooke) and Alva Coulter should go and look into the matter at once.

Senator Stewart of Nevada, who several years ago left the Republican party and became officially a silverite and actually a Populist, has returned to the Republican party. It has come to light that the Nevada senator, having received from his illusion caused by his apostle of the crime of 1873 lately attended the caucus of his Republican colleagues and was received with a warm welcome.

The Secretary of the agricultural division of the census department has sent out circulars requesting all farmers to furnish full statement of their transactions, crops, etc., for current year for use of census enumerators for 1900. In the past it has been in nearly all cases merely gross work, because no memorandum was made at the time and when the enumerator came around figures had been forgotten. In order to make this report more effective it is requested of all farmers to keep up with the times by giving as exact an account as he possibly can, and they cannot do so unless a memorandum is taken now.

Roberts, the morose, was unseated on the 6th, after a three hours hot debate by a vote of 262 to 36. The first vote on Hitchcock's substitute for Taylor's resolution, declaring Roberts a member of congress, was defeated by a vote of 240 to 26. The galleries of the house were crowded, the expected debate on Mr. Roberts case being the attraction. The reading of the president's message was overshadowed by the universal interest in the disposition of the case of the Mormon representative. Three fourths of the spectators in the galleries were women.

Congressman Corliss has presented a bill to the house lengthening the term of congressmen from two to four years. A similar bill has been presented to the Senate by Senator Hoar who also proposes to make the president serve six years instead of four. The idea of these gentlemen seems to be that the government will secure better services from men who have experience in the home, and that the president having six years in which to serve, and being barred from a second term, will give more thing t to the affairs of the nation and less to his personal fortunes and partisan ends. It is an old idea, but has never before found so much support in congress as it is apparently receiving now.

R. H. Roberts, the representative elect from Utah, has issued a long address to the American people, in which he professes against being filed for a misdemeanor for a double connection acting as a jury. He protests that by the action of the commonwealth of the Union is denied representation and that by the same means a majority of the people could reduce a strong minority to a condition of impotence. Certainly Why not? If it were possible for a strong minority to favor largely, it should be reduced to a condition of impotence." Mr. Roberts is a polygamist and an open violator of the laws of his country. The American people believe in the purity of the American home, and they have no use for Roberts. The Mormon will have to return to his harem.

Michigan has wisely, though unknowingly, decided to take steps to save its timber. In Tuesday's commission, consisting of Arthur Hill of Saginaw, Charles W. Garfield, of Grand Rapids, and the commissioner of the State Land Office, has been organized and is now ready for business. One of the first acts will be to appoint representatives in every county in which the state has landed interests as has been done in Minnesota. Some definite policy will also be adopted to protect State lands from fire and thieves. It will probably also follow the policy of the state continuing the ownership of timber lands, instead of selling them at what may prove, as has been done in the past. It may also favor offering inducements to private owners to allow their timber lands to stand, and, when the timber is at last is harvested to continue in good timber on the cut lands, and for such a plan an immense number of acres of cut over lands would remain such and maintain the properties of forests in cultivated land. Which will render the latter still more valuable. Unless some such steps as these are taken the days of forests in Michigan will soon be numbered, if they are not already.

A hunt well is being driven at Sidnaw in the hope of finding salt, the valuable bed of gypsum known to exist there leading to the belief that there is also salt or be found.

The carcass of a white deer in one of the markets at Gaylord was the principal attraction there for a day. The deer was killed near that town and the fortunate hunter has refused $125 for the hide.

Traverse City Record: The Mighigan Starch Co. has definitely arranged to begin the manufacture of wheat starch at once and Phil C. Hamm president of the company, left Saturday evening for Chicago to arrange for the equipment of the new branch, already purchased for the new arrangement.

Home Citizen: The company is rushing the new depot, the foundation is now laid and doubtless before our readers receive this paper the building will be up. It is to be of Swiss architecture, 28x48 feet with a shed roof of 15 feet wide clear over all the little big. It will contain the railroad offices, waiting room and freight room.

A St. Ignace man made a good thing out of his 32 cent investment in a hunter's license during the deer season just closed. He shot four large bucks, and sold them to a hunter from the lower part of the state, who was ashamed to go home empty handed, but who had been unable to kill a single animal, for $100 spot cash.

Hopkins Citizen: We are in receipt of a letter from H. P. Wing, who went from Wilson Leg., to Nashville, Tenn., driving with a pair of horses and buggy, accompanied by his wife. They left on the morning of Sept. 26th, and drove to Bay City, in short substitute, then to Clinton, Eaton and Hopkins Counties. They started from Manistee on their direct journey, Oct. 15th, and reached Nashville Nov. 1st.

Manistee Herald: In eight days hunting in the eastern part of this township, Samuel Smith and his brother John killed three deer, two of them weighing in the neighborhood of 200 pounds each. They also shot two red foxes. They say it is difficult to imagine why Manistee hunters will go across the straits for deer when we have good hunting but two or three miles outside of the corporate limits of this village.

East Jordan Herald: All kinds of railroad talk has been heard around town and has been giving credence by the residents of this township, more or less. An investigation by the Herald leads us to remark that the greater portion of the rumors are untounded. Both Arm township and Mancelona need just such a road as the Company are building, the former for railroad connection. In our opinion the road can never be secured by the two towns rendering substantial aid as the company do not feel warranted in making the outlay necessary to complete the extension, as if we get the railroad we will have to build.

Central Lake Torch: A suggestion was made in this paper last week relative to the railroad being constructed by the Rev. Jordan Lumber Co. Perhaps the business men consider it of no importance where the road strikes the C. & W. M. or perhaps they believe the Torch is guessing at it, but whichever way they look at it we will say that we have found out that it this way it is not so vague as many think. We happen to know that a prominent man from Central Lake would be entertained by the promoters of the road, and if it is considered of any importance a move should be made immediately.

Traverse City Eagle: The friends of the doubled-dyed murderer Wright seem bound to leave no stone unturned to secure his release from confinement. The story comes from Flint to the effect that the Pardon Board has received a letter from a prominent citizen of Benzie county, who says that he was one of the men which was lent upon lynching Wright at the time of the murder. He says he is willing to swear that two of the jury which convicted Wright were also in the mob and stated that they were going to all right but it has a decidedly "fishy" appearance. Even if it is true the fact still remains that Wright is guilty of deliberate and premeditated murder, and is suffering no greater punishment than his crime deserves.

Traverse City Record: Attorney J. W. Cliffe has returned from attending circuit court at Belmont, where he defended E. W. Hobbell for selling goods in violation of the Lake, without having paid a license fee provided for by ordinance. Judge Mayne held the ordinance invalid and discharged Mr. Hobbell. The case raised by defendant's attorney which rendered it unnecessary to raise the question as to whether Mr. Hobbell had a right to take orders in the village for a company outside the state. The decision of the justice may be appeal to the interstate commerce law was not necessary. The village authorities declare that they will pass another ordinance that will be valid if this is done and Mr. Hobbell is again arrested, the interstate commerce law may be appealed to.

Will Be Disappointing.

An English scientist shows that insect—or cannot do the great things expected of it as a source of power or of refrigeration. The cost of manufacture is such that it cannot pay to use the air produced by the evaporation of the liquid for the propulsion of an engine. The refrigeration a lump of ice beats a bottle of the liquid air.

Tell Him Sorry in England.

The Minister of the Great Northern railway of England now issues a circular that in future the standard height of posters in the passenger department shall be five feet six inches and in the goods department five feet four inches. This is a considerable reduction forced by a majority of taller men.

Black Diamonds.

The coal plant where black diamonds are found is in the Brazilian mountains of Bahia. They are usually found in river beds and brought up by rivers. Others are obtained by tunneling mountains. The largest specimen ever found was worth 120,000.

Why the Pagodas Stand.

In Japan there are pagodas of considerable height which have withstood the effects of frequent earthquakes for centuries. The secret of their stability is that they are gifted with a heavy timber-beam construction, which keeps from the center like a plummet of a bell. On the earthquake such a shock the effects of the vibration are wholly counteracted by this ever-swinging pendulum.

A Tortoise Woman.

A woman of perfect figure should weigh 124 pounds and be 5 feet 4 inches. She should measure 4 feet 2 inches from the tip of her middle finger to the tip of the other when the arms are extended. The length of the trunk ought to be just one half of this, and one-fourth should be the length of the foot.

Church for the Deaf.

In a Indiana Australia church special accommodation is provided for deaf worshipers, a diaphragm having been placed up in the vicinity of the pulpit from which the sound of the clergyman's voice is carried to listen in the ears of each of his flock as easily as without with a hardness of hearing.

Female Doctrinaire.

In Paris and other large towns in Italian female hairdresser are increasing in number. They wear a peculiar hat, or little, that of Italian, Spanish, which renders their appearance very neat and attractive. Not a few ladies, then called to their aid with loaned hands.

The Worst's Fisheries.

There are 400,000 men in the world who earn a livelihood chiefly or fully by making an annual catch of 100 tons of fish for each man. The North Seas of the United States supply 800,000 a month, and those of Russia 1,000,000 pounds.

England's Dead Letters.

Out of the 4,000,000 letters that passed through the British postoffice last year there were as many as 5,000,000 which could not be delivered to drivers in those cases in the dead letter office property of the value of 12,000,000 was found.

Electricity Mistaken.

It is related of Marshal Macmahon that on winning a very little bet he was late for some time on a veranda, where the most amusingly object was a brilliant parlor in a great gilded cage. Suddenly the marshal was seen to leave, and soon approached the employing, then, growing nearer by steps, and nearer and nearer the cage exclaim, which, was swingled round dressed in such a fine and evening kim sidewaye with a small black eye. After a short time the marshal had seemed of the. It seemed that the parlor had entertained hardly "Have you heard by a chance the people French child was astonished, but he soon recovered. Pulling off his cap with his left hand, he replied smartly: "Pardon, monsieur, I took you for a bird!"

French Nation.

It is not generally known that the France it is forbidden under severe penalties for any one to give infants under 1 way any form of until food without a medical prescription signed by a legally qualified man. Nurses are also prohibited from giving infants cordial, Eliot is their care to at any time of or any general whatever any antidote bottle provided with rubber tube. Dentist and equally without, is is were instantly sentenced by the French Government, which, suspecting the latterly any increase in the bottle rate of infant had set now curtailing their attention to the saving of the few children that are born.

Make Their Own Gunpowder.

The new of the fire department of Lincoln, Neb., are setting up machinery for the manufacture of their cartridges. At the rate of one of the regular boxes a small wagon is only has been established, and perhaps the good chief, Dawson, hopes building, under the direction of the chief, all the wagons, ladders and other equipment needed for its department. Still as a woodsmanlike a fire department as any worker in one is gifted of those who will, in Business Brown in the Nebraska capital.

Improving in Physiognomy.

On the principle of the wooden board, which, requires a period of years an improved type the average face. The repeated warns impress the eye in the direction called the perpendicular, has recently been applied to the phrenologists. In the purpose of sketching the outlines of social meeting from the different, a photographer with the peculiarities attributed, was two hours each provided with a stepladder and screen. Not only is the good made, but its quality is improved.

A New Variable star.

Miss Caldwell of Boston has discovered in the constellation Cygnus a star of fluctuating the eighth and ninth magnitude, which undergoes wonderful variations in its light. It belongs to the class of the Mira Ceti, which is observed again, but the variation is irregular. In period it may range between hours and forty-five minutes. When at a minimum it is three magnitudes fainter than when at maximum. In other weeks, it periodically leaves and reappears in a manner that at one time it is greater times brighter than at another. In stars of this type the changes of light are supposed to be caused by a dark companion revolving around the star, and producing an eclipse as it comes within our line of sight.

American Fish in Spring Soils.

At the end of two years he had 150 converts and many more native who were learning some occupation and trades, and had also, among a request for more missionaries.

English a Dead Language.

A German philosopher has prepared statistics upon the comparative rank of all the spoken languages of the world. English stands at the head of the list, with a population numbering of 200,000 souls. Next comes German, with 185,000 souls. Italian has 70,000 souls. Spanish, 50,000. The Turkish language is dying out, the population numbering only hundreds of souls. Greek is in the same condition, the number of souls being 1,000. The Greek language is a dead language, the number of souls being 1,000. CONGRESS AT WORK.

THE OPENING SESSIONS IN BOTH HOUSES

General Henderson of Iowa Elected Speaker—Hanna Talks to Civil-War Veterans—Elect Taking the Oath—Adjournment out of Respect to Hobart.

Washington correspondence.

During the 12 years Mr. Mason has been a member of the 54th Congress only one day under the Speaker. Mr. Reed, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Cannon, Mr. Dingley, Mr. Grow, Mr. Dalzell, Mr. Hepburn and many others have been members of the House for more than Mr. Mason's term of service, and yet they have never witnessed an opening session of the House of Congress under the leadership of the Illinois Democrat. The Illinois Democrat is the only man who has served a term in the House who has never witnessed an opening session of Congress under the leadership of the Speaker of the House. Representatives on the floor who have been members of the House for several years, although in the minority, have witnessed the opening of Congress under the leadership of the Speaker of the House, and they have witnessed the opening of Congress under the leadership of Speaker Crisp, Speaker Reed, Speaker Henderson and Speaker Cannon. Mr. Mason has witnessed the opening of Congress under the leadership of Speaker Crisp, Speaker Reed, Speaker Henderson and Speaker Cannon, but he has never witnessed the opening of Congress under the leadership of the Speaker of the House. Mr. Mason's term of service in the House of Representatives has been short, but it has been long enough to make him a veteran in the minority and to make him familiar with the rules of the House. Mr. Mason's term of service in the House of Representatives has been long enough to make him familiar with the rules of the House, and he has been long enough in the minority to know how to use the rules of the House to the best advantage of the minority. Mr. Mason's term of service in the House of Representatives has been long enough to make him a veteran in the minority, and he has been long enough in the minority to know how to use the rules of the House to the best advantage of the minority.

Veterans Committee in Charge.

The veterans' report also declares that the reason why the veterans did not do more than which brought them together was the fact that they had no organization and failed to secure their rights. The Hibbard bill was drawn by the veterans and was taken from the House without a single veteran being heard in behalf of the bill. It is a matter of regret that the veterans were not represented in framing the bill. It is a matter of regret that the veterans were not represented in framing the bill. School Commissioner's Column.
A. W. CRAW, OWEN.

The correct use of English words is a matter of greater importance than might appear upon a superficial consideration of the subject. We are not apt to think of it from the standpoint of morals, yet to the conscientious person it has a moral side.

What true man or woman is there who, having received a valuable heritage in trust, to be transmitted to posterity, does not feel a personal responsibility for the faithful guardianship of such trust? If the property be in the form of money, all the world will quickly hold to account the unjust or careless steward who allows it to be wasted and causes a deficit to appear in his final reckoning.

Again, what worthy citizen enjoying the use of any great public work, be it monument or edifice, will contribute to its defacement or injury by any act of vandalism?

But is there a heritage of money or a public monument of brick or stone that can compare in value with the language of the Anglo-Saxon world?

When the preservation of the English language is all its purity and strength is considered from the standpoint of moral obligation, the case of much stronger than if any other language on the world were under consideration. For, in the first place the English is apparently destined to become the universal language of the earth. In the second place, this language is by far the most copious and delicate that has ever been spoken on the globe.

Finally, the English literature is the most valuable in all the realm of letters; and, by means of master translations, is destined to include all the great works in the literature of the entire world. The history of the present century has fixed the fate of our language. In the opening years the Spanish, French and German languages were spoken each by a greater number of people than spoke English. At the century's closing, the almost incredible advance of the English language and literature has left all competitors very far behind, while the rate of increase is at this moment greater than before.

The English is a double language, and this fact accounts for its vast amount of words. The English language, like all other modern languages, contains words derived from many different sources. Nearly one-moiety of our words, however, are found to be derived from the two dialects, the Arch-Saxon and the Norman French. The blending line between these lies near the middle. Of the words used by Shakespeare, 60 per cent are of Saxon origin. The same is true of the words in our common English Bible. Most authors of the present day use a considerable larger percentage of words derived from the Norman French than did the authors of an earlier period. In grammatical structure the English language is Anglo-Saxon.

Interesting as we do, two or more words where other nations possess but one, we are enabled to express the finest shades of meaning.

The misuse of words tends to change their meaning, and to lessen their value. By preserving the meaning of words we shall be able to transmit to posterity and to the world of the future the greatest and best medium of communication between man and man—a language fitted by its fullness, its strength, and its flexibility to become the speech of all nations in the future.

The mass of the people do not acquire their language from dictionaries, but instinctively, from what they hear and read. How important is it, then, that teachers, writers, and educational people generally shall inculcate a correct and discriminating use of words, and a high standard of pronunciation? A teacher who mispronounces words, or who uses them in a sense foreign to their true meaning sows in fertile soil the seeds of error which will be harvested and re-sown until his influence for evil is multiplied. Let us strive earnest to leave an influence for good upon the language of the later world. The dictionary should be always accessible to teachers and pupils. If your schoolroom is not already supplied with a standard work of this description, seek to remedy the defect at the earliest moment. You cannot successfully teach without a dictionary at your command—kind.

During our visits in the schoolrooms this fall, in several instances we heard teachers mispronounce words for their pupils. This must be stopped. Never pronounce a word for your pupil unless you know you can give the pronunciation correctly. Consult your dictionary.

TALMAGE'S SERMON

[illegible] Lake Hopatcong.

In this discourse Dr. Talmage illustrates the world's sympathy and sweet companionship of the Redeemer and how of the sun in means disposition, the lightsome in 28. For half the sins of men spring from sour souls.

What a curious combination of sweet and bitter this day is! The shadow of death rests upon the sick chamber, but the joyful tones of a convalescent in the adjoining room are heard. Sickness and health are closed up together. Some are coming out of the darkness of sorrow, others are going into it. Some are in the midst of a festival, others are in the midst of a funeral. Some are in the midst of a festival, others are in the midst of a funeral. Some are in the midst of a festival, others are in the midst of a funeral

Pingree's Extra Session.

The extraordinary Pingree has called an extraordinary session of the legislature and the solons convened Monday.

The object of calling the session is said to be to submit to the election proposed amendments to the constitution of the state. This will be the second special session called by Gov. Pingree during his service as executive, and if the second is no more fruitful of results than was the first the expense of it will hardly be justified.

The cost of an extra session of the legislature cannot fall short of $25,000. Mileage, clerk hire, stationery and the salaries of members mount up rapidly. This additional expense will be nearly a part of the general burden now borne by the taxpayers. Notwithstanding this heavy increase of taxation, Gov. Pingree assures that condition which have existed for half a century create an "extraordinary occasion," within the meaning of the constitution.

Gov. Pingree is during into the special campaign with a hard working literary bureau. The literature he is sending out in the state on the subject will cost him at least $1,000. Fifty thousand copies of his speech to the Sioux at Lansing have been printed and 50,000 more are to follow. At Lansing a large force of clerks is engaged in sending copies of these, together with other special opinion literature to the 100,000 names on the governor's official and political mailing list, which he has taken pains of political existence to build up. It is questionable if "thrift addicted such mailing lists existent in the state.

The Michigan men in Washington think that none of Pingree is same sort of a scheme to get on such sugar. They do not pretend to understand exactly what he is up to. Senator Burrows will be did not know exactly the purpose of his special session, but thought it a safe guess that no advantage for the people of the state would come out of it.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The public school building at Ishpeming burned one night recently, entailing a loss of $20,000. It was insured for $1,000. The village hall just finished running $14,000 worth of improvements, was saved. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Sam Jordan's business houses will be considerably increased around Iron Mt. Jones & Goodman, the hardware merchants and F. H. Bennett, the groceryman, of South Area, will enlarge their stores to the East Jordan side of the lake and will locate in the stores recently vacated by the East Jordan Lumber Co.

The following is taken from the Bellaire correspondent of the Grand Rapids Herald: "Adelbert H. Young, student of the law firm of Malcolm Toe behind the bars and there is trouble ahead. He was arrested at Shelby and brought home. He is held upon complaint of Mary H. Mills, a deputation in the town, who bond amounting to $500 in the case of Mr. Huntington when it closed his door.

Secretary Tuttle's Holidays.

Secretary Tuttle, of the State Board of paroles received a petition from the managers of the pavilion for the parole of murder Chas. T. Wright, formally withdrawing the petition from the board. The action was taken by the board and now so far as the Wright case is concerned, it is entirely out of their hands.

Grand Traverse Herald: The Northern Telephone Co. has adopted a unique plan of entertaining their subscribers to Traverse county during the dog season in summer. A crate of Bluetick hounds has been placed at large revenue has been placed above the stage, connected with the telephone line. Last night the line was left open during the performance and about thirty subscribers in various parts of Leelanau county enjoyed a portion of the performance. While the Glengarry was inflamed, the songs were heard plainly and those who availed themselves of the privilege pronounced the scheme a great success.

Grand Traverse Herald: Thomas Gill, a prominent farmer of Northport, took his first ride on the railroad recently over a half century last night. He has been in this section of the state for the past 35 years, and in all that time has never been further than Traverse City before. He was born in Lanesboro, Berkshire, the same county, and had a County agent named in Sarah, taking a case time he rode by ride on the railroad that he goes home until last night. He came to Northport by boat and for the past 30 years has attended an annual picnic at Lanesboro that he has never been out of his own county. Mr. Gill is a wealthy farmer, but his time is not present to traveling. He tends to the farm. He left last evening for Mt. Clemens for a visit with his daughter.

MICHIGAN'S ROBERTS CASE.

The Days When a Mormon Represented This Section in the Legislature.

While the Brigham H. Roberts case in congress is attracting wide spread attention, it may be interesting to recall that in the legislature history of Michigan there is a "Roberts" case, though the facts ended he said to be exactly identical. In the case which comes from the Mormon state three wives are involved, the Michigan Roberts had two. The fact that Roberts has a plurality of spouses is the chief issue in the case now pending in congress; in the Michigan case polygamy was a mere incidental, even if it were considered at all. The Michigan Roberts was James J. Strang, and the session of the state legislature in which he figured was that of 1853.

James J. Strang was "King of the Mormons," and Beaver Island was his home. Both in New York state, as a young man he was in turn, school teacher, editor of a country paper, temperance lecturer, and finally became a lawyer, and in 1849 with his wife removed to Wisconsin. Joseph Smith and his apostles were then located at Nauvoo, pounding their pulpit cushions. Strang fell in with Smith, and in 1846 was baptized by Smith, and his stanty soon won for him a prominent place in the church. Upon the violent death of Smith at the hands of a mob, in 1844, Brigham Young and Strang were the chief contestants for the expression as chief prophet. Strang raised a lean-to of his own and led those who were true to his pretensions to Beaver Island. This was in 1846 and in the next few years the village of St. James, around the harbor at the head of the Beaver, became a thriving town, with stores, warehouses and wharfs, and with a productive farming country tributary to it. Strang was king of the community. His word was law, his will was supreme. He was his "castle," and his tabernacle; he was preacher as well as monarch. The gentlemen took offense at the Mormon settlement. They locked upon their inland neighbors as little than pirates, and to this day dark tales are told of the crimes that were committed by the followers of the new king. Whether these tales are based on fact or on the musings of inverted and propelled imagination cannot be determined at this late day. But certain it is the enmity between the islanders and the mainlanders was deep and deadly, and the former felt the necessity of being constantly in a defensive attitude against arrest and legal process. Wearying of the Strang "went into politics." In 1851, with the Mormon vote concentrated and voting as one man against a divided opposition, the Beaver Islanders captured the county offices, including sheriff. Cross Mackinac Island, which was the ancient seat of county government. This gave the Mormons relief from undue interference from the gentiles—in fact placed in their hands the power to become persecutors in turn—if legal process and bail the cause of resisting the law and authority when resistance was made upon the petition. Having gained this much strong aspired to become a law maker so as to have the enforcement of the law in his own hand. His opportunity came in the election of 1852. The legislative district in which the Beaver Islands were supposed to be attached extended from Mackinac Island southward to include Newaygo county. This district now has a sufficient population to entitle it to two representatives in congress, but half a century ago the settlements were few and far apart, and the population scattered and sparse. Strang did not announce his candidacy for the legislature until the day before the election, and then it was too late to carry the news to the other parts of the widely out-spread district, and so the for the opposition to concentrate against him even had such a course been possible. The mainlanders had four candidates in the field; the Mormons had but one. The mainlanders gave James Barton 52 votes, Harry W. Henry 45, William A. Coley 21, Abram S. Wadsworth 10 and scattering 6, each of the four candidates named representing the favorite son of some particular locality. The Mormons marched to the polls in a body and the returns from Beaver Island gave Strang 165 votes, the time of the returns Strang was elected by an overwhelming majority, but it was not on the cards that he should take his seat without a contest. In his career as monarch of his island domain Strang had acquired two wives, but the marriage bonds he had fallen into was not one of the specifications raised up against his taking his seat among the law makers. He had other troubles, and they began almost as soon as he started for the seat of legislation.

The route in those days to Lansing was by boat to Mackinac, thence by boat to Detroit and from Detroit by rail or stage. The journey could be made overland, returning such pathways as might be found through the woods to the settlements in lower Michigan. Strang preferred the water route. At the boat upon which he sailed entered St. Clair river the sheriff of Wayne county came aboard with a warrant for Strang's arrest. The warrant was based on an old indictment for an alleged rescue of a prisoner from the custody of an officer. Strang barricaded himself in his state room and there remained until the opportunity offered itself to dash out and jump ashore on the Canada side of the line. From Canada, when the coast was clear, he crossed over into Michigan and surrendered himself to safety. The sheriff of Wayne county followed, and sought again to make the arrest, but Strang this time stood by his constitutional privilege as a member of the legislature and resisted from arrest. The sheriff followed the legislature for permission to take his man away, but the committee to which the petition was referred reported in effect that the indictment upon which the warrant was based was an old one, that Strang had once been arrested upon it and held in custody for several weeks and then discharged, that he had been continually within the jurisdiction of the court without indictment and that he had been elected to the legislature with his constituents fully cognizant of his record. The report then continued:

"The facts so far as we can learn them, warrant the conclusions that the arrest was not attempted with a view to the furtherance of justice, but to prevent an escape, but with the intent to anticipate some unworthy purpose, and to deprive the constituency of said member, and this house of his services. That if there was any property in the first instance in the possession, for long past it has been permitted by law, the carelessness and indifference of the officers having the matter in charge seem so long a period, forbid the presumption that it is now for the attainment of justice that it should be suddenly revived at this peculiar juncture, when the house is assuming the duties, which his constituency have assigned him, with a full knowledge of all the facts charged against him.

"Your committee, with the full sense that the due administration of justice should be free from all chicanery or restraint, earnestly hope that any attempt to turn the just and necessary process of law into an engine of oppression or persecution will be promptly met and rebuked, and most especially when such an attempt intrudes upon any of the privileges of a member of this house. Your committee deem the arrest under consideration to be a violation of right, in contravention of law, and an attempt to revive against a member of this house a prosecution that so long since had good reason to believe dropped and abandoned."

The committee recommended that the petition of the sheriff be denied, and the report was adopted.

But though free from apprehension of arrest, Strang was not yet out of the woods. James Barton, who received 52 votes in the election, feeling the pulse among the gentile constituents, contested for the seat on the ground that the Beaver Islands were not legally attached to that particular legislative district. The majority of the committee submitted a report in favor of the contestant on the ground set forth. The minority reported that the Islands did properly constitute a portion of the district and that Strang was duly elected and entitled to the seat.

The two reports were tabled, and subsequently both sides were given a hearing before the house in committee of the whole. The hearing continued over three or four sessions, Strang conducting his own case, while Barton was represented by C. H. Taylor. Mr. Strang was given his seat by a vote of 56 to 11, and the vote for the represented practically the democratic vote for him represented practically the democratic vote in the house. What the arguments were for and against Strang does not appear in the records, except as they may be contained in the two reports, and have long since been forgotten. It is possible the polygamy charges may have been included, but it is not probable. Strang served through the session, and reviewing his legislative career the old Detroit Advertiser, as the law makers were going home, took occasion to say:

"Mr. Strang's course as a member of the present legislature has disarmed much of the prejudice which had previously surrounded him. Whatever may be said or thought of the peculiar sect of which he is the head, throughout this session he has conducted himself with a degree of decorum and propriety, which have been equaled by his appointed regard for the true interests of the people, and the obligations of his official oath."

In the election of 1854 Strang repeated his tactics of '52. He concentrated the Beaver Island Mormon vote, while the gentiles were divided. He took his seat for the second term without opposition, and one of the acts he had passed was the erection of the Beaver Islands into a county by themselves. This gave the Mormons control of their own political affairs, free from mainland interference. They had their own sheriff, prosecuting attorney and clerk and for serving of legal process, and the enforcement of the law in their own hands. This county organization continued until it was dissolved by the legislature of '56.

In June, 1856, Strang was assassinated by Thomas Bedford and Alexander Wentworth, who shot him his back from behind a pile of wood as he was stepping upon the pier on the way to meet the officers of the cutter Michigan, which had just steamed into the harbor. The assassins were two members of his church, had conversed with the king, had been paroled, and had departed from the island only to secretly return for revenge. The murders took refuge on the Michigan and were taken to Mackinac Island where they said on arrival, as heroes. They were given the form of a trial for murder and were promptly acquitted. The women their shots inflicted did not prove fatal, however, fatal. Strang, knowing the malcontents would soon be in sufficient force to gratify a long repressed enmity, hurried left for Wisconsin with some of his followers, and on July 9, 1856, died at Voree, a village which he had founded. The gentile invaders were not long in possession, fishermen came over with nets and hooks. The Mormon settlement was refused out. The remaining Mormons were driven from the Island, and the kingdom of Strang disappeared forever.

SCOTT'S CELERY KING
NATURE'S CURE

A Young Girl's Experience.

Mr. Alexander's curious water furnishes and an extraordinary case of a young girl who was stricken down with a nervous breakdown. Her condition was so alarming that her friends despaired of her recovery. Her mother was a widow and had to work for her daughter's support. The girl was so nervous that she could not sew, read or write. Her mother was advised to try Celery King, and she did so. The result was astonishing. The girl improved from the first dose, and after taking a few bottles she was well and able to work. Such is the case in a nutshell. Celery King is a nerve tonic and cures nervous diseases. Sold by all druggists. Insist on having Celery King. Take no substitute. Per bottle 50 c.

Congress Extra Session.

Last extraordinary Congress has called an extraordinary session of its successor, and the whole convened Monday.

The object of calling the session is said to be to ask it to submit to the electors proposed amendments to the constitution of the state. This will be the second special session called by Congress during his service as executive, and if the second is no more fruitful of results than was the first the expense of it will hardly be justified.

The cost of an extra session of the legislature cannot fall short of $15,000. Mileage, clerk hire, stationery and the salaries of members count up rapidly. This additional expense will be made a part of the general burden now borne by the taxpayers. Notwithstanding this heavy increase of taxation, Gov. Pingree assumes that conditions which have existed for half a century remain as "extraordinary exigencies," within the meaning of the constitution.

Gov. Pingree is entering into the spirit campaign with a hard working twenty hours. The literature he is sending out in the state on the subject will cost him at least $1,000. My thousand copies of his speech to the farmers at Lansing have been printed and 50,000 more are to follow. Assuming a large force of clerks is engaged in sending copies of these, together with other special messages, he has in the 100,000 issues on the governor's official and political staff alone, which has taken place of political patronage to build up. It is questionable if there is another week passing but contains a like case.

The Michigan men in Washington think this abuse of Congress is some sort of a scheme to get on earth again. They do not profess to understand exactly what to do to do so. Senator Burrows said he did not know exactly the purpose of his special session, but thought it a safe guess that no old vacancy for the people of the state would come out of it.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

The public land business at Ionia grew booming one night recently, entailing a loss of $1,000. It was insured for $1,200. The village had just installed putting $1,500 worth of improvements into the waterworks. The cause of the fire is unknown.

East Jordan's business houses will be considerably increased about June 1st. Dorr & Goodman, the hardware merchants and F. H. Bennett, the groceryman, of South Arm, will remove their stocks to the Lake Jordan side of the lake and will locate in the stores recently vacated by the Eastern Lumber Co.

The following is taken from the Bellaire correspondent of the Grand Rapids Herald: Charlevoix is the center of the tide flow of Michigan behind the bars and there is no tide inland. He was arrested in Bellaire last Sunday night. He is now upon complaint of Mary E. Mills, a tramp of the worst, who had nearly $2,500 in the care of the institution when it closed its doors.

MICHIGAN'S ROBERTS CASE.

Two Days When a Mormon Representative Of This Section in the Legislature.

Within the Doughman H. Roberts case is sequent to attracting wide spread attention. It may be interesting to recall that in the legislature history of Michigan there is a "Roberts" case, though the two cannot be said to be exactly identical. In the case which comes from the Mormon state Brigham Roberts, the Mormon, Michigan Roberts sat in the Legislature for two days. The fact that Roberts was a polygamist of apostle in the chief issue in the case now pending in congress in the Michigan case polygamy was a very incidental, even if it were considered at all. The Michigan Roberts was James Strang, and the session of the state legislature in which he figured was that of 1853.

Now I Strang was "King of the Mormons," and Beaver Island was his home. Born in New York state, a young man he was by turn school teacher, editor of a country paper, temperance lecturer, and finally lawyer in Chicago, and in 1846 with his wife removed to Wisconsin. Joseph Smith and his apostles were then in exile at Nauvoo, presiding Pope in civilar gospel. Strang fell in with them, became a convert, was baptized in Nauvoo, and his ability soon fitted for him a prominent place in the church. Upon the violent death of Smith at the hands of a mob, in 1844, Brigham Young and Strang were the rival contestants for the succession as chief prophet. Strang rallied a faction of his own and let those who were true to his pretensions to Beaver Island. This was it followed in the spring of 1847 by the exodus of St. James, around the harbor of the land of the Beaver, because a thriving town, with stores, warehouses and wharfs, and with a productive farming country tributary to it. Strang was king of the community. His word was law, his will was supreme. He has his "castle," and his tabernacle, he was preacher as well as monarch. The gentlemen took offense at the Mormon settlement. They looked upon their island neighbors as little than pirates, and to this day dark tales are told of the price in that were committed by the followers of the new king. Whether these tales are based on fact or on the sayings of frenzied the president imagination cannot be determined at this late day, but certain it is the enmity between the islanders and the mainlanders was deep and deadly, and the former felt the necessity of being constantly in a defensive attitude against arrest and legal process. Wearying of this strong "hand into politics." In 1853, with the Mormon vote concentrated and voting as one man against a divided opposition, the Lake Islanders captured the county, chose including sheriff, from Mackinac Island, which was the ancient seat of county government. This gave the Mormons just from undue interference from the parties in fact placed in their hands the power to lessen persecution by means of legal process and laid the sins of resisting the law and authority when resistance was made upon the gentiles. Having gained this much Strang aspired to become a law maker so as to have the enforcement of the law in his own hand. His opportunity came in the session of 1853. The legislative district in which the Beaver Islands were supposed to be attached extended from Mackinac Island southward to include Antrim county. This district now has a sufficient population to entitle it to two representatives in congress, but half a century ago the settlement were few and far apart, and the population scattered and sparse. Strang did not announce his candidacy for the legislature until the day before the election, and then it was too late to carry the news to the other parts of the widely outspread district, and too late for the opposition to consolidate against him even had such a course been possible. The mainlanders had four candidates in the field; the Mormons had but one. The mainlanders gave James Harlon 52 votes, Harry W. Henry 15, William S. Utley 49, Adrian S. Wade, worth 40 and scattering 6, each of the few, can...lidates (mainly representing the favorite son of some particular township). The Mormons marched to the polls in a body and the returns from Beaver Island gave Strang 195 votes. On the face of the returns Strang was elected by an overwhelming majority, but it was laid on the cards that he should take no seat without contest. In his career as monarch of his island down to Strang had acquired strong views, but the marriage habit he had taken into was not one of the specifications relied on against his taking his seat among the law makers. He had other troubles, and they began at most as soon as he started for the seat of government.

The route in those days to Lansing was by land to Mackinac, thence by boat to Detroit and from Detroit by rail of stage. The journey could be made overland, following such pathways as might be found through the woods to the settlements in lower Michigan. Strang preferred the water route. As the boat upon which he sailed entered St. Clair river the sheriff of Wayne county came aboard with a warrant for Strang's arrest. The warrant was based on an old indictment for an alleged escape of a prisoner from the custody of an officer. Strang had resided in the state years before, and there remained until the opportunity offered itself to cash out and jump across on the Canada side of the line. From Canada, when the coast was clear, he crossed over into Michigan and reached Lansing in safety. The sheriff of Wayne county followed, and sought again to make the arrest, but Strang this time stood by his constitutional privilege as a member of the legislature and exempted from arrest. The sheriff published the legislature for permission to take the man away, but the committee to which the petition was referred reported in effect that the indictment upon which the warrant was based was an old one, that Strang had since been elected to office and held in custody for several weeks and then discharged, that he had been continually within the jurisdiction of the court without molestation and that he had been elected to the legislature with his constituents fully cognizant of his record. The report then concluded:

"The facts so far as we can learn them, warrant the conclusions that Strang was not attempting with a view to the furtherance of justice, but to prevent an escape, but with the infamous accomplish some unworthy purpose, and to deprive the constituency of said member, and this house of his services. Had if there was any property in the free instance in the prosecution, the long trial it has been permitted to take, the carelessness and indifference of the officers having the matter in charge losing so long a period, forbid the presumption that it is now for the attainment of justice that it should be suddenly revived at this peculiar juncture, when the member is assuming the duties which his constituency have assigned him, with a full knowledge of all the facts charged against him.

"Your committee, with the full sense that the due administration of justice should be free from all clog or restraint, earnestly hope that any attempt to turn aside just and necessary process of law shall in origin of application or prosecution will be promptly and condemned, and most especially when such an attempt infringes upon any of the privileges of a member of this house. Your committee deem the arrest under consideration to be a violation of right, in contravention of law, and an attempt to revive against a member of this house a prosecution that he long since had good reason to believe dropped and abandoned."

The committee recommended that the petition of the sheriff be denied, and the report was adopted.

But though free from apprehension of arrest, Strang was not yet out of the woods. James Harlon, who received 52 votes in the election, leading the poll among the gentile candidates, contested for the seat on the ground that the Beaver Islands were not legally attached to that particular legislative district. The majority of the committee submitted a report in favor of the contestant on the grounds set forth. The minority reported that the islands did properly constitute a portion of the district and that Strang was duly elected and entitled to the seat.

The two reports were tabled, and subsequently both sides were given a hearing before the house in committee of the whole. The hearing continued over three or four sessions, Strang conducting his own case while Harlon was represented by C. H. Taylor. Mr. Strang was given his seat by a vote of 56 to 14, and the vote for him represented practically the democratic vote for him represented practically the democratic vote in the house. What the arguments were for and against Strang does not appear in the records, except as they may be contained in the two reports, and have long since been forgotten. It is possible the polygamy charges may have been included, but it is not probable, Strang served through the session, and, recovering his legislative career the old Detroit Advertiser, as the law makers were going home, took occasion to say:

"Mr. Strang's course as a member of the present legislature has disarmed much of the prejudice which had previously surrounded him. When ever may be said or thought of the peculiar sect of which he is the head, throughout this session he has conducted himself with a degree of decorum and propriety, which have been equaled by his apparent regard for the interests of the people, and the obligations of his official oath."

In the election of 1854 Strang repeated his tactics of 52. He contested the Beaver island Mormon vote, while the gentiles were divided. He took his seat for the second term without opposition, and one of the acts he had passed was the erection of the Beaver Islands into a county by themselves. This gave the Mormons control of their own political affairs, free from unusual interference. They had their own sheriff, prosecutor and clerk and the serving of legal process, also the enforcement of the law was in their own hands. This county organization continued until it was dissolved by the legislature of '56.

In June, 1856, Strang was assassinated by Thomas Bedford and Alexander Wentworth, who shot him back from behind a pile of wood as he was stepping upon the pier on the way to meet the officers of the Lake Michigan, which had just assembled into the harbor. The assassins had been members of an order of which he was the head, and had expelled and had sworn to kill him. The murder was followed by a sweeping revenge. The murders took refuge on the mainland and were taken to Mackinac Island where they were convicted, as heroes. They were given the form of a trial for murder and were promptly acquitted. The wounded king lingered on some days, but his state inflicted did not prove immediately fatal. Strang, knowing the end was near, soon he coming to force to gratify a long cherished enmity, hastily left for Wisconsin with many of his followers, and in July of 1856, died at Voree, a village he had founded. The Mormon settlement was not long afterwards. The wounded fishermen came over with axe and torch. The Mormon settlement was "burned out," the remaining Mormons were driven from the island, and the kingdom of Strang disappeared for ever.

A Young Girl's Experience.

We designed to insert this testimonial, but it was so long we could not work the text into our space. We give the substance. Miss Ella Wilson, of Ashland, Ohio, writes that she was so weak she could not walk the length of her yard, without stopping to rest. Celery King cured her. Sold by druggists, 25 cents and 50 cents. Celery King for Constipation, Dyspepsia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Nervousness and Sleeplessness. Sold everywhere. Write Dr. Miles' Medical Co. for Ella's letter. Celery King cures Constipation.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Lucius Fairchild and Mary Fairchild, his wife, of the City of Detroit, Wayne County, Michigan, mortgagors, to Ira M. Ingersoll, of the same place, mortgagee, dated the twelfth day of November, A. D. 1892, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, in Liber "A" of Mortgages, on page 1 of said records, upon which mortgage there is now claimed to be due the sum of Twenty-Five Hundred Dollars and Interest thereon at the rate of Ten per cent per annum, and no suit or proceeding having been instituted to recover said mortgage or any part thereof, and the said default has continued and still continues for more than ninety days, and the said mortgagee has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole of said mortgage debt due and payable, and no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the same

Marine Notes.

The steamhauge Pine Lake arrived Thursday, and is moored at Smith's yard for an overhauling.

Navigation may be considered closed for this port, although it may hold Friday evening the steamhauge Stilson (1) Nail left for Chicago with a cargo of East Jordan lumber, and the steamhauge Joseph G. Thompson left the same night with a cargo from the transfer dock.

The transfer of Capt. G. St. Peter from the Jackson park life saving station to North Manitou Island and of Capt. Wm. F. Andrus of the latter station to succeed Capt. St. Peter at Jackson Park, took place intety. The reason for the shifting of Capt. St. Peter was given as a violation of rules of the service. He has been in the service 23 years, and it is said he has allowed discipline at the station to grow lax and to have lost control of his men.

The schooner Morning Star, bound from Charlevoix for Chicago with iron bar, went ashore Monday morning, Dec. 11th, on the east side of south Fox island. She struck a sandy bottom. There she remained until the northeast gale came, which wrecked the boat and piled her deckload upon the shore. The schooner will be a total loss. The Morning Star is owned by F. A. Lutch of Milwaukee. She was built in 1866 and was of 206 tons. The Morning Star loaded lumber at East Jordan for Thos. Fathauer, of Chicago.

Council Proceedings.

—Fred Green is at home for the holidays.

—Ward Ainslie and wife, of East Jordan, spent Christmas here.

—Neil Gallagher, of St. Ignace, is here to-day on his way to Detroit.

—Miss Winnie Bartholomew is visiting her sister Blanche at Atlanta.

—Mrs. E. N. Faulkner is spending the week in Traverse City with her sister.

—Chas. Lasser and wife, of St. Joseph, are guests of S. M. Rose and wife.

—Capt. P. D. Campbell and family left to day for Muskegon for a week's visit among friends.

—Mr. and Mrs. Paddock and Mrs. D. F. Meech spent Christmas at East Jordan with relatives.

—Miss Jessie Meech and the Nash children will spend the remainder of the winter at Pasadena, Calif.

—Harry Nicholls was in southern Michigan last week looking up oak timber for work on the stamehauge Pine Lake.

—H. J. Jacobs, father of our Jacobs boys, has removed here from Gilford, Mich., and bought a residence on West Hurlbut avenue.

—Last week J. J. Fagan sold his restaurant, near the bridge, to Sam Beaudoan. Mr. Fagan will hereafter make his headquarters at Ellsworth.

—The SENTINEL sets up eight columns of matter this week more than three columns solid. It will keep on giving its readers all the local news, and 25 columns of general reading.

—Nellie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Alcock, died at her home last Wednesday night, of consumption. Her funeral occurred from the M. E. church Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended.

—Again we call the attention of delinquent subscribers to the fact that we propose to collect all accounts due in this winter. Whether you are in arrears $1.50 or more, please call and pay or remit. We propose to make a good paper and it takes money to do it.

—Navigation is practically open yet. The steamer Hackley made her last trip to the Beavers Saturday, but the steamer Joe came over yesterday with the mail, and will continue to run as long as possible. The fishing tugs are still doing business, but the up-lake boats have both laid up.

—Chas. Ferguson, a brother-in-law of A. A. McKinnon, has moved here, and is occupying the rooms over Timmer's market. Mr. Ferguson has been station agent in the life saving service, and comes from Hammond's Bay, Mich., where he was No. 1 surfman. He will probably be still a member of the Charlevoix station with the same grade.

—Don't deceive yourself with the notion that Dec. 31, 1899 closes the 19th century. It takes 100 years to make a century, and Dec. 31st closes the 19th year. January 1, 1900 is the beginning of the 20th century. But, nevertheless, Jan. 1, 1900 is a good time to make partial amends for past foolishness. Try to be good the closing year of the century, and you will be in all the better shape for 20th century resolutions. You probably will not live on the century, but your children may, and your grandchildren probably will. Leave to them the heritage of a good name. Then again your example as an influence on the 20th century. You may think that is a joke. It is not. There is not an individual on earth who does not influence posterity, either along the lines of personal example or heredity. As the twig is bent the tree inclines. In the coming 365 days of the closing year of the century, think less of yourself and the difficulties of life, and more of the happiness of others. Make the happiness of your personality upon the dawning century good and not evil. Bring hope and peace and joy to the lonely ones of your kin, wipe away tears, bring smiles, make others happy, thereby bringing happiness to yourself. Young man, during 1900, be manly, and don't quit in 1901. From the aggregate of evil in the world, subtract yourself, and add the good that blesses the world by your manly personality. There is comfort, happiness, health, and money in it.

—All dealers unite in saying that Saturday was the biggest day for Christmas trade in the history of the town. The weather was warm and pleasant, and the streets and stores were thronged until late in the evening. All classes of trade was in the rush.

—Mr. Lobnartz, assistant engineer of the U. S. engineer's office at Grand Haven, was here last Thursday to look into the condition of the revetment just below the bridge on the south side. An examination of the revetment showed it to be forced out over three feet, and in imminent danger of falling into the channel. Without going into a discussion of causes, which Mr. Lobnartz conceded was partially at least, due to the overcoming of dirt from the channel by the dredge, it may be said that the chain of protection at that point is in critical shape, and must be taken out and renewed this winter. Mr. Lobnartz carefully inspected the work, in company with J. A. Beauvais, the contractor, and we are safe in saying that the work will be done this winter, although Mr. Lobnartz did not commit himself on that point. Incidentally this bridge question came up, and Mr. Lobnartz emphasized the previous decision of the engineer that no further work will be done on the harbor, outside of the original plan of a 12 foot channel, until a wider bridge draw is provided.

Wedding Bells.

Capt. Wm. Hubbard Jr. and Miss Carrie Brown, both of Charlevoix, have started a life partnership. The new arrangement was authorized by Rev. Cook at the residence of the bride's parents on Thursday evening, Dec. 21st. They at once occupied the young house on Clinton street that Capt. Hubbard bought last spring. May balmy breezes blow upon their and life's voyage be free from troubles.

In this village, at the residence of Geo. W. Cook on the 26th, Rev. A. E. Cook assisted Orson J. Cook to change the name of Miss Lettie Tuttle to Mrs. Lettie Cook. The ceremony was witnessed by George W. Cook and H. S. Cook. "Too many Cooks spoil the broth," but we earnestly hope this may not be a case of "too many Cooks."

On Christmas day Mr. Henry Houseman called to Miss Cora Van Dusen, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Van Dusen, of Norwood township. The young couple will begin house keeping at once near Mr. Van Dusen's. Rev. A. E. Cook tied the knot.

Mr. Ed. Brown and Miss Bessie Williams, both of this place, will be married in morrow at Mancelona.

It is learned that Dallas Boardman of Kalamazoo has been retained by Attorney General Oliver to assist in the proceedings to be brought to recover the $84,000 alleged to have been lost by the state by the sale of the swamp lands.

The joint resolution for the amendment of the constitution so as to provide for equal taxation of all kinds of property in the state was passed by the house in committee of the whole on the 20th by a vote of 84 to 12, the nay votes being Burdick, Fleischhauer, G. W. Peck, Gordon, Caldwell, Chamberlain, Collins, Hardy, Kerr, McCallum, Rollison and Watters.

Reports from the secretary and treasurer of the State Grange indicate the phenomenal growth of the order in during the past year. The grange has been in existence thirty years, and has 16,000 members. During the past year 5,000 new members have been added by the organization of about 100 new granges. At the present time there are 825 granges located in about fifty counties of the state. The measures of the order are in the same prosperous condition.

Wireless telegraphy in railroad service is to be given a practical test by the Ann Arbor line. A contract between the railroad company and the Marconi has been closed and arrangements for installing the new system will begin at once. The system will be used in connection with the Ann Arbor's ferry line between Frankfort and Menominee. The distance across Lake Michigan between these points is about eighty-three miles, and hitherto messages pertaining to the boat have been transmitted across the lake. The Ann Arbor is approximately in doubt as to whether it will be necessary for the time possible telegraph facilities before the others of the road to decide to experiment with the Mr. Cook system.

Congressman Kinkel felt so good over being made chairman of the committee on elections, No. 6, that he took the whole Michigan delegation to lunch with him. Everybody made merry except congressman Gardner, the Addison banker member, who was made a member of the liquor traffic committee along with a saloon keeper and two members from Kentucky.

The currency bill prepared by the Republican sub-committee received a much larger majority in the house on Monday than has been expected. The ballot showed every Republican voting aye except solidly for it, while a number of gold Democrats also voted for it. A majority of forty is a good safe margin and is another demonstration of the fact that the silver issue is decidely a dead one.

The recent heavy advances in the price of nearly all grades of paper, and especially of print and book paper is seriously felt by newspaper publishers. In the cities a number of one cent dailies have advanced to two cents, and many of the $1 weeklies in the country have raised their subscription to $1.50 while some of the $1.50 class are seriously thinking of advancing the price to $2.00.

More than a century ago the British government, after eight years of war, consented to the independence of thirteen of its American colonies and the United States of North America became a nation. It is conceivable that in the last year of the nineteenth century the British government may consent to the independence of the United States of South Africa, notwithstanding its present vast wealth and military and naval power. The Boer not is proving a hard one to crack.

Chairman Burton, of the river and harbor committee authorized the following statement: "There will probably be no river and harbor bill at the present session. The engineers' force will be occupied during the coming year with projects already provided for. In many cases plans for improvements are not even completed. In others advertisements for bids have not yet been made. Because of the increase in the price of material some of the projects already authorized cannot be completed for the amounts estimated by the engineers.

Mr. Dickerson, member of the Michigan lake commission, says, "At our meeting here in Port Huron, Ste. Marie we are preparing to place in the streams of Michigan 9,000,000 brook trout, 1,000,000 rainbow trout and 1,000,000 black bass. In addition to this we will place in the interior lakes 5,000,000 lake trout and 10,000,000 wall eyed pike. This is a larger expenditure of fish than the interior streams and lakes have ever before had in a single year. The increase in the number of brook trout to be particularly noticeable, the largest number ever before planted in one year being about 3,000,000, or one-third the number we will free this year." Mr. Dickerson takes a great deal of satisfaction in contemplating the work under way, and with good reason. In addition to this stocking of the interior waters, the great lakes that wash Michigan's extended shores will be stocked with 200,000,000 whitefish. And this is done without the expense of a cent by Michigan itself.

The official state Democratic organ, known as the Michigan Sentinel, has been issued. It is a unique newspaper in the respect that it editorial staff comprises a whole stateful of Democratic newspaper men. Everybody contributes. The first issue comprises an edition of 75,000 copies and its projectors have sworn to this in detail. The organ claims 12,000 bona fide subscribers and a field of promised subscribers in sight large enough to make a total subscription list of 50,000. The Sentinel is to be issued every month, but at the meeting of the directors of Jan. 8 in Detroit it probably will be decided to make the paper a weekly publication. There is no intent to turn it into a daily. It is to be a farmers' weekly. In appearance it is typographically neat. In its editorial way greeting the editor says: in the notes of the paper to give warning of public dangers and point out the path of duty to the people. Its first page story deals with a compilation of tax figures by counties, in an effort to show an increase in state taxation of 15 per cent since 1897. One of its statements is that the defeat of Justin R. Whiting for governor cost Michigan $3,000,000. Gov. Pingree and the legislature are denounced, we are all things Democratic. Chas. F. Thompson is editor-in-chief.

Copyright, 1899, by Press Publishing Co.

THE truth illustrated by the lesson we learn from the parable of the Prodigal Son is that God loves sinners. Little sermon from Luke 15:2: "This man receiveth sinners."

Christ was not the first preacher who thought God loved sinners. Ezekiel said to the people of his day, "Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked." Micah said, "Who is a God like unto thee, pardoning iniquity?" Hosea said, "I will love them freely." Christ was not the first preacher who thought God loved sinners. Christ was not the first preacher who thought God loved sinners. Christ was not the first preacher who thought God loved sinners.

A NEGLECTED WIFE

By Mrs. Alexander Fraser

CHAPTER XVII.

A perfect marriage, as authors are fond of saying, is a thing of the past. Nowadays it is a matter of the greatest difficulty to find two people who are fitted in every respect to be husband and wife, and the result is that there is just a little friction between them, just a little jolting against the rough edges of each other's characters, just a little chafing of the spirit at the yoke which, though it may be easy, is still a yoke, and which galls and fretts the neck it rests on.

"I am tired, and hope you will excuse me," Lady Sophia Fraser, dressed for night, had Nightingaled her good night to her husband, who was sitting before Lady Aldine she emerged, toward the door.

Her lord, illumined from his tongue and his direction, as he sitting by her side, while with sage

"Well, Sophia, I think, when you have recovered from your good night to Lady Aldine, you will be able to bring to mind the remembrance of his sister."

Lady Sophia paused, turned and from the pillow of the company with calm, placid indifference.

"I see no such force," she says, in a clear, cold voice, "and I think had Lady Aldine, as she intimated to Lady Ardrossan, been able to do so, she would have made no end."

"And why, pray?"

"Because, being idle like a honeybee, and a busybody, she would have had time to find out the reason."

"Sophia, I do not like this tone. Lady Aldine is a relation of Lady Ardrossan's, and I think it is a matter of regret, if, in charitable language, we can find no other word, that we have been asked to meet her."

"Lady Ardrossan's relations are nothing to me," she said, with a yawn, "and I do not see why I should be expected to make them my friends."

"It is great condescension, Sophia, for a lady who has been married only six months, to speak thus of her husband's friends, relations, or acquaintances, and I do not like it." Sir Alexander, who had risen and was standing on the hearth-rug, looked down at his wife with a frown on his handsome face. "Lady Ardrossan is a lady of high birth and breeding, and I do not like to see you treat her with such marked disrespect."

"Sir Alexander, I am tired, and I do not see why I should be scolded in this way. I have said I do not like Lady Aldine, and I do not like her. I do not see why I should be expected to make a friend of her because she is a relation of Lady Ardrossan's. I do not like her, and I do not see why I should be expected to like her."

"Sophia, I do not like your manner. I do not like your tone. I do not like your conduct. I do not like your temper. I do not like—"

Interesting Bits of History Brought to Light in an Old Warehouse, by N. W. Boyce.

In a ramshackle old warehouse near the river was a curious pile of old furniture, consisting of a rude table, some benches, a few chairs, and a dozen or more old chests, such as collectors who prize curios and antiques would gloat over. In one corner was a pile of old muskets, bayonets, and other implements of war

It should be borne in mind that an normal dictionary is of no value. It is like the costly equipment in many of the schools which is used only to be shown to occasional visitors. In these it is fixed on the teacher's desk forming the base of a pyramid of books, slates and other debris. In some instances after close scrutiny we have found it on the floor. In other instances it has been used as a foundation for a kindergarten department, and the small pupils in "primary" thought it a book at the pictures, leaves form the heavy volume in poem. These are extreme cases of the kind.

The dictionary should be placed in the most convenient accessible position in the school room and its use should be encouraged by the granting of every proper facility for consulting it.

Very many pupils, and perhaps some teachers have no idea of the proper use of the dictionary. They pore over it in order to learn the proper spelling and pronunciation of words and to find a meaning for pleasant one. These should not be the only uses made of the volume. The origin of words and their history, the relations thereof, should be main subjects of study.

Every teacher should be familiar with Webster's dictionary and interested in the contest which the author sought to effect. Webster sought to bring to form certain rules which would simplify the language spelling. He spent thirty odd years in the preparation of his work and it has exerted a vast influence upon our language.

The silent letters in our language were not all eliminated and indeed it is not desirable that they should be. These letters were all sounded originally, and have become silent through changes in use. The pupil seeks to indicate the origin of the word.

Pronunciation should be uniformity and universal. The universal rule of American writers is to divide words at the end of a line so that their syllables shall remain entire.

Webster's rule in the formation of syllables does not have so much regard to the etymology (i.e. will so it has to the combination of sounds. Those sounds which are uttered with one impulse of the voice form a syllable.

The origin and history of words are subjects of great importance to the pupil. Without a knowledge of these the voice and force of many expressions are unappreciated. Through curiosity many new words are constantly added to our vocabulary. The recent discoveries in electricity have added them by the score. Many of our most expressive words come from the folk lore of past generations. The etymology of the most ordinary word is exceedingly interesting, and when any word is studied in the dictionary, its origin and history should receive careful attention.

Sculpture, proper names, foreign phrases, Bible proper names and places, and books, ancient and modern, are all topics of interest to the pupil.

The days of universal disease are above times and of current history, biography, of course play an important part. The names of eminent men who were in foreign lands should be given in proper pronunciation. The same is applies to geographical names. The teacher should not attempt to pronounce these words according to English analogy in every case. A careful feature of the dictionary is its treatment of geographical names.

Abbreviations and contractions form a useful subject of study. The pupil should be taught to distinguish between them.

We are sorry to state that one or two schools in this county are not supplied with a dictionary.

Supt. Edwin Parmenter, of Iron Mountain, Mich., printed out some good rules from the Southern Educational Journal and printed them in his Bulletin as follows:

1. You are bent on being a good teacher, you say? Well, you must be good. Good? Then consider the cost!

2. You must spend money liberally on educational journals and professional books.

3. You must spend time in hard, systematic work to them at the expense of ease and leisure.

4. You must think intently about every morning of every day in your school room.

5. You must know the best things that have been said and done about your business, and you must attempt to improve them.

6. You must satisfy yourself that science and best judgment every day of the year, even at the expense of popularity and position. Remember that when you get one, be a little community, you'll be just big enough for a large majority.

7. You must dare to do many things differently from the old way your patrons swear by. Somebody asked Bacher how he would make coffee. "I would first find out how it was commonly made," he replied, and then do it differently."

8. You must some out of your little shell. Get out new something! Buy railroad tickets into the successful school entities. Study successful normal and successful schools at all cost and at all hazard.

9. Plunge into the institutes and teachers' meetings. Study the day's work. Ask questions freely about what you do not understand. Be thoughtful, but be open to conviction.

10. Pursue some cultural study as an index every year: literature, history, or one of the physical sciences, for instance.

10. Don't be a lazy tip. If you have a head, use it all the time.

11. Cultivate the sympathetic side of your nature. Learn how to get close to people, to get a grip on folks, to move them, to use them, to benefit them against their will and wishes.

We tender our thanks to the County Board of supervisors for purchasing a stenographic for the Commissioner's office. Why, in the nature of things, should the County Commissioner's office be lacking in dignity, or in any of the modern conveniences or apparatus, or records, or anything necessary for efficiency? Is there any good reason for allowing the Commissioner's office to be the last to the court house?

The proposed electric railroad between Cheboygan and Petoskey is said to be a sure thing. The company will be formally organized in a few days, according to the Cheboygan News.

James A. Hayes may not be the landlord of the Grand hotel at Mackinac much longer, for the report that negotiations are now pending looking to it sale by the syndicate owners to Henry, manager of the Plankinton hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

Rev. C. J. Strang, of Eastport, has started the publication of a little paper called the Shepard's Staff. It is to be published monthly and is intended to help toward the good work the elder hopes to accomplish in that field.

Several thousand packages of lorning have been taken up by fishermen along the bay shore, north of Menominee, for the season just closed. The combined catch was marketed by the Green Bay Fishermen's Association at a greatly reduced price over last season.

Tuesday County's oldest resident, John Schmidt, died last week at the age of 102 years. He resided at Acme. All his children and twenty of his twenty-one grandchildren were present at the funeral. There is one great grandchild, a babe of three months, and the mother of the babe, a resident of Holland, was not able to be present, she and the child being the only absentees out of the whole offspring. Another remarkable fact is that Mr. Schmidt's death was the first to occur in his family, since having seen in Canada among the children born to him, and his wife surviving him.

One Overby, who lives one mile from Good Harbor, was the victim of a frightful experience a few days ago which may result very seriously for him. He was in the field in his farm when he was attacked by an enraged bull and horribly gored. Two of his ribs and his breast bone were broken and his head and face terribly bruised and bruised. One of his eyes is so badly injured that it is feared that even if it recovers he may lose his sight in the injured organ. Mr. Overby would probably have been killed outright had it not been for several cows near by. The cows took a hand in the affair and made an assault upon the bull and went at him in a business-like manner with their horns until he withdrew and his victim was able to crawl away. Mr. Overby is well to do farmer in Leelanau county.

The year we are just leaving behind has been, for us, a year of extraordinary success. Every month's record shows a steady, healthy growth over the corresponding months of 1898. But we are not satisfied—if we were we would not be worthy of your patronage. Unless 1900 shows a greater advance, we shall be disappointed. We are not blind enough to imagine that you deal at this store through sentiment. If we sold you more goods last year it was because you have found us worthy of you patronage. If we sell you more this year it will be for the same reason.
Our store in 1900 will be a better store. It will be our constant aim to make this store more worthy of your patronage first by a more careful selection of the goods you want, by uniform courtesy and efficient store service and by requestioning return of your money for any reason your purchases are not satisfactory.

At six o'clock this morning the Sibby was steaming Pine Lake at the rate of an inch a minute and the Charlevoix firemen were yet sober. With our Sibby and a crowd of Charlevoix firemen on duty Hogan City is safe—from fire.

—President Hillings was advised Saturday by Capt. Harding, that the government adjusting the Lewis opera house would be jobs out and rebuilt this winter. In all probability Mr. Bauwens will do the work. When Mr. Lemstra was here last week he suggested that the engineer's office in complying with our request to dredge a channel deeper than was contemplated in the government plan, was "good to us." It is true. With the exception of Capt. Harding's immediate predecessor, the office has always strivelled a point in favoring Charlevoix harbor and now Charlevoix expresses its appreciation of Capt. Harding's kindness in this emergency. The work will consist of the heating out of about 100 feet of the revetment—no small job in itself, when we consider the quantity of dirt that lies behind the sheet piling. We are not advised as to the nature of the new work, but suppose it will be of the same character as the old work, given additional strength by tying back to a line of piles in shore.

Letter from Gen. Manager.

Will Brown of Traverse City hands the Boldly Scored a letter from Gen. McLaughry who is now in the Philippines tackling for Filipinos. The letter bears two dates, October 30 and November 2 and gives an account of his trip and other interesting information since leaving the United States. The following is the letter in substance:

Bailiaag, Union, P. I., Oct. 30.

Friend Bill—I get to this place Monday, October 16. Came from Manila to Manila on the train and marched from there twelve miles to Bailiaag with a wagon train.

We made a record breaking trip from San Francisco, getting to Manila Bay on the morning of Oct. 14,—with two days in Honolulu, leaving an actual sailing time of 20 days.

There are six companies of the Third regiment here and four at Mexico. When I got here I was assigned to Co. A, the same that Lafayette, Scofield and Fraser are in. Just before I came the Filipinos had been firing on the town every night and keeping the boys out in the trenches and they have been expecting some music every night, but so far I have not heard the sing of a minnie bullet, though several nights there have been one or two shots over the town.

We are quartered in houses throughout the town. The one we are in is built on stone pillars, about six and a half feet from the ground; some of them have stone walls and some are set on posts. The rainy season is not quite over yet and we have light showers every day. At Manila we were kept close to our quarters, so I did not get a chance to go out to the Final Reserve Hospital and see Fred Hansen, although it was only a mile from where we were.

November 3rd, he says: We just came off outpost duty this morning and I had to lay off forenoon. This afternoon it rained so there was no drill, and I did the same as I did in the morning. We signed the pay roll Monday, so we will be getting some money pretty soon if we do not go on the "blue" before it gets here. We expect to move at any time now, though of course no one knows where we will go.

Hoy Storrs, a boy who enlisted at Traverse after we left, reached here Wednesday night and was attached to this company. (Notice has since been reached this city of his death.)

Tomorrow we have inspection and Sunday we go on interior guard. There are only six companies here and it takes two to do guard duty, one on outpost and one on interior, so we get one day out of three.

Geo. A. McCartney.

Interesting Facts About the Census.

1. Complete Federal enumerations of the people have been made regularly every ten years since 1792, but the first really valuable census of agriculture in the United States was taken in 1850, of the crops of 1849.

2. The last census of agriculture will be taken in June, 1900, of the products of 1899.

3. Instead of assessing several farms on one schedule, as heretofore, each farm will be accorded a separate blank in the Twelfth census, so that no farmer can see what his neighbor has reported.

4. Each farm blank, as soon as filled, will be enclosed in a government portfolio for safe and secret keeping, and will not be seen thereafter as the contents known, except by sworn officers of the Census Bureau.

5. Tax assessors, collectors, and equalizers can not serve as enumerators, or have access to the census returns or to the information thereby contained.

6. There are more than 5,000,000 farms, plantations, stock ranges, and market gardens in the United States, all of which, for census purposes, will be designated as "farms."

7. A "farm" is all the agricultural land under one management, whether in a single body or in separate parcels.

8. The enumerator will ask for the value of each farm, the value of buildings, and the aggregate value of all implements, implements, vehicles, harnesses, etc., owned by the owner or one of the occupant, and the amount of land owned and leased, respectively by said occupant.

9. He will also ask for the acreage and value of each crop, and the acreage of improved, unimproved, and irrigated lands.

10. The designation "each crop" includes all grains, cotton, corn, rice, sugar cane, sugar beets, sorghum, hay, clover, alfalfa grasses, gathered forage, flax hemp, hops, peanuts, tobacco, seeds, vines, tropical fruits, small fruits, orchard fruits, nursery and greenhouse stock, broom corn, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes and yams, all vegetables, including the product of all family, truck, and market gardens, etc., also new and unusual crops when found.

11. The enumerator will ask for the number and value of the live stock on the farm June 1, 1900, which will be reported under a number of heads such as horses, mules, asses, cows, heifers, steers, calves, bulls, oxen, dairy, beef, swine, goats, chickens, (including guinea fowl), turkeys, geese, ducks, stands of bees, etc.

12. He will also ask for the milk, cream, butter, cheese, raisins, prunes, molasses, sirup, sugar, eggs, beeswax, honey, wool, wine, cider, vinegar, dried and evaporated fruits, forest products, and, generally all articles made at home, from farm materials during 1899.

13. A person who moves from a farm between the end of the crop year 1899 and June 1, 1900, should leave a written record of the products of the farm of that farm for 1899 where it will reach the enumerator. He will also be required to give the number and value of the farm he lives on June 1st, 1900, the acreage, value, buildings, machinery, implements, and live stock of the farm he then occupies.

14. Every farmer should begin at once to prepare a careful record of all the facts which the enumerator will be instructed to record in June, 1900.

15. In this preparation, the woman and children of the farm household can afford material aid, especially with reference to the poultry, eggs, butter, cheese, fruits, vegetables, etc., consumed at home, or sold or traded to the local dealer or to others.

16. The twentieth century will begin on Jan. 1, 1901. Therefore, the pending census will afford to future generations a measure of the strength and condition of the United States at the threshold of the new hundred-year cycle. For that reason everyone should take an active interest in making it as nearly perfect as possible. If each farmer will make his own report perfect, the aggregated report for every community, and for the nation, will be perfect.

17. For information concerning the schedule for Agriculture, address Hon. William R. Morrison, Director, Washington, D. C.

At Mancelona people were simply overwhelmed Christmas. It was the worst day in years. Snow is 16 inches on the level. Lumbermen are smiling and business will now commence in earnest. All look forward to a busy winter.

Petoskey Democrat: The West Michigan passenger train due here at 11:55, ran over Moses Kewaygoshum, an Indian, Saturday night and severed his head and one leg from the body. The remains were discovered the next morning by watchman Shannon. Moses was evidently drunk and had fallen asleep on the track.

East Jordan Enterprise: A. J. Taylor, living west of Horace Hipp's place, lost two of his buildings by fire Wednesday morning. The fire started in the building in which his mechanics while they were eating breakfast and when discovered it was beyond control, and that building, the granary, and hog house adjoining were consumed. There were two hogs burned, and also hay and farming tools.

Negaunee, a square nearly 100 years old, and a member of the tribe of Indians who have lived at Burt Lake, Emmet county, for many years, says her people are being turned from their homes, the buildings torn down or burned and the people budged together in a few of the best houses which have been left standing. This eviction is being carried on, she says, in the interests of a number of Cheboygan men who have acquired tax titles to their land. For many years they have been unable to make more than a bare living, and in consequence their taxes remained unpaid. Other shacks are being erected in a swamp farther east, where the Indians are to be allowed to live for a time at least, she says.

GOOD NEWS.

New York Herald, Mon., Nov. 6, 1899.

NO TARIFF TINKERING.

Representative Payne, of New York, chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means is certain that the present Congress will do no tariff revising. The Republican Congress has adjourned, and it will not convene in a regular session. "There will be no session of Congress during the present year," said Mr. Payne, "and I do not think there will be any revising of the tariff by this Congress. I do not believe that the country is in a condition to stand the agitation of the question of a revision of the tariff. Business is prosperous and the country is satisfied with the present tariff."

The Republican leaders do not intend to revise the tariff, because they are afraid of the effect such a revision would have on the prosperity of the country. Business is booming, the manufacturers are making money, and the Republican leaders do not want to do anything that may interfere with the prosperity of the country.

Pinkney Dispatch: The republican party is to be congratulated upon the Hampton's appointment as editor in chief of the newly established democratic state paper. The bald, insincere, and malignant editorial utterances of the new paper under his management will win fewer votes than they will drive away. Sugar, not sulphuric acid, is the basis of its paper.

Chebeygan Tribune: The democrat papers have been suspected, at least, of the belief that the pledge of the republican party to restore prosperity has been fulfilled. The papers all over the country are admitting that never before in the history of the nation, did merchants in all branches enjoy such patronage at Christmas as they did last week. The masses have been recalling steady employment and good wages and consequently had money to spend for presents to their loved ones and friends at the glad Christmas time. Now, before the merchants count up large a holiday trade, Satur day there was a rush in every store with all hands were kept on the jump to wait upon customers. The report is every city and village report that the holiday trade last week beat the record of any previous year.

President Kruger, of the Transvaal Republic, under date of November 10, issued a greeting to the people of the United States, setting forth the condolence that brought on the war between that state and Great Britain. He says: "The main question in dispute between this government and the of England was in regard to the franchise. We always been willing to leave this question and similar questions, last Jameson raid, and always declined arbitration at the very start. The franchise law which is by the legislature at the commencement of this year was passed, according to the existing laws of that country, give the vote to foreigners on payment of taxes, and there are only 30,000 of the older inhabitants on the voters' lists, this would, incontrovertibly, give a majority in numbers to the new population. Instead of accepting this the British nation has determined now forced to into war. We have been forced into war because the British government was bringing thousands of troops into South Africa, and up to our borders, with the avowed object of forcing us to do whatever it may please right."

The Philippine policy of the democratic party, as demanded in the platform resolutions offered by Congressman Williams, of Mississippi, is one of surrender and apology. The Williams resolutions are in effect an official letter of sympathy, and and encouragement to the fleeing chief of a supposed rebellion, promising him that if he will come out of the Filipino jungle and end the war, he will be granted all that he claimed at the beginning of the war. It's certainly what we gave up our Cubans and so Congress will try down his arms and promise to pay the United States $20,000,000 for back taxes." Undersue sounds the cry of alarm of Europe over the prodigious success of American manufacturers and the march of American commerce. In less than eighteen years American exportations have tripled. There being no more Napoleons to conquer the world with arms, the Yankees are doing it with work. The United States, says Wendzner, can compete commercially as effectually as with arms. Banks will fail, factories be ruined, and workmen starved to death by American commerce. The "Protection," because it contains the Panama entry, which commands even a higher price, having been sold for $25,000, for but six copies are know of to be in existence. It was printed by John Fleet and Peter Scheffer on an element in Gutenberg's shop and is the first printed book bearing the year and day of its publication on the title page. This inscription reads, "1457, on the eve of Assumption." Of course, all of the earliest Bibles were printed in Latin. The first known Latin Bible with a date appeared in 1462, and it valued at $7,000. After that time many editions of the Bible appeared in all languages—German, Italian, French and Greek, and in 1516 there was a two polyglot Bible, one in which the Bible appeared in various languages side by side. The most valuable Bible of all, was that of the Jews, and the circle ours have been sent from Pittsburg for Cuba. These facts, Wendzner says, are more than economic signs. They have a grandeur worthy of attention. American rails in cape colony the United States introduced motors and tools and founded manufactories. The English were obliged to go to Philadelphia to order the construction of the great steel bridge for the Athen river, and American locomotives are being consigned to all parts of the earth. From Jersey City 300 wagons of steel were ordered for the land of the Pharaohs, and the electric cars

Tuesday, Sharp. The republican party is to be congratulated upon Hanna's appointment as editor-in-chief of the newly established Chicago paper. The bile, slander, and malignant religious intolerance of the new paper under his management will this year outdo that long will thrive away. Sugar, rice or molasses and to the back of its paper.

Chicago Times: The democratic papers have been neglected in all that about just the pledge of the republican party to restore prosperity has been fulfilled. The papers all over the country are admitting that never before in the history of the nation, did merchants in all branches of trade a percentage at Christmas as they did last year. The mines have been receiving steady employment and good wages, and consequently had money to invest for presents to their loved ones. Even farmers of the good Christmas time. President Kruger of the Transvaal legislature, under date of November 15, issued a greeting to the people of the United States, in which he says: "We are conditional time brought on the war between Great Britain and the Transvaal. He quoted the Queen's proclamation to show that neither legislative assembly had been secured, and is also in response to the demands of a majority of the Uitlanders.

The record drawn up by Sir Hugh Gough in South Africa indicates that Great Britain has a tough customer to deal with. Boldness and cool courage are Boers characteristics. Gough's force, last week, was the latest one to be engaged in the war. He was certainly repulsed in his attempt to relieve the Light Horse, and forced the loss of nearly all of its gold lery, more good it is said than Wellington fell in an his battle with Napoleon. Dispatches from London state that Bobby Roberts, the man whom Lipton and lead lovel general of the British army, has been made commander-in-chief and Kitchener the veteran for chief of the Natal campaign, is to be chief of staff. All the army of reserves has been called out, the militia, volunteers to serve as home guards while the volunteers are to be sent to re-enforce the regulars at the seat of war. The people of Britain have found that the Boers are something more than farmers. They are armed and equipped with the best of a well equipped army, commanded by men versed in war games. Whatever the outcome may be, it is evident the end will come after a prolonged war.

A recent able article appears in the Philadelphia Times of the Paris Street Fair, and says: Modeste of "The Gaulois" in the World by the United States." Modeste asserts that any of these exposition, the great giants of American manufacturers and the vitality of American enterprise. In less than eighteen years, the exposition have had. Great Britain being no more Napoleon to conquer.

States from the Sea, saying that we are with Great Britain. The Yankees are at work. The United States cannot make the rebels. Great Britain is now occupied with Africa. Africa will take all the attention of Great Britain. Africa is the Transvaal. Africa is the Boers. Africa is the Orange Free State. Africa is the Uitlanders. Africa is the Gold Fields. LAWTON SHOT DEAD.

FAMOUS FIGHTER KILLED AT HEAD OF HIS TROOPS.

Pulls While Almost in Assault Immediately Was His Death—Outline Sketch of Civil, Indian and Spanish Wars—Sketch of a Noble Life.

A Manila dispatch Tuesday reported the death of Gen. Henry W. Lawton, the famous soldier of fortune.

GEN. LAWTON.

Lawton, a native of Indiana, was a veteran of the Civil war, having served in the 12th Indiana regiment and participated in the battles of Fort Donelson, Shiloh, Corinth, Iuka, Vicksburg, Jackson, Mobile and Spanish Fort. He was mustered out of the service in 1865 and was appointed from Lawton's district, when he served in Washington, was soon promoted to the rank of major and was ordered to the Philippines, where he served in the Indian war, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel and colonel. He was in the battle of Santiago and was one of the commissioners who arranged the terms of the surrender of Santiago. He was promoted to the rank of brigadier general of volunteers and was ordered to the Philippines, where he served in the Indian war. He was promoted to the rank of major

Another renewal movement in the kingdom of the Ann Arbor railroad was made last week in the completion and successful starting of the large grain elevator at Frankfort.

The Michigan Telephone Company is building the new long-distance line from Omena to Petoskey this week. The wires are going the usual Traverse City and Petoskey charity followed by the white cross. This will help wonderfully up on hill the bottom, so it will enable the company to give more straight orders to its patrons.

Gardener City seems to be infested with a gang of amateur highway robbers. Several attempts at a hold-up have been made recently, the latest effort in that line being one evening last week, when a pile of brush was placed in the road to the prejudice of shopping teams while the hold bandits did their work. Two different teams encountered the hazards but both got safely away.

Traverse City is endeavoring to secure the location of a wood alcohol plant to be operated in connection with a group of charcoal kilns. The scheme and its operation depending on the disposition of fuel, and one would naturally think that the sagebrush and brush on Traverse City would operate against the location of such an institution.

Capt. Eric Sloan, Henry Schmidt, etc., has purchased of John Ott, St. Joseph's Bay, 13 lots bounding the water right of the first creek north of Third street, and intends to commence the construction of an electric light plant and water works system as soon as spring opens. The natural flow within one is the choicest line and the money and enterprise channel down there are crowding for long.

Henry Hayes, of the G. & M. R. recently made a serious footman to ascertain the width and depth of a creek, and its distance down from the road-bed. In a few days he received a letter back stating that the creek was 30 feet wide, two feet deep and three miles long." Come to find out the section hand had measured the whole length of the division with a tape measure, going through a tunnel was greatly at underfoot to do it.

E. F. Johnson formerly postmaster at Norton's Bay was arrested at Traverse City last week and arraigned in U. S. Commissioner Roberts court on charge of embezzlement, which occurred while in the employment of the government. It seems that he was appointed postmaster at Norton's Bay about two years ago and, had been there only a little over a year when he was suspended of being was suspended of being was suspended upon a charge of perjury, preferred by Joseph Wheeler, of Norwood, who came last for that purpose. It is now alleged by Wheeler that Clark is still the husband of his daughter Bertha, and her father of two children, in spite of his repeated statements that Lizzie Adams, the widow he married on the day of separation, was the only wife he had. The charge of perjury grew out of the statements made by the county clerk when attempt to look out the license to marry the Adams woman. His story was shaken however, when Attorney Uniker took Wheeler to the jail and confronted Clark with the father of his wife in Norwood. It is alleged that he manned Rachael Wheeler seven years ago and after living with her awhile became so unbearable that he was finally driven from East Jordan by the people of the community. They lived at Omena for awhile and during that time he offered to sell his wife to another party for a trifling consideration, but she declined to be a party to the indignity. Soon afterwards, about five years ago, they returned to East Jordan where it was alleged he attempted the same game, but the affair coming to the knowledge of his father-in-law and some of the neighbors it was stopped, and to a place out there where they could be gone from the world they thought, but in these days of quick scheming tourists would echo "pen! from "penal" or "nile," but they, too, ask for "nile" when they mean "pens." Children only know a pen as a holder and pen combined. They ask for "nile" or "pen nile," and asked if they do not mean "pens," the reply is: "No, nile!"

Telltale Slugs.

As soon as a young man and young woman are engaged in Norway, an entire ice cream can of nile, yesterday rings are worn out afterwards by that man as well as the woman. The gossipers say that one can always tell a married man, or at least an engaged man, in Norway in the same way as one can tell a married woman or another, when she leaves her hand, cold rings are cast by the roll, but silver rings are of filigree, by the piece. There is no married man in Norway, no matter how humble he may be, who does not bear this outward mark of submission to the matrimonial bond. But this is not all. As soon as a man is engaged he has calling cards printed with the name of his fiancee thereafter below his own.

Horseflesh.

Many people in Denmark prefer horseflesh to beef. In Germany and Austria butchers is taken in horse meat preparations, and is becoming more so every year. England is still reluctant about accepting the idea of meat and classes that kind of food alongside snails and frogs. The first horse butchers in Paris were only established in 1866; that special trade is now legally carried on, and is considerably increasing, as demonstrated by municipal statistics so much so that today over 3,000 kegs of horseflesh are consumed annually in Paris, and by early Hennel knows intelligent who reside, supplies from two special shops, slaughter houses, both outside the city proper.

Letter Temple in Paris.

Paris contains the finest letter temple in the world. It was erected in 1892 at a cost of $400,000. Merchants and organizations have meeting places and offices under its roof, for which a nominal rent is paid. The sum of $10,000 is appropriated annually by the municipal council for its maintenance.

Compressed Coffee Tablets.

A process has been invented and patented in Brazil for compressing coffee in tablets by a system of compression. It is alleged that not only will there be less expense in exporting coffee in this form, but that the customer will be more certain of this receiving for his use the pure unadulterated article.

Turning Steam Bulb.

The British government keeps eleven steamers at work scouring and clearing the canals built to link up with Lake New York. Last year 11,000 square miles were cleared, dredged in Africa and the South Pacific.

Transportation in Paris.

The omnibus company of Paris, on the occasion of the exposition next year, will have nineteen lines and 1,300 omnibus, performing 24,000 journeys a day, and capable of transporting 1,050,000 passengers.

More than $100,000 Stock.

THE DAYS OF QUILL PENS.

An Accomplished Schoolmaster, Who Made Them Single in Fourteen.

The art of making a quill by adept hand-writer was dying when I first began schooling, says Notes and Queries. Steel pens had been known for years time but were not in general use. The goose quill pen dog a hard death as a commonly used writing tool. My first schoolmaster was a Scotsman, fond of cutting a quill, and he could use it with wonderful effects in flourishes. I was his head foot-to child till the five pages of a large school book with notes, sale, date and flourishes—in which were depicted wonderful swans and other birds—in a fashion that some but experts like himself could tell where the quill pen was taken from the paper for a fresh dip. My last master could scribble out a quill for me one with advantage. Quills as pens remained in use in some houses as the only writing tool up to a dozen or twenty years ago. Those who can cut a decent writing quill are now few. People used to ask for a quill pen," or a quill" when they wanted a pen, and both steel and quill were always called "pens," buyers asking for fine or other "nibs" or nebs." Nowadays nearly all ask for "nibs" when they require pens. The word "pen" has almost dropped out of usage except to express the pen and ink combined. Persons invariably ask for a box of "nibs" appearing to lose sight of the fact that "pens" or "nebs" is a point and that the points of pens alone are not to be had. One would think that in these days of quick scribbling tourists would order "pens" from "points" or "nibs" but they, too, ask for "nibs" when they mean "pens." Children only know a pen as a holder and pen combined. They ask for "nibs" or "pen nibs." And asked if they do not mean "pens," the reply is: "No, nibs!"

BURNETT'S BURNETT'S BURNETT'S

Charlevoix's Popular Trading Center.

Good by to 1899!

The year we are just leaving behind has been, for us, a year of extraordinary success. Every month's record shows a steady, healthy growth over the corresponding months of 1898. But we are not satisfied—if we were we would not be worthy of your patronage. Unless 1900 shows a greater advance, we shall be disappointed. We are not blind enough to imagine that you deal at this store through sentiment. If we sold you more goods last year it was because you have found us worthy of you patronage. If we sell you more this year it will be for the same reason.

Our store in 1900 will be a better store. It will be our constant aim to make this store more worthy of your patronage. first by a more careful selection of the goods you want, by uniform courtesy and efficient store service and by unquestioning return of your money for any reason your purchases are not satisfactory.

We want you to patronize this store, not once, but all the time, and to this end we try to make it as pleasant for you to buy your goods here as it is for us to sell them.

—The closing arrangement has been amended. Hereafter, until further notice, all business sensitive contents close at 7:00 p. m., except Tuesday and Saturday.

—Dr. E. P. Allen, of Grand Lodge, Lodge, has been recommended by Senator Burrows for special agent of the land office in Alleen was formerly a Bayne City druggist.

—Our esteemed friend and neighbor, Captain Peter D'Arville Campbell returned home from Muskegon Friday evening, and the trouble began again. The Captain's fatally returned with him.

—Mr. Tuttle, the restaurant man, last week bought the Chamberlain building, now used by him as a restaurant. Mr. Tuttle will build an 80 foot addition on the back end for a first class bakery. He is already erecting a brick oven.

—It is reported that the D. H. & I. road is arranging for the establishment of a boat line across Lake Michigan, from Muskegon to Milwaukee. Plans as at present being discussed are for winter service only and trips will be made every other day.

—The Pere Marquette Railroad Co. has purchased the Saginaw, Tuscola & Huron Railroad, running from Saginaw to Bad Axe, its length being 68 miles, and connecting at the last named place with the Pere Marquette system running to Port Austin. The road was largely owned by the Hoyt estate, of New York, and was bonded for $1,000,000.

—The Michigan Tradesman of a recent issue contained a good half-tone portrait of Ira F. Gordon, who so successfully represents the Traverse City Potato Implement Co. Across facing the portrait is a good "write up" of Mr. Gordon. This successful "drummer" was formerly a Charlevoix business man, and in 1892 married Miss Georgiana Irwin, of this place.

—Our fire steamer and the Charlevoix contingent of firemen returned from Bayne City having run the Sliby three days and three nights on the White mill yard fire. The Charlevoix machine and its crew are credited with having saved Bayne City from a big fire. This emphasizes the fact that the Sliby is a valuable reserve force for an emergency, and should not be parted with.

—The Beaver Island people may congratulate themselves again this winter upon their mid-winter touch with the mainland, by reason of late navigation. To have a mail and passenger steamer running between Charlevoix and St. James in the middle of January, as it undoubtedly will, is a big advance over former years, and makes a short winter for the islanders.

—The observations of school commissioner Chase this week on teachers' wages express the too glaring fact that country teachers are the poorest paid class of our wage earners. A good country teacher gets about $30 a month, (and that is questionable) as the average interest in the lumber woods. The education necessary to equip a teacher for effective work means years of close study, in most cases, after leaving the high school, and many a parent has expended a good portion of his substance to pay for the bills. The labor to worthy of his hire in proportion to the dignity of usefulness of his or her vocation, and what class are given assistance to financially comparable that those who prepare the young for the battle of life? We sometimes wonder that teachers do not organize for their mutual benefit. Why should they not?

—The Pere Marquette railroad is about to attempt the tremendous task of admitting several million acres of unimproved lands adjacent to the branches of the system in northern Michigan and owned by large lumbering concerns who have cut the timber off and now hold the land for sale at extremely low figures.

—In the township of Hayes on Monday, there occurred the death of Hattie Hammond, a grand daughter of Joseph Moore, under circumstances that called for investigation. The woman had recently come to this section from the vicinity of Traverse City, and her own admissions during her illness been indicate that she was the victim of an abortion but before coming here. A post mortem examination was begun yesterday by Drs. Thieles and Kimball, before Coroner McCartney, and adjourned till Thursday. Deceased was 26 years of age and had been divorced from her husband. Under-Sheriff Weikel has charge of the investigation.

We Are of the Opinion.

That the man who call a "crank" is a good thing in any town, provided there are not too many of him.

That the crank is valuable for contrast with the quiet, conservative citizens.

That a religion revival in Charlevoix is a thing to be desired.

That revivals quicken conscience, turn thoughts inward, and scour down the rough and rugged edges of human nature.

That no good citizen will be little religious effort, or decry its effects.

That no person can be made worse by a religious awakening, and is more than likely to be made better.

That Charlevoix needs just now a revival of another sort—a revival that will stir up our people to the material needs of the town.

That some wide awake citizen should take energetic and preach some interest into Charlevoix business.

That a shaking up of our dry bones and plethoric habits would result in good.

That we should make a last 19th century effort to wake up, and

That we should remain awake just as long into the 20th as we can retain life enough to bother "Charlevoix."

This "Charlevoix the Beautiful" cognomen, is not what a hustler thinks.

That we have known various "beautiful" things where the beauty was only skin deep.

That there are "beautiful" women who are too lazy to wash the inner dishes.

That beauty with ambition and vim is a virtue, but not otherwise.

That "Charlevoix the Beautiful" is all right to attract resorters three months in the year, but what about the other nine?

That we are on the gain, but at too slow a pace for our capacity and power.

That Charlevoix is the finest town in the north, but needs a revival.

The Life Boat Mission.

The "Life Boat Mission" opened in Clark's hall by Elder and Mrs. Lessel, is only one of the many missions of a like character, organized and operated for the purpose of lending a helping hand to the various conditions of faith. Humanity, also to relieve the needy and render practical assistance to the sick and poor.

The mission will be opened every night at seven o'clock, short, spicy gospel talks, and a hearty welcome to all. Good singing.

Working Christians are earnestly solicited to cooperate with us in fulfilling Matthew XXV, 34-40.

There was a collision and wreck on the East Jordan & Southern railroad up in the woods on section 19, on Tuesday morning. It appears that the crew of No. 6 had taken up about 10 miles of track and were just loading a load of merchandise for the camps, among which was between twenty and thirty pounds of dynamite for use in one of the camps, and was running on the siding there when they saw Crash by the train of engine which it was backing up. Two men were demolished and the engineer lost wonderful escape, of three men, which makes a different story to relate.—Boyne City Herald.

CHAPTER XX.

"Arthur! Arthur! Arthur! Arthur!" in the same tones of despairing fear, after all, that was the only name to her the "Arthurless mother" was unknowing constantly, and unless, perhaps, there is an exception made in the case of a mother whose only child is her son, the name thus is an almost dearer one. The most thoughtless mother, the most careless, in the decline in the passion, all the world knows with whom she is, and knows the regardful middle of Lord Hermont, even has. This author, when this sounds the general consumption of our fashionable circles, admits that Lord Hermont has no popular. He was only twenty-one, with the prestige of a baronet's coronet, years before him, and mother in the one who has spoken of him, and the one who says a society journal.

But there was one who loved little.

One of these—a woman—lonely, sitting in the twilight of her room, with the paragraph, and glances at him who has wrought her misery, and stopping on her hands, pore on stopped hands for the moment, as if words, the gave time—the pause, "for to have and what for dull."

Elizabeth Fraser, bound of the hollow of her original, and the pitiful, and remembrance the days with which Lady Arthur came to home, and the days of Herbert's abandonment for her sake.

And for a little time, Elizabeth was happy. When women were one moment a penny sometimes, paid the bitterness, the harrowing anguish with a vivid zest you may imagine the wonder and delight that when Herbert has handed the newspaper to Elizabeth, he said, "Lady Arthur is to come home, and we shall be happy again, Elizabeth, for I shall be all to you. He is coming home to me." Elizabeth read the paragraph, and glances at him who has wrought her misery, and stopping on her hands, pore on stopped hands for the moment, as if words, the gave time—the pause, "for to have and what for dull." Unmerited Prosperity.

The following is from the Scientific American, a non-partisan journal:

"Looking back over the year that has just drawn to a close, the American who has the welfare of his country deeply at heart will find abundant cause for satisfaction. It has been a record of unparalleled prosperity.

"The year 1898 saw the success of our arms, and the advancement of our naval and military prestige, in the immediate aftermath of a more and more pleasing triumph in the arts of peaceful industry. With rapid strides we have moved up to the front rank as a great exporting nation, and not only have we easily held our own and strengthened our positions in those lines of manufacture in which we have gained a secure foothold for our products in new territory which was supposed to belong exclusively to our foreign competitors.

"The problems of colonial for the wisdom of a better surely administration, remaining to us as a legacy of the Spanish war, have been solved, during the year, with a reasonable measure of success. In Porto Rico, as the result of the elevating influences of last summer, our efforts have been chiefly in the way of relief for a starving country, and the crisis still for help. In Cuba our efforts have been largely diverted to the cleaning up of the accumulated filth of the cities, and the relief of the impoverished country as could be accomplished. The absence of political disturbances after the perpetual strife of Spanish rule indicates that, so far as outward appearances go, the pacification of the island is complete; but it is too early to judge of the permanent results of our government, or to determine how long our occupation of the island must continue. The splendid work already accomplished by General Wood at Santiago is a good augury for the future of the island under its newly appointed governor. In the Philippines, if we may judge from the reports of General Otis, the insurrection is practically at an end, the insurgent army broken up and dispersed and Aguinaldo a fugitive. The problem in these far distant islands is big with possibilities, and its solution will call for the most careful consideration, in some respects it is as difficult a question as ever confronted an American congress. If the administration of that island is carefully influenced from the worst features of political influence, we have no doubt that the Filipinos will be pacified and rendered in the time necessarily prosperous under American rule.

"It is only the croakers and calamity hunters who expectedly their facts or belittle the prestige that has come to us through a thoroughly American policy.

A Comprehensive Sneer.

Hampton's Pilot, President says: "Lawton was opposed to the war and did not hesitate to say so." Lawton sold nothing of the kind, and Hampton knows it. This is what Lawton said:

"I want to tell you that the whole truth of this whole Philippine situation could be known by every one in America as I know it. If the real history, implication and condition of this insurrection and the influences, local and external, that sent it, or caused the enemy as well as the actual combination of these bitterness and hopes and their relations to the great final good to understand at home, we would hear no talk of unjust shooting of government into Filipinos, or hauling down our flag in the Philippines.

"If the so-called anti-imperialists would honestly ascertain the truth on the ground and not in distant America, they would be, I believe to be honest men straight out, and would be convinced of the error of their statements and conclusions, and of the unfortunate effect of their publications here.

"If I am shot by a Filipino bullet it might as well come from one of my own men, because I know from observations, confirmed by captured prisoners that the continuance of fighting is chiefly due to reports that are sent out from America."

Lawton was shot, and the above words should turn into the consciences of every anti-expansionist, whether they be democrats or mugwumps, followers of Wm. J. Bryan or grandma Tyler.

There was a time when Hampton and Lawton were opposed to the war, but the Admiral returned home to give those copperheads of the Hanna, to swipe the lie. Lawton would have done the same had he been permitted to return, and no better, written from the field, will live in the heart of every true American, and put the lemon on Swanson upon the brow of every copperhead.

Pingree's claim similar with his needless expense of the tax payers has come home to roost on the governor's door step. The necessity for an extra session of the legislature, which he claimed would not exist but in the erratic mind of the governor. Now that the legislature has adjourned without bowing down to the match, Pingree has only relieve his mind by his usual profanity, and the people can pay the bills.

The World says Canada is preparing to make a strong bid for the trade of American corporations known as "trusts." A representative of the Dominion government has arrived in this city to confer with representatives of several of the largest companies having their main offices in New York. Hitherto anti-trust legislation in Canada has been the most great effort is mainly responsible for this move toward Canada.

Chief Justice Cobern of South Dakota has announced himself a candidate for governor, and will come to the convention with the solid Northern democratic delegation. Secretary State Stearns is in the field. A. T. Hiles is on the war path, while Jas. Bracken is not yet heard from as a candidate. D. M. Ferry, of Detroit, is in the field to stay, and will inaugurate an aggressive campaign for the nomination. With any one of the four first named, Michigan is safely Republican. "The brave" does not always win, gentlemen.

Detroit Journal: The reports made monthly by State Game and Fish Warden Morse steadily confirm the good results that were anticipated for vigorous enforcement of the state game laws. Sentiment in their favor is growing materially and accidentally in the warden's department is keeping violations down to a minimum. There is more game in the state now than when systematic protection began, and there is every likelihood that it will increase until some of the more vigorous advocates of the law may be relaxed for the benefit of the people.

Chicago special 4th:—The waters of Lake Michigan have invaded the Chicago river as far as Harrison street bridge in the south branch. At sunset last night the water had taken on a decided tinge as far south as Twenty-second street bridge. Twenty to eleven miles from the mouth of the river the water stood, silent half a mile from the river's mouth. It was better than usually at 200 yards west of the lake saving station. Even the south fork of the south branch, known as the stock yards branch, shared in the benefits of the opening of the drainage canal.

Congressman Mesick of Michigan has introduced a general pension bill which provides: "Survivors of the army and navy of the rebellion who served 90 days and who received an honorable discharge from the service, and have attained, or will attain, before or after the passage of this act, the age of 60 or over, shall be granted an unconditional pension of $24 per month during life" and that "survivors are entitled to the provisions of this act or the conditions that all such pensioners are receiving or may receive from the United states government shall be forfeited."

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEEK, COM'R.

We have been asked, by some of our school officers, recently, whether district moneys could be paid out indiscriminately, for any and all purposes. The law is plain about that matter. They cannot. Sec. 11, chapter 4, Com. School Laws, reads:

"The district board shall apply and pay over all school moneys belonging to the district, in accordance with the provisions of or the law, regulating the same, and no money raised by district tax shall be used for any other purpose than for which it was raised, without a consenting vote of two-thirds of the tax-paying voters of the district; and no moneys received from the primary school interest fund, nor from the one-mill tax, except as provided by law, shall be appropriated to any other use than the payment of teachers' wages, and no part thereof shall be paid to any teacher who shall not have received a certificate of qualification from proper legal authority before the commencement of his school."

The Attorney General, in a decision rendered more than twenty years ago, says he thinks this section must be strictly and literally observed.

The exceptions to the one-mill tax, above stated, will be found in Sec. 20, chapter 4. The qualified voters in any school district which has fully attained, on a local or special school meeting, shall have power to appropriate any surplus moneys arising from the one mill tax, after having maintained a school in the district at least eight months in the school year, for the purpose of purchasing and enlarging school sites, or for building or repairing schoolhouses, or for purchasing books for library, globes, maps, and other school apparatus, or for any incidental expenses of the school."

The intent of the law is, that the tax payer shall be respected in the expenditure of his money. The District board does not have carte blanche when it comes to the use of the money raised in the district by tax.

There are sixty school districts outside of the village schools, in Charlevoix county. During the last school year, schools were maintained in the various townships as follows: (These figures are for the rural schools and do not include the village schools. We will refer to the village schools in another letter.) Bay township 22 months, Boyne Valley 23, Chandler 23, Irwins 23, Evangeline 24½, Hayes 20, Hudson 21, Melrose 19, Marion 37, Norwood 24, Peaine 18 south Arm 31, Wilson 20.

Irwins, Evangeline, Melrose and Norwood average eight months to the school year and Hudson next with seven and three-fourths, Bay Marion and Wilson average a fraction over seven months and Boyne Valley seven months, Chandler, Hayes and South Arm average six and three-fourths months and Peaine eight months.

The following monthly wages are paid in three schools the current year as follows: Bay township $35, Boyne Valley $25.00, Chandler $26, Evangeline $27.50, Irwins $25.84, Hayes $26.16, Hudson $27, Melrose $25, Marion $28.70, Norwood $32.50, Peaine $30, South Arm $28.09, Wilson $26.50.

The lowest wages paid is $24 per month, and the highest wages is $35. The wages paid in some of the districts are probably all the districts can afford. We have a number of poor work districts that should not be allowed to exist. They only barely maintain the minimum number of months of school each year, and that an economical and overburdening tax time. We have already abolished one district and will have three more at least, the current year. Congested. We have always sympathized with those overtaxed, but sympathy does not pay the taxes, nor keep a school in good working order.

There is one one school in the county (rural school) that pays $40 per month. A good teacher is worth that at least.

The school board should discriminate in the prices paid teachers and be willing to give good pay for excellent work. Poor work is always dear at any price, and the best teacher in any profession must be paid for at remunerative prices.

The public who prepares herself for the profession of worthy of her hire. But when she is confronted with such a schedule of prices, ($25 to $30 a month, experience or no experience, ability or no ability, other district voted to pay $35 a month and do your work, and that is all that we will pay,) board and nothing to provide, after all the expense incurred to prepare herself for the work, she cannot afford to teach for such wages.

As we stated before, some on our districts claimed school to pay more, but there are many districts in this county, that can afford to pay good wages to a first class teacher and it would be to their interest to do so.

It is the business of the school board to notify the commissioner of any school in their district, that is not complying with her contract. The commissioner always was the best adviser of school matters, and may organize, any information to let the school "run down at the heel," should be reported to the commissioner forthwith.

We hope the school boards will exercise the same business methods in employing their teachers as they use in other business, and let the teacher who has had experience and is worth the money, know that she is wanted and is a good teacher.

DELAGOA BAY MAY CAUSE IN TERNATIONAL TURMOIL.

Events Show the Necessity of Early Action Taking Important Consequences—France and Russia Are Relieved Albert Against British Purchases.

London correspondent Thursday stat. of the under the more moderate of the treaty it has been arrangement that Germany will take Angra Pequena in exchange for the Caroline Islands. Advices from Berlin say that Germany will not insist on the possession of Delagoa Bay. The British people appear to see the situation clearly enough and are certainly acting with more moderation than the occasion appears to call for. It is not to be denied that the British claim to Delagoa Bay is very strong, and it is not to be denied that the Transvaal Boers have given ample provocation for the action of the British government. The Boers have shown themselves the most unreasonable people with whom a government has had to deal in recent years, and the British government has had ample provocation for the action it has taken. It is not to be denied that the Boers have treated the natives in a most barbarous manner, and that they

GOOD FOUNDATION.

What Charlevoix Can Show Up to Prospective Assets and Natural Advantages.

Charlevoix has, approximately, 5,000 population, and for its size, claims to be fully up-to-date in all that constitutes a desirable town in which to reside or do business.

Charlevoix owns and operates its own lighting plant—an establishment costing $15,000, modern in every detail, and more than paying running expenses.

Charlevoix has a water system, second to none in quality of supply, and in volume or quality of water supply—in quantity it is practically inexhaustible, and in quality chemically perfect.

Charlevoix has public schools that are its pride and boast. It has school property of a value of $50,000, inclusive of a central school building costing, erecting, with real estate $20,000. It has two modern ward buildings, with large grounds and excellent equipment. The system has a corps of thirteen teachers.

Charlevoix has five church societies, all with good church edifices.

Charlevoix has forty-five business establishments, and all prospering.

This for material assets.

The contest which has been raging in regard to the seating of senator elect Quay, has been resumed, and will be settled. By a vote of 7 to 3 the committee on privileges and election of the United States senate decided against allowing Senator Quay to take his seat. After filing two indictments, the grand jury adjourned sine die on the 5th. It is thought that the indictments are for at least three persons and probably five. President Brown, of the trade dollar commission, is probably one of those included in the indictments, while Col. Sutton, of Detroit, is believed to be another. As usual the names are suppressed until those indicted are in the hands of officers. The results of the grand jury work thus far are as follows: Four cases for indictments, two against ex-assistant Adams, one against Land Commissioner French and one against Charles Pratt. The general charge against all these is bribery, Adams being indicted for receiving bribes. Then came the indictment of Representative Tarsney on a two-charge for soliciting bribes, growing out of his connection with the anti-trust bill and the famous telegram to the Grand Rapids wholesale grocery. Fred A. Maynard was the next indictee, the charge being a misdemeanor based on the allegation that he retained a portion of the salary drawn in the name of Chief Clerk Adams. The military investigation has occupied most of the jury's attention for four weeks. It has thus far resulted in filing indictments against Generals Marsh, White and Colonel Smith.

Winter Navigation.

Mancelona quoted in the Detroit Journal: The ice crusher Algomah arrived here this morning from Frankfort, via Sturgeon bay on her first trip in her winter schedule. Her work will be to keep an open channel across from bay from Manistique on into Lake Michigan and thence to Frankfort. For three seasons past the Ann Arbor Co. have been endeavoring to move a package through the ice with their car ferries without success. The big boats succeeded in plowing their way through the ice field, but the tripe consumed two and three days and were found dangerous and impracticable.

The Algomah is expected to solve the problem and the result is awaited with interest by railroad and marine men. Many vessel captains are skeptical in regard to the outcome, and notwithstanding that the Algomah has done efficient work in keeping the straits of Mackinac open. If she succeeds it will give quite an impetus to the project of building the Mackinaw & St. Paul road, the eastern terminals of which have already been constructed in Mancelona. It will make the shortest winter route to the western grain fields.

The success of the Algomah also means a big victory for winter navigation in this country. There is no other place in the United States where an attempt is made to cross an ice field over 20 miles wide. The ice field on Green bay reaches a thickness at times of over three feet, and is already forming. Winter navigation at the straits of Mackinac is successful, but Green bay is an entirely different piece of water. So far as the ice is concerned it is an inland lake, and for that reason will be more difficult to keep open.

The Algomah will make daily trips across the bay from Menominee to Sturgeon bay, the schedule will be to leave at 7 o'clock in the afternoon and returning, leave Sturgeon bay at 8 o'clock the next morning. She will maintain an all-winter package and freight route between Marinette, Menominee and Sturgeon bay and it the latter place will connect with the Goodrich line for Chicago and Milwaukee, then giving an all the year route from the Menominee river to these two cities.

No one doubts the ability of the Algomah to force her way through at times, but the question arises, will not the broken pieces of ice come to the surface in the channel just made and freeze tighter than ever and make it impossible for the car ferries to get through. Of course the primary object is to make the bay navigable for the car ferries, which have large contracts to carry ore and lumber down from Menominee to Frankfort, and Sturgeon bay on the car test trip in her winter schedule. CHAPTER I.

THE FIRST DAY OF AN ERA.

Dandolo, something edge of the pretty little village of Sutton in the Wold, consisted of but one big market square and lot with a manor. There were two children who were more distinctive of place and position. It is certain that had he chosen to do so the First Baron Dandolo (of more than hereditary and barbarous nobility) could have found no better tenants than the children of the Lodge, or Dandolo Manor, as it was called by the villagers, and the children of the Rectory, or Sutton Rectory, as it was called by the neighbors, and they thought so.

"If his lordship knows what comes from here I will marry him."

Vera said this to her brother Ernest, rather, without the slightest certainty of the truth of the statement. She had laid down her work, which was perfectly fine, and true.

At that very moment, Ernest was chasing among the upper rooms of the house, followed by Mrs. Hockin, panting and exhausted. "I am sure, Mr. John, I will make a present to you of the place as soon as ever I come into it, if you will only be quiet and let me have a little rest, instead of being took all of a sudden like, for I have had the house rolled up a lot fast what with one accident and another for any day of the week, and not being old, and not as quick at the drawers as I used to be."

Nevertheless, Mrs. Hockin, I said you were not to do it." "I only wanted to see if you could make three or four rooms tolerable habitable in case I thought of bringing my brother down for a month or two." "Oh, Master John, I wish you joy of it!"

"Yes, Sir John, and so is the bringing, that furniture is that old-fashioned that it is hardly fit for you to see."

"Oh, it will do well enough, besides, I have not made up my mind at all. Who is this?" stopping suddenly their Sovereign Lady.

"That! Oh, lions no, Sir John, it's Miss Vera, from the Vicarage. I hope you won't object to her being here. I'm sure I'm very fain to walk in the sunshine."

"The vicarage! Miss Mr. Daintree's daughter—or aid as that?"

"Oh, law, no, Sir John. It is Mrs. Daintree's sister-in-law, poor thing! to live with them has been very, very hard, poor dear! Miss Vera's father was the vicar's brother, and a good man, but not a businessy man, and he was broke at his death, and she was left penniless, and the vicar and his wife took her home, and she has been there ever since, and a good time it must be, poor thing, for the vicar's wife is the gentlest I know of."

"Take it away, good gracious, I'm sick of Mrs. Daintree's gentleness, as she is of Miss Vera's, I dare say. Tell her so, Mrs. Hockin. I'm sure she will get the hint, Sir John. The young lady is quite a lady, and a good one, but Sir John stands and is in the sunshine."

"What a pretty," he said to himself as he turned to the door, "what a pretty little face! Poor little thing! I wonder if she ever laughs? I wonder if she ever sees anyone but her aunt and uncle? I wonder if she ever sees a man who is not old and dull? I wonder if she ever sees a man who is young and handsome and gay? I wonder if she ever sees a man who is young and handsome and gay and who thinks she is the most charming little creature he has seen for a long time? I wonder if she ever sees a man who is young and handsome and gay and who thinks she is the most charming little creature he has seen for a long time and who means to make her his wife? I wonder if she ever sees a man who is young and handsome and gay and who thinks she is the most charming little creature he has seen for a long time and who means to make her his wife and who will be the happiest man in the world if she will have him? I wonder if she ever sees a man who is young and handsome and gay and who thinks she is the most charming little creature he has seen for a long time and who means to make her his wife and who will be the happiest man in the world if she will have him and who will be the happiest man in the world if she will have him

Drivings vs. Hose.

Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, who honored Charlevoix with a visit last summer on his way home from the Philippines, made a speech in the senate on the 5th, in support of a resolution, declaring, among other things, that the Philippine Islands are territory belonging to the United States.

This speech, which may be considered an authorized reflex of the policy of the administration concerning that question, was by a senator who comes fresh from our eastern possessions, where he made a careful study of every feature of the problem, will have great weight with the people, and powerful influence upon legislation.

Senator Beveridge, besides being a new member of the American "house of lords," is the youngest member of that body. The championship of the cause of National progress in the United States Senate by this young knight errant is particularly appropriate, typifying as it does the vigorous and modern American spirit which is to meet the change of centuries, and assert its rights in the settlement of the world's affairs affecting American interests.

The recognized representative of the anti-expansion sentiment in the Senate is Hoar, who is the oldest in point of representative of the ancient Bay State of Massachusetts—a commonwealth colonized but fossilized; dignified and unctious in its virtues and prudish. Senator Hoar is at eminently fit representative of the view that hooked in mawkish sympathy with fallen soldiers, and submission to federal authority in the rebellious Indians at Wounded Knee. Senator Hoar is an imbued with the "traditions of our fathers," that he yet lives in the age in which they lived; yet travels in the ruts which they marked, yet teaches doctrines, which, however true in their day, are fallacies in this.

These two men are fair samples of the two ideas—national progress and national isolation. This young and vigorous man from the progressive West, and this austere patrician nature from the effete East, are most appropriate champions of the new and old dispensations.

A special from Grand Rapids to the Detroit Free Press says the officials of the new Pere Marquette system have up against a new and serious proposition. The decision to remove the headquarters of the local roads to Detroit aroused such a storm of indignation among the shippers, merchants and manufacturers generally, that a petition was signed almost on either side against the call in the matter of the subject to the end if the officials are moved to send all of their flight by other roads. The paper has been sent to headquarters.

"The next grand jury in Hughton county is going afternoons twice weekly," says a man lately in from Lansing. Indeed! Why, Hughton county has been very tame, and I wonder what the Lansing jurors have found to do in connection in matters in which it presented to the state grand jury the judge has said he will do it. In certain counties in Michigan, Judge Grant, one of the legislature to Congress, is pretty good kind. He knows much, I am informed, on methods used to secure the passage of the chaos-lesson bill pretty similar to this that said that if it was the business of the legislature to devote attention from the purposes.

GREELY BADLY HURT

THROWN DOWN STAIRS BY A DRUNKEN MAN.

Endeavors Attempt to Force an Entrance Into the Greeley's House in Washington—Secretary Taliaferro Shots for His Betrayal Rivals.

An unknown assault was made upon Gen. A. W. Greeely the chief signal officer and Lieut. Greely, aide-de-camp, the gist of which appears to have been a conspiracy of the Adams Express Company, Colonel and a friend named Murphy, New Orleans, and a man named Taliaferro, now residing near Fredericksburg, Va., who is said to have been a friend of Miss Greely, and who, it is said, was the author of the letter which caused the shooting of Taliaferro by Lieut. Greely, which was published in the Washington papers on Monday morning.

The assault was made on the night of the shooting of Taliaferro, which occurred on Thursday night, and the author of the letter was then supposed to be in the city. The assault was made on the door of the house in which Gen. Greely was sitting and was heard by the family and by a Washington reporter, who happened to be in the house at the time. The door was locked and the latch was fastened, and the reporter, who was in the hall, opened the door and saw a man in the act of throwing himself against the door. The door was fastened with a chain, and the man was unable to force it open. The reporter then called to the man and he ran down the steps and disappeared in the darkness. The reporter then went to the door and found the door-knob had been twisted off and the door was fastened with a chain, so that it could not be opened. The door was then opened by the family, and the man was found lying on the floor in a long cloak. The reporter and Gen. Greely then went back to the house and found the door-knob had been twisted off from the inside and the door was fastened with a chain. The door was then opened and the man was found lying

SPAWN GATHERING.

Truth About the Operations of the State and United States Fish Commissions.

Great Benefit for the State Game Warden Department Had Nothing to Do With It, and No Permits Were Issued.

From the Detroit Journal.

"It must have required considerable ingenuity to pack away so many inaccurate statements in an article of the length of this one," said President F. B. Dickerson of the Michigan State Fish Commission, speaking of the publication in a local newspaper of certain allegations respecting the catch of white fish for propagation during the closed season on the great lakes.

"In the first place I want to say that it was through no action of the fish commission that the closed season for Michigan waters was continued. I was the most bitter opponent the men trust had in fighting a continuance of the closed season. I believe the closed season works to the advantage of the fish trust and against the small independent fishermen. I'd like to have another grand jury called to investigate how it was that the Chicago fish trust was so successful in securing legislation in its own interests and against the interest of our own small fishermen.

"The article I speak of refers to an alleged 'four cutter agreement' by the Michigan fish commission, the federal fish commission, the game warden and the big fish companies. There was no such agreement. The facts are that the legislature pushed out all our appropriations for the propagation of commercial fish, and the Michigan commission saw an opportunity without expense to the state of securing anywhere from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 fry for Michigan waters. Accordingly, I was delegated to see what I could do with the United States fish commission. I want to say that the bargain we have made is the best bargain ever made for the benefit of the state. We have reached an arrangement whereby we get for Michigan waters not less than 300,000,000 white fish and lake trout fry and 100,000,000 wall-eyed pike fry at a cost not exceeding $500. In former years, the cost to the state of securing an equal number of fry has been from $12,000 to $15,000.

"I'll tell you how it happens to cost us the $500. We made a contract with Hatchery here in Detroit to the federal commission for two years, reserving it for all days each year. The eggs for the 300,000,000 white-fish fry are hatched out. Neither the game warden nor the fish commissioners knew about this agreement nor had anything to do with it.

"The arrangement enables us to do more practically the entire amount of our legislative appropriation to the satisfaction of fry for the inland waters of the state. Our output of hatch-ed for such waters will this year be 50 per cent greater than it ever was before. We will have for planting this year 100,000,000 trout fry, whereas we have never had but 50,000,000 before.

"The closed season is practically contemporaneous with the spawning season. If no fish at all were taken during this season, it would be impossible to secure any eggs for hatching purposes. Under the agreement the fish commission of the United States commission issued permits to several companies to take fish for the eggs during the closed season. The fish so being stripped to be returned to the companies and placed on the market. No such permits were issued by the game warden as is asserted. The game warden has nothing to do with it.

"Similar arrangements with fishing companies were made during the closed season for two years back. In both years, they were unprofitable arrangements for the companies. The fish they took were sold after being stripped for a price insufficient to pay the companies for their expense in getting them. This year, because of conditions I shall explain, the result was a little different.

"The catching of eggs was superintended this year by officials of the United States fish commission under our agreement, and there was no state authority for taking a single fish beyond the number required to supply the need for eggs. There seems to be the impression, as set forth in the published strictures, to be an insinuation that, for the purpose of favoring the companies, they were allowed to take more fish than were actually required for propagation. I don't believe there is any basis for this insinuation.

"The statement is made that after 40,000 fish were taken. That is not an accurate number. Under ordinary conditions, the spawning season comes in rather cold weather. This year warm weather prevailed for the most part during the late fall and early winter, and that kind of weather was unfavorable to the securing of eggs. More fish had to be taken to get a given number of eggs than in an ordinary year, in other words, the yield of eggs per fish was less than the average, and of course, a greater number of fish had to be taken to fill the requirements. At the time the arrangements were made with the companies, it was the 5th, there was no intimation that such would be the case. The probabilities in fact, were that it would be everything but a snap in that, as in former years, the catching of fish would be attended by an actual loss.

"As to the allegation that the hatchery at Detroit, at the Soo and at Alpena are filled with eggs as a result of the season's catch of fish, I can say that is no unusual condition at this season of the year. Heretofore the hatcheries at Detroit and the Soo have been operated by the state of Michigan, and the hatchery at Alpena by the United States. The only difference this year is that they are all under one management, being run by the federal government.

"I am confident that the United States officials took no more fish than were actually required for their purposes. As one of the reasons for my confidence, I can say that they had no foreign fish of our own men, which were sent to them for the express purpose of keeping a close watch on the catch.

"Under our agreement with the federal officials 75 per cent of the fry secured was to be planted in Michigan waters. As a matter of fact, we will secure larger percentage than that. The remainder of the eggs, less than 25 per cent were to be sent to the hatcheries at Cape Vincent, N. Y. and at Huron Bay.

"It is unnecessary to call attention in this connection to the unofficial fact that under the authority of the general government, the United States fish commission would have a right to take either for Michigan or for other waters, as many fish for propagating purposes as they saw fit, without reference to any police regulations made by the state of Michigan for a closed season or anything else. The policy of the federal officials to avoid conflicts of authority such as might be possible in this case, and to act in harmony with the state authorities.

"I may say that the minute the permits to the fishing companies were granted, the state game warden was notified that he might take such measures as he thought proper in preventing any excessive catch of fish by authorized companies or illegal catches by persons or companies to whom no permits were issued. As to whether the Wolverine Fish Co. and the others that were given permits are satisfied with the result, I have no knowledge.

"As to some alleged deal up north by which the state obtained one-half of the eggs taken and the United States the other half of the cost of a cutter case that was settled, I have no knowledge. The state fish commission would have no right to give up for such a purpose one dollar of the money appropriated for it by the legislature."

Frank N. Clark, superintendent of the United States fish commission hatchery in Michigan, gave a full account of the matter, so far as he was touched upon by Mr. Dickerson. "In the first place," he said, "everything was all done under the direct supervision and orders of myself, as superintendent of the United States fish commission. No permits were given, because the law doesn't allow them. The United States commission was doing the whole work itself; in fact, it hired the fishermen, and instead of paying them in cash it paid them in stripped fish, as the law allows.

"Now, in the matter of an alleged deal up north whereby it was alleged that a violation case had been settled by the state paying one-half and the United States the other half of costs of seizure by the game warden, the facts are simple. We had a run company fishing for us at Charlevoix. They fished one day after I had got through with them and had discharged them. The state game and fish warden had them arrested, and I was subpoenaed as a witness, and was paid my mileage the same as any other witness would be. The company settled the case to the satisfaction of the state game warden and paid its penalty. The United States didn't pay one cent in the case, as it was in no way connected with it.

"I would like to say this in conclusion that I am so fortunate think that the people of this state do not realize the benefits accruing from this arrangement between the State and the United States. Through it, it has been possible to plant from the 200,000,000 eggs taken this year about 200,000,000 eggs in Michigan waters. We had the right under the law to ship 25 per cent of these eggs out of the state, but we shipped by reason of fate only 50,000,000, about 10 per cent. Every dollar of this expense is being borne by the United States fish commission.

"Mr. Dickerson worked very hard to bring about this arrangement, and to him is due great credit for its success."

Marine Notes.

The schooner Mazie will, this winter, receive new decks and deck beams.

Capt. Wm. Gloss, acting as ship carpenter for the occasion, is doing some good work on John O'Neill's ing Green. Her decks are being relayed, which will be new, and other work will be done to make her nearly a new tug.

The steamer Joe came over from St James Sunday on her last trip. She encountered a field of ice about half way over, and in wrestling with it broke her rudder post. She made this port all right, made temporary repairs and returned Sunday night.

Capt. J. N. Gallagher left St. James last Wednesday with the fishing tug Ellen Gertrude for Au Sable. She laid in the ice all that night off St. Helena, reaching Mackinaw City the next day, from which point Capt. Gallagher wired. It is quite probable that the boat reached her destination all right.

After a fierce struggle with huge floes of floating ice, two of the Grand Haven fishing fleet which got pinched in the ice last week were rescued and taken into port Thursday. The third was just inside the harbor and jammed against the pier by the ice and was subsequently saved. The steamer Nyack started to their assistance Tuesday but could not get outside, as the harbor entrance was blocked with ice. During the night the wind shifted and started the mass of ice, with the three imprisoned vessels toward port. Early Thursday morning the ice crusher Field went out and succeeded in freeing two of the boats. Two of the tugs, the Angie and the Boaz, had fish aboard and cooked some of them, but the Anna had none, so her men went without eating.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. S. CHEW, COM'R.

No school study brings us closer to nature, to the facts of social life, than geography. And, if it is a true purpose of education to make the pupil acquainted with his environment, it would seem that no school study can be more important or valuable. Nor, which properly taught, will any other awaken a deeper interest. It need not be said that the old way of teaching the subject, by compelling the pupil to learn pages of dry, unedifying matter, by committing the names or hundreds of unimportant capes, bays, islands and rivers, from the maps, is and the present way of teaching geography. And the result too often has been that, instead of being the most interesting subject, geography has often been made the most dry and uninteresting.

The material in geography, the number of things that may be learned has no limit. It follows that at the beginning a selection is necessary, and when a selection has been made, that which has been selected should be mastered most thoroughly, while other matters should be disregarded.

In studying the Philippines or South Africa, a wise teacher would select today quite differently from what she would have done three years ago. Just let the teacher make her selection, in any case, perfectly clear for her class when she assigns the lesson. Clear, accurate, mental pictures are the ground work of all real acquisition of geographical knowledge. The thought of geographical facts is associated with forms. This fundamental principle is not forgotten for a moment by a successful teacher of geography. Travel would be the ideal way of teaching geography, and the traveler would return if the knowledge of geography that he has acquired, by associating it with the mental picture of the forms he had seen.

When we learn geography at home we must avail ourselves of maps, pictures, and descriptions, to enable us to build up a conception which shall be as nearly as possible substitute for those which memories of travel would have.

The value of map drawing and sketching is due to the aid they give in forming correct mental pictures. They help us to form such pictures as nothing else will. And they help to classify and correct pictures already formed. The often does not realize how vague and indefinite is its conception of a form till he attempts to represent it by a drawing. Mere copying of maps will do something in this direction, but the work has not been thoroughly done till the form can be produced with tolerable accuracy, from the concept in the mind alone.

Let geography and history be associated from the first. When a young pupil, how much more of interest attaches to that dot, or a man which indicates a town, when he is told of some stirring event which occurred there, or of some noted man who was born there. School and home education.

—Chas. Lewis is doing critically ill at his home on the north side. The case at first seemed like a simple, but later developments seemed to modify the symptoms, and now the doctors, who have had two consultations, diagnose it as a pronounced case of typhoid fever. The doctors have hopes of the recovery, although Charlie is a very sick man.

—The Inspectors Club is a new Charlevoix organization, being with Ray Faulkner, president; George Hendrie, vice president; Jeff Sellar, secretary and treasurer, and Will Sargent, sergeant at arms. The club rooms in Dufresne block are open every afternoon and evening, and are well fitted up. Good thing. We hope the boys will make it a success, and they will. Wednesday evening opens its curtains.

—Thursday only Deputy Game Warden Jos. Walsh, A. L. Crotter, of Charlevoix, called at Chas. Lake's and seized a seven-tee offered for sale in his wife brought before justice court of Ironsdale. The seven minnow trap were being shipped when did not come under the law against set lines. Mr. Crotter explained that the state law defined "fishes" as set lines. The seven paid the costs in Justice Gage's court, and gave notice that Mr. Crotter this afternoon asked a bunch of wipes fish at Williams Harbor to do of this city. Upon inspection they were found the clothes to have found fish at other places too small to sell under the law.

—The few remaining pioneers of Charlevoix are today greeting Mr. Lizzie Seeley who from 1856 to 1859 was a resident of Charlevoix. Mr. Seeley, who yesterday saw Charlevoix for the first time in more than thirty years, is a brother of Jesse M. Seeley, formerly of the Rapids, and is working his home home. Governor Pingree's Threat.

Governor Pingree has broken out in another spot. He announces to the Republican party of Michigan that if it nominates D. M. Ferry for Governor, he will run on an independent ticket against the big seed man.

The SENTINEL does not favor the nomination of Mr. Ferry for governor, but if anything could bring about a change in our opinion on this subject, it would be the last fulmination of Pingree.

In this threat Mr. Pingree only proclaims what he has often loudly proclaimed, that he is wiser, greater and better than the Republican party. This man, who was twice made governor by the Republicans, assumes to dictate to them their choice of a candidate to succeed him.

We would remind the governor that the Republican party on Michigan can be trusted to select a candidate, notwithstanding the fact that twice in its history, and that quite recently, it was a mugwump foot of itself by nominating a demagogue.

The Republican party has had big chunks of experience the past three years—experience that may prove expensive; but it will profit by it. And this thing is certain—it will take no dictation from Pingree, and no bluffs. The Republican party knows Pingree, because it made him, God forgive us, by bragging will keep no Republican awake nights, because they are used to it. The trouble will be to stop after it ceases.

The Republicans will nominate a good man for governor, and he will be a Republican. Moreover, he will be elected. Pingree or no Pingree. The only way to treat this bluff of Pingree is with silent contempt.

Pingree may be right about the fitness of Ferry as a candidate, and we think he is, but the Republican party will not go to Pingree to find out, and the threat of the governor only makes him more conspicuous as a political mountebank.

Hay country farmers have organized the Michigan Beet Growers' Association, the principal purpose being to increase the price of sugar beets. The state law provides that in order to secure the beets the factories must pay $4 per ton for 12 cent beets, with a raise of twenty five cents a ton for each additional per cent. The constitution of the new organization asks $5 per ton with the proportionate raise, and the members are pledged not to grow beets for less than that figure. The association can elect to appoint a weighmaster, foreman and counsel to work in conjunction with the state's attorney, and guard the interests of the farmers. Farmers of the other counties of the state will be asked to organize with the new organization and assist in its purposes and aims.

Pingree Were Not Deceived.

Mr. Pettigrew of South Dakota wanted the time of the senate on Thursday with another long tirade in defense of his friend Aguinaldo, and spewed out a dozen or more pounds of American sentiment in the Philippine pipes. Pettigrew, at the face of official records, holds that the Filipinos are in some way justified in the commission of the, United States. He said Dewey, notwithstanding testimony that would convince any fair man, that the United States could win on the "allies." He proclaimed in bearing false witness before the American people as to the events of the last June in Luzon. He rages at what "English and Americans," and in the same breath opposes Senator Lodge's resolution asking the president to make public all the correspondence bearing on this government's relations with the Filipinos. Most of this information is already before the public, and it shows that the administration never at any time contemplated letting go a Philippine inch of sovereignty to the Filipinos was between the United States and Spain. That question was settled by the treaty of Paris. That there might be no doubt in the minds of the natives, the commander in Manila was directed on Aug. 17, 1898, that "there must be no joint occupation," and that it must recognize the authority of the United States. General Otis was directed on Dec. 21, 1898, to declare the extension of American sovereignty to all parts of the islands by virtue of the treaty of Paris, and to announce and proclaim it in the most public manner that we come not as invaders and conquerors, but as friends." He was also authorized to use every possible means to avert a conflict with the natives. No change in this proclamation was made by General Otis. Its terms as to sovereignty were so definite that the day I was published in Manila, Aguinaldo issued a manifesto declaring that he never agreed to recognize American sovereignty, and proclaiming himself dictator, assuming himself military governor. This disposes of Pettigrew's claim that Otis endeavored to deceive the Filipinos as to American intent. Commissioner appointed by Aguinaldo not every day in January with commissioners appointed by Otis to discuss a scheme of government, and a curious scene, indeed.

Two days before the senate was to vote upon the treaty Aguinaldo declared war against the United States, and his troops attacked the American lines. The insurgent commissioners, acting in the islands, repeated and amplified the proclamation of independence and proclamation asserting the sovereignty of the United States over the islands and again usurping the people that the sincerest and government assumed by the United States and the rights and obligations of the United States would be granted them. The Tagal leaders knew from the beginning the attitude of the government and were never deceived, however much they deceived their unfortunate followers.

All these facts are well known that it was not necessary to repeat them did not the Pettigrews in and out of the senate persist in daying them. Pettigrew is just sort of a mania for disturbing truth. Out of the prejudice, misrepresentation, impulses of re-election, he uses his few remaining months in the senate to attempt to make substantial wherever and whenever he can. His malign motives are so apparent that his colleagues and the country regard him as a common scold and a mischievous bore. He is a pig-headed and pestiferous political renegade, who uses his position to impute bad faith in the character of their only. When he returns to his native obscurity, as he will in another year, the American people will give thanks for their deliverance.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Senator Morgan of Alabama, in a speech before his constituents not long ago declared that the white people of his state were justifiably political equals of the negroes, and that he would be an insane if they were not. Pingree upon demand, of in the best interests when it meets, it will prove most startling. Apparently thirteen of counties of Dixie's property, both real and personal, is escaping taxation rently, owing to the most negligent neglect of the assessing officers. Most of this information is already before the public, and it shows that the administration never at any time contemplated letting go a Philippine inch of sovereignty to the Filipinos was between the United States and Spain. That question was settled by the treaty of Paris. That there might be no doubt in the minds of the natives, the commander in Manila was directed on Aug. 17, 1898, that "there must be no joint occupation," and that it must recognize the authority of the United States. General Otis was directed on Dec. 21, 1898, to declare the extension of American sovereignty to all parts of the islands by virtue of the treaty of Paris, and to announce and proclaim it in the most public manner that we come not as invaders and conquerors, but as friends." He was also authorized to use every possible means to avert a conflict with the natives. No change in this proclamation was made by General Otis. Its terms as to sovereignty were so definite that the day I was published in Manila, Aguinaldo issued a manifesto declaring that he never agreed to recognize American sovereignty, and proclaiming himself dictator, assuming himself military governor. This disposes of Pettigrew's claim that Otis endeavored to deceive the Filipinos as to American intent. Commissioners appointed by Aguinaldo not every day in January with commissioners appointed by Otis to discuss a scheme of government, and a curious scene, indeed.

Two days before the senate was to vote upon the treaty Aguinaldo declared war against the United States, and his troops attacked the American lines. The insurgent commissioners, acting in the islands, repeated and amplified the proclamation of independence and proclamation asserting the sovereignty of the United States over the islands and again usurping the people that the sincerest and government assumed by the United States and the rights and obligations of the United States would be granted them. The Tagal and counties throughout the state. In some cases the assessors, as the result of the commission's investigations have gone, to fair extreme, but in a large number of instances it appears to be due to either official blindness on the part of the assessing officers or to insipidity. Since the special session of the legislature adjourned, State Tax Commissioner Robert Oakman, Mich. 13, Campbell and A. J. Freeman have investigated the assessing system of eight or ten tax counties. Instance after instance has been found where the large property owner is escaping taxation altogether, and where county after county is assessed for only from 25 to 33 per cent of its real property value, and escapes its just proportion of the state taxes when other counties are assessed for from 60 to 80 per cent of property value and are bearing an undue proportion of the cost of operating the state.

The British government yields every point in the controversy over the American mess seizure in Delagoa bay. The United states sought to have established the principle that foodstuffs in course of shipment to a neutral port are not subject to seizure. Great Britain admits the correctness of the American view and claims definitely as a principle of international law that foodstuffs, even if destined for an enemy's country, are exempt from seizure or detention when not intended for an enemy's military force. The United States was concerned in this seizure only as to the American flour. The shipment was to Portuguese East Africa. There was no question of the right of Great Britain to search an American vessel, because no American vessel was in the case. The controversy turned on the question of whether foodstuffs were to be regarded as contraband of war. It is now clear that the government of the United States and the government of Great Britain take substantially the same position, declaring that foodstuffs carried from one neutral port to another are not contraband of war.

Congressman Samuel W. Smith, so chairman of one of the subcommittees of the invalid pensions committee, said that he believes there will be some general changes in the invalid pension act this session, and that many of the provisions which will be at present will be wiped out. "We get at what is wanted," said he, "we trimmed the dimensions from the Grand Army of the Republic to appease leaders our committee on invalid and pension, there strike on other features for the present law. We have also voted to report favorably the change in arrears allowances which have increased. At present the law does not allow a pensioner where the widow has an income of $250 per year. This sum we believe too small, and will recommend the amendment that from those who have an annual income of $400 or more. This is generally considered a fair. Another thing we shall recommend, that the prospective pensioner shall prove her inability, as a result of her sex, to allow time to get a position. Any one and not a specific disability will be all that is necessary." The congressman from the Sixth District and he was one in favor of Secretary Hitchcock's scheme to compel fees and examinations of pensioners by a board to be created.

Senator Hanna persists in the falsehood that the American troops brought the conflict with the Spaniards which, the disciples Aguinaldo's declaration, and that false witness against General Otis became the latter refused to be entrapped by Aguinaldo's professions of peace. The Spaniards, glittering objectives of Aguinaldo's proclamation with delighted approval and ignorant as the innocent facts of Aguinaldo's deceit. He declares that the Filipinos won their independence from Spain, when it is known to the world that their freedom was won by Dewey at Manila. He falsely alleges that General Otis prevented the Filipino independence, although it is a matter of record that all that Otis promised was that the United States would work to establish a liberal government. Common sense and common truthfulness are essential in dealing with the Philippine question. Mr. Hanna exhibits neither. Hence it is difficult to be patient with him. Gray hairs cause to command respect when they are used to dignify slanders of the living and of the dead. In answer to Senator Lodge's assertions of the material advantages of retaining the Philippines, to the floor of which he is at least be considered in deciding the nation's course toward the islands, Mr. Hanna resorts to sneers and insinuations. Because the American people would protect the peaceful majority of the Filipinos against the depredations of Aguinaldo's adherents, Mr. Hanna compares the nation with Cain imagined by the devil. Can even Mr. Hanna imagine for a moment that this will be accepted as discussion, as sense, or as truth by the American people?—Inter-Ocean.

Distributing Revenue Stamps.

Washington special Chicago Journal. The work of distributing the millions of internal revenue stamps over the country is performed in two ways. They are bought by private individuals in $1,000 lots, to be retailed by them at the profit of 1 per cent permitted by the law. The other way is by special stamp commissioners appointed and paid by the revenue department. About 300 such agents are maintained in the principal business centers throughout the country. Commissioners Wilson say a larger commission should be allowed for distributing the stamps. These are quite numerous in relieving us handle them and employ a force of special stamp distributors who had to be greatly increased. The commission at one time was 5 per cent, and finally it was cut down to 1 per cent.

A Dancing Procession.

A peculiar, but famous, dancing procession actually takes place at Echternach, in Belgium. Every year the queer ceremonies are organized to celebrate Luxembourg day, when church dignitaries of the province of Trier, the pilgrims in Echternach assemble in a certain "house where it is called the statue of the "limping saint." It takes the form of advancing three steps, making a step backward, advancing three more steps, and so on. It is in this strange way that the procession, in which ten thousand people take part each year, starts from the bridge on the Lorz, place of assembly, to the church.—The Ball Room.

The Human Figure.

The height of the human figure is six times the length of the head. Whether the form is slender or plump, the rule holds good, any deviation from it is a departure from the standard beauty in proportion. The counterpoise of the chest varies according to the girth. The face from the top of the forehead, where the hair begins, to the chin, is considered the whole stature. The head from the chin to the top of the middle finger is the same. From the top of the crown to the highest point of the ear is half the seventh. If the face, from the root of the hair to the chin, be divided into three equal parts, the first division determines the place where the eyebrows meet, and the second the nostrils. The height from the top of the top of the head to the chin is equal to the extremities of the fingers when the arms are extended.

Many Uses for the Cactus.

The cactus is an extraordinarily useful plant. The Arab finds in it food, drink and also fuel for his camp fires and camels. The dry fruit and stalks the abundant supply of juice found in the fruit leaves, while the camels chew up what remains.

Dynamite in the Tropical Jungle.

Dynamite, used in large quantities in the extensive mining industries of the Transvaal, was imported in the value of $1,19,000. It is exclusively imported by the government.

THIS HERO WORE NO UNIFORM

He Braved Death in a Poisonous Well to Save His Neighbors.

From the Kansas City Journal: Near Maple City, in Cowley county, one day last week, Perney John Stevenson and his hired man went down into a well to clean it out. Both were overcome by foul air and were found dead when taken from the well. On the same day, at the little village of Cathariner, in Ellis county, a similar catastrophe resulted in bringing forth a hero whose name is worthy of enrollment among the best and greatest. Paul Mels went down into his cistern well over a fallen bucket. He was overcome by the foul and noisome emanations. William Peter hearing what down after Mels and he in turn succumbed to the deadly vapor. Then Paul Ramey went down after the other two and met a similar fate and this was the situation when Henry Karlin arrived on the scene. Without a moment's hesitation Karlin had a noose tied beneath his arms and a rift hard hewhite over his face, and he was then lowered in the well carrying an extra rope. Reaching the bottom he hastily took two turns around his leg of a man and the man was hoisted to the surface. Twice this operation was repeated, and then Karlin was hauled out, he having become unconscious just as he finished tying the rope on the last man. Six men remained unconscious for a long time, but finally succeeded in bringing them around. Neither Peter nor Reeder knew the danger they were going into, or they had never heard of water gas, but Karlin did and he took the chance like a hero.

Commissioner Wilson says a larger commission should be allowed for distributing the stamps. These are quite numerous in relieving us handle them and employ a force of special stamp distributors who had to be greatly increased. The commission at one time was 5 per cent, and finally it was cut down to 1 per cent.

A Dancing Procession.

A peculiar, but famous, dancing procession actually takes place at Echternach, in Belgium. Every year the queer ceremonies are organized to celebrate Luxembourg day, when church dignitaries of the province of Trier, the pilgrims in Echternach assemble in a certain "house where it is called the statue of the "limping saint." It takes the form of advancing three steps, making a step backward, advancing three more steps, and so on. It is in this strange way that the procession, in which ten thousand people take part each year, starts from the bridge on the Lorz, place of assembly, to the church.—The Ball Room.

The Human Figure.

The height of the human figure is six times the length of the head. Whether the form is slender or plump, the rule holds good, any deviation from it is a departure from the standard beauty in proportion. The counterpoise of the chest varies according to the girth. The face from the top of the forehead, where the hair begins, to the chin, is considered the whole stature. The head from the chin to the top of the middle finger is the same. From the top of the crown to the highest point of the ear is half the seventh. If the face, from the root of the hair to the chin, be divided into three equal parts, the first division determines the place where the eyebrows meet, and the second the nostrils. The height from the top of the top of the head to the chin is equal to the extremities of the fingers when the arms are extended.

Many Uses for the Cactus.

The cactus is an extraordinarily useful plant. The Arab finds in it food, drink and also fuel for his camp fires and camels. The dry fruit and stalks the abundant supply of juice found in the fruit leaves, while the camels chew up what remains.

Dynamite in the Tropical Jungle.

Dynamite, used in large quantities in the extensive mining industries of the Transvaal, was imported in the value of $1,19,000. It is exclusively imported by the government.

TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILROAD IN A BOTCH JOB

Poorly Constructed, with Light Rails and Wooden Bridges Four Running of Trains Is Closely Cautious of Burrows in Dangerous, with Even Prices.

Report the connection of the Siberian Railroad is not because it is ready for the transport of the work of Russia, and the world can now hope that $25,000,000 may be available to contribute to the Russian treasury. Advices to Washington by Commander John Hubbard, United States navy, report, contrary to Russian opinion, that the road is not in a condition to open the route. In the form of construction and the owners to put some of the money that could have been used to repair the road to the purpose of completing it. The bridges are of a temporary character, and the rails are so light that only a few trains can venture to run on the road. The bridges are of wood, and are so low that only a few trains can venture to run on the road. The bridges are of wood, and are so low that only a few trains can venture to run on the road. NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Antrim county has 10 saloons, of which Elk Rapids has six.

Ishpeming has still another industry. This time it is a bottle club factory.

The agricultural society at Bellaire early one bellied $100 last year, and this amount was made up by subscription.

The papers says there was a fire-fanciers in Tuesday last week that was broken by two car loads of smoke sent from Central Lake.

Mrs. Cameron has resigned as postmaster at Torch Lake, and Congressman Moloek has recommended Charles La Plant as his successor.

Boyne Citizen: An iron furnace is a nice thing for Boyne city. If the iron does not come as talked of with chemical works, another will come owned by a company which have a million dollars to back them.

Copperfield is raging at Central Lake, and has also appeared in Bellaire following the scarlet fever wave. It is stated by reliable persons that no attempt at quarantine has been made, and that since Central Lake has been fired, scarlet fever was brought in again from the township to the east.

Onekama Tribune: The tug Allen Gottlobe arrived at this port Thursday evening, bound from Manistee to Lake to Tawas. She stopped for coal, but was only able to make the outer end of W. & A. McArthur's lumber yard on account of ice in the harbor. Coal was hauled to her by a team and she resumed work Saturday morning. She had her weather for her trip from here to Tawas.

Ishpeming's new commission, met a meeting on Saturday, Jan. 20, at which time six saloons of Lake Street were closed to the counties of the state. In the distribution it is to be hoped that northern Michigan counties participate, and applications should be sent to the secretary of the commission, George H. Mosley, at Detroit. Allotments are based largely upon applications received by the commission.

Pelosky Journal: On January 1, L. B. Sly retired from the business of the Bay Shore Line Company and is succeeded by his son Elliot M. Sly, who now owns a controlling interest in the stock. Mr. Sly has made a great success of the line and other business in Bay Shore and has won against the rest which he will now take. Under the new management the officers of the company are as follows: L. B. Sly, pres. E. M. Sly, vice pres. and manager; Homer Sly, secy. and treas.

East Jordan Herald: As near as we can learn there is but little if any opposition to the plan for bonding the township for the amount required to secure railroad connections with either the Pere Marquette (C. & W. M.) or Detroit, G. H. & M. railways. As we stated some time ago this town cannot get connections without rendering itself satisfactory. Other towns have had to put up $20,000 to $40,000 for no better service than we can have for one-half the amount.

The government recognizes the importance of affording agricultural instruction to the inhabitants of our new Northern territories, and will present at once to establish stations in Puerto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines, where the natives can receive instruction in farm work, and obtain all the industrial information they are found capable of assimilating. Whether the case somewhat out, it demonstrates the helpful disposition of the government, willing to take up the white man's burden to the fullest extent wherever its authority reaches.

A meeting of business men of Harbor Springs was held recently, and Mr. Shay consented to build a narrow gauge railroad out into the timber country, providing he can get the right of way. The business men guaranteed to secure the right of way for him. It is proposed to have the road run clear through to Cross Village, and there connect with a narrow gauge road now decided by A. B. Kiley, plying as a through line to the ranges of Blackland. Mr. Shay says the road can be built in a short time, as a geared locomotive will be used, and very little grading will need to be done.

In October property generally was discussed by the six commissioners to be assessed at about only one-fourth of its value, summer cottages were proven to escape taxation altogether by the mere statement of causes that it wasn't right to assess them. Others were assessed at a mere trifle when of great value. In Cheboygan and Otsego counties and parts of Antrim and Crawford counties there were found two lots of acreage of feet of standing pine timber assessed at from one-twentieth to one quarter of the actual value.

Elk Rapids Progress: Miss Charlotte Daughtry, who only recently, was supposed to be state school ma'am in Vanilla, has invited her religious fun, and a telegram received the day (Tuesday) morning by her parents, says she will leave Saturday morning for Kansas City, where she has secured a position at a large salary. In the last letter she wrote to her parents she said Miss Daughtry's ability had long been appreciated by Prof. Mac'ashed, of the state normal and it is largely through his influence that the present position is attained. The school to which she goes the young ladies for their duties at Vanilla, Mr. Cherry enlarges, Miss Daughtry may not be congratulated at a host of friends here, all of whom wish her the continued success in her chosen profession.

The absence of money is going to make hard work now and idle, by little hundreds of others. Slow money has been invested in timber lands during the past summer than ever before and this has resulted in a larger number of contracts for logging. The contractors have the logs skidded, and have reported on the ice, all at the pay that can be afforded by the owners and that the logs can be moved everything to a standstill. Lumbermen in Milwaukee county have given up an empire of money and are preparing to do lumbering on wheels. The open pecuniary lumbermen are going for roads to good advantage and will be able to move into the rivers the full quota of logs.

Bellaire Bantam: The second factory, which has numerous times been talked of in the past, and which has been discussed during the last few months will undoubtedly be built here at an early day. Judge L. E. Bullock, of St. Louis, was here the first of the week, saying that on which the one page but an option. Business demanding his attention somewhere he departed yesterday morning, but expected C. E. Dickinson will power to purchase land. While here, Mr. Bullock noticed a number of our citizens. Our factory would be built on everything was satisfactory to the location of such an industry in Bellaire. For the sake of the money we hope work on the same will be commenced with the advent of propitious weather.

Traverse City Record: H. L. Comstock, whose trade is that of painter and decorator, came to the city about a month and a half ago from the Baptists. Not finding work at his trade he "shed coon" at the Hotel Cummings where he has a wife and four children and fortune's smile upon him has always been. A dollar with Comstock's name have been brighter of, however, for his work he was informed that he had come into a fine estate at Owosso. Comstock is an offshoot of the old time Quaker family of Owosso. Mrs. Daisy Comstock, the grandmother, died at Owosso recently, leaving the young gentleman an estate valued at $12,000 besides his share of an estate valued at a large figure which he will share with his brothers upon the death of his father, Comstock was formerly a resident of Chickasaw, where he sufficient was, so he was known by most everybody.

There has been a persistent rumor in Grand Rapids and elsewhere along the C. & W. M. road that the interests of the company recently operating under that name has been more or less embroiled in the consolidation which has been effected, and that the reorganization has been made along the Beers system, which gives the advantage of the points formerly depended upon the C. & W. M. road. This rumor was suggested to Freeman Hollis by the Grand Rapids Herald, and was most emphatically denied. "There is absolutely no truth in the rumor," said Mr. Hollis. "The interests of every section of the road remain as now, being operated under the name of the Pere Marquette was consolidated, and every member of the company anticipated so far for the best interests of the entire system and to the detriment of no one section. The money and pain which were put into the C. & W. M. management will still be in evidence in the management of that same system, of the new system and points on the C. & W. M. will receive just as much, if not more attention, from the officers of the Pere Marquette than they ever did under the previous condition of affairs."

We have been received at Manistee of the death of Frank Howard, alias Frank Ellis, alias Tom Howard, who was shot and killed by a watchman while trying to rob the Davis Mercantile Company's store at Deep River, Conn. It will be remembered that Howard blew open the safe in Cook's hardware store at Bellaire, in the spring of 1899, but failed to get any great amount of money. In the morning succeeding parties started out and in A. Adams and George Notman took the road north and overtook them near Petoskey. Howard left Adams in the lurch and made his escape, only to be captured at Soho later in the day, where he surrendered after being fired at twice. Mr. Adams received, although the collar was never claimed. Howard was tried at a special term of court in September in the same year, Hon. W. G. Mooth, the present representative in congress from this district presiding. He was convicted and sentenced to 10 years at Ionia. He got over two years off for good behavior, in spite of the fact that he was one of the prime movers in the Ludlow dynamite case, which and others made a bold effort to escape from prison, and was released April 1 1899.

Bellaire Independent: Robert Oakes of Detroit, a member of the State Tax Commission, was a Bellaire visitor Monday. Mr. Oakes looked over the books in the office of the register of deeds and counted that the 22 ends entered by the commission for such description or undischarged mortgages since 1896 was altogether too low a price for the work, and raised the fees to a figure satisfactory to Register Adams, and the latter is now assisting R. O. Greenawalt, the clerk whom the commission has had large doing the work. The law provided no compensation for the losing of the undischarged mortgages on the books in the different counties, the state tax commission that doing the present rate, and Mr. Adams refused to do it for any such figure.

Mrs. Lotie Campbell died at the late home of her daughter, Mrs. S. M. Ross, of this place, on Friday, of last week, aged 74. Brief funeral services were held at the residence by Rev. A. E. Cook on Monday, and the remains were taken to Alden, for interment beside her husband's.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. S. CHASE, COMR.

We wish that every school in the county had a good working school library, supplied with supplementary text books for teacher and pupils, for instance, the three "Carpenters Geographical Readers—North America, South America and Asia. The books are written upon the plan of a personally conducted tour through these continents.

Among the striking features of the books are the pictures of life and work among the people of the various countries.

The children take journeys through the cities, they see life in the villages, and spend days upon the farms, in the forests and in the mines, seeing all phases of life among the rich and poor, the savage and the civilized.

They learn much of the curious animals of the different zones and see the wonders of nature in the flowers and trees.

The travels are in the shape of an imaginary tour made by the children themselves, with the author as a guide.

The book will add in putting fresh and living life into the dry bones of the geographies, and will give a living interest to geographical study.

American Oyster Trade.

American oysters rank among the best in the world, and the export list is growing all the time. England takes about 1,000 barrels a week all the year round. Some go to New York, but are the days of the old Shell House, which so took great place drinks in his mouth, when for spring were the Mecca of the Philadelphia dad. In the old days there were only three cellars for oysters—Philadelphia, New York and New Haven. The best oysters came from Blue River, Long Island, Barnegat Bay, Raritan River, Tilghman's Island, Shrewsbury, Mill Pond, Broadway, Martin River, Cape Charles, Tangier, Great Bonds and Lower Bay. Experts in the business say that the Seven oysters attributed to the that weaks of May, as then the fat, bunches Virginia oysters come back to be plump and delicious. Seeds placed in spawn to spat from' along the coast were shipped to have and remained. Each is capable of producing 16 per year.

A Government Agent's Case.

A Government agent came to Tampa. He Residence of certain contract of the City was an appointee made of the part of the city so that does that state in the course. Government recently to do work with the fight is a lively one, the city administration is the sufferer. So many depositions have been made recently by cows running at large in the streets that the state residents and owners of lawns and flower gardens have organized a Citizens' protective association against the cows and dockets for two years going to prove the same thing—increasing expenditures. But whatever other nations do, France, Mr. Leroy-Beaulieu argues, cannot afford it. Her budget is 1,000,000 francs more than Germany's and 2,000,000 more than England has 2,000,000 more of population and is gradually so to do per cent richer.

Women Firemanes in France.

French women have the privilege of being enrolled as firemanesses, and, to hear of their claims, they can join a lodge open to both sexes, which has for grand mistress a lady named Mademoiselle Stella. The total lodge is only some six years old and already numbers 300 members, two-fifths of them being women. Perhaps one inducement for French women to become firemanesses is that they are entitled to wear the same gay insignia, although their allowed reason is that it prevents husband and wife from drifting apart.

Four-Footed Vermin.

In the Oregon Australia, to the state of Washington, lives a small, beady-eyed animal known locally as the "mouse." It makes burrows in the banks of small streams, and fills them with the leaves and stems of water-plants, which it first cuts for the purpose of rolling them down and spreading them out in the sun to dry. The inhabitants of the dried stems to lay in the winter of the same, popularly alive to the industrious animal, can tell the name of this rodent is Hazel.

Always Take the Engine.

From the Pittsburg Bulletin: In his letter the late Mr. John Cook, the great locomotive builder, said a man of iron frame, but when years of railway service, which he had spent, had actually some 40,000 miles, produced certain alarming symptoms, he made a discovery that may be worth giving to the public. He said that the threatened trouble, something spinal, disappeared when he so fitted his seat with his back to the engine. He always thereafter fixed it, and that the symptoms in order will be some out by others whom he advised to do the same. All who are called upon to do much railway traveling will be wise to sit "facing the horses."

France Is Extravagant.

Paul Leroy-Beaulieu comments on the French budget for 1900 with a tone of alarm. If the future of French finance consists, he says, in spending each year 100,000,000 francs more than in the year first year, France's prosperity is bound to increase. All nations, it is said, are constantly doing the same thing—increasing expenditures. But whatever other nations do, France, Mr. Leroy-Beaulieu argues, cannot afford it. Her budget is 100,000,000 francs more than Germany's and 2,000,000 more than England has 2,000,000 more of population and is gradually so to do per cent richer.

"Lest We Forget."

It is an American characteristic as well as a human attribute, to ignore the range of the weakest in a contest, even though at times the victory is on the side of the strongest.

Dwellers of the broad valleys of freedom in which they swim, and the atmosphere of liberty which they breathe, Americans are prone to err at times, in considering questions of national rights in face to face issues of international law and usage, and the eternal principles of justice.

Conspicuous as this characteristic is in Americans, it is by no means unknown to other peoples. Twenty years ago the United States was entering upon a war with a European power. While with Napoleon, who had lost Poor Jack on the seas, there was no doubt of a successful outcome, certain of the great commercial powers, such as Germany at the head, manifest suggestions of American prowess and disposed the justice of the cause to doubt.

While certain other powers contented themselves with the cautious but secret sympathy, Germany, the most opposed of Spain, Germany at Manila so highly violated the laws of neutrality as to nearly provoke an open rupture.

Jealous of the extension of American influence and co-ordinate extension of American trade, the European powers planned their tactic and Germany's natural hand was chosen to arrange matters. Scarcely came of twenty half planned days from Dewey's fall, and the "partition" of China was threatened by an agreement that was only limited by the question of who should get the largest slice England's sphere of influence in the Orient was established, supposed, indisputable. She had for years to ask of the United States in that quarter, yet could not fail to recognize in the United States a rival for eastern prestige.

Yet England, powerful Britain, with a strong fleet in Manila by overbalanced in the world that no interference would be permitted. What American who kept himself abreast of events during those stirring and critical hours does not acknowledge the potent influence of Great Britain in our favor?

And now England is at war with what some are pleased to call a rebellion, but what Impartiality, written history will class as an offspring. We have neither the time nor space to analyze the causes of the struggle, but we utter this fact England is fighting for justice for Englishmen and fighting a people and a system of government that has looked the wheels of human progress in South Africa for four years will a country

England has not always been right, but nevertheless from the age of evil there is found an end of an abundant harvest. So, good England shall Spoys from the months of cannon, yet to day there are infants that run the river Gangas to prepare the wrath of Brahma. England's flag yet embellished more proud for gain, but it also means freedom and civilization. Six million years have meant the survival of the fittest in rulers and conquerors of men. The wave of Britain have meant human betterment.

Let us not be tempting man or nation in our judgment. Let us at least discuss a point of conscience. Shall we wherever occasion begins, be and take sides.

Let us not be led into false claims of human liberty. If the lines are engrossed by England, what can be said of the Kaffirs and Zulus, who are composed of Dear treaty, by the Boers?

But, at least, let us not forget the Zoroaster was found among the Gaul ATMIRAL SNOWDEN, the Dewey of the Chinese waters, Wrote the following to the Sec. of Navy. Wrote the regulations now known as the attitudes were accepted by the Boer government of the Transvaal and to develop the good fellow, the period for national action, fixed by the law of 1892 was five years, but before the time came that the government made what they called a change of the rights the new one to vote, changed the period being extended to fourteen years, with further intention of method which made the franchise all time unlikely. Waiting this was unlikely on part lady legislation I am not prayer enough to know, but I do consider a violation of fair dealing and to wholly characteristic. Let it suffice to the Canadian generally, and to the Boer sympathizers especially, the lack of public meetings in the American Spanish war.

Shall we wait for confirmation when the prestige and power of Great Britain is broken. It seems we prejudge to forget! what would be open rupture.

There is reason in us to consider these questions carefully.

"Lest we forget."

Congressman Mercer.

The congressional district served by Hon. Samuel Mercer, who put some energy and activity into his work, as also accomplished, latest results, than Hon. W. S. Mercer.

Mr. Mercer is serving his second term, and is serving most satisfactorily. If experience goes for anything, and it does, he is doing better work this term than he did in his first. The record verifies this statement. Mr. Mercer's place among those who shape congressional action is recognized. His influence and influence is acknowledged.

The time is a time when Mr. Lincoln's axiomatic utterance about swapping horses is particularly appropriate. Questions have been thrust upon the American people within the past year that are unsettled. Problems have arisen that are crowding upon Congress for solution.

Mr. Mercer has been our congressman, and has been in touch with these and have shaped the war policy of the government. The adjustment of many questions that have been created by the war will be upon us. We believe Mr. Mercer is better equipped to assist in this work than any new man can possibly be.

The record of W. S. Mercer has been clean and honorable, his record is what good citizenship should be, and has been conspicuous, and the Sentinel earnestly advocates his re-nomination.

Senator Burrows is much interested in the foundation opened by Mr. Hamilton's discovery that Lake Michigan is not affected by the anti-waste dumping of 1900. He says, "It proved safe as a sanitary proposition, and one into which the most careful and thorough investigation seems to much because of the magnitude of the interests involved. If Michigan shipbuilders had not proved what they claim, do not see why our people should not go ahead and do the work. Let us all be careful not to do anything to the government at any reasonable price compared with those now ruling. We are not doing more or less shipbuilding in western Michigan, at Benton Harbor, South Haven, Grand Haven and Muskegon, and at Muskegon we have business with large capacity and continued room for expansion. If the government gives consistent contracts we could develop important plants, and we know full we may obtain an order for the armor plate plant of which there has been so much discussion. In construction on vessel warships and large Michigan would be an ideal arrangement in case we were at war with any foreign power, for while our lakeside shipyards might be on the force on a great naval power, we could turn out battle boats, gunboats, cruisers and other light craft on Lake Michigan without the slightest risk of severely Georgian Bay, Superior, Huron, Erie and other towns on the other side of the lake would also be greatly assisted should it be decided that the government of Uncle Sam not relate to Lake Michigan."

Last Indian Enterprise. Last week it was observed that a man going by the name of Tom Jager, but with several aliases, was had been in with for Dash & Co., had "skipped" for Dawson from Sitka to Skiway and the stock in that for and then disappeared. A warrant for his apprehension was issued, and on Saturday last, having been found in a cabin at Skiway, that five other out of Kalkaska, he was arrested there, put on Thursday last brought here and placed in the jail. He was taken before Squire Clement for examination, on charge of Small Company, murders and court time.

Tumbling in "Morgan" is the time of Julia Dashiell and Mrs. Morgan had published in the last issue issued of the Petoskey Standard, and in the Grand Rapids Herald, and in the southern portion of Michigan and in adjoining states. Call you what it may, the sensation caused in Petoskey, Michigan, where it is well known, and in the social circle, and in the business circle, and in the church circle, and in the Masonic circle, and in the Eastern Star circle, and in the Rebekah circle, and in the Knights of Pythias circle.

Mrs. Morgan, the Sunday A gentle man was in one village and seen looking at the advantages offered in the city of Petoskey, with a view to a business and good work.

Summer Notes.

The chairmanship appointment by Mr. Gardner, of the Ways and Means Committee, of Mr. Mercer, of the Sixth district, is a well deserved compliment to the Sixth district, and to the Republican party, for while our lumbermen and other light craft on Lake Michigan without the slightest risk of severely Georgian Bay, Superior, Huron, Erie and other towns on the other side of the lake would also be greatly assisted should it be decided that the government of Uncle Sam not relate to Lake Michigan."

Tariff Revenue. We do not know that the Democrats in authority in Washington, Democrats in Congress, will act on an independent condition in case Mr. Perry is nominated, or that if he is nominated whether he will stand by it long enough to stay just long enough to get the good out of the Democratic party. Perry's alleged independence is a good thing for the Republican party. He is the first man of prominence in the party who has ever advertised in advance his intention to have better to it in case the delegates choose to that alone he doesn't like. Therefore it would be of much value to know how the rank and file would take that sort of loyalty. It would certainly settle whether Mr. Perry's is bigger than the state. Republican convention and whether he desire for revenge would change the party, from the state over to the democratic ranks. Mr. Perry is the author of less of the commonwealth, or sink into opera obscure. With some knowledge of the history of the party in this state, and a fair appreciation of its temper, under given circumstances, we are of the I shall that Mr. Perry would come out of the encounter very much as did the venerable Sam Houston, who, after being forced from the Senate chamber, lacerated, bruised, battle cuts, disappointed.

LOVING WIFE

And the Trouble She Saved Her Husband by Thoughtfulness.

Philander Smith liquor—"You've all read lots of jokes about the women who goes up in the dead of the night to rifle her husband's pockets," said a friend of the hammer. "They stand to rifle themselves in the pocketing of what small change happens to be there. But there is one time when a woman in West Philadelphia, who is a friend of mine, saved her husband from a good deal of trouble. It happened the other night. The husband's husband is a traveling man, and a house for a couple of months. He was out the other night, and as he did not get in until about two and was in a drowsy condition, and was rather in danger of being robbed. He had on a fairly number of clothes, and was in the habit of carrying his money in his pocket, and he always has a good deal of money on his person. The wife knew this, and was anxious for her husband's safety. So she put her husband's money in a little bag, and sewed it in the inside of his coat, and put another in his vest, and put the rest in his pocket. The next morning he was in a drowsy condition, and was robbed of all his money, and was thrown out of a window, and was found

STEEL SHIP FLOATS.

LAUNCH OF GREAT LAKES STEAMER AT CURRIER, OHIO.

The John W. Gates Glides Into the Water and Is Christened in the Usual Way—Splendid Mechanical Appliances Are Used on the Enterprise.

The first steel freighter ever built on the Great Lakes was launched at Lorain, Ohio, Saturday, at Lorain Place. Several hundred people were present to witness the launch and judge, now or in subsequent years, how far the prophecy made by George Gates, president of the John W. Gates company, of Chicago, a Chicago lady, wife of Mr. Gates, would come true in the long floating vessel. Mrs. Gates, who is a large woman, was given the honor of christening the vessel, and she did it in the usual way, breaking a bottle of champagne on the bow of the vessel as she started down the ways.

CANADA INCREASES CARGO CAPACITY.

Work on the Welland Canal Enlargement Will Be Pushed Vigorously Next Spring.

The Dominion government has ordered work on the Welland canal to be pushed vigorously next spring, so that it may be ready for navigation by the opening of navigation in 1907. It is now expected that the work will be completed in 1908. The enlargement of the canal will increase the capacity of the Welland canal from 2,000,000 tons to 4,000,000 tons annually. The work of enlargement has been in progress for some time, but it was thought that it would be 1909 before the work could be completed. The government has decided to push the work, and it is now expected that the canal will be ready for the passage of the enlarged lake boats in the fall of 1908. The new locks will be 800 feet long and 80 feet wide, and will have a depth of water on the sills of 30 feet. The present locks are 45 feet wide and 270 feet long, with a depth of water on the sills of 14 feet. The new locks will be the largest in the world. The work of enlargement will be pushed night and day, and it is expected that it will be completed in 1908.

IOWA INHERITANCE LAW VALID.

State Executive Court Upholds the Levying of Collateral Taxes.

The Supreme Court of Iowa, Monday, in a decision rendered in the case of the Mercantile Trust and Deposit company of Baltimore against the Iowa tax commissioner, upheld the inheritance tax law of Iowa, and in the lower court Judge Thomas Nicholson, of Polk county, decided that the Iowa inheritance tax law is constitutional. The company in question had contended that the Iowa law was in violation of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, and also that it was in violation of the Iowa constitution.

MISSIONS IN PHILIPPINES.

Methodists Have Assumed Control of Work Left by Malone.

The Methodists have assumed control of religious missionary work in the Philippine islands, which was left by the late A. E. Malone, the Iowa missionary, who was killed in Manila on May 2. Mr. Malone, who was a Congregationalist, was one of the leaders of the Philippine Christian Commission. He was killed by a native while on his way to his home in Manila, and on the Monday morning following his death the Methodists had taken up the work left by the Iowa missionary. Bishop Thomas Bowman, of the Methodist church, has been appointed to take charge of the work in the Philippines, and he will be assisted by Dr. Frank Warren, who has been in charge of the Methodist publishing house in Manila for the past two years. The Methodists have decided to push the work left by Mr. Malone with all the energy possible, and it is expected that a large force of workers will be sent to the islands.

ANARCHY IN VENEZUELA.

Patient of National of the Barrios in Advance of Government Troops.

A cablegram from Caracas to the Associated Press says: Anarchy prevails in Venezuela. Upon the arrival of the government troops, the followers of General Cipriano Castro, who is leading a revolution, Mr. Montenegro and other leaders in opposition, have been arrested and thrown into the dungeons. The government forces are in pursuit of Castro, who is said to be in the mountains of the Barinas province, in the northwestern part of the country. The rebels are said to be in great confusion, and it is expected that they will be easily routed.

Marine Notes.

It is mentioned that Capt. Thomas Gallagher will come home from Detroit next spring to sail the steamer Jim.

It is reported that the City of Grand Rapids will be overhauled, a new boiler and engine put in, and that she will go on the run between South Haven and Chicago the coming season.

The tug Williams, owned by the U. S. engineer's department, is being remodeled and retitled as the survey steamer for the east shore. She is considerably larger than either the Gilmore or Hancock, and will make a fine boat. Capt. Cavanaugh will be transferred to her.

A Menominee special of the 27th says: "Ann Arbor car ferry No. 2 arrived at 11 a. m. and reported a successful passage through the lake. She was accompanied by the Argonaut. The latter boat manages to keep a good channel open between here and Sturgeon Bay, and two of the car ferries will hereafter make regular trips to that port.

On account of the pronounced "Two Rivers polar," which caused seven miles into the lake, it is not probably possible, when the atmosphere is favorable, to see across Lake Michigan. James Gallagher, light keeper at that point, a few nights ago, plainly distinguished by the aid of his big Dietz lantern, Kewaunee lighthouse, sixty-three miles away. During the summer months the banks of the east shore are visible from Two Rivers frequently.

Capt. Jos. Moredumas and Seaman Orem returned from Milwaukee Saturday having brought the steamer Chicago to Lake City to winter. Mrs. Moredumas and Chas. H. Moredumas each one quarter. Capt. Jos. Moredumas will sail the Chicago next season. The Lizzie was built in 1873, and has been thoroughly rebuilt, she measures 115 tons. The remodelation was $1,000. This adds another good vessel to the Charlevoix fleet. The tug Jim will be sold. Capt. Lorenzo will probably join the schooner Bayview for this trade.

Frankfort is to have a new steamship line making the port once a week in addition to the Northern Michigan Transportation company. The Toledo & Milwaukee Steamed company a long article in which the information is given that a line is to be established from Milwaukee to Manistee, Frankfort, Glen Arbor, Charlevoix, Traverse City and Petoskey. The name of the company not being given. This move is made by the transportation association of Milwaukee which desires to reclaim the trade held by them in former years, but which has gone to Chicago of late years for the reason that this shore has had no connecting steamship lines direct with Milwaukee.

Slips were opened at Grand Haven, Mich., last week for pre-arrangement work at Portage Lake, twelve miles north of Manistee, which is to serve as a harbor of refuge. The north pier is to be extended 700 feet and the south pier 900 feet. The crib will rest on a pile foundation and will be completed with a superstructure eight feet high. The firm making the bids are laid on the work was Gemmell & Schurmann of Muskegon and they will, in all probability get the contract. Their bid was $153,986. The harbor which is now to be completed is to be used by lake sailing in case of storms as a means of refuge during the remainder of public. This is an part of any importance at Portage lake, and to commercial interests are concerned by the construction of the harbor, the only purpose for one prior 1870, when the first appropriation was made by Congress being to bend along the twenty-five mile stretch of coast a suitable harbor to be used in stormy weather.

Vessemen claim that an early opening of navigation on Lake Superior is now assured, says the Duluth News-Tribune. They are not inspired in this opinion by the fact that the weather during the past few days has been unusually balmy but because the winter as a whole has been exceedingly mild and the conditions have not existed up to the present that are necessary for the formation of considerable ice in February. Considerable snow and wind, weather, vessemen say, are necessary before the late date to expect very much ice in the lake. In St. Mary's river there is comparatively little ice and signs from south Sault Marie are to the effect that it is not expected there will be as much as usual at any time during the feat of the winter. The transit at the Sault Lake Superior is remarkable. The steamer Saint has continued running on the north shore all winter. The harbor on the Duluth side of the bay is open and traverse at work every day by competitors of the construction of the Duluth ship-canal piers. The harbor at the Superior side of the bay is closed up for, as it the usual end of superior bay, but the ice is not very thick, 16 inches being about the maximum in the slips. A vessemen cautiously remarks that there are two weeks of navigation at Duluth this winter, considerat and perhaps navigation. Of course the above conditions exist on other lakes, and we may expect early movements out of Chicago and Milwaukee.

Northern Michigan

Mom wildcats are being killed in northern counties than ever before known at this time of the year. They are very bold, entering many barns and even one house in the day time.

The nomination of E. N. Cole as postmaster at East Jordan was sent to the Senate last week and will probably be confirmed soon. That office was recently raised to the presidential class.

Fire in Traverse City one night last week, destroyed several buildings and stocks of goods and damaged others to the extent of some $20,000. The total loss is estimated at about with but $15,000 insurance.

Harbor Springs Herald—Our fishermen are those people that are not acquainted with the taste of the fish and enjoyed delicacy from Chicago. We will say that "New York certificate is congealing for the taste of solid and if purchased will put in a plant that will not anywhere near approach to perfection. The magnificent cost is such as enterprise is far beyond the idea of those that are not acquainted with the matter.

Last Sunday, Commodore Sigerth, the famous Mackinaw character, got in the lock attempting at the lower to wit pass the lifting up of a seal in the gate which let the water in the basin who usual frequently, to temporarily cared for by the poor overworked sailors. It appears there is a suitable place to keep them, and so now we have a [illegible] Commodore Sigerth, who appears to make such an improvement which can be done at small expense.

The Harbor Springs Herald, tells of a horse and three which seems to have more than ordinary "sense" of course. His owner had occasion to have the sled and the wagon for days to haul the engine and set and was the lower for a thoroughfare shop. The horse stopped down several times and then positively refused to get up. A rope was passed, the horse raised on and he took to comfortable to the shop for his new sharp shoes, also which he was ready for a race.

From the tests which have been made, the meat bed is declared to be of the best grade yet found in the state, and the supply is said to be practically inexhaustible. The offensive to finding sufficient quantities of pure clay has been overcome. Representatives of eastern capital have been here this week looking for a suitable site for a bond at cable factory. They have expressed themselves as highly pleased with the location, and if the timber supply is found to be equal to the tests of the quality of clay finding the plant at this point. It will be the largest wood alcohol plant in the state, requiring 200,000 cords of cord

BURR FOUND THE ASSASSIN.

Famous Lawyer Does Unusual Work at Scene of Murder.

"I was particularly interested," said an old Washington lawyer the other day speaking of the Machanics' will crime, "in the example that counsel for Aaron Burr's counsel set in pasting a pair of lighted candles in the face of a spectator in the courtroom and shouting 'Gentlemen, here is the real murderer.' I do not question this, but I remember that Jere Clemens, once a famous United States senator from Alabama, told of a trial in which Burr appeared for the defense of a man charged with murder. My recollection is that the trial was in the southwest. When Burr arose and Clay it was night. The gallery was lit in front. He had been the principal witness for the prosecution but Burr had learned that this witness was the assassin, and in closing his address for his client he pitched to two cadaverous candles from the table and holding them in the face of the witness referred to, he exclaimed: 'Gentlemen of the jury, there is conclusive evidence. Now write your verdict.' Not waiting for the verdict, Burr left the room. After Clemens told this story he wrote an historical novel called The Rivals; or, The Sons of Hamilton and Burr." In that book he weaves the incident into one of the chapters. The book is out of print and has been for years, but it is not a bad story, safe, particularly in the south. Colonel Clay was a Kentucky and a great southern orator, and a man of wonderful personal magnetism. The object of the novel was to make Burr a hero, and to lambaste Hamilton's disciples. In one chapter where Burr was high in the esteem of Washington, his letter is represented as reading a letter from Hamilton in which Hamilton detailed some scandalous gossip about Burr. Burr was standing before Washington during the reading of the letter. Washington increased at the contents of the letter, turned upon Burr and saw Burr to whom he said: 'How have you read my letter over so carefully? Sent as Genesse Hightower, stung to the quick, drew himself up and replied with all the hauteur of his nature: 'When your majesty addresses such an inquiry to me in this manner you have, the only reply among men, proper to a man living under the aegis of the authority.' This Clemens states, was the cause of the break between Washington and Burr."

King of Siam and His Wives.

The king of Siam has forty wives, and in the harem are 1,000 women who never go out. When Miss Sarah Ashmead, in a missionary spirit, urged upon him the benefit of education for them he replied: 'You know with education there always comes unrest and discontent. If I educate one wife I should educate them into a state of discontent, for they would want many things which it is impossible for them to have." Now that is a perfectly logical statement, and the king's method of appreciation, has traveled as far as that of the Lord Chancellor of England. The Lord Chancellor is very anxious lest women should join the parliamentary franchise, because in his experience he will accept polite but not what she believes to be right. A gallant woman renders her a dangerous guide in political matters. Neither man nor woman has apparently grasped the thought that there is something wrong about the institution itself that needs mending. The king and his wives seem entirely to advantage by educating them into a state of discontent, and the other will get it lasting. In it more people who will accept only what they think is right."

A Simple Test.

To detect impure water, draw a tumbler from the lap of a child, put a piece of white lump sugar in it and place it on the kitchen mantelshelf, or in any place where the temperature will not be under 60 degrees Fahrenheit. In the morning the water, if pure, will be perfectly clear; if contaminated by germs or other impurities, the water will be milky. This is a simple and safe test, well known by chemists—New York Weekly.

A Race of Dwarfs.

The island of Luzon, in the Philippines, contains one of the recognized races of dwarf men, the Aetas, whose average height is only four feet eight inches, or four feet nine inches. They dwell among the mountains in the interior of the island, and are allied to the Andamanese inhabiting islands in the bay of Bengal. It is remarked as a curious fact that all of the dwarf races survive only in the most inaccessible parts of the continent or islands to which they belong.

A Cigar Stem.

The "cigar bean" of Batavia is a wild fruit recently discovered in Java. The pod is like a cigar in shape and color, but only six inches long, and when put into water it emits on the surface for several minutes, then explodes like a torpedo, burning the air with odoriferous. If allowed to ripen in a warm place the pod gradually opens lengthwise from point to base. If left to ripen on the plant it splits open more suddenly.

Fine Fishing Not Sport in London.

A glass pudding dish has been found at in London. On from and 20,000 pounds of puddings have been broken Christmas. Surprises are now inclosed in these, ranging from bullions and coverlets and bab sovereigns to gold thimbles and diamond rings. One pudding ordered had in it a diamond and opal brooch worth £100, enclosed in a silver box.

Continental Nightcaps.

Some fashionable women have night caps made of white satin lace with a circular sachet pad fastened on the crown. The caps are exquisitely and pretty, the lace opens allows free access of air and the sachet imparts a faint and delicate fragrance to the hair.

What Are His Regrets Now Thinks About the War.

A citizen of Ill inquiry writes the Tribune as follows: "There appears to be a good amount of misconception in the public mind as to the justice of the position of the war between England and the Transvaal.

This is a free country and every man has a right to think for himself and form his own conclusions, regardless of the position he occupies.

All one denies that the Boers have received a great deal of sympathy. They are brave and have acted, part of them, in accordance to accepted notions. The sympathy already expressed for them is largely the result of feelings of pity for the underdog, or because they have not understood the question. I do not condemn the Boers sympathizers either to ignore or to unexpressed carbon facts regarding the policy and designs of the Transvaal government, which are essential to those who have any desire to approve a right understanding of the case. It is to be regret that a great many have not a very limited knowledge of the causes leading up to the war. While some may be anxious to view the case from a right standpoint, others have not, or have not exercised their conclusions to the right understanding of the case, being influenced by a feeling of sympathy for the underdog, without bias, study the pros and cons, a sympathy change to approval.

The European chancelleries were invited by Kruger to come in the Transvaal, and the same as foreigners were encouraged to settle in the United States. When they found their bought and sold, they set to work to develop the resources of the country, paying nine tenths of the taxes. The five city of Johannesburg is a monument to their industry, enterprise and thrift. They were, and are, denied all political, civil and municipal rights. They were willing to become naturalized citizens of the Transvaal. Kruger promised them full naturalization after two years residence. No science had the foreign-born, and the nationalities been very unequal, but the intervening years have greatly changed behind for him. Kruger promised them full naturalization, which no American citizen would dare to allow, would extend to Would not be allowed to vote for any office unless his petition received the approval of two-thirds of his fellow-citizens, of the Boer military chief of the district, and lastly, of President Kruger himself. And then, to cap the climax, although a naturalized citizen, he would not be allowed to vote unless he was forty years of age. That is the kind of justice the Boer government is in favor of perpetuating.

Again, it is said that the war was caused by the desire of England to obtain possession of the wealth and territory of the Transvaal. It might be well to bear in mind that for almost years of Kimberly are not the Transvaal land to the British territory. The gold mining claims in the Transvaal were bought and paid for by the settlers just the same as an emigrant would buy his land in this country. Those who say that this war was forced on the Boers deny to themselves of course, all knowledge of the Jameson raid, conveniently ignore the significant fact that foreigners, Germans was instrumental in the Boers begin the war by invading British Natal, cape colony and Kimberly, and that the fighting so far has been on British territory. The Britons have been the defendants, the Boers have been the aggressors. It is well known that Kruger had been preparing for war for eighteen nine years, and when the time came he was delayed demanding the withdrawal of the British troops from English territory, England had only about 10,000 troops in the whole of her South African possessions.

It is all mismaker to say that the Boers are fighting for their home and country. No one threatened either their homes or country. The English settlers, as shown in their correspondence, from the Boer government, gave positive assurance that there was no danger to interfere in any way with the independence of the South African republics, nor, further, they stated the Boers are complete guarantee against any attack upon their independence either from within any part of the British dominions or from any foreign state. The English government, meant for, while Kruger had built on war. The Boers are fighting to drive out the British from south Africa and extend their own rule. The English are fighting for justice, for human rights, for freedom, for the protection of the natives of South Africa and for the suppression of the slave trade.

A Boer, speaking of this city and the other day that he would be sorry to see the Union whipped. That sentiment would injure the Boer cause. He has this leader of light minded for a moment what the defeat of Britain would mean to civilization and progress? is he a student of history? Britain is fighting mostly as out of the sympathy of the English speaking peoples. Does this reasonable gentleman imagine that the United states alone can hope for successful resistance single handed against the other European nations that if not been for England the war with spain would not have been brought to a successful close so speedily, or it was, if at all, the type of the world for progress, freedom and material progress be in the hands of the English speaking race? Britain and the United States are the two great civilizing agencies in the world today. The defeat of Britain would move the world back a generation, and would place the cause of civilization, and liberty and progress back for hundred years, a condition of affairs which would be a calamity to the world.

Contrast the two periods of vituperation and abuse. In the winter of 1899 it was a political pastime to date put in the time of humanity compel Spain to stop the unholy war in Cuba. He had no authority, American quality, he hesitated, delayed and refused to act—and the wrath of his detractors knew no bounds. All the while he was calmly and patriotically seeking to avoid war in Cuba without needless sacrificing of American blood. All the while with the majority of a states in the and a diplomatic he was drawing by a peaceful crisis the opinion of Europe. Now, The Boer friends in Europe, organized the war against his judgment. But he placed his judgment, and with the firmness and determination of another statesmanship, has since administered the affairs of the country with an ambition only to produce its dignity and preserve unsullied its reputation.

McKinley's enemies? He has none. He is the man he was in 1898, he is not responsible, for the war with Spain. He is not responsible for its consequences. His responsibility begin and ended with executive direction of the honor of the country. It has not, as shown, he have of the title of a public life. The war in the Philippines, the future of Hawaii, Puerto Rico and those now war with cuba. That honor is in the senate and house and authority to make peace and war. Will he do more than the commissions of the government? That President McKinley may have policy regarding them is undoubted, but that his policy should be based upon his ambition to win reunion for himself, to strengthen his political reputation, is a base and unreasonable charge on his integrity and patriotism—Detroit Journal.

Lack is A Liger, exceptionally of war, has this to say about the law of thinks it is lack, an American and impartial law. A northern writer attempt—alas a feeling among the Boers against a great England for the Boers. The war in South Africa is one of our concern, we should keep our hands off. When we had war with Spain Great Britain had no sympathy with us. Spain had intended to let us alone however, and if she did anything beyond that it was to give justice to other nations by land and sea to let us alone. The least that America can now do is to treat Britain in kind, we are sorry for the country. So law in force.

NEURALGIA.

Something Also That Will Interest Its Victims.

THIS IS A SUBJECT that is dear to many persons, such as inflammation of the nerve itself or of the parts tender to pressure by a tumor or exciting numbness along the course of the affected disease at the point of origin of the nerve in the brain or spinal cord, and the 1st. When an cause can be discovered for the pain it is called neuralgia, but the term is generally more and more restricted in its application and medical science advances and unknown of detecting disease in formerly supposed functional cases. Pain is a symptom. The pain is intermittent in character, that is by attacks of pain separate with pain-free periods. The duration of the attacks, as well as of the intervals between them, varies from a few hours to days or even weeks. Chiefly, do not, as a rule, suffer from neuralgia in any part of the body they may have headaches it is true but these are usually due to alcoholism or to some distinct neurotic trouble. The pain of neuralgia is usually acute and cutting, and is constantly felt in intensity, now dying down for a time so as to be scarcely felt, and again becoming intense and unendurable, stabbing the poor sufferer with fresh agonies. Sometimes the character of the pain seems to differentiate from the pain of other nature, resembling the pain of a carious form of neuralgia which is called "tomorrow." In contra in chronic quality of a certain type, which is called "tomorrow." In contra-distinction to the two great exciting agencies in the world today, the defeat of Britain would move the world back a generation, and would place the cause of civilization back for hundred years, a condition of affairs which would be a calamity to the world.

Sleeping Superstitions.

In the Welsh hotels it used to be considered unlucky to place a bed against which craft was to enter the left side of the bed, as the devil and Jonah. This fears are to greater kind of superstition connected with the bedroom, necessarily home their value, which, in fact, is a matter of fancy, as shown in a recent issue of good-Youth's Companion.

The Physiologic Effect of Tobacco.

Dr. Hutchinson, in a lecture at the Medical Society of London, said that the physiologic effect of tobacco was a matter of fancy, as shown in a recent issue of good-Youth's Companion.

The World's Biggest Cask.

The largest cask in the world is owned by a Heidelberg, who lives at Neckarsteinach, and it is 27 feet long and 22 feet in diameter. The length of the staves is 26 feet. The staves are bound by 36 hoops, which together with twelve iron rings, form the outer case two barrels in the center, which is 18 feet in diameter, are not even engaged in constructing the cask, and the other is for present purposes of Nature. The cask is filled at the Gesundbrunnen, which is the fashionable resort of Heidelberg.

The shoe is made of the best leather, and as a result is as durable as any other shoe. The inventor of vegetarian shoes is a member of the Vegetarian society, and is an authority on the subject.

As a Satire.

Lester Bowers is the author of "Sonnets of the Queen," a song which is now on every one's lips in England. Concerning it he said recently: "The funny thing about the song is that originally I wrote it as a satire. I wasn't at all in sympathy with it but since become it. I once cut in the Artist's Model and in 17 days the public sentiment stand the satire. So I changed it without any change in the first verse I had a good inspiration in the last line and now others are taking the general right. Of course I am very grateful to Queen Victoria for having conferred the distinction on me, and that began the popularity and now I feel myself the laureate of the 'Marvellous' of England." The song is selling at an average rate of 12,000 copies a week.

Immigration in New York State.

Immigration officials say that many immigrants who come to this country are living in a condition of abject poverty. In one tenement there is a colony of 270 Italians who are living in the most primitive of all ways, who hire them in farmers' fields, and sleep on the ground. Some of their earnings, while those who are fortunate enough to call, are so low that they are housed in buildings little better than cattle sheds.

Art in Textile.

Textile has long been international art exhibitions since 1862, and all of them have been successful. The last one, which closed on Nov. 12, contained the sale of 20,000 worth of paintings, 18 per cent of which were bought by the public and which were bought into the pockets of non-Italian artists.

In 1902 Dimitrio Statis of Paris is the owner of the lake Tomarquillo, which, with thousands of Andean, cinchona, asparagus and vegetable are buried upon it. A curious phenomenon about the lakes is that they keep at the same level all the time, regardless of dry and rainy seasons. No amount of rain will make any difference with their depth. When, however, the cause is unknown. And this adds to the awe and mystery which the Andes are regarded by the Indians. There are no boats upon the lakes, a few small canoes, or rafts, made of bamboo of straw, which keep very close to the shore for fear of being drawn to the whirlpools that are said to exist in the middle. There is some foundation for this, for only two or three years ago a boat, in which a Frenchman accompanied by the darkness, and it was never heard from. IRON GATES.

Dizzy in Remembering the Sign of Napoleon's Weakness.

Iron gates, through the bars of which landscapes and gardens could be seen and admired, were brought into vogue for a refined method of shutting out society does. Iron the grandeur of antique gates, and the end of the 18th century, the Iron Gate, which is the island's history is hard to realize, becomes a poet of romance with bars made it. and a continuous line in therefore, of less consequence by romance and by law, but at most its distance has smoothed the abiding power of ordinary human things with concern themselves very little about the colonel alone generally supposed up to the island's only inhabitant, and the report to the English government put made by their governor shows exactly the lines of the like dwelling in pinnes less fractionally famous. For instance, the revenues of the island last year were £8,152, a decided comfortable sum, but also the expenses of civilization amounted to £12,240, and that is an excess of entire but comfortable at all. The government, however, that the bad balance was given to some extraordinary frolics upon the island's resources, and that he entirely ignores the essential surplus for the current year. A recent increase of garrison and extensive improvements now making to the colonial and imperial authorities assume the immediate development of the resources. Its income has no public debt, but is paying off a small annual instalment of the interest bearing grant of a. and the government is left to the improvement chiefly foodstuffs and building materials, amounted last year to £42,000, and the exports to £40,000 in cotton, £4,000 lace making has been introduced and only 4,000 are left the island with great success, and the governor is a great patron of the lace industry of brick and tile. The whalers have been driven to the northern seas. A few ships engage in this industry, leaving for to the north or south. The total population is 4,000 souls. Malta's proximate hope that winter visitors from Europe will be encouraged by the authority of the climate to try the Iron Gates of Hedon and to say in some respects to that of Mentone. Malta's climate is not excepted to say the people as a whole compare favorably with the English agricultural population. With the exception of one road and wide, and the language is spoken with greater purity than in many districts at home. As a rule the people are happy and contented, and little crime among them and much Italian is spoken. The Maltese are greatly impressed with the general civility to them by old and young.

TO BUILD A MODERN ZION.

Great Religious City Near Chicago Where All Will Be Pure.

A great religious city, where the inhabitants of the world will dwell and where there will be no unrighteousness, will, if the present plans of the promoters are realized, arise from the sand dunes of Lake Michigan, in the vicinity of the Indiana steel mills, and be the successor of the mythical Zion of which the prophets have spoken and which has been the hope of the Christian world for nearly two thousand years. The new Zion is to be given over to the Christian Catholic church, which is a religious organization of Chicago, and which has been in existence for about two years. The Christian Catholic church is a branch of the Christian church, and has its headquarters in Chicago. The church is a missionary church, and has been doing a great work in the Chicago district. The church has 50 ministers and 50 churches in Chicago, and has a membership of 5,000

Straits of Mackinac are rapidly filling up with floating ice. Ferry boats are having much difficulty in crossing. It is rumored that the Miller Lumber Co., of Cross Village, are about selling their entire plant to Chicago parties.

The editor of the Harbor Bay Home has a novel scheme. He will give a free dance to all paid in advance subscribers Washington's birthday.

Manistee Herald: Farmers are becoming discouraged at the outlook for wheat. They inform us that it got rather a poor start in the fall and the freezing nights and lack of snow to protect it from frost have injured it to an alarming extent.

At Petoskey recently Harrell, the eight year old son of Geo. E. Tomlinson, was asked by a neighbor if Santa Claus had been down on his neigh. While in doing the little fellow's mind was broken. Friday morning he told in the room of the injury and he died Friday afternoon.

The Charlevoix Hotel Company, of St. Louis, has bought the Hotel Grand on Beaver Island, consideration, $20,000. This hotel was owned by the Michigan Island and Island Hospital's Indiana railroads and the D. L. & N. road. Now against the extensive improvements as contemplated.

During the past few days two large Canadian jays have been killed in the environs of Petoskey. Last week a party of citizens from Petoskey called one to Blaine township, and this week one hunter shot one in the Bohemian Indian hamlet, which was south of Bonifacius. For several years past the Canadian jays have quite numerous in that county.

Northern Michigan reports are likely to enjoy a prosperous season this year. Lumbering architects are making numerous plans for resort buildings, including a three story hotel at Bear Lake and many summer cottages at Walloon Lake. Thomas M. Cooley, of Detroit, will build an expensive residence at Harbor Point, and plans are being made for a casino at Harbor springs.

The Harbor Cedar Company has recently purchased the mill and 1,000 acres of timber from the Miller Lumbering Company of Cross Village. This with the timber they already own, south of Levering gives the Harbor company 12,000 acres. They propose to build a railroad from there north to Levering to haul from Cross Village the logs. Levering is about 6 miles from Cross Village and the Harbor Company will construct a railroad from there, and Levering is about 12 miles south of Petoskey. The proposed road will be a great benefit to the county and Island citizens are going to make an effort to have the line run along the shore of Grey Lake to that place and Lisbon close to Nashville. This proposition is being seriously considered among the residents of that portion of the county. Mr. Dwyer stated last night that there has not yet been any consent as to the route. He said that it was the purpose of the promoters of the object to visit the entire northern part of the county and learn the sentiment of the people and the conditions existing as to resources, before fixing the definite route. A meeting of citizens will soon be held in Lisbon, if to take the matter over. As far as they have given the promoters of the enterprise the meeting was greatly encouraged, and when it is more learned that the residents of the county will grant the right of way the line will be built. There will probably be little trouble in securing the proper concessions.

Herbert. Dryson still holds her hands, but she drew them gently yet firmly into her lap.

"And how do you suppose I shall feel when Mr. VERNEUIL is making love to you?"

"You may take your own time, and it is impossible that there should be anything more foolish than this. I do not want to make love to such an ugly woman."

"And, thank-offer, why am I so?"

"Why! Because you have lost in Sugar Mapleleaves. Do you not know that she is the cousin for a long lazing hour about your at all?"

"I don't care a Hoosier," repeated her lover quietly. "I love my Lucy's, I love your Lucy's, I love everything and everybody on the face of the earth, I love, I love, I love. I love living, I love my bread-buttered, I love my work, I love everything we see, I could yet think, I love everything, I love everything, I love everyone."

"Ah! the same reason that we should love Mr. Verneuil quickly."

"Yes, but I imagine you have spoken to a lady I'd as bottom to about your heart."

"You did not stand in the cross road. You sat in Mr. Verneuil's arms, and you love him, Lucy."

"Now, it seems to people who are happy, Lucy, Herbert Dryson, contesting time, who don't know what it is to be happy, I suppose

Arthur Sewell, Hyam's running mate in 1896, is a prominent expansionist. Mr. Sewell owns ships.

Why not admiral Dewey, and the other Philippine commissioners, and president McKinley parade in bring about that recognition of the Aguinaldo government, in the face of the plain statements of Senators Pettigrew, Hoar and Mason?

It is given out that the work of taking the census will not begin until June 1, and the work of actual enumeration will not about one month, the stipulations requiring the returns to be in Washington by July 1. There will be 30,000 enumerators to work one month. Over 72,000,000 of people must be recorded within 30 days, and there will therefore be an average of two and one half million a day.

The Republican Editorial Association of Michigan, at its meeting in Detroit last week, passed three resolutions of great importance as showing the trend of sentiment on the leading issues of the coming campaign. One of the resolutions declared in favor of submitting a state constitutional amendment giving to the national government the necessary power to legislate for the control of trusts and corporations, another took a firm stand on the subject of equal taxation and a third endorsed the work of the good roads party and invested the expense being borne by the whole state instead of highway county.

Attorney-General Oren has filed his brief in the case of Fred Moss against the new state barbers' commission which is an application for a mandamus to compel the commission to issue him a license. Moss has shaved the public in Ohio for twenty years, but as he hadn't shaved in Michigan two years prior to the taking effect of the new law he was denied a license. Attorney-General Oren thinks the people of Benton Harbor must employ some other barber, or Moss must stand an examination before the examination, the law, in his opinion, prevailing in positive terms that licenses can be issued without an examination only to barbers who had been engaged at the business in Michigan two years when the new law took effect.

Arthur Sewell, of Maine, who was the running mate of Hyam in 1896 in the free silver campaign, arrived in San Francisco recently from a visit to Honolulu. It an interview he is reported as saying: "I have always favored the annexation of the Philippines after the Paris treaty was approved. The United States should stand with the administration in all that is being done to hold the Philippines, they are worth retaining. Mr. McKinley will be renominated and re-elected. Mr. Hyam has not been renominated, but I hope he cannot win the race. The Democrats (free trade) have prosperity to contend against. Any hope of a change in the national ticket, or in a strong opposition, and in favor of free silver, is more than a declaration for expansion would be the conflict of mistakes. Henry Wallace is a good Republican who says free silver is done for, but he urges expansion as a Democratic policy and as a national necessity. Calvin McCormic sees in expansion a necessity for the south. These anti are leaders and they are sent to be misled into seeing one issue used in one part of the country and another in a different section. It appears that the work of organizing the various discordant elements of the democratic party into an harmonious unity is herculean indeed, if not quite impossible.

Senators Hawley and patriotism a service when he objected to statements of Senator Pettigrew alleging that Admiral Dewey recognized the Philippine republic saluted the flag, and promised diplomatic independence, on the ground that it was treason. In his own words, "I object to the statement, because it is treason. It is lending aid and comfort to the enemy of the United States, and the senate has been doing that for months." Senator Lodge thereupon read the statements which senator Pettigrew was trying to make from a pamphlet written by Aguinaldo as a "mass of falsehoods—a tissue of lies" and read the following letter from Admiral Dewey, written the week of Senator Lodge. The statement of Emilio Aguinaldo, as recently published in the Springfield Republican, so far as it relates to me is a tissue of falsehoods. I never promised, directly or indirectly, independence for the Filipinos. I never treated him as an ally, except to make use of him and the soldiers to insure me in my operations against the Spaniards. He never alluded to the word independence in any conversation with me or my officers. The statement that I received him with military honors or called out the assembled Filipino flag is absolutely false." The American people will agree with senator Lodge, who soon after he read the letter, said: "This is the statement of Admiral Dewey. As between the statements in that pamphlet and the word of George Dewey, I will take the word of George Dewey." Senator Spooner and his respects to the demons of this country which are trying to sacrifice as many American soldiers as possible to the Philippines and spread the most malicious lies in the last letters written by the honored son Lucius.—"I am shot down like a Filipino bullet in the back, to break the tempest!" When about to begin an elephant hunt, according to Thomson he uses this charm: "Oh elephant, trumpeter, come across the lake. The pot boils, the pan frolic across the point. Go to the left, go to the right, spoil of grandfather (the elephant). From the fingers upon the hoearina." The Malay believes in witches, and witchcraft. There is but little doubt the Polong which feeds on its owner's blood till the latter refuses for it to take possession of an enemy. There is a horrid thing, the Penangian, which, when transformed, can, quietly, in more its clubfoot under to the sole, or to place it from a distance. It is particularly unfortunate, when the soldiers in the Philippines, Great Britain, she who was our valuable friend of two years ago. During our war with Spain, Great Britain remained strictly neutral and no pro-Spanish remarks were heard from any of her statesmen, in our favor or against. Her whole attitude toward us was absolutely kindly friendly that its influence in preventing what might otherwise have occurred in the way of European intervention will never be capable of full measurement. Great Britain did nothing and said nothing, yet by implication she warned other nations to mind their own business. We now be a debt of gratitude, and the least we can do to repay it is to abstain from interference in her great struggle against the South African republics. But if a register for media, this should come from either of the interested parties, general Alt—that's a different matter. But under present conditions it is most unfortunate that certain prominent men continue to give the American people against the Britons. You and I, to be sure, and every one else, may entertain wide over individual opinion as to the merits of the controversy and the justice of the war that we plead, and neither of us may even desire to give expression to our views in public meetings. All this is irresponsible. What I complain of, to be explicit, is the course of a man like Mr. Byran in going from place to place attempting to further his political ambitions by fanning into flame whatever anti-Britain sentiment he may find on our homegrown population. He is the spokesman of a great American party, a former candidate for the highest office in the gift of the nation and a prospective candidate for national race after the presidency. His words may have greater weight and effect abroad than he at home where he is known. I do not think that the anti-Boer resolutions passed by some of the state legislatures and by large public mass meetings are as much to be regretted as these speeches of a man like Mr. Bryan. I hold that we should treat great Britain in 1900 as she treated us in 1898.

BELIEVES IN WITCHCRAFT.

The Malay Has to Protect Himself with Charms.

The Malay is a firm believer in the efficacy of charms. In women another form of protection is the ring of bronze and sports a tiger's claw as a preventive of disease, says Popular Science. If he is constantly attacked and backsoaked, when he enters a house, he says: "He is quite right, all my enemies and assailants! May you be dumbfounded, no walk alone! To alay a storm he says: "The elephants collect, they wallow across the lake, to and the right, go to the left, break the tempest!" When about to begin an elephant hunt, according to Thomson he uses this charm: "The elephant trumpeter, come across the lake. The pot boils, the pan frolic across the point. Go to the left, go to the right, spoil of grandfather (the elephant). From the fingers upon the hoearina." The Malay believes in witches, and witchcraft. There is but little doubt the Polong which feeds on its owner's blood till the latter refuses for it to take possession of an enemy. There is a horrid thing, the Penangian, which, when transformed, can, quietly, move its clubfoot under to the sole, or to place it from a distance. It is particularly unfortunate, when the soldiers in the Philippines, Great Britain, she who was our valuable friend of two years ago. During our war with Spain, Great Britain remained strictly neutral and no pro-Spanish remarks were heard from any of her statesmen, in our favor or against. THE ORIGINAL SPEECH.

The Primeval Tongue of Man Unlike Any Language We Know.

The original speech, the true primeval tongue of man, was quite unlike any language we know of. Why? Because we have all talked it and all the elements are present in the tongues of today, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. The primeval language was a vocal language altogether. It had no consonants, or contacts, as we ought to call them, at all. Its words consisted of vowel sounds following each other, repeated in a variety of words like moon, moon, ah, moon, moon, moon-moon, moon-moon, ah, of which I may say in passing, are taken from a language in use today. The nearest approach to this charm "The elephant trumpeter, come across the lake. The pot boils, the pan frolic across the point. Go to the left, go to the right, spoil of grandfather (the elephant). From the fingers upon the hoearina." The Malay believes in witches, and witchcraft. There is but little doubt the Polong which feeds on its owner's blood till the latter refuses for it to take possession of an enemy. HOME LIFE OF CONSULO.

The Woodstock Aluminum Pellicani Has Become Famous.

Mallinckrodt, a Vienna gazette, according to the old French song which was written to celebrate the valorous achievements of the Duke of Malbrouck—and his young duchess, Mlle. Fanny Lederer, left Vienna with the ladies, while his grace remained behind to lead the Austrian Commercial Advertiser. Her grace consists in a devoted mother, and her two boys occupy the most charming suite of rooms in the palace of Blenheim; they are the cynosure gazed from amateur photographers as from kinkajoupes, and on "show days" when the palace is open to the public, they are shown about the attractive gardens to their blue and white parasolinas. On other days their nurse takes them for long jaunts in the 300 acres of private grounds which surround the palace, and to the various schools and institutions of which the young duchess is patroness. The Woodstock aluminous pellicani has become famous since Consulo came to Blenheim. Hitherto the red flannel garments worn by the women inmates of the aluminous hut measured three yards round. Consulo heard that new clothing would not be despoiled the paupers, and she had ten pellicani made. Five and a half yards of flannel were used in each garment.

Good Cheek.

A lady visiting in the south was told a story of a negro who had asked her to come to a walkaround with the two heads of a coon. "I want yer to fix up dese heads. Dey don't kept no sorter cut, dey jes' stick out dis mouth. Well, where I do the cheek?" responded the walkmaker. "Out at my house." "Dat I must have the cheek." "Dat I tell yer dat's hard to believe wid dem heads." "Well, I do the cheek." responded the walkmaker. "Out at my house." "Dat I must have the cheek." "Dat I tell yer dat's hard to believe wid dem heads." "Well, where I do the cheek?"

ANTICIPATE A RUSH.

CAPE NOME AUTHORITIES WANT LAND LAWS.

William O'Brien (Dec.) Issue a Creditable Design of Travel When Navigation Opens in the Coming Multitudes of Gold-Seekers Never Caught Up.

There will be a rush of gold seekers to the new gold mines of Cape Nome, Alaska, next spring, if the reports now in hand be true. It is the opinion of the authorities that the number of people at Cape Nome, Alaska, will reach 20,000 by next spring. Some of the authorities have made bolder estimates than this, but the number of people who will be there, at the time of the breaking up of the ice, will be very large. Nome is the name of the principal town in Golden Lookout, the most northerly of the Alaskan gold fields.

Gold Bearing Sea Sediment.

Fifty miles from Nome, along the shore, the discovery of considerable gold has been made in the sea beach. The sand and gravel of the beach, for a distance of a mile, is said to be rich in gold. The gold is in the form of very fine dust, and is found in paying quantities in the sediment from the sea. The gold is found in the sand and gravel of the beach, and in the sea sediment which is washed up by the action of the waves.

Congress Asked for Aid.

Eleven thousand men, it is said, have gone into the Cape Nome country, and they are there without means of subsistence. These men, or as many of them as may be in need, will apply to the government for aid, and expect that the government will do something for the relief of their necessities

The Presbyterian congregation at Flint has extended a unanimous call to Rev. A. Inglis, formerly of Pontiac, to become pastor of the church.

Gaylord Herald: Gaylord was a wind blown place last week however, there was too much fire in the air to allow of much bringing down from the mainland, and not enough machine of hurling it over with bombs.

William Hoskin, a former photographer at Charlevoix, was found dead in the woods on the east side of Mud Lake. He had quarreled with two men at Mercedes camp, and started for points of them. That was the last sight of him alive. He was frozen to death.

Petoskey Journal: Jim Chapel has a building for H. W. Stickney's line of entire vanity twenty-five long by eight feet high, and he is about ready to have power engaged. It will be finished by April 15, and will be run for bear meats and selfbusiness around the harbor and neighborhood.

Petoskey News: Mr. Hibbs guy who believes that advertising is the key to competitive success. He is a shrewd man, and Mr. Warner's Job Printer is the following line: "Job printer desperation, John Doe, Jr., has received a large invoice of new faces and novel body cards (visiting) cards. Call and see them before you die."

A Chicago report to a western newspaper who is endeavor a prominent man, but he was forced to resign the week when it looked almost as if he would be elected. Mr. Taylor's friends had to do something to that effect, he could show lively form anyhow. The Manistee Times says that Mr. Taylor got enough anything to that effect, but he couldn't, and the farmer came up with some sort and he wanted more time to come out and show the hand. And then the business went up.

The Michigan Island department of the N. Y. Times says: "The wood farmers on the island is becoming quite serious. Mr. Fr. Hughes was complained to purchase a hardwood range for his timber, and one second broken up several pieces of furniture in fact before she realized what. This party had money with which to buy wood and had it to said, given a certain sum what I would sure to bring our same wood but rather the sum would not money returned to her.

The Saint Joseph Herald: City road work will commence to-day on the road of Kinney, Sam and Alpena, per the view from Stillwell, a mile west of the end of the road, to East Jordan. They came two trips a day, carrying a couple on their trains for the accommodation of passengers, the two being 20 cents. The company has opened a general store at the place village in charge of Mr. Warner, who has been established there, and for the convenience of the farmers living over. The station was taken after John Rhett, on whose land the terminus of the road now is.

The commissioner Dickinson, when at Traverse City, had this to say to a reporter: "This country, together with all the northern portions of the state, will be increased in population year by year, perhaps immeasurably. All the counties down and in the lower peninsula fall upon the city where property land are taxed to the limit, and it is the big farmhouses who are getting out. While I have been here lumbermen attending the lumbermen among have from to see me, and made remarks that while they are taxed to the limit that the big operators are way down. In an adjoining county, for instance, buildings in three townships will be increased a million dollars in assessed valuation as a result of the commission's visit there. The great increase arises from the fact that the big operators own the superfluous, they don't them and they do their building. It isn't a case so much of intimidation as fully home.

Petoskey Journal: In a private letter to his wife Lieut. McCalla stated that on account of the illness of the captain he had had to take command of K. Co. He is now held in a line entrenches a few miles south of Manila. All now we know by telegram moving southward with the brown-coated to assist Cavite. He also states that at the close of the campaign he will probably be assigned as assistant Judge Advocate at General Otis' headquarters. He also says: "Hawaii is letting when we must some of the criteria in the home campaign is getting continued here, especially when some private soldier is quoted as telling of the awful awful hardships he had to undergo and of the terrible deeds he performed. A great deal of that stuff is printed in papers of the United States. Some one is to blame clipping you sent me where some reverend (?) gentleman is quoted as saying that our soldiers are worse than the United States for forty-five thousand years, drunkards and gamblers, now." I am inclined to think that if the women had that long study in Dear Santa Lucy would soon end his prominent position out his in the position he deserves.

TRAVERSE CITY Herald: A horse is reported to have fallen down that Thursday on the farm of Ed Franklin south of the flagpole north on the west side of the bay, and died an hour or two after from the city. Mr. Franklin's family were away from home during the day, and had not noticed the night. Nothing seemed was observed until the next morning. Then the team where had wandered around was found about 10 rods from the house on a back lot where a young orchard. Henry Hotz, who brought the report to the city, says that he saw the last where the poorest attack, not that the sort that was thrown down the bars by the old post behind where small fruit trees by the young orchard below. He did not make a very close investigation, but says that he is sure that it is a colt. Mr. Franklin says that he will begin to fill in some way manner of using it. Younger Hotz, a son of Mr. Mr. Lewis, who now the place where the horse died, and he made a close investigation. He says that the small thrown up by the body has a very small, and that it can pass the back so that the purpose intent distance from the bottom of the hole in which the animal fell to the top is at least 25 or 30 feet. He says that the horse had been pulled down to the top of the back by the hand of the lady, and that the bottom of the hole and the back above as all covered with snow the orchard was. The horse must be at least 12 feet across.

TRAVERSE CITY Herald: Hugh Jones is now a member of the committee of the proposed Traverse City & Lake Leelanau railroad, secretary Taylor has written to Hugh at the work starting agents of the road to secure the bonds of Leelanau township. The committee appointed the project is pending right of way to Northport by the end of the week. He has already received such by Todd on third of the distance to Northport. Mr. Taylor received yesterday from Chicago and with the committee of the new road, the outlook of which, he has been unable to use, he has secured the right of way between Suttons Bay and Omena. He has also secured deeds for several miles from Omena along the shore of Grand Lake. An enthusiastic meeting was held at Peshawbestown and the Indians have granted every right of land free of cost. After a few of certain, farm on, he says the under right of way through that region will be secured. The Indians are very enthusiastic. What before, the county have and Hughes will to begin the meeting. Mr. Taylor is getting cards signed so he goes along and is meeting with no be or no difficulty. He said so to Traverse City Friday and a meeting of the Farmers' club of that place will be held Saturday afternoon. An engineer will arrive from Grand Haven today and begin a line of the proposed Lake Leelanau. He will go from the entire length of the county and by the time Secretary Taylor has completed his work on the right of way he will be ready to begin the actual work. From present indications and the encouragement extended by Leelanau township, property owners, the prospects for an early beginning of active work on the line are very bright.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COUNTY.

It is very necessary that every grammar school pupil should have a rudimentary knowledge of accounts, business forms, and correspondence—both independent and dependent to the principal occupations. Many schools are unable to pursue the study of book-keeping, how ever, should the subject be a part of the course, it usually finds a place in the High School where the majority of graduate school pupils never enter.

In the penmanship classes, information such as is contained above can be imparted to the pupils by an illustrated Copy Book, Brilliant Copies Nos. 1, 2, and 3, which cost only a cent and a half apiece, but supply the required exercises for full engaging the student to use intelligently the business and social forms which come in the everyday affairs of life. These books can be sent with any series of written penmanship.

We wish every school boy and girl in our country owned a set of these copy books for practice.

At a meeting of the Michigan Association of the American Institutions for the advancement of Physical education held in Detroit, Dr. Hazzard, Inspector presented a paper in which he urged that physical training was not accomplishing for the school children what it had been expected to accomplish. What was needed was that there should be more of it, and not only more of it, but also more persons which should be real physicians, and teachers who should be able to play with their children and to teach them how to play. The wise of the schools was taken up very earnestly.

He would like to see the Teachers' Association take hold in some way every teacher and have from a union so strong that they would be masters of the situation. In this way they would be able to educate both the public and the patrons and in the doctor's estimation no one knows more so well as the teachers how to educate them.

He would like to see an organized rebellion against the school window tax.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die. Then, one night before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Further improvement followed, and she recovered rapidly. This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to stop Coughs, Throat, Chest and Lung diseases. Only 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. G. "I hope my countrymen will bear with me." Then when the members were all silent, he said the case was a little over my known at Finland, the nationality of which had been destroyed by Russia. A greater outrage had never been perpetrated, and, with the exception perhaps of Poland. The Czar had been set down on and Alsatians forgotten behind while all the world looked on and did nothing. Plans for Enumeration of Ancestors from Large Cities.

Gov. Merriam, director of the census, is preparing special plans for the enumeration of large cities and expects to be able to publish reports on the census of the cities of Chicago, New York and Brooklyn and for those cities alone and for their immediate vicinity in the months when the enumeration is made. He will appoint special agents to take charge of the work in the cities of New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia. Inquiries have been made concerning having every house in every street in those cities and the surrounding towns numbered and the census taken by the people who live in the houses. Gov. Merriam has not yet decided upon the method to be followed in the matter, saying that he is endeavoring to obtain the most accurate census of these cities that can be had.

Dr. Sheldon's Latest Move Is to Run a Christian Newspaper.

REV. CHARLES M. SHELDON.

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon of Topeka, Kan., is probably the most original and curious person in the religious world today. He first attracted attention by his novel, "In His Steps." When the news came to Topeka from Chicago that Sheldon was coming there to edit a newspaper for a week the people were in a state of excitement. The news was received in Topeka on Saturday morning, and that evening the Sunday evening services were given up by the ministers and people to a discussion of the Sheldon project. The Congregational church, of which Sheldon is a member, was crowded to the doors, and the question was discussed from every standpoint. Some were for having the church close its doors against the man who had caused them so much trouble, while others were for receiving him with open arms and welcoming him back to his pulpit. The church finally voted to receive him back if he should return, and he did return, and was received with open arms.

Sheldon's idea in taking the editorial chair was to make a newspaper that would be a Christian paper, and he succeeded. He made it a success financially, and it was a success morally. Every department was conducted on a Christian basis, and the paper was read with avidity by people who had never before read a newspaper. The circulation of the paper was increased by many thousands during the week Sheldon was at the helm, and the receipts were more than sufficient to pay the cost of the paper and leave a good margin of profit. Sheldon's week at the helm of the Topeka paper was a week of hard work, but he says it was the most interesting week of his life.

Sheldon's latest move is to run a Christian newspaper in Chicago, and he will do so if he can raise the money to pay the cost of the venture. He has been in Chicago for the past few days looking over the ground, and he says he has received encouraging letters from many people who have promised to help him financially. He has not been able to secure a place in which to publish the paper, but he says he will do so if he can raise the money to pay the cost of the venture. Bitten and Bore.

Chicago Times, Herald: Mrs. Lizzie Hayes Hammond, wife of the theatrical engineer associated with Cecil Rhodes, who was arrested at Johannesburg at the time of the Jameson raid, read a paper before the women of the Friday Club at the Newberry library yesterday afternoon, telling of her life in the Transvaal and describing the situation of the Outlanders prior to the war. Mrs. Hammond is a very entertaining speaker, and she succeeded in giving her listeners such a graphic account of a strange land that during the reception that followed the address she was overwhelmed with congratulations.

What Mrs. Hammond thinks about the Transvaal is clear from these words, which she cited at the end of her remarks in answering to the silver tongue.

"Even when I was told yesterday that you will agree that the Transvaal is not a little republic struggling for its independence, indeed you would admit that it has not a single attribute of a republic. The Boer government is a foreign, narrow, illiberal, stalking shade. It has been and then again broken all the promises it has made with Great Britain respecting its treatment of native races, as the numerous attempts to get the natives from which they were robbed by those outwitters, and by the violent oppression practiced upon them by the trekkboers. The more closely the history is studied, the more the light thrown upon the character of the government, the less apologetic is felt for the South African—needed for public."

Mrs. Hammond was in Johannesburg with her husband in 1895 and 1896. She said that the city is now well-built and has a population of 50,000. Into it it at that time Mrs. Hammond describes as a busy, gay place and as a man very formal. Balls had an in needs people who lived in "houses scattered over a wide district, with irregular streets and no name, numbers at all. "If such conveniences were said, it appeared to be a matter of boot shop were highly appreciated marks of recognition, and if a family had a servant with a birthmark on any other extremity about the place it was much noted; off as reasons were for finding it than other. Dances were the coachmen and servants manned on both little characteristics to aid in the memory."

As to our own household, Mrs. Hammond consulted it as could up as follows:

"Besides the family and a couple of dogs, cats and canary birds, there were 7 Dutch governess, an English servant, a Hottentot groom, a Malay coachman, a Kaffir gardener, a Malay laundress, two English maids, a French cook and a really sublime."

As business is the principal of the Outlanders in Johannesburg, she mentioned incidentally by telling how at the time of the explosion of dynamite at Fordsburg a fund of $10,000 was raised by the outlanders within a single hour for the relief of the sufferers, most of whom were Hollanders, Hottentots and Irishmen.

A clear and interesting description was given by Mrs. Hammond of the character of the Boers, and she recounted the history of the Jameson raid, mentioning the times they had broken faith with England in one cause or another. Speaking of the government of the Outlanders just before the Jameson raid, she said:

"The Outlanders were exposed to insult and the contrary. Their trains and industry and money destroyed a multitude country taxes, the greatest mining centre of the world. Imposed four times of the taxes and in one were not allowed the right protecting their names or homes. The Boer midnight carry firearms. Gold was illegal for an Outlander to do. Free speech was decided to the Outlander, and at the pleasure of the president of the Transvaal he could be put over the border and his property confiscated without any right on his part to appeal to a court of justice. Any public gathering of the Outlanders could be suppressed at the discretion of the Boer police. They were denied a trial by their peers in the law courts, only burghers being eligible for jury duty.

"The Outlanders money was used in keeping up schools in which Dutch was the sole language taught. This was particularly hard upon the laboring class of the community. They forced to pay the greater part of the taxes for the support of the schools where their children could not be taught their mother tongue was on the face of it an outrageous injustice.

"And here let me say that Johannesburg was looked upon as a home, and a permanent home, by many thousands of its inhabitants. Those who succeeded in making a fortune in a few years and going back to other countries to live were comparatively few. The bulk of the population were permanent settlers. There was every inducement to a substantial climate and wide business opportunities for homemaking men to select Johannesburg for an abiding place.

"The reason for the grievance the water supply was inadequate and bad in quality. It was in the hands of a government monopoly. The mines were at an unnecessary expenditure entirely undiminished. The death rates was greatly increased by this fact. The liquor law was lax enforcement, and the natives, made drunk, were often discontent."

Despite all these grievances the outlanders did not want Jameson's raiders to succeed. Mrs. Hammond said the Transvaal took pains to shield from the cold did show both Boer and British alike could have done to the cause of movement, of which her husband was one of the main leaders.

"The early day said, "was as dull worse than folly. It was a hopeless business rushed into the country in consequence to the orders of the Johannesburg committee. That committee was composed of Englishmen, Irishmen, Scotchmen—the leading men in the land. They were gathering arms and had not completed their system when the Boers came. Jameson's premature action put the entire committee wrong in the eyes of the whole world. It made it appear as if Jameson were trying to save the country for their friends against the attempt to overthrow the Boer government. Jameson's action was the main cause of preventing a normal growth of the country and led to a war which made the changing of the flag of the country."

When the members of the Jameson party were in prison Phillips, Lionel Phillips, the leader at Johannesburg, received the following letter from Rhodes:

"I thought they had pretty of sense. The idea that the high commissioner would interfere in the matter never entered my head. I am sorry for you. I am sorry for my own sake. I am sorry for the cause. I am sorry for the Queen. I am sorry for the Queen's government. I am sorry for the Queen's government. I am sorry for the Queen's government

Rev. "Billy" McLennan's Church Destroyed by Fire.

The Chicago Times-Herald gives the following particulars of the destruction of Trinity M. E. church in that city on Thursday morning. The pastor of Trinity is Rev. W. F. McLennan, who was in Charlevoix last year and was converted and exited to the ministry here.

"Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, one of the most beautiful houses of divine worship in Chicago, was destroyed by fire last night. Nothing is left but the blackened walls. The loss is more than $100,000.

"Situated in Indiana avenue, near Twenty-fourth street, in the midst of many fine church edifices, Trinity has been the pride of Chicago Methodism for the last quarter of a century. Incidental with the fire which has night consumed the edifice, the pastor and about twenty-five members were in the church discussing plans for the celebration next month of its silver jubilee.

"The flames were discovered a few minutes before 9 o'clock in the organ loft. The instrument, one of the best of the grandest in the city, cost over $12,000, was ablaze before an alarm could be given. Smoke filled the auditorium before the pastor, William H. McLennan, caught the street. Tears were rendered the audiences as he spoke of the Pilgrim stranger through the main door with tears of hope.

"The flames made short work of the magnificent organ and rear part of the building, and then assaulted the roof. Fine tapestries were sent ablaze from the beams which dropped from the roof, and soon the roof and the whole interior was a mass of flames.

"The black walnut pews gave way to the roaring furnace and the sounding wheel library case added fuel to the flames.

"Standing ankle deep in the snow in front of the burning edifice, the pastor and half a hundred members of the church stood, as been the tears as they saw the top gain in headway. Sixty prayers were offered up as the flames roared, but prayers were of no avail.

"I am not able to say positively whether the church will be rebuilt or not," said Rev. Mr. McLennan, "but I suppose it will be. The matter will have to be decided by the members, and I will call a meeting for that purpose as soon as possible. I know the work has been done in the name of God Trinity, and I feel almost certain that it will be rebuilded. I have no idea that the share the exact amount of insurance carried on the church, but I think it is in about the whole. The building, I understand, cost nearly $100,000 exclusive of the organ.

"Trinity Methodist church was not only a business structure, but it has been a church in the fullest sense of the word. Its doors have been open to the roaring furnace and the sounding wheel library case added fuel to the flames.

"Standing ankle deep in the snow in front of the burning edifice, the pastor and half a hundred members of the church stood, as been the tears as they saw the top gain in headway. Sixty prayers were offered up as the flames roared, but prayers were of no avail.

CHAPTER XI.

The station at Sutton stood perched on above the village on a high embankment. Up at the station it was always draughty and exposed, and Verbena was very cold indeed, when she was in before the first midnight in May it is not only cold and draughty, but it is also wet and foggy. A cream white night-dress and dressing-gown, and slippers to match, looks about as the opposite of the proper clothing for such a night, and Verbena felt a glorious sense of well-being and comfort in her warm flannels and her fur-lined dressing-gown, as she sat down in front of the fire in her bedroom, and drew her slippered feet close to the fender, and stretched her hands to the blaze.

Her bedroom faced the Sussex Downs, and Verbena, through her window, could see the lights of Brighton, far away to the south-east, twinkling like a fairy city in the distance. Her own lonely, strange circumstances, and her present misery, the shock of unfriendliness which had of late unpleasantly coupled her name with a true gentleman and talented lady, even in that city, which never thinks of anyone or cares for anything outside its own self-constituted circle, all these things had combined to make her very miserable indeed.

Just at first there had been a gleam of joy upon her, that of meeting Mr. Arlington, or his brother, but London is a large place and you may go out for days together without seeing a single face you know, unless you contrive to make yourself known to people who are certain to be interested or the reverse, you desire an interview with a person who is certain to make the regret to glance contemptuously and coldly at you, and turn her back upon you, and leave you to stand by yourself and look after her, with a sinking sensation in your heart, and a fresh pang occasioned at a distant period. She knew now either of them, and yet the name of Arlington ever stirred up her heart-strings.

She took herself sternly over to the arm-chair, and sat down in the fire, with a little fan of substitute about her, and sighed, and nodded, frowned, and looked, and nodded seriously. Time and the world, and the people in it, had not changed, and she was a sweet flower out there, in a cruel, hard world, which knew no mercy, and was ever ready to trample on the weak and the helpless.

Without her, with her hand on her heart, she was a lonely, helpless girl, with no friend in the world, and no one to care for her, or to care for her, or to care for her, or

It begins to look as if Justus S. Stearns had a clinch on the gubernatorial nomination. It was plainly demonstrated at the Michigan Club banquet that R. M. Perry's case is hopeless, and good politicians assert that the big seed man's withdrawal may be looked for soon. Mile II, Crapshot is away down at the foot of the list, O'Donnell has fallen by the wayside. It has now narrowed down to a contest between Stearns, Osborn and Sims, with Stearns leading.

Our attention is kept very busy at present in calling attention to the fact that the Democratic party is going to have its hopeful words to say about April 1, and the special issue published in its campaign the typical Democratic thirteen will be ready to be put of its same time and the speaker promises to be in full blast to counter the opposite.

I have no further desire for Senator Platt preferment," said governor Hagadorn on very good authority, "I am a Republican and not the Michigan Republican of September 1, 1891. If the good party prefers to adopt a policy of intolerance will manifest power for him, and I for well expect it to the extent of contributing to the adoption of his preferment, he will win the gratitude of the party. Except I am, Yours truly, Cyrus G. Luce." Which proves a clinch.

Could there be a more perfect analogy of the working of the Monroe doctrine, so that discrime is interpreted by the opponents of the Monroe doctrine, the condition is that the European nations shall carry into an agreement not to interfere in the affairs of Americans affair of the nationals-ized. This goes far beyond anything there is in the Monroe doctrine, which at most amounts to a mere assertion or protest that they shall not interfere. That advice to join in an instrument which says that they will agree to respect and obey our decisions, will keep our hands free from all the usual and let us manage and protect it ourselves.

A special from Washington to the Detroit News Tribune says:

Representative Stephens of Texas, who is the ranking member of the House committee on ways and means, and who is a member of the committee on appropriations, is a very hard worker. He is a man of great ability and is a very good lawyer. He is a man of great ability and is a very good lawyer. He is a man of great ability and is a very good lawyer

Our attention is kept faith with Cuba according to the terms made by ourselves washington and the Cubans by the appointment of Don Wood to be governor of the island, and Secretary Root's statement that there will be this spring a heavy reduction in the military force there is further confirmation of our sincerity. The administration seems to think that the Cubans are making progress and that we are ready any time to act and that they are when the fact is apparent.

The Detroit Free Press of Tuesday says a Republican member of the legislature who was in our metropolis yesterday informed the Lansing Republican that it seemed to have it straight that another special session of the legislature was to be called sometime in April. The state tax commission expects to have its report ready to present by April 1, and the special session is to be called to consider the report.

• • •

It looks as if our desire for further public preferment, said governor Pingree to his city friends at his reception on his welcome to the Michigan club Saturday night. If the good men generally adhere to the policy he lays down will insure peace for him and, if he will expand it to the state, he will be the greatest governor the Republican party ever had. What pity is that?

Could there be a more perfect example of the working of the Monroe doctrine as that doctrine is interpreted by the Spanish-American jingoes? The convention is that the European nations shall enter into an express agreement not to interfere in the exclusively American affair of the Spanish-American war. This goes far beyond anything there is in the Monroe doctrine, which at most amounts to a declaration on our part that they shall not colonize. There is a republican majority in the house now that would be expected to vote down a resolution to the effect that the European nations shall enter into an express agreement not to interfere in the war between Spain and her colonies. Such a resolution will not be made suddenly but will be agreed upon in preparation for the development of civil control in Cuba. Secretary Root does not consider that it will be necessary to wait for the completion of the census tabulation before having the municipal elections in Cuba and it is evidence that Governor Wood will direct the holding of these elections early in May.

Contract routes have been taken by the Army and Navy Department of the Young Men's Christian Association in Havana from which they are able to keep in close touch with all points outside of the city and closely monitor the work. In the Cuban district there are six reading rooms open, fully supplied with writing material, games, etc. Spanish times are combined. Well attended Gospel meetings are held. At Quemados the work is for the center of attraction all souls on visiting the town. Often as many as a hundred and fifty men are in the rooms at one time. Bibles and tracts in English, geography, arithmetic, penmanship, history, etc., in English and Spanish are well attended. As many as a hundred and thirty soldiers have attended the Gospel meetings at one time. At San Cristobal there are comfortable rooms, centrally located, are open, with reading stand, games, stationery, etc., and a well selected circulating library, which is much appreciated by the soldiers and sailors. A well appointed library is open day and evening, and is largely patronized. A separate room is open for Gospel meetings, which are well attended. A supervisor is assigned to the troops at Guanajay, and is also in different parts of the island, and to vessels in the harbor are visited and reading matter, stationery, etc., are distributed.

In plain words, Mr. Pettigrew, Dakota's ex-senator of you, enhanced that a man so devoid of patriotism should accept a recent bar sentiment and stale humbug, published since the laws, usually acting repugnant to the right feel toward Judas, the patriots at Yorktown for Benedict Arnold.

And when you speak, sir, of the sturdy boys from South Dakota who lost their lives, conscripted into an unwilling service, you simply utter a lie. I have letters from many of the boys, written from San Francisco, when their only fear was lest they be left behind; letters from Manila, which the insurrection instigated by domestic traitors was imminent; letters written from the firing line at Marikor, at Malolos, at Quingua Bridge, at Guisiguil, at Tarlac, at Pampanga; letter telling of other letters written to men in the trenches by a sergeant of the United States who could scarcely keep enough to write twenty and cannot remember the name; letters from sick and wounded men, whose dying thoughts were of their homes, their mothers, their sweethearts, their wives, their children; letters from the hospitals filled with the expression of the popularity of the university. In the Cuban district there are six reading rooms open, fully supplied with writing material, games, etc. Spanish times are combined. Well attended Gospel meetings are held. At Quemados the work is for the center of attraction all souls are visiting the town. Often as many as a hundred and fifty men are in the rooms at one time. Bibles and tracts in English, geography, arithmetic, penmanship, history, etc., in English and Spanish are well attended. As many as a hundred and thirty soldiers have attended the Gospel meetings at one time. At San Cristobal there are comfortable rooms, centrally located, are open, with reading stand, games, stationery, etc., and a well selected circulating library, which is much appreciated by the soldiers and sailors. A well appointed library is open day and evening, and is largely patronized. A separate room is open for Gospel meetings, which are well attended. A supervisor is assigned of the troops at Guanajay, and is also in different parts of the island, and to vessels in the harbor are visited and reading matter, stationery, etc., are distributed.

DECEIVED THE BRITISHERS.

How a Woman Thus Gave Wellington Information.

Was Made to Run to Irish Rebels.

The history of Hon. Elizabeth Harriet Grieve, who flourished in England in 1793-14, illustrates a favorite method of which the old time Britishers endeavored to secure army places for their sons, or at least one was Ensign in Lord North second cousin to the Duke of Grafton, usually known as Lord Guilford and personal friend of Lord Guilford and Charles James Fox, drove about London in a hackney hansom, with footmen, her chaperon, a stout dame, and her son, a boy of 16, who, in return for her large sums of money, in return for which she produced them places. One was to be a clerk in the victualling office, one was to be a water water, one was to be open in the admiralty, one was to be a "settled tideman," another was to have anything that happened to be going. Charles Fox asked sometimes as appealing his belief to the lady's powers and position, because to Tuesday drove to her lodgings, and left his carriage outside for all the world to see. The footmen was her friendship, but therein he too, received promises. He was at the minister's meetings. He also promoted him a West Indian fortune, with $100,000. He called daily in the office after his interest with all the departments of victualling and the admiralty. Mrs. Grieve's children were in Ireland, and her mother was a Irish lady, who was married to a Irish officer, who was in the service of the Irish rebels. Her children were under this penalties, whether for their mother, to be sent with at other time, a fine for students are taken with cards of criminal, the many are in jail.

A New Patent Fire Shield.

The firm of Cammell & Co. the well-known manufacturers of shields, have made a better proof shield, which is lighter and stronger than seven pounds, and affords complete protection to the soldier against the serious risks at all points, except the shield is attached. In the office for a special patch. It can be detached as quickly as carrying a bayonet. It is hinged on the corners, so the use of this steel, though big operations will be largely confined to fixed engagements, and a great deal of work will be often rendered unnecessary.

Harm from an Open Fireplace.

Physicians are discovering that the old time open fire had much to do with the health of our grandmothers and their stout feet and fingers. Are responsible for many ailments. Scientist expressing it as a way of gradually increasing so that anyone who is used to a close-heated room becomes an easy victim to colds and all the long string of ailments to which a cold is the introduction. An open fire is a sort of inspiration in itself, and stands drawn in the out-door air, and through all the cracks and crannies it helps to purify the air in the room while it heats it.

CHILDREN WHO WORK.

Increase in the Number in This Country.

Between 1870 and 1880 the amount of child labor in this country decidedly increased. In 1870 children, between 10 and 15 years old, 729,000 were wage-earners. In 1880, out of 5,619,000 children of these ages 1,118,356 were wage-earners. The last census changed the classification of children. Upon arriving at the census comparisons are impossible. It reported that 2,652,000 children between 10 and 15 years old but 402,000 were at work. Upon the strength of this report Commissioner Wright claims that a great gain has been made, says the Chautauquan. The fact is, however, that it is precisely the age at which children are there to leave the grammar schools and go to work. The employment of children in the textile industries, in factories, shops and mines demands serious national attention. In the mining regions of Pennsylvania boys of 12 are taken out of school and put to work for ten hours a day at breaker, picking slate from coal, and in the cotton, wool and silk are taken from school before they are 10 and set to work for twelve hours a day in cotton mills that are being scattered over the country. The statement often made that child labor displaces grown men is not usually a valid one. It is true that in cotton factories where hardly any man ever of is at work, and the little children are in factories, while he "mows" the lands, the children are taken from the fields the lingers of the father are no longer available, and there is rarely employment in the factories for the mother. Nothing is so fatal to the home as the labor of the children. Nothing is so fatal to the labor of a factory worker's children as to have his place taken by them. Nothing is so fatal to the home as the labor of children on the farm keeps the farmer from working. Wages the children earn cannot be spared without injury to the labor of some one else. This labor, therefore, is not the entertainment to the employment of parents, but displacement of them. As a rule, its wages affect only the labor of children, but lessen the number of those seeking jobs without taking the place of anybody. Giving them and their slightly reduced the level of wages. These unfavorable conditions, however, are of minor importance. The great evil upon which child labor is to be prohibited is and the child employed in the production of goods for sale in interstate commerce. Such a law would be the right of congress to enact. It is for congress to make such a law. It is for congress to make such a law. It is for congress to make such a law

Robt. White's house near Ellsworth, burned one day last week, most of the contents being saved.

The Traverse Bay Eagle is authority for the statement that Senator Millken's name will probably be brought before the Republican district convention as a candidate for Congress.

The Elk Rapids Progress says that the bulk of the $50,000 worth of stock which was assigned to Elk Rapids by the promoters of the new Portland Cement Company, has been taken, which practically assures the location of that new industry.

Traverse City Record: Grand Traverse Bay was frozen over beyond the island yesterday for the first time this this winter. Last year the bay was frozen over on the 1st of February and went out on the 14th day of April having been covered with ice 72 days.

Harbor Springs Graphic: Last Sunday afternoon a yearling deer came into the door yard of Mr. A. L. Hathaway, living about five miles east of town. It had evidently been chased until tired out because it could scarcely get along through the soft snow that had drifted considerably. It went across the field and was so tired out that it stopped to rest several times before entering the woods about 1 hundred rods away.

The Elk Rapids Progress this week announces the organization at Elk Rapids of a cement company, which will utilize the marl beds at Dellbridge. The capitalization is for $600,000, and the company is officered as follows: President, O. F. Jordan, Lansing, vice pres., L. H. Williams, Elk Rapids, sec., and treas., F. B. Moore, Elk Rapids. The directors consist of S. B. Collins, O. F. Jordan, F. A. Wilson, Jackson; Schuyler S. Olds, Lansing; M. B. Lewis, F. B. Wickens and F. B. Moore, Elk Rapids. Fifty thousand dollars of the stock was assigned to Elk Rapids and it was subscribed in Elk Rapids' days. An engineer is nothing now the grounds preparatory to the location of the works.

Traverse City Record: Now comes a proposition from Leland to build an electric line between that place and Frankfort to connect with the Traverse City & Leelanau railroad. This is not a bad proposition and will be one of the best ways for Leland people to get to a place to adequate and there are many advantages to be gained by such a line. Whether the conditions would warrant such a project at this time is a matter of opinion, but in time, as the Traverse City and Northport line develops the territory and its resources, such an enterprise would be worthy of consideration. Leland has much to recommend it and with a railroad touching that point its future would be bright, besides, such a railway would have much to do in keeping the county seat there. The Leland people know a good thing when they see it and they are getting to the front with considerable energy. They realize what the spirit of progress means and are awake to the situation.

Bellaire Independent: The number of injuries in the lumber woods this winter is greater than for many years. One reason is that the lightness of sleighing and the scarcity of the weather has made it uncertain; whether the snow would last from week to week, and in the feverish eagerness to get as much done as possible the men take chances that they would not under other circumstances and many times get caught. Another important reason is that the woods are filled with a large class of men who have had little or no experience in this kind of work heretofore. The wages are larger than usual and this has attracted many men from the south who have never worked in the woods before. Through their lack of knowledge and experience they have been the victims of many accidents that old woodsmen would have escaped.

Traverse City Record: D. N. Pierce of Leland, has returned from Chicago, where he went a few days ago to interest capitalists in the electric railway project which contemplates a line from Leland to Provencott in the event of the success of the enterprise for a steam railway from this city to Northport, which is practically assured. When he returned Mr. Pierce had in his pocket a check for a considerable amount representing the purchase price of an interest in the Leland water power which is designed to supply the current for the proposed electric line. The check was given by H. F. Newnall & Son, prominent Milwaukee merchants in Chicago, who own 14,000 acres of land in North Manitou Island, which looks only 4,000 acres of being the whole island. Mr. Pierce states that if the steam railway is built to Provencott the electric line is a sure thing and the Chicago people have interested in the water power for the purpose of building the line. They also propose to build the electric line complete and have given positive assurances to that effect. The Newnall's are large resort owners, and among their other properties is Glenco, the popular resort near Chicago. They have money to put into a project which will benefit their North Manitou resort property and they recognize the value of a railway from Leland to connect with a boat line from the island. The Goodrich line of steamers has closed arrangements for a daily boat from Muskegon to Mackinac, connecting with the Chicago boat at Muskegon. The contract has been let to Sons of Hose, of Charlevoix, for a pier at the North Manitou resort; to cost $4,000, and work will be commenced as soon as practicable. A pier will also be built at Leland to enable the landing of large steamers at that point, and the Le Blond saw mill is being put into shape to cut the timber. Should the project for an electric line materialize, which appears quite probable now, boats will connect with Leland daily during the summer, with convenient direct to Chicago Mackinac and Mississippi region. This proposition will serve to develop the valuable resort adventages at Leland, and Mr. Pierce has that idea in view as well as the interests of the village of Leland.

Republican Village Caucus.

A caucus of the Republican electors of the Village of Charlevoix will be held Monday, March 5th, at 7:30 p.m., at No. 113 Mason street, (John Bell building), for the purpose of nominating candidates for the several Village officers, to be voted for at the village election to be held March 12th, 1900, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before said caucus.

The Flight of Empress Eugenie.

The true story of the flight of the Empress Eugenie from the Tuileries will soon be published. It is now in the form of a manuscript left by Dr. C. W. Evans, the American dentist, who accompanied the Empress in her flight to England. Dr. Evans, who aided Dr. Evans in protecting Eugenie and accompanying her flight, says he will publish a detailed account of the affair, publishing this contribution to French history. The reason why it was not published during Dr. Evans' lifetime is because it deals hard blows at those who deserted the Empress in her hour of trial. Now that most of the chief actors in the drama of 1870 have passed away, the revenge an Empress has expressed the wish that the story be told in manuscript—be published.

Old German Wash Lists.

The old German housewife had a strange way of keeping track of the clothes she sent out to be washed. I was running into town in a pastoral and picturesque wagon last Thursday to possibility of making sure no error is to mistake the abbreviation Dz. for dozen or Zt. for sweetbiscuit. She had pictures of each article and simply wrote down the number of each thing opposite its picture with a piece of chalk which was erased when the thing was returned and used again on the following week.—Timothy Sandys.

Not Half Tolerable.

Nearly 50 per cent of the people of France and Germany are engaged in farming pursuits.

Buffaloes in Australia.

Buffaloes and elephants are by no means approaching extinction as rapidly as is commonly supposed. Immense herds of buffaloes roam about the vast northern plains of Australia, and bloodthirsty blacks are also numerous in that region, and buffalo-hunters carry their lives in their hands. Also, according to the latest number of the African North Borneo, there large numbers of elephants occupy the jungles to the south of Sabitan bay. It is suggested that 1900 could be turned into a valuable asset by the mining if decay animals were imported from India and the natives were taught how to construct "howdahs," or trapping enclosures.

Salvage for Women's Work.

New York is the city in which an exchange for women's work has succeeded. The annual report of the exchange for the last year shows that the weekly sales averaged $150. The exchange receives many fields of effort and occupies a number of departments and undertakes by movements of this kind elsewhere, among them an advertising department, which means an exchange catalogue.

Scientific Accident.

The rubbish mound which a Berlin firm has been sending out in a the vicinity intended to serve as a pocket lamp and stove, is reported to result essentially in the production of a pint of soap and 14 of water. A similar product is usually made by dissolving scraped tallow soap in warm alcohol.

—The administrator's sale of the Gilchrist coal chute property, resulted in the sale of 20 feet south of the station property, to G. E. Wilson for $75.

—The government has secured an option on the steamer C. W. Moore of the Hart line. If purchased the boat will be used in the lighthouse supply service.

—Priest, the photographer, was called upon to photograph the remains of logs and cribs at Nash's camp Saturday, which remained in some very fine pictures.

—Messinger started business March 1st with a balance of $2,848.52 to the state credit. This has been overall but once in twenty years and then by only a few thousand dollars.

—Speaking of big taxes, a heavy loaded farmer remarked: "I pretty near made ends meet, I can read, my pay check to buy my taxes with." —George Heath and Chas. Ferguson have formed a co-partnership for the handling of new and second hand furniture and household goods. The business will be continued in the Arnes block, where Mr. Heath has already established the business.

—Miss Eaton is another life long dreamer who is disgusted with democratic inebriatism, and leaves Saginaw. Mr. Eaton has no sympathy with the destructive policy of the democracy, believes in expansion, and will vote and work with republicans hereafter.

—A few sheets rolled out the department Friday morning of the fire. It was a comic edition on the memory road before, big enough for a journal and occupied by a female named Hayes. The roof was burned off and the house practically ruined. Loss about $800. No insurance.

—The meetings of the Life Boat Mission are well attended. The Bible studies are very interesting and instructive. There will be a gospel temperance meeting held at the usual Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. It is hoped that all the friends of temperance will be present. Bill board of Chalfine, is expected to assist in this service. Good music, all welcome.

—Under instruct Weather returned from Detroit Monday, after telling Chas. Watts to the house of correction for 90 days. Mr. Watts was a tramp, and was locked up. The morning he was released he got sent and presented the window in the office of the register of deeds, to make quite a display of his ability as a pugilist before he will have another chance to assault things.

—Auditor General Dix has issued a circular to the press calling attention to the fact that lands which are delinquent for the taxes of 1896 were sold for the taxes of 1897, and that the same may be redeemed from sale to the auditor general's office within 60 days. Unless these taxes are paid on or before that date, settlement must then be made with the land office department, which is authorized by law to charge double the amount of the taxes, together with $5.00 additional upon each description of land. Prompt payment of these taxes will save trouble and expense. Lands delinquent on the taxes of 1897 will be sold next May, and the payment before that time will save additional interest charges.

The Coming Sap Season.

Observations result in educating. Nature offers many opportunities to learn of her ways and methods, but being unobserving we let them pass unheeded. Nature often throws out her signs in advance, indicative of changes and events soon to take place. By observing the changes that follow we soon find a law by which we are enabled to foresee coming events, and thus be prepared for them.

For instance instead of the forest, by noticing that a good sap season usually follows the piping of maple borers in the fall, because able to tell the action of the sap season to follow.

This is one very good sign, though there are several more that perhaps are more reliable. Generally we have a poor season with fly weed leaves, as when we have a very cold winter, with few thaws and sudden changes, so that the trees are not down in pressure and suction. Such winters will give us fine goods, but they will be deficient in quantity. It is noticed that when our maples are very sandy a poor sap season follows and the reason is obvious, seed production is exhaustive, and so, necessarily, the season (time) which our sugar crones is deficient in quantity and quality.

When a tree ripens its wood, leaves and starch the quality of its goods is secured and if an open winter follows, with sudden changes of temperature to extremes, so as to break down the granules of starch then the quantity of goods is secured. With these conditions secured we take a fine class sap season, and the sap will start sound in the spring.

The present winter has been very changeable in this locality as regards the sudden rise and fall of the thermometer, hence the trees have been in pressure and suction to a great extent. Following the signs, then, the outlook for the coming sap season are very flattering as regards the quantity while the quality will not be first-class.

What's Your Face Worth?

Sometimes a fortune, but never, if you have a sallow complexion, a pimply dead look, moth patches and blotches on the skin—all signs of liver trouble. But Dr. King's New Life Pills give clear skin, rosy cheeks, 25c. Only 25 cents at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

Hearings From Hayes.

Charles Burns and family, of Cross Village, have been visiting Frank Sarathe.

Dan Marsac and the Lewis boys are delivering some elm logs at Bayshore for Cram, Whitford & Sons, that almost equal the famous Mariposa red-woods.

Dr. H. S. Lacy, a former resident of Hayes and father of Mrs. Gen. C. Pierce, died at Battle Creek Feb. 19th. He was interred in Greenwood cemetery, Petoskey.

One of the commissioners of the State Live Stock Sanitary Commission visited G. W. Van Schoick last week to investigate the disease he has been so fatal to his cattle. The cattle were dead when he arrived but from descriptions of the disease given by Mr. Van Schoick, he pronounced it tuberculosis.

Everybody knows Leon O tash-quabon-no, who lives near Ironton. Leon formerly owned a fine home stead in Hayes, and will move back to Bayshore. He enlisted with several other Indians from Harbor Springs in the Civil war and was a member of the First Michigan Sharpshooters. Leon says he captured Petersburgh himself. His regiment had reached the outworks, and he was detailed to do some chopping. On coming near the intrenchments Leon gave a war whoop and frightened the rebels. They were so astonished at his coming at them with an axe they surrendered; but he adds that his regiment was right behind him.

A Friends Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier, of Cheroker, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. Trouble, pertrbes the kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he arises he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

Vera followed the direction of their eyes. Sir John was walking slowly up the terrace; he was thin and emaciated, he looked aged beyond all belief. He walked slowly, as though it were an effort to him, with his eyes upon the ground. He had not seen her yet; in the other minute he would be within a couple of yards of her.

A sort of despair seized her. How was she to meet him—the man whom she had so cruelly injured? She could not greet him, she felt that it was an impossibility. Like an hypnotized bird that seeks to escape, she caused about instinctively some side to side. Where could she hide—could she frame? In other directions could she fly to avoid the meeting of the seventh that would bring pain to the heart? Suddenly Vera Wing flashed into her mind.

Miss Nevill, who gave a lackadaisical exactly like the one that wielded, came quickly, and we shall soon be up. He was away down here.

She sprang up—a moment after Jane, a pink flushing away from the opposite flow, turned to see what was the matter, paused at the back, opened our instead, only behind her she—

WHEN HE WANTED TO GO HOME

Henry Mauleon His Wife as an Opportune Time.

"You will doubtless remember the famous 'outlaw' fight," said R. K. Jenkins of Cheyenne. "The prominence of the men involved caused it at the time to create a sensation. The 'rustlers,' as they were called, were a band of cattle-thieves who made their headquarters in Jackson's Hole. Some ranchers who had suffered at their hands, determined, if possible, to recapture their stolen cattle, and to find and organized an expedition. The story of how the rustlers escaped is well known, and how the latter were finally arrested, after a fight of several days, and spent some months in jail in Cheyenne, is all matter and oft-told history now. But I heard a story in connection with the fight the other day that struck me as rather amusing. It seems that a young Englishman was visiting one of the ranches, but he had declined to take part in the expedition on the ground that he had no stake in the game. He was persuaded, however, and finally went along, but with the distinct understanding that if he wanted to return home he was to be allowed to do so. When the party was driven to take refuge in the cabin in Jackson's Hole, they managed to construct an outpost, which would hold two of their number, some yards in front of their cabin. After the fight was on, the young Englishman became the life of the party. He had a bandy hat was the possessor of a good tenor voice. When matters looked most desperate he would hop to it with his banjo and his songs until cheerfulness was restored. He was a good shot and made himself invaluable in many ways. Period, however, when he and his friends were occupying the outpost he turned to his companion with 'You remember our agreement and that I was to be allowed to return home whenever I wanted to?' You answered the regretted friend, of course, I do.' 'Then, I'm off.' Well, resumed the young Englishman, with a cheerful grin, as he ducked his head as a whizz puff or shoots indicated that a shot was coming in his direction. Well, if it's all the same to you chaps, I want to go home now.'—Omaha Bee.

SIR MOON'S LONG LIFE.

Not Due to Regular Hours, Meals, Sleep or Temperance.

The late Sir R. Moon was one of the observant men to whom a year or two back we addressed a series of queries on points as to any personal hints or other causes that might have contributed to longevity, says the London Telegraph. The late railway magnate answered our queries were curiously negative and at the same time quite so curiously suggestive of the man of the single purpose in life. We asked twelve questions. Sir Richard Moon answered one of the them by a simple "no." He had no fixed hours for meals or recreation, no particular diet, no personal habits likely to affect health, had no "hobby" or form of exercise, the nearest to make an statement as to anything that might account for his attaining great age was and did not believe that heredity had anything to do with the matter. He could not say even that he had any regular time for sleep, though when it was possible he was most regular in his time of going to bed and getting up. But the amount of sleep he required, he said, varied a good deal with his work. As to hobbies, Sir Richard Moon's were few, he said, and occasional, and what he did get were just from boredom, which probably meant that when he was not inspecting his own railway he was looking up some from somewhat shady. He never smoked, and though he was not a teetotaler, his own rule of life seems to have been moderation in all things—except in work and devotion to the London & Northwestern, and then, by all accounts, he was usually rather immoderate. In short, he was a railway man totally absorbed in his work and all his habits, whether they tended to long life or short, were subservient to his railway engagements.

When the cord snapped, she lost the power to control it a movement of the head. It was a necessary for her to lean both backwards and forwards as it had fallen backward. Later it fell over sideways and it was necessary for Mrs. Dunbar to rest with her hands. After a time the head had been set in proper place by the attending physician, there, was a numbness and feeling of lightness which became oblivious to the entire me.—Omaha special to New York World.

Use Preserved from Rust.

The natives of Natal lately noticed, in gathering a certain kind of rubber plant (indiarubbicus) used for medicinal purposes that knives used in cutting the plants were impervious to rust. The knives were covered with a thin tenacious coating which protected them against oxidation. The discoverer took the matter in hand and found that iron and steel coated with this substance and immersed in sea water for two years showed no signs of rust. It was also discovered that this material possesses wonderful preservative qualities, which are one of the worst enemies of civilization in the tropics.

Preserving Telegraph Poles.

A new method of preserving telegraph poles is to surround the portion in the ground with an earthenware pipe like a drain pipe. Into this space between the pole and the pipe is poured a mixture of lime and resin.

NEW DIVORCE RULE.

MICHIGAN JUDGE MAKES AN IMPORTANT DECISION

Defines Meaning of Desertion and Holds that Living Apart is Not Valid Ground for a Decree Showing Fault—a Bad Decision.

Judge Judge Wm. L. Carpenter, with a view to a clearer interpretation of the divorce law, has handed down an opinion which will be a guide to the people of this state in the matter of divorce. The opinion is in the form of a decree in the case of Mary Ann Ward against her husband, Charles Ward, who was granted a divorce on the ground of desertion. The decree is in the form of a bill of complaint, and the court finds that the complainant and defendant were married in Detroit, Mich., on Dec. 1, 1886, and that they lived together as husband and wife at Detroit and elsewhere in this state until about the first of April, 1896, when the defendant left the complainant and has ever since wilfully and maliciously deserted and abandoned her without any cause or provocation on her part, and that the defendant has not contributed to her support since he left her, and has not been a fit husband for her since the time of his desertion, and that he has not been a fit husband for her for more than two years next before the filing of her bill of complaint herein, and that he is now living in the city of Detroit, Wayne county, Michigan, and that the residence of the complainant for more than two years next before the filing of her bill of complaint herein has been in the city of Detroit, Wayne county, Michigan, and that the cause of complaint arose in said county of Wayne. The court finds that the allegations of the bill of complaint are true, and that the complainant is entitled to a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony heretofore existing between her and the defendant, on the ground of his wilful desertion of her for more than two years next before the filing of her bill of complaint herein. The court finds that the defendant is a person of sound mind and memory, and of the age of twenty-one years, and that the complainant is a person of the age of twenty-one years, and that the defendant is not in the military service of the United States, nor in any other state, territory or district of the United States, nor in any foreign country or province, and that the defendant is not a minor, nor an idiot, nor a lunatic, nor a person under guardianship, and that the complainant is not a party to any collusion or fraud in the premises, and that the defendant has not been married since the commencement of this suit. The court finds that the complainant is entitled to a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony heretofore existing between her and the defendant, on the ground of his wilful desertion of her for more than two years next before the filing of her bill of complaint herein —Information comes last week of the sudden death at Harbor Springs of James A. Kent, formerly of Charlevoix. Deceased was a pioneer of this township, serving for several years as supervisor. Born in the Province of Ontario two terms. He moved here and was admitted to the bar in this county, practicing several years at East Jordan. About eight years ago he with Frank E. Bogue went west. The remains arrived at East Jordan for interment, this week.

—Mr. Lewis has received a letter from the manager of Wm. Owen asking for open house dates in August. The people will remember Mr. Owen, who, the evening he played here, shaken exponent repartee from a few years ago. Mr. Owen is one of the leading Shakespeare actors in this country, and he is supported by a very superior company. We earnestly hope Mr. Owen may come and that he will be better appreciated than he was when he was here before.

—Capt. Stephen J. McVean of the Grand Rapids district, and Chas. Hughes of the Marine department, Fire Marine service system, have tendered their resignations, and that of Brown has already been accepted. —The Lewis opera house will open Saturday, March 17th, with "Tony the Counter," a startling fire act drama, by the Chicago Normal Dramatic Club. Petoskey papers speak of the music production by the Grand Opera House Dress as the most successful of the season. The members of the company are students in the department of Elocution and Dramatic Culture of the Normal School, and all under the management of Miss Ada Louise Gwynn, who takes a leading part. The Petoskey Grand Opera House Orchestra will furnish music for both matinee and evening. Admission to matinee 25c, children 15c. Evening, 35 and 25c. The company plays at Cheboygan Saturday evening.

—Isaac Wright, well known as "Cribb Ike," an old resident of Beaver Island, died at his home near St. Jamies recently. Mr. Wright was a pioneer character. Soon after the American occupation, he came to the Island, going as a government teacher among the Indians of Garden and High Islands. It is believed that he came south early in the Civil War, when the government discovered that work there. He was for many years noted as the only Republican on the island and was the standing bugaboo from Manitou county to all Republican conventions. He was a most remarkable man, yet possessed a remarkable degree of intelligence. He was for many years a sufferer from a fever sore on his leg, which undoubtedly caused his death. He was about 70 years old and had been a Mason more than fifty years, having for many years been a member of Charlevoix Lodge. He leaves no relatives on the island.

Letter From Max.

Austria Hungary, February 25, 1900.

To the Editor Sentinel:

I promised to write to you and shall now at you shall have. I arrived home yesterday morning and have been taking in the town this forenoon. I have found so far four of my old friends, but hear that there are more of them around. I do not think that I shall remain here permanently, as the ways of the people are not the same as the Americans. I had a very warm home-coming from my brother-in-law and his children, but I am sorry that I must state about my poor sister's illness. From a pretty blooming girl she is nothing but a shadow now; the fend consumption will do its work in a short time, therefore I think I will stay till fall and then return to Charlevoix. My brother-in-law, as also his children are not strong either. I wish to God I could give them my strength and go below the sod myself. But as you cannot be much interested in my people here, I will commence another theme.

We know not ice here, but beautiful weather. There are not many boats going yet, but any amount fitting out. All the way across the ocean we only saw two steamers, but when we came within 2 days run of the English channel we saw enough. I counted at one time 150 and then got mixed up in the rest. We had fair weather most of the time, rather windy, but what I call good winter weather. I left New York the 16th and arrived at Plymouth the 22nd, and at Harburg on the 24th at noon, therefore the trip took just 2 weeks. This city has low 200,000 inhabitants and I must say I have not seen any finer looking city than the new part built since I left here. The steamer I sailed on was the Patricia, 615 feet long, 65 feet wide. I don't know how deep she is, but we dare 32 feet of water and then had a side out of 24 feet to her sandedge, (on account of rough sea on the beach at Cuxhaven, the entrance to the river Elbe, where we had to stay until high water came.) of course our first question was about the Boers and every one was glad to hear that John Bull got whipped again. The feeling of the people here is in favor of the Boers. There are more people going south from here than there time a boat goes. They go to Portugal and are transshipped from there to the Portuguese East African possessions, then taking the overland route. Of course the authorities don't seem to know anything about it. I was disturbed this morning that peace was offered by England, but nothing came so far.

Well, friend Smith, I only scribble these few lines to day, but will let you hear from me again soon. I am going to drive out this afternoon to my brother and sister's graves and then think I will feel more at home.

Please give my best regards to all my friends and believe me that I will hear from me again. With best wishes, I remain, Your old Friend,

MAX LEBENSTRAUT.

P. S.—I should like to hear from there once in a while, therefore I expect the boys will answer my letters.

School Notes.

Cæsar class began book 3 last week.

The Physics class are deep in the mysteries of light.

The Junior Algebra class are studying the imaginary quantities.

General History students have finished the Reformation.

The rhetoric class are toying their hand at writing narratives.

The ninth grade are studying law in connection with Civil Government.

The first and second grades, (fifteen school,) obtained the banner last month.

Botany students are greatly interested in their work. They expect to have roses in bloom before snow goes off.

Nervous Notes.

Wire camp will break up about the middle of this week.

Mr. Perkins has moved into town and will occupy N. A. Shores house.

W. H. Superior is at East Jordan working for the Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Mrs. Tinsy, wife of Rev. Tinsy leaves for Canada this week, and we may be about 4 weeks.

The mill will run no more nights only on quarter time, making 12 hours per day.

The W. C. T. U. have made the school district a present of a nicely framed portrait of Mrs. Frances Willard, which is a very acceptable and appropriate gift, and is highly appreciated.

DAVID WARD'S REVENGE.

Rejected as a Teacher 50 Years Ago.

In spite of his great wealth, David Ward, of Detroit, once met with a signal reverse, the remembrance of which still rankles in his crop. He recently told the story himself—probably for the first time to any newspaper writer.

After attending the St. Clair academy at St. Clair, Mich., under Rev. C. C. Thompson as principal and with Thomas W. Palmer as classmate, Mr. Ward became ambitious. He was then 23 years old and had taught several terms successfully in Ford Harbor. So when he saw an advertisement for three teachers to fill vacancies in Detroit, he believed he had a sure thing.

In due time, armed with recommendations as to his scholarship, experience as a teacher and his moral character, signed not only by Dr. Thompson, but by every member of the Port Huron school board, he appeared before the examining committee. For 30 or 40 minutes questions were fired at him, all of which he answered readily, without a word of dissent from his examiners. In fact, the chairman told him that they were satisfied and that he would shortly receive a letter from the board.

Mr. Ward was in high feather. His future seemed assured. Judge of his surprise when he at last received his letter and was informed of his rejection. This was 50 years ago. His successful rivals have entirely passed out of sight. Mr. Ward does not remember even their names, though at the time he knew them well; nor can he recollect the nature of their "pull."

Soon after Wards rejection he decided to teach no longer, concluding that if he had any little merits or acuity at all they might be better appreciated in other employments. The result was that he became a lumberman, being associated in business with Charles Merrill, A. A. Dwight, Wm. A. Howard, T. Tracy Howe, J. W. Brooks, Jacobus Theodore and Francis F. Palms.

And this is the story of how the world got a lumber and gained a millionaire.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COMM'R.

Another factor has entered our agricultural educational system. The farmers' reading course has taken its place along with the farmers' institute, the agricultural college, and the experiment station as an important agent in the diffusion of knowledge and the development of enthusiasm among farmers. It is being incorporated in the university extension work of a number of institutions in the Eastern states and as far west as South Dakota.

The more successful of the farmers' reading courses then far organized have been set on foot and fostered by the agricultural colleges and experiment stations. The work is generally conducted on the Chautauqua plan. The college or station lays out certain courses of agricultural reading on such subjects as "Soils and Crops," "live stock feeding and breeding," "dairying," "farm culture," "gardening," "farm economics," "domestic economy and other like topics, selects sets of books for reading which most clearly set forth the principles underlying these subjects, provides for superintending the work, and makes arrangements for supplying prospective readers with books, examination questions, etc., and to act as a sort of bureau of information.

The reading course is designed to bring to the farmer in his own home the opportunity of taking, under college direction, a course of systematic reading on subjects especially pertaining to his work. Not every farmer has been able to avail himself of the advantages of attending a school where the principles of agriculture as known and practiced in the present day by the leading agriculturists of the world are taught. His life is a busy one and the home reading, though considerable in amount, is generally of a miscellaneous and desultory character. The idea of the reading course is to systematize into a few definite lines this general reading and to make the knowledge thus acquired a permanent mental endowment fund to be used in making farm life more attractive and more profitable.

The Michigan Farm House Reading Circle is in charge of Prof. Clinton D. Smith, Agricultural College, Mich. It was started in 1895. There are five classes. (1) Soils and crops; (2) live stock, (3) garden and orchard; (4) women's course; (5) political science. Any three of these classes constitutes a course. The readers are regularly enrolled as members. Enrollment is free for Michigan's readers, but is charged to non-residents.

When a member has completed the reading of a book he may send to the secretary for questions, which have been prepared to aid him in making a report to the secretary on that book. If the report is satisfactory, a certificate signed by the president of the college and secretary of the Reading Circle will be issued, showing that he has completed that book. A certificate is issued upon completion of each book and also upon completion of the course. When a member has completed any three of the classes and has sent in a satisfactory report on the same, he is considered to have completed a course, and then will receive a suitable diploma.

On March 1, 1899, there were 202 members. The circle has grown steadily, and is now in a prosperous condition and is doing much good.

Anyone wishing to take up the work of the reading course has but to apply for membership to the manager of the reading course in his own state, or in another state.

Daniel Whipple, residing seven miles from Traverse City, was 100 years old last Thursday. He walked into town and was given a reception by the citizens of the town.

East Jordan Enterprise: Mr. Malone has the job of driving the piles for the railroad extension around the town on the lake to South Arm. He is fitting up a steam pile driver and having a new hammer cast for the work.

East Jordan Enterprise: We understand that strangers are being made to extend the East Jordan & Southern railroad to the mills of the South Arm Lumber Co. and Bush & Co. at South Arm. It will start from the switch that was put in to the lime engine house, and run close to the old Barker mill building, which the Lumber Co. are going to fit up with machinery as a shingle mill, and from thence will curve around the head of the Arm for the most of the way nearly following the line surveyed some years ago by the C. & W. M. engineers. It will cross the Jordan river near its mouth, thence will traverse the mill yard and docks of the South Arm Lumber Co., threading the Williams, Lowry and Hinsdale docks to the dock and new mill of Bush & Co. It is also likely that a "Y" will be put in near the East Jordan Lumber Co.'s shingle mill to make it the more convenient in handling the trains.

"Forgive me for seeing you. Do you know some one else?" is its text.

Alas, poor little Vera! Instead of the man you love!

Have you ever thought of marrying the man you love?

Yes, I have, but the opportunity has never arisen.

Then, Vera, will you listen to an old woman's advice?

Yes, dear Lady Kensington.

Don't let anything come in the way of a man you really and truly love. Life is a lonely thing, and if you don't find someone you love you don't know what it is to be happy. Don't let money, nor position, nor anything else come in the way. Money is an ordinary person's idea of a prize, and position is a thing that a man can win for himself if he is worth it. But love is the greatest thing in the world, and it comes but once in a lifetime. I might give you a lot of good advice, but love is the best of all good things. Love is the one thing that makes life worth living. Love is the one thing that makes us forget self. Love is the one thing that makes us forget everything but the person we love. Love is the one thing that makes us ready to sacrifice everything we have in the world for the person we love. Love is the one thing that makes us ready to do anything in the world for the person we love. Love is the one thing that makes us ready to die for the person we love. Love is the one thing that makes us ready to live for the person we love. Love is the one thing that makes us happy. Love is the one thing that makes us unhappy. Love is the one thing that makes us good. Love is the one thing that makes us bad. Love is the one thing that makes us do everything we do. Love is the one thing that makes us do nothing we do. Love is the one thing that makes us live. Love is the one thing that makes us die. Love is the one thing that makes us live and die happy. Love is the one thing that makes us live and die unhappy. Love is the one thing that makes us live and die good. Love is the one thing that makes us live and die bad. Love is the one thing that makes us live and

The Northern Michigan Hardwood Lumber Association met at Traverse City one day last week.

The new Presbyterian church at Traverse City was damaged to the extent of $2,000 one day last week. The walls are of stone, but the interior was destroyed.

An attempt was made to rob Glass Cruiker at Bogus Falls one evening last week. Cruiker is engaged in one of the lumber camps near that place and had just drawn $25 of his pay. He was knocked down by some unknown person and his face and head horribly battered, but he plucky refused to give up his cash.

East Jordan Enterprise: Isaac A. Co. have purchased the Mitchell mill at Muskegon and will put the machinery into their one mill here. It will come by rail and be brought in over the road at Lake Ward for which permission has been granted. There are five large boilers in the factory and the engine 22x48 will furnish the power. Both of the mill have a fine mill when complete.

Cap'n Martin, of St. James, came over from the Beavers Wednesday of last week to secure the services of Ed. Gardner for his sloop yacht. The Captain and the district started for the Island the same afternoon. Mr. L. W. Gardner, returned home Saturday. He reports the trip on the whole not an unpleasant one, but thinks the sloop proved was ever city cousin, and twothirds of that was crossing Lake Michigan over a Fudge of Ice.

The Cameron lumber co. is said to be figuring on a steam log to bring logs on the Intermediate lines. Wm. Washburn, the boat builder, of Charlevoix, has made some drawings of a model for a boat strongly enough suitable for the labor and flows in tween here and Ellsworth, where the water is not over two feet deep at times. She will be rigged so as to carry a large supply of fuel, enough to last two or three days at a time.—Central Lake Pilot.

Traverse City Herald: "Dean Hoy Wiggle, the cartoonist, walked into the city this morning with his grips and traps and had his picture taken. It looked as though he had come to have the photograph taken with all his banner's paraphernalia. Dean Dan's face clear portrait taken on Friday were very fine and he's a good portraitist. It have been quite a circumlocution. Everybody is good-natured because Dan Dean is in town." If his pictures could be generally distributed, and it went everybody would have one that wants one." Dean Dan was a guest for dinner of Hon. Perry Hanlon.

Capt. Reid says that he has serious wrecking operations on hand for the coming season, the most important of which are the Cayuga and Lizzie. The Mitchell is large steamer that sank near Antoinette last year. The owners are the Marsh & Tossett co. of Cleveland. She has already been placed on jacks and having accident she will be raised early in the season. The Cayuga will be raised for a certainty during the coming season. This wrecking operations on her have been the most celebrated in the history of marine disasters on the great lakes. Leading wreckers have heretofore thought it impossible but from present indications she will be afloat and in dock before the first season is over.

Traverse City Record: Secretary of State Jerome S. Stearns and United States Marshal Wheeler will arrive in Traverse City tomorrow morning on the G. R. & I. R. R. Mr. Stearns is the newly appointed State candidate for governor, but this visit will not be for political purposes. He is the president of the projected Traverse City & Leelanau railroad and will come here on business connected with that enterprise. He will be visited at Park Place by several delegations of citizens from Leelanau county, among them prominent men of Leland, Northport, Suttons Bay and other points along the proposed line of the road. Also Traverse City people Mr. Stearns is the president of the company, and together they will look after the interests of the line. The enthusiasm of the Leelanau county people will convince the distinguished visitors that the project is receiving the support which it deserves and that it will not be the fault of the people of that county if the line is not pushed through in a hurry.

Traverse City Record: An enthusiastic meeting was held last evening at Leland, to further plans for the new railroad. It has been suggested by the promoters of the Traverse City & Leelanau railroad, that if the people of the region from Traverse to Leland will give the right of way and furnish the ties for the road, together with terminal facilities, that the road will run a branch to Leland. With this in view, a canvass will be made of Leland and the vicinity to see what the people are willing to do to get the road. It is secured that if the road reaches Northport, there will be a line to Leland, either the electric line or the branch of the main road. In either case it is probable that a line will be built, and the canvass is to ascertain the amount of bonus that will be forthcoming. A committee has been appointed and might be taken a canvass for the furtherance of the movement, and they will report the result of their labors in a week. A land line from Leland to Beaumont is the future is one of the probabilities, which, in case of the extension of the road to Leland will assist greatly in reaching the markets of the northwest with Grand Traverse fruit.

Traverse City Herald: "Northport paper's Boom" is the title of a very pretty market bulletin up now it. Wilson, of Kalamazoo. The souvenir is very neatly arranged, finely printed and embellished with a number of excellent half tone illustrations of scenes around Northport and the bay shores in the vicinity. The attractive new cottages now in process of erection are illustrated right be self-descriptions of the town, its fishing, hunting and bathing advantages, that anxious to attract seekers for a pleasant summer resort. A good deal of space is given to detailed descriptions of the numerous attractions of the place and the endeavorers will be seen to bring into more prominent notice one of the most attractive resorts in Grand Traverse bay. In point has been put so that every for around the little peninsula faces the water, a drive extending the entire length is the one of the bay.

Upon the invitation of the members, the business expedition of the 8th and from there from around were present. They decided to the association to organization called relative to common shipping and sell goods, also endeavor to different kinds of business. The expenses present were Gerald & Gillett of Traverse City, Chas. Christensen of Mapleton, and Charles Hoyt of Bogus City and Jesse Hoyt of East Jordan. A committee was appointed to attend the convention of the National Horticultural Improvement Association, to be held in Cincinnati, May 8th, as follows: Chas. Christensen, G. Wilson H. Gillett, Jesse Hoyt, C. H. Hoyt, and W. C. Hall. The committee will endeavor to procure a section of inspection rules, especially as regards scale mills and the appointment of a chief inspector. The association took up the matter of berries and barrels and bark for the purpose of having reports upon Good and Evil as shipping places. It was the sense of the meeting that prices of berries barrel should be fixed at fifteen cents per crate, $14.00 per crate, $2.00 per box, $13.00 per crate, $2.00 per box. Six and eight foot barrels, $2.00, and about proportion. Bark, long, $6.00; boards, $7.00. It was also the sense of the meeting that the price of bushel bark should be fixed at $6.00 f. o. b. cars or vessel. The above prices are not arbitrary but the committee believed that they should prevent Traverse City Board.

Manistee Herald: Mr. E. Finnegan, formerly manager of the iron company at this place, but now at the head of the Michigan Barrel Company, at Grand Rapids and who has the reputation of being one of the brightest business men of the state, said to the writer a few days ago: "The prosperity which we are now enjoying is the greatest in the history of the country, and to my opinion it is only a very large measure to the inauguration of President McKinley." In speaking of one of the great questions which is likely to be made an issue during the coming campaign, Mr. Wadsworth said: "I am not an expansionist, but I am an expansionist of the most pronounced type."

Petoskey Republican: "Still possession of every foot of territory we have gained from Cuba, I hope to see eventually come under the folds of the stars and stripes." Mr. Thurlwell has been lifelong democrat, but he is his broad minded and too liberal to withdraw from small which he believes is justly the administration for the period of prosperity through which we are now passing and his views on the Philippine question will have much weight with a great many here and Antrim who know and appreciate the sound judgment and sterling business qualities of Edward Thurlwell.

SOLDIER LETTER.

Interesting Correspondence from a Soldier Boy in the Philippines.

Iloilo, P. I. Jan. 1st, 1900.

Dear Friend:—Possibly you have made up your mind that I have forgotten to write you, but I can easily convince you that I have been thinking of you a wonderful lot I am going to tell you why.

I have been in the circumscription of Iloilo. Twenty Flying Dutchmen (which speaks for itself) and after the northern campaign we were brought to Manila, and had to be ready to move again at a moment's notice and did as the same evening. At arrival we were at Bonacion, where we came under the direct command of Maj. Gen. Bates, commander of the 5th Army Corps, our Brig. General is Wheaton.

We left San Francisco the 23 day of September, on the U. S. transport Warren, and the first stop was Yokohama, Japan, where we had two and a half days shore leave and were entertained by the American ladies. We went through the far famed Inland sea, passing the week of the Mongan City. We were in the same typhoon that wrecked her, also four other typhoons, having a very bad passage across. We sailed through and saw then out into the Korean Strait and saw very distinctly the history shores of Korea, then rounding the south coast of petrographic old Japan we came into the inches of Nagasaki. This is said to be the most beautiful harbor in the world, and it equally bewildering one of the seven principal strategic points of earth. We English, American, French, Italian and German fleets keep watch with jealous eyes to prevent Chinese land grabbing. We stopped another in Manila Bay at 4:00 p. m. Oct. 30, and at midnight we were called from our berths by the alarm that Manila was being assaulted, that the rebels had taken and were going to have the town. We went over the rest of you in a hurry, though, were taken aboard, put ashore again, given eighty rounds of ammunition, marched into the old walled city, and stacked arms among a lot of concrete houses, from the main, Spaniards and ships. Next morning, after sweeping three miles right back of our stacked arms we were given our course of organization. Our company was assigned to the Minnesota battalion, and we were in Bishop's Company, Company F, the 27th Regiment. Our commander has alike troop of dismounted cavalry, Troop H, which is our support.

Well, I will give you some idea of our twenty experience I have had in our active campaign. There was no in Manila, the next week to San Fernando, or some north of Manila, we leaving there three days, then we left for Malolos. There we fled our first "hot" instruction and time home's drill, and the next day were in action at Calumpit, an old village on which we were kept fight up in the Spanish days. Next day we left Calumpit on the 25 Dec. We marched through and into, some swamps, and swift mountain streams time and again, some something at daylight and when night were until 11 o'clock getting into camp. Then we wanted the cold cut of our shoes and wanted out of our clothing in an empty hard rock house, and finally we were all wrapped blankets in our clothing. I am sure we could give pointers to Shenandoah's men. We marched 30 days out of days 31 half miles. We were tired to be thousands sometimes such as we were sending into a town of 11,000 is a shining target and we had to expand in a size all channels the night we slept. We were at Malolos and at same time we had Aguinaldo's capital and finally we were in laying where we rested a week, then on again to San Fabian where we later boarded the old dilapidated boat Zafiro, of Admiral Dewey's fame were taken to Lingan to reinforce the Minnesotas. We were on board the 1st Dec. Dec. 31, we were on board the north coast where we chased a pirate junk and helped the Navy keep hostile communities. With 41 mutiny and thousands we made a landing in a very heavy surf, and captured a town of about population.

Lingan, one of the leading cities of the Philippines. Here we met a Spanish officer who had been sent to explaining a lot of high officers of Aguinaldo. We were in Lingan in the celebration of American independence and had a very fine band concert by Philippines.

We were in the north seven days and then went on a forced march to Manila, 90 miles south. In 10 days we have marched the full length of the Philippines. Here we meet a man who has not but have turned it in.

We were without site some during the whole campaign, having just received clothing and shoes. Our shoes after our return to Manila, I spent to be in Manila soon and will try and write again in the meantime I want you to write to me. I want, friend, filling in the chain from the New York Day. We are leaving this but another in the present time, but I suppose you are not a cousin or relative to the United States. Vice Tony Vance.

School Commissioner's Column.

Reading is the most important subject taught in our schools. A good deal of time is spent on it, and yet the good readers are few in number. We do not propose at this time to go into any extended treatment of this subject—just a few suggestions. No better definition of reading has ever been given than this "Reading is taking from the written or printed page." Reading is talking, but a good deal of that which passes for reading is anything but talking. Often it is only the meaningless, monotonous calling of words, and sometimes it is senseless mumbling and raving of the "elocutionist."

Let it be remembered that the child never fails to speak with a true expression when the thought is by, out of his own thought, of that which interests him. This distinction is the key to the whole situation, for he will do the same if he has not been spoiled when he reads, provided he understands, feels and cares for, what he reads, that which he reads. Drills in pronunciation, enunciation, in emphasis, inflection, pitch and pause, will be found to be necessary. Let them be thoroughly given in distinct exercises. They are not reading and should not be mixed up with reading. Nor should they consume so much time that an attendance will not remain for reading.

A remarkable little book on "How to Teach Reading," by A. M. Bellamy (ex county school commissioner) will be interesting to every teacher, especially every county teacher.

Institutes.

As indicated, the A. B. W. Talbot will be present in attendance.

Not was her cordial sympathy valuelessness. She contributed strongly material, and her whole attitude toward us was so unmistakably friendly that in finance in preventing what might have occurred in the way of European intervention will never be capable of full measure and.

—On Tuesday evening of this week 250 knts, Ben A. U. Cook, assisted by Capt. Grand and Aunt Charlie united Mr. Luther Hocking, of Mackinaw City, and Miss Ella Bennett, of this village, in the bonds of matrimony. Mr and Mrs. Hocking left yesterday for Milford where they will reside.

—The contract for further improvement at Frankfort was on all Grand Rapids, and was captured by Hilbert Lane of Muskegon, his bid being $21,871.05. The work contains the building of two cribs, making 552 feet of repair work. The work on the improvements will be commenced on May 1.

—A wonderful other than life upon a plan to keep subscription lists up which takes the cake. Every time a delinquent subscriber is mentioned in his paper his name is inverted. For example: "your people will his wife spending a few days in Chicago." Every other subscriber understands what this means, and there is a great rush to get right side up again.

—There is said to be a contest on in official circles of the Pere Marquette railway to find out who is "boss." Mr. Heald is president, but Mr. Gage is said to think that the general manager ought to run things and the president act as a sort of ornamental figurehead. Gage's failure in the business stockholders, but Heald has friends who will support him, and the contest is going to be a spirited one. In the meantime there is an issue that states of affairs, but no one knows where to bet.—Detroit Free Press. In so far as is concerned, it is thought he will resign and leave the road, as he is a man who takes no active an interest in every thing pertaining to the business of his company, to do nothing but draw his salary.

—Logs continue to come in, although the mass begin to show dirt.

—"Lone Star" Daugherty is spending at the home of his daughter, Mrs Russell.

—The Bethlehem Sisters gave a very elegant party at the K. P. hall last evening.

—Carventer & Miller, the pioneer outdoor advertiser, a special rate to shows this week.

—Miss Bessie of Grand Marais, was over Sunday, the guest of Mrs. Sullivan.

—Mrs. Monty has returned home from an extended visit to her daughter Mrs. Ed. Smith, of Detroit.

—Deputy game warden Gaines arrived home yesterday from Wexford county, and left to-day for St. Ignace.

—Special communication of Charlevoix lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. next Tuesday evening, Mar. 27. Work on F. C. degree.

—The U. S. fish car will arrive tonight with a consignment of lake trout fry, which will be put through the hatchery at the village.

—Louis Goodings will leave Monday for Toledo to help fit out the steamer Mariska, of which he goes again as second engineer.

—They have two newspapers at East Jordan, and neither of them tells who was elected president of that town. One of them implants the information that "the village election passed off quietly."

—One of the best Philippine letters we ever read is published in this issue from Gen. McArthur, an old western type. Our readers will be deeply interested in it.

—Joseph Stanley, a pioneer of Eveline township, died at the home near Chebinsh yesterday. Deceased was 72 years of age. He was the father of John, Maps, Anthony and Jasper Stanley, Mrs. Louise Shaffer, of Everline, Mrs. Hooks, of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Chas. Cook, of Eveline. The funeral will take place at the Catholic church in this village tomorrow morning.

—Mrs. Robert A. Campbell died at her home in Northport, one day last week. Mrs. Campbell was well known by many of our people. Mr. Campbell having been proprietor of the Phillips street House (now Hotel Blanche) for some time previous. Deceased was prominent in W. R. T. circles. She was the daughter of Mrs. Stone, a pioneer Methodist preacher.

—The engineers of the steamer Dawnrose have been ordered to report at Manistee as soon as the weather moderates for the purpose of fitting the craft out for service. The Dawnrose will be taken to Milwaukee where better work and painting is to be done. She will then again be put on the Manistee route between Milwaukee and St. Joseph. The earnings of the steamer upon this route last season are said to have exceeded 10 valuation.

—Mrs. J. F. Sagin and children of Chicago are visiting at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Ann Gaffney, on Bridge street. Mrs. Sagin is a daughter of the late Capt. Gaffney, who was well known on the lakes. Mrs. Sagin is a sister of Mrs. Thos. Gaffney, of this village, and Mrs. Chas. Gaffney, of Petoskey. Mrs. Sagin is a lady of refinement and culture, and will be pleasantly remembered by our people.

—Mr. H. E. Hickie returned home last week from a visit to his parents in Grand Rapids, on a visit to his parents last week.

George Chapman, of Petoskey, enjoys these days, fishing through the ice off Ka-go-che-weng.

Geo. Gardner says: "As a citizen, and a tax-payer, and an honest man, I lament de corruption of politics and am so advocate for reform. At the same time I have a certain suspicion that if I was elected to office, I should keep a close eye on de spigot, and try to roll up a bank account before my term expired."

George Sandby will move to Petoskey this week. He will engage in coopering at the Kose lime works.

The Bay Shore Lime Co. will erect ten or twelve residences this summer. The demand for residences cannot be filt. Bay Shore is bound to grow.

Thirty-five Years.

Another milestone is passed. The Sentinel is thirty-one years old this week and is well, thank you. We do not propose to annually return the Sentinel's record as a champion of the interests of Charlevoix and Charlevoix county all these years—there are those who know and appreciate those services, and we are content.

We are proud of the Sentinel's record, and we are proud of the fact that it never went backward. For thirty-one years we have published a county newspaper.

We are also proud of the fact that during all these years the Sentinel has enjoyed the confidence of its party. As a republican paper it has never wavered in its loyalty and trust.

We are proud to be able to say that after a life of more than a third of a century, the Sentinel is healthy, prosperous, and that its circulation is steadily increasing.

We believe that the Sentinel's long service as a Charlevoix newspaper entitles it to a generous support, and we contribute into the friendship of its existence, we are convinced of the continued friendship and confidence of the public.

The End in Sight.

The Sentinel acknowledges that who was elected president of that town. One of them implants the information that "the village election passed off quietly."

Bankruptcy Sale.

Bankruptcy Sale. It is known to many though not all our citizens that Jos. H. D. Smith, since deceased, known as "Little Will," has been for a long term of years, and will on Saturday, April 21, 1900, at 10 o'clock, on Lake street, now occupied by Allen Hamilton. In the new and permanent place of business to be purchased by the Bond Jewelry establishment in northern Michigan and an art store stocks for the display of Rookwood ware, cut glass and an array of artistic porcelain and oddities side showings. To do this he desires to unload as much of his present stock of jewelry, clocks, watches, table ware, etc., as possible, and to that end he proposes to sell everything in stock at 50 cents on the dollar, for spot cash. Some of these goods will therefore go at cost to him—some below—and some a little above cost. Ladies wanting solid or plate ware, or jewelry, or gentlemen wanting watches will do well to call immediately, lest some the goods will go rapidly.

The Bond Co. are from Illinois, years' experience with Mr Smale as a business man, that he has never moved a single advertisement or failed to look over his goods at once as the sale will begin tomorrow morning and continue until the stock, or what is left of it, is transferred.

What's Your Face Worth?

Sometimes a fortune, but never, if you have a sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, faint patches and blotches on the skin—all signs of liver trouble. But Dr. King's New Life Pills give clear skin, rosy cheeks and vigorous health. Only 25 cents at F. G. Hines & Co's drug store.

When a Man Dies

If by accident, or who, in the natural death, usually the first question is, did he procure his family by life insurance. If not sometimes a subscription list is started for the benefit of his wife. Identifying the fact the New Life Insurance Co. offers a sure protection. Ask H. Parmelee or any New York Life agent about the plan.

SNAKE IN STOMACH.

PECULIAR PLIGHT OF A NEW YORK GIRL.

Was Twice Unfortunate in Unusual Operation for the Removal of the Reptile—Nervous Gastric Ills a Big Force Back Into Your Darling Mother.

Miss Florence Gardner of Hoboken, N. J., has a very unfortunate but remarkable experience to relate. She was recently operated upon for the removal of a snake from her stomach. Prior to her operation Miss Gardner had been a sufferer from nervous gastric troubles, which had reduced her from a healthy, robust girl to a mere shadow. Her mother had tried many remedies, but none had proved of any benefit. Miss Gardner herself had tried many remedies, but they had not the slightest effect. Her mother then decided to try Dr. Miles' Nervine, and Miss Gardner herself began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, Dr. Miles' Nervine Pills and Dr. Miles' Nervine Tablets. The result was that she began to improve from the first dose, and she continued to improve in health and strength until she was entirely well. Her mother, who was a sufferer from nervous gastric troubles herself, also found Dr. Miles' Nervine a most valuable remedy. Her mother, Mrs. Gardner, is a well known and highly respected lady in Hoboken, and she is ready to testify to the wonderful benefit she received from Dr. Miles' Nervine. Mrs. Gardner's testimony is as follows:

"Some years ago I was very nervous, and had nervous gastric troubles. I was so nervous that I could not sleep, and was very much reduced in flesh. I was also very much troubled with constipation. I had tried many remedies, but none had proved of any benefit. My daughter Florence was also in a very nervous condition. She was reduced from a healthy, robust girl to a mere shadow. She had tried many remedies, but they had not the slightest effect. Her condition was very alarming. We had tried many remedies, but none had proved of any benefit. We then decided to try Dr. Miles' Nervine, and we began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, Dr. Miles' Nervine Pills and Dr. Miles' Nervine Tablets. The result was that she began to improve from the first dose. The improvement was so marked that we continued taking the remedies, and she continued to improve in health and strength until she was entirely well. My mother, who was a sufferer from nervous gastric troubles herself, also found Dr. Miles' Nervine a most valuable remedy. My mother, Mrs. Gardner, is a well known and highly respected lady in Hoboken, and she is ready to testify to the wonderful benefit she received from Dr. Miles' Nervine. PHILIPPINE LETTER.

A Very Interesting Letter from George McCartney.

Iloilo, Philippine Islands, Feb. 11, 1900.

DEAR GUSS: AT HOME—When I last wrote you we were just about to start on a march, or as we call it here, "a hike." We left Balilong on Monday, about dar., ghat—I have forgotten the date—about 10 o'clock we came on San Ildefonso. The artillery fired a few shots at the rebel trenches, and the infantry was deployed as skirmishers. Our line was back about a mile from the trenches and the entrance right was more than that, distance. We were in wet the marching, trenches were a ribbon of water, streams and the fields were rice fields. When we came in sight the Tagalos commenced. The artillery fired a few effective shots and a battery of the artillery acting as infantry, marched straight up the trenches and the rebels fled. The battalion of the Third was under the command of Capt. Wilkins and he tried to double-time us across the rice paddies. We could make it for a short distance and then would be obliged to take it more easy, but we finally got into town, and had a skirmish line on the farther side until about four o'clock when we were relieved and sent into camp. To appreciate the fun we had I must describe a rice field. You know the grass is standing water and to keep the water as equal depth the ones are divided into sections of small lots surrounded by dykes twelve or fourteen inches in height. In them the water stands as deep as you can see, but down in them there is six inches of water and right bottom is eight feet of mud—supplied by the rains which has dripped since the last rain. In town ground the paddies are quite large—sometimes a half acre—but in nothing but they are small, sometimes not more than eight or ten feet wide and perhaps twice as long. These are lining and are all slope to conform to the lay of the land. These dykes vary in from fourteen to eighteen inches high on one side and frequently three to five feet on the other. Going down hill or easy as you jump over a dyke and slide into the mud far enough to insure your upright position, then you pull yourself out and slide for a time, you the smallest rice out of your eyes and come a pump for the next paddy. When you go up hill it's the same thing back ended. It was Dilemma after our skirmish messengers came in with orders to build us at that place. We were to cooperate with Lawton's forces on the other side of San Miguel and for some reason everything was not not ready at that time. The next day the natives were back to reoccupy their trenches as usual and Lawton still occupied them. We were put out in a skirmish line and drove them back on all sides of the town marching out about two and a half or three miles from camp to find them marching back again. That night we got orders to return to the town the next morning. We started about seven o'clock and before our wagon train and rear guard were a mile out of the camp, some of the "Macabees" were back in town throwing bombs at us. Again I saw Dilemma after our skirmish messengers came in with orders to build us at that place. We were to cooperate with Lawton's forces on the other side of San Miguel and for some reason everything was not not ready at that time. VERA NEVILLE

By Mrs. K. Lovett Cameron.

CHAPTER XVI.

"Anna!"

Not a word, not a sound, not even a sigh, and yet, I knew that

"Dear Anna! I want you most particularly to be quiet and listen very carefully to what I am going to say. It is very important, and I know you will do it for my sake."

"Why, Vera, what is the matter?"

"Hush! Not a word! Listen! I am going to be married to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, at Kensington Church, to a man whom you have never seen, whose name I have never mentioned to you, whom I love with all my heart and soul, and who is a gentleman in every sense of the word.

"Now, the only thing we quarrel about is my dowry. I have a capital income in my own right, and he is a poor man, but he is a gentleman, and I love him, and I am going to be married to him. I want you to be my bridesmaid, and I want you to do it without a word, without a sigh, without even a look of surprise, and I want you to do it because I ask you, because I have always been a good friend to you, and because I have never asked you for a favor before, and I shall never ask you for one again if you refuse me now. Will you do this for me, Anna?"

"Why, Vera, what can I say? I am so surprised, so—so—"

"Will you do it?"

"Why, of course I will, if you really mean it, but it is so sudden, so strange, I can't—I don't—I—"

"Hush! Not a word! Not a sound! Not a sigh! Not a look! Not a word! Good-by, Anna, I shall be at the church at 10 o'clock."

"But, Vera, where are you—"

"Not a word! Not a sound! Not a sigh! Not a look! Not a word! Good-by, Anna, I shall be at the church at 10 o'clock."

"But, Vera, where are you going to be married? Who is the man? What is his name? Where do he and you live? Have you been—"

"Not a word! Not a sound! Not a sigh! Not a look! Not a word! Good-by, Anna, I shall be at the church at 10 o'clock."

"But, Vera, what will people say? What will your aunt say? What will your cousin say? What will your—"

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Lon Hinkie, an old resident of Antrim township, died last week.

The post office at Central Lake will be raised to the presidential class April 1, with the postmaster's salary at $1,000 per annum.

East Jordan's new water works, though not yet finished, prevented a disastrous close where land obtained a good start, last week.

A touching feature of the funeral of Mrs. E. A. Campbell at Northport recently, was the presence of her parents, Hon. and Mrs. S. Steele of Northport, aged 87 and 84 years.

The whole business portion of Mackinaw City, including the post office and several dwellings, was destroyed by fire one night last week, causing a loss of over $40,000 with no insurance.

The plant of the Mackinaw Witness was entirely wiped out by fire on Monday night, but editor Wood has arranged for the publication of the paper in a Chicago office until he has a new home.

Certain cows at Petoskey have been in the habit of fattening pork on their horses, cattle and hogs, as well as the refuse material from the slaughter houses, and the newspapers of that town have called a halt on the practice.

Bellaire has voted to raise by taxation $6,000 to contin ue work on the municipal electric lighting plant which was begun last summer. It is probable that a water works system will also be put in in connection with the lighting plant.

The Grand Avenue hotel at Gaylord burned last Tuesday morning. The guests all escaped but most of their clothing was burned. The loss on the building is $12,000 and on furniture $5,000. The insurance on the building was $3,500 and on furniture $1,000.

Traverse City Herald: Judge Hanscom examined his peach trees after the cold weather, and reckons that the peach crop will be very large, longs having survived well. Richard Mc-Ray, the Benton Harbor horticulturist, says the outlook for peaches is the best in years.

Traverse City Herald: Mr and Mrs. F. A. Eldred, of Elmwood avenue, entertained the Methodist ministers of the city and their families last evening, in honor of Mr. Eldred's father, Rev. A. J. Eldred, who was 75 years of age yesterday. Refreshments were served and a happy evening spent by all present.

Traverse City Herald: If Traverse City people note to purchase the present water works plant, H. D. Campbell & son, will embark in a new and important line of business. The electric light plant will be moved to a more central portion of the city, improved, and in connection with it will be a first class, or exhaust heating plant which will have a capacity to supply every business building in the city with heat.

Prosecuting Attorney Dougherty's resignation as prosecuting attorney of Antrim county was to be appointed deputy revenue collector vice H. J. Lowery, of Howard City, who resigned the job to be secretary Stearns' chairman of campaign committee. Mr. Dougherty will have charge of the district covered by Deputy Van Wagenhong while the latter will move to the Grand Rapids district.

The Rev. T. F. Harris of Bellaire made some sensational charges against a certain society in that place a short time ago and the members thereof waited on the pastor and demanded a full publication which the Herald and gossipper refused to furnish whereupon the committee published their letter to him in the papers. It contains some pretty hot stuff and the preacher needs to tell all he knows about the affair in order to set himself right before the people. The letter indicates that the charges made were of a serious character, and can not be overlooked by the society.

A terrible explosion occurred at the plant of the East Jordan fire works Saturday evening last about six o'clock. After finishing cartridges for the day, and the dross was being emptied out, the hot metal flew in all directions and the report was heard for a distance of six miles. James and William Malpass, proprietors, had very narrow escapes from death, both being painfully burned about the arms, body and face. The employes who were near escaped with but slight bruises. It was thought that William Malpass would lose his eyesight, but the physicians now think that his chances are good, though his eyes are badly blistered. The theory as to the cause of the explosion is that some early metal was lying about where the metal iron was emptied.

Traverse City Herald: Geo. W. Lardie received a check yesterday afternoon for the full amount of his claim against the Lowenstein estate, amounting, for the custody of property, to the Lowenstein, who have been in jail 26 days. Atty. Lardie's complaint charging fraud, have been released. It appears Lowenstein forged the parcel of two men to a receipt stating the potatoes were partially frozen on arrival. These two men went after the Lowenstein also on charges of forgery. The Lowenstein had backed on these two to assist them and when deserted by them are threatened with a criminal suit by them, also, they extract the money by way Mr. Lardie's claim. The potato men generally are well pleased with the outcome of the suit as it is not the first time the same game has been played on local shippers.

A very superior line of coal shoes now arriving at Carpenter & Miller's.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

Three or four school boards in this county are in trouble throughout intensive to the representations of a smooth tongued agent, and purchasing unnecessary supplies for their school-rooms. The contracts are generally—and always—in the form of promissory notes, which the boards have no authority to sign, unless the taxpayers have voted for the expenditure.

It requires the incessant watching of the commissioner to keep these fellows in check—the smooth-tongued agents, who traverse the country selling school supplies at three and four times their true value.

No school boards are generally able to resist the smooth talker, who comes to them overburdened with the welfare of their school, and give him to understand that they purchase their supplies, when needed, from some reliable house, thus saving the excessive agent's fee.

It is strange—its passing strange—that a stranger can come along with his tongue oiled and prevail upon a school board to buy a lasting, unnecessary chart at a cost of not less than $25, and in some instances $50.

In Oakland county recently some smooth-book agents induced members of school districts to sign what they supposed to be contracts for supplies. These contracts are now turning up in the form of promissory notes. The agents gathered in over $5,000.

It is the request of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, that Commissioners use their influence in breaking up this system. The quickest way to break it is to allow the parties who sign the notes to pay them.

The director and moderator cannot issue a warrant upon the assessor for money in his hands, to apply in paying for ex-officioes legally provided for, but they have no right to issue promissory notes, in payment for contracts they have made.

It is sometimes impossible to live up to the letter of the law, but we can live up to the spirit of the law at all times.

Bucker Roots a Robber.

J. B. Gardner, cashier of the bank of Thornville, Ohio, had been robbed of health by a serious long trouble until he tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Then he wrote: "It is the best medicine I ever used for a severe cold or a bad case of lung trouble. I always keep a bottle on hand." Don't suffer with coughs, colds, or any throat, chest or lung trouble when you can be cured so easily. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. G. Hinze & Co's drug store.

MANY PEOPLE CATCH COLD.

Right Causes Often Produce Serious Results to Many Health.

The various ways in which a cold may be brought on are thus described by Dr. J. H. Kellogg: A cold is a state of an illness in Hygiene, a check to a whole open issue out of the body—will chill that part and the blood vessels of that region will become congestive, affecting some vessel in the interior of the body as well as when exhaustion with the portion of the surface of the body. For instance, the blood vessels of the skin of the feet of the abscesses and the chest are congested with the blood vessels of the lungs so that whatever happens to the blood vessels on the skin of the shoulders and chest happens also to the blood vessels of the lungs. If there is a contraction of the blood vessels of the back of the neck there will be a contraction of the blood vessels of the nose and throat, and if there is a contraction of the blood vessels of the top of the shoulders and the shoulder blades there will also be a contraction of the blood vessels of the lungs. When the inflation of the cold is continued this contraction is followed by congestion. When one gets the bronchial cold water, for a few minutes they are fine and feel well. They are so active. The blood vessels are distended and the nerves become dull. Instead of the people will be in the contraction and congestion. So if the back of the neck is exposed for a long time to the influence of cold air is there no danger as well as the nose and throat. If the shoulder blades and the tops of the shoulders are exposed are we likely to take cold in the lungs and suffer from congestion of the lungs. If the feet be long exposed is not there also a contraction and congestion of the lungs. If the feet be long exposed is not there also a contraction and congestion of the lungs. If the feet become wet or chilled a washing of the bladder may result. If there has ever been a trouble there or a weakness of the prostate if there has been catarrh of that organ.

The Care of Your Eyes.

Keep a shade on your lamp or gas burner. Avoid all sudden changes in light and shade. Never read by twilight, moonlight, or on cloudy days. Never read or sew on a moving train or car, or steamer or sleep. It is best to let the light fall from above obliquely over the left shoulder. Do not use the eyes when tired, as it requires an effort to discriminate. Never sleep on the bed facing the light. Never read or sew on the light of a window. Never begin to read, write or sew for several minutes after coming from darkness to light. The moment one is conscious of pain or dimness of sight, stop doing anything. If the eyelids are glued together on waking up, do not forcibly open them, but wash them with the Sanitarium in the speediest distance in the world—then wash your eyes and bathe in warm water.

Late Boom in St. Petersburg.

Personally, I know of no other town where such late boom are in vogue as kept St. Petersburg. But your St. Petersburger doesn't pull up early in the morning. At the Petersburg the mosquitoes, which it is the businesses there to kill, are active enough to keep people from taking a half an hour in a swift canoe—on just pretty nearly any day or night in the summer. Those trains are the Hoosier the Indiana of getting up early. You wake his friends at "eight" and drive them to the station conveyance after supper without put ting the house in any inconvenience. Indianapolis Journal in the Saturday Evening Post.

Interesting Facts About Foxglove.

Some interesting investigations have been made in the matter of foxglove and the following conclusions have been arrived at. The foxglove is more concentrated on the right side of the body, it would, by the water, be interesting to know if the foxglove was the same in the left-handed. The palm of the hand varies from three more than the skin of the chest and the cheeks are and one-half times as much. There is a slow increase in the result in the abdomen, especially noticeable from 8 to 12 weeks of width. After whatever there is a diminution. Feeding has but little influence on this function. Sleeping of the foxglove is lessened.

Stopping the American Tramp.

Our American tramp is a subject which has recently been occupying the attention of the Lexington(Ky.) society. After considerable research it has been established that the cause of the tramp is not atavistic, nor is it the result of the nasal catarrh and affection of the larynx, which are so common in America, though these may be caused by the tramp. The nine people also theory is that the tramp is the result of fastidiousness on the part of Americans in adopting the nasal sounds of the French settlers and the guttorals of the Dutch and Germans. At any rate, it is possible to cure it.

Clover Seed in Mexico.

Mexico has a clover bird called the Bobinantes, which has discovered a new use for the telegraph pole. At the foot of the pole this bird makes a large nest, in which it rears its family. Somewhat higher up the pole it makes an observatory, from which bored holes permit it to observe the horizon in every direction. Still higher this ingenious bird makes its storehouse and lay the pole serves as its house, fortress and warehouse.

Wheat Imports of Kind.

England imported in 1899 250,000,000 worth of meat and $225,000,000 of other provisions. The United States exported to her about 60 per cent of this supply, or $135,000,000 worth of foodstuffs. In addition to animals, Kingland imported 570,000 head of live cattle and 680,000 head of live sheep. These imported from the United States furnished 200,000 head of cattle, valued at $27,000,000, and 40,000 head of sheep, valued at $700,000.

Little Willie's Rule.

Petoskey Resident: It is known to many though not all our citizens, that Mr. W. E. Scarle, more familiarly known as "Little Will," has issued for a long term of years, and will continue issue for years to come, the Great Lake street, now occupied by Alex Rosenthal. In this one of prominent places of business he proposes to install the best jewelry establishment in northern Michigan, and an art store saves for the display of Bookbind ware, cut glass and the kind of artistic porcelain that citizens also purchase. To this he desires to unload as much of his present stock of jewelry, clocks, watches, table ware, etc., as possible, and to this end he proposes to sell every thing in stock at 75 cents on the dollar, for spot cash. Some of these goods will therefore go at cost to him—some below, and some a little above—cost. Ladies wanting solid or plate ware, or jewelry, or gentlemen wanting watches will do well to call immediately, because the goods will go rapidly.

The Record can say from fifteen years' experience with Mr. Scarle as a business man, that he has never heard a single advertisement so fairly honest, honestly every proposition made by him to the public. Everybody knows, that unlike dry goods, clothing, and many other things, a jewelry or clock has no intrinsic value which can not be measured with fashion in "out of style" as other stocks do, so that the purchaser takes no risk in buying gold, silver, jewels, etc., at whole sale prices the purchaser is not likely to get left. We advise our readers to look over his goods at once as the sale will be rapidly thinned out and continue until the stock, or what is left of it, is remarked.

—The two largest vessels ever about on Lake Michigan are to be built this summer by the Bessemer Dock and Chicago. The steamers Carnegie and Northwest, according to the estimates of the titans, will be dwarfed by the new boats which will be 475 feet long and 54 feet beam, or six feet longer than the Northland and her twin. They will carry a thousand tons more than Northland, and will be launched in Bessemer Dock, Ironwood and Ishpeming. The ships will be Milwaukee, Manitowoc, Grand Traverse, Detroit and Cleveland. In addition to even a thousand passengers the boat can handle 7,000 tons of fast or perishable freight.

—The annual meeting of the Home Life Insurance Co. was held last week and paid the widow of the late Thos. Levinson $1,000, the amount for which Mr. Levinson was insured by that company.

Indications are that in the near future the Michigan Central will absorb the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad system. The latter lately has absorbed the Chicago & West Michigan and the Detroit, Grand Haven & Western railroads. The owners of the property are principally Boston and New England people, but the Morgan-Vanderbilt syndicate is said to have acquired a large amount of the securities. The Chicago & West Michigan for years has had close trade relations with the Michigan Central. The two systems are close companions, and if united would give Vanderbilt a practical control of the business, having only the Grand Rapids & Indiana, which is controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad, to contend against.

School Commissioner's Column.

A. W. CHEW, COM'R.

Every teacher or superintendent can interest himself in seeing that an extra log is provided for the supply of library books are applied in his district.

The fact that there is an excellent township or city library maintained independently of the school does not do away with the necessity for a school library of some sort, though it may modify the needs of the school in this respect, and prove of great value to teachers and pupils.

The school library and the other library may be made to supplement each other.

The fund for a school library of some sort is universal. In the most highly enlightened of a country school house there should be a book case for the care of books that may be donated to the school, and for the preservation of unclaimed textbooks that may be left in the building.

Books which are donated to the schools by authors, publishers and others are often left in the school-house carelessness as to the proper disposition to be made of them. It is a lamentable fact that very many persons who are estimable in many general character have an easy complacency in the matter of books that "somebody" to the school, and many teachers have been carless as to the final disposition of publications presented to them in trust for the benefit of the schools under their charge.

The teacher who secures the gratitude of a library and takes care that the books which came into the hands of the school are suitably stamped or marked to indicate such ownership, will generally have the satisfaction of seeing that useless expense.

Within the past few years, the bureau of education at Washington has been distributing large editions of well graded "Circulars of Information." In our own state the Board of Health and the State Agricultural College are distributing valuable aids to the schools on a variety of subjects of the greatest interest and value to teachers, pupils, citizens, and students.

These pamphlets are very rarely reprinted, and when the original supply is exhausted they are not to be had any more. They should have been collected by teachers, and cared for. While in pamphlet form they are comparatively durable. There are very many people who are prone to rate the value of a publication according to the expense of its cover, and who see little value in an old official pamphlet. As a result the number of files of "Circulars of Information" in existence at this time is very small.

A teacher who looks over the list of these pamphlets which have been issued, cannot but feel a longing to have access to such a library, covering, as it does, a hundred points of educational interest in the garden of teaching, school supervision, school architecture, and sanitation, school law, school recreations etc.

The report of the committee of five, Report of the committee of fifteen, and report of the committee of twelve, should have a place in every school room.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The scene is Mrs. Handfield's drawing-room, in Park lane the hour is late, o'clock in the afternoon, and the charmingly picturesque Miss Nevill (we are in the face, standing in the corner by the window, and looking rather radiant with three ornaments and Mr. Vincent's artist, who not to put too great a fine, is decidedly on the footing of a lover.

"Mamsie! Arthur! I have found my ruby!"

TALK WITH THE HELIOGRAPH.

How the System of Signaling Now in Use is much Similar to Opening.

Heliographing is "sun writing." By the use of the heliograph the sun's rays are flashed over long distances. The letters of the Morse telegraphic code are used, and communication is comparatively easy on bright days. The instrument that is now used to transmit heliograph messages is exceedingly simple. It consists of a tripod carrying a horizontal rod at the top. On this rod is a mirror on one end and on the other a small upright rod with a movable button. This upright is usually four and a half inches in diameter, and is so arranged that it can be rotated both on a horizontal and on a vertical axis. In the middle is a small unsilvered spot. The mirror is adjusted by means of the unsilvered spot and the button on the rod is from, exactly on a line which is aimed. If the button is raised so as to cover the reflection of the sun, which can be found by sunsmoke if it cannot be seen, and the shadow thrown by the unsilvered spot in the middle of the reflection covers the button, the instrument is in position. There is a contrivance by which the shutter is operated opening and closing over the mirror to make up a heliograph instrument. A long flash stands for a dash, a short one for a dot in the Morse system. The greatest distance over successful by the heliograph was that operated over by the United States signal corps between Mount Uncompahgre, in Colorado, and Mount Pilot, in Utah. The base line was 150 miles. The flashes came and went as regularly as though the system had been Morse instead of Morse.—Indianapolis Press.

SUICIDE AND CIVILIZATION.

The More Progress the More There Is of Self-Destruction.

There either the New York school chairman says of another doctrine arises the interest in the present history. They have stepped in number in the last one hundred years. It is the disease of civilization, proportionate to the progress of civilization. Germany, where civilization has reached the highest point on earth, is the blackest spot in this respect. In the same story as one proceed from the less to the more liberal trend. In same the population of a whole city is made up purely of the Russian church there are 40 suicides to 1 million, where the people are a party of the Catholic faith there are 18 in the million, in the mixed communities there are 190 to the million. Extremal conditions appear to have some relation with the act. There are more suicides in warm weather than in dry, more by night than by day, more on Monday nights than on dark nights, and there are three times more men to die by their own hands than women. I suppose all is fundamental in those who have done this deed. I cannot quite take their inner life. But I warn and warn of danger. Remember from the top the time there have to right to do it. The duty of progress compels us to remain—we must stay. We are here to solve the problem of life for the world then. We are here to model our souls to be immortal. We must make the most emotions over the world, and we do that not by reading poor but by enjoyment.

A Case of Female Impersonation.

A remarkable case of female impersonation has come to a Paris gendarmerie. Jean Bonhomme, a Brittany peasant, girl calling herself Jeanne Pervan, was engaged as a cleaner to M. Lefebvre, a shoemaker in the Saint Lambert district. He discovered that his bed had been built in a loft by Marcelle to pay her face to Paris. The young servant appears to have consentious, but eventually Marcelle Lefebvre, who was frightened at her strange behavior, informed her mother, who in turn informed the young house was a girl or individual who had escaped from prison, and had undoubtedly made earth to unknown destination. He had betrayed himself by falling in love with his mistress.

Makes a Living Catching Butterflies.

Catching butterflies is the pleasant work by which a career English boy makes a good living. Miss Mary Ferrier, before going to Chalcombe, and collected butterflies for pleasure, but found after coming to America, realized that many of the same varieties are to be found in California. The first butterflies she obtained were of a species seldom found except in the higher Alps, and on sending them to England she was paid $10 each. From that time on she has been steadily increasing her stock, and now makes a large income by the sale of the insects.

To Enable Eastern Consumptives.

It is interesting to note that California physicians are found in their hope of some time enabling eastern consumptives from the state. The subject which has been discussed a number of times in the last few months, was again taken up at a meeting of the state board of health a few days ago. Dr. Lewis Bazet, of the board, read a paper on the subject of the subject as a contagious disease. Discussing California the east, says he, contains 60,000 and 50,000 consumptives, against Pulmonary sickness, and of these persons helped to spread the disease germs.

Collecting Bird Eggs.

It is an uncommon sight at Kimberley to see dozens of native boys engaging for Boer shells. As soon as the ranges of the Gatbuns is seen they all come down from the kraals, and, when the shell has pitched, make a rush to the spot and collect the pieces.

An Interesting old Manuscript.

An interesting old manuscript has just been unearthed and translated in Central Public Library of Hampshire, England. Its date is about 1400, and it is entitled Jerusalem Verse Jesus Hampstead, giving an account now given and spirits did, in another the Jesus house was a and of individual who had escaped from prison, and had undoubtedly made earth to unknown destination. He had betrayed himself by falling in love with his mistress.

SEA LION

Captured a Boat and Gave Two Fishermen an Exciting Experience.

Sea Bedford (Mass.) Sea Lion Captured Bulgaria John Martins and Joe Lafranky, two Italian fishermen, came very near meeting their deaths the other morning off McNeary's Point, in Sea Paito Bay. Martins and Lafranky had their nets out for the purpose of catching flounders, and when the tide started to turn they proceeded to pull in, when they noticed that the nets were harder to handle than usual. They thought they had an unusual large catch of flounders, but when they had fully 40 fathoms of net aboard had the boat a large sea lion. Immediately splashing the water as a frenzied fish. Martins called to Lafranky to cut an oar and hit him, but just as he had said the words the sea lion slight his head out of the water and seeing the boat and its occupants made a huge capsizing the craft. Martins, who is a good swimmer immediately jumped for his oar and striking him by the head, succeeded in driving the sea lion away. Lafranky had in the meantime succeeded in bailing out the boat and by the time Martins had gotten back the sea lion had disappeared. The men then proceeded to pull in the nets, which they found had been torn to pieces by the sea lion. Martins and Lafranky are of the opinion that the sea lion was after the fish in the nets, and when he found the nets empty he made for the boat. Martins and Lafranky are well known in this city, and their story is believed by all who know them.

A Great Plan for Longevity.

To all appearance Ardmanmuchan on the west coast of Scotland is a great place for longevity. Whether it is because of the self-absorbing climate of the remoteness of the place from the busy world, or some other population, at something indigenous to the Ardmanmuchan outlook, it would be rash to hazard an opinion. It is that an Ardmanmuchan seems to have a good chance to become a patriarch. Within thirty years or so the inhabitants have died out at a varying rate age, between 100 and 110, there was a Miss Ann Macdonald, a friend of Macleod, the high priest of Morven, who lamented and sang her lost love in a lament of 112. An Alexander McPherson translated from the original "Gaelic" from to his grandfather, who died at 110. An Alexander McPherson translated from the original "Gaelic" from to his grandfather, who died at 110. Ann Macdonald lamented one only saw the two sons unfortunately died, but left "a number of grandchildren, affectionate." Another his father died, and a fourth, Mrs. Mary Stewart, was reached 105. In two hundred years only, and seven about the house.

A Growing Mountain.

A grandfather mountain has risen in the Sierras in Humboldt county Newport, Ireland, and his grandfather announced an unusually lively interest in a bequest. The mass was Mission, he was said and in generally sentimental and good-natured. A sentimentalist gave his neighbors no reasons, but he had not a penny in his pocket. Out of pure charity they supported for many years provided him food and clothing. Dead and gone and stored among the good Samaritans when it became known that he will he had left $2,000 and certain and women for division among those who had assisted him. As one of them remarked, it was a great case of "bread on the water and seeing it come back after many days." Portland Press.

An Extraordinary Occurrence.

An extraordinary occurrence was the sale in London, England, recently of Special Intercession services for soldiers fighting in South Africa. A crowd filled St. Bloughton Antiquarian church. When the bell was being rung, two doves flew out of the shell and circled the church, a strange visitor appeared, the Antiquarian Society's house had met at Cheltenham, Lord Tennyson's house in Lincolnshire, and Jellowed one across the fields to Bloughton Alley. Here the bee, being hard pressed, and seeing the church door open, sought sanctuary there, but the house, being open to the public, followed him into the church, caught by the rope and the bell, and dispatched the bee.

NAMES OF DAYS.

Have Curious Derivations Which Few People Know.

Lent Spring Lent was a long dinner when the necessary at large was short and the days were long. Easter was the dawn of the Christian year, and only one man at the Council of Nicea could answer when asked the reason why Easter was so called. Tuesday is named after the god Tiw, Wednesday after Woden, and Thursday after Thor, Friday after Freya, Saturday after Saturn, and Sunday after the sun. Monday is the only one of the days of the week which has a Christian name. Sunday was called by the Saxons Dominica, Monday Secunda, Tuesday Tertia, Wednesday Quarta, Thursday Quinta, Friday Sexta, Saturday Septima. Sunday was called Dominica because it was the day of the Lord, Monday Secunda because it was the second day of the week, and so on. Tuesday was called Tertia because it was the third day of the week, and so on. Wednesday was called Quarta because it was the fourth day of the week, and so on. Thursday was called Quinta because it was the fifth day of the week, and so on. Friday was called Sexta because it was the sixth day of the week, and so on. AT THE BRAVERS.

The Island Trish Celebrate the Feast of Their Patron St. Patrick.

To the Editor:

At an early hour on the morning of the 17th the people of the Island were hurrying to the church, where the celebration of the day was begun with religious rites. During the high mass, commencing at nine o'clock, the choir sang "All Praise to St. Patrick" with much feeling. During the mass Father Zagelder preached an eloquent sermon on the life and work of St. Patrick in which he portrayed the brilliant virtues and uplifting zeal of this great Apostle among the heathen of that beautiful Isle, exhorting his congregation to live up to the faith.

The good priest spoke in his honors that if they wished to prove themselves good Irishmen and faithful children of such an Apostle, they must labor incessantly to keep alive in their hearts the faith handed down to them from their fathers.

It is clearly seen that, although Zagelder is a genuine German he is partial to the Irish, and they, in return, are very fond of him and highly appreciate his labors for their spiritual and temporal welfare.

After mass people refreshed in their respective homes for dinner and at about one in the afternoon, they went to the Harbor, for this day was a "good time." They gathered at McGallagher's Hall, where refreshments were served. There was much fun enjoyed over a "game of chance." The principal attractions were to guess how many "Irish Jubilee" kids were in a large tub, as there were prizes in them for young and old.

The most pleasing features of the afternoon were, when Father Zagelder and Captain Bonerr came to the front of the "Irish Meadows," and the rendition of their parts with credit to themselves and their nationality, by the children of such an Apostle, they must labor incessantly to keep alive in their hearts the faith handed down to them from their fathers.

It is clearly seen that, although Zagelder is a genuine German he is partial to the Irish, and they, in return, are very fond of him and highly

CHAPTER XX.

The reporters had left all the thoroughfares in the female ward at Kingston. They climbed up and down, creaking and tottering their heights and sinks with a proud consciousness of business, peeping curiously in the place, with their long tails trailed across the gravel ground them with the soft rustle of a water gardener. Now and then and some ones ordered scarcely (though the ground gardener).

Presently some one, standing where the long mauve and white wisteria hung over one of the long French windows on the terrace, looked up and saw a man dressed for dinner, who wore a pince-nez, and who was standing in the attitude of a person who is about to enter the room. Mrs. Kennedy's own boudoir, which Mr. Jones's acquaintance had found with him and gone for his tea. Here he waited for the return of Mrs. Kennedy's tall maid and amateur figure. Her back was towards him, so he was in the point of calling out to her, when suddenly the words died on his lips, and he only so something which in new her being instead of speaking, he turned and ran down stairs at her.

Mrs. Kennedy, unknown to anyone, then, had the note which Lennox had given her. Lennox, who was leaning against the terrace balustrade, had watched the maid, who was a pretty girl, and had seen the blush with which she received the strange envelope.

Then Capt. Kennedy had gone somewhere, and Lennox had promised to give to you when you were alone. Now, Mrs. Jones, coming round to the strange girl, did not see anything of her, and Lennox had not sent all her gone.

Mrs. Jones Nevill (Nevill, I mean I will go and call upon her), said Jones.

Mrs. Jones Nevill, said Helen.

There you fellow a whistle to be heard by Mrs. Jones, which Jones, which was made rise to, but whom some one interrupted by saying:

And Dinnie Wills, never away from the window on the lawn, with a sense of sense of horror upon him which he for never remembered having experienced before.

At dinner time the note was on Mamma's side on the table. Wills the soup was being helped to back it up and spoiled it. He little knew how narrowly back he escaped from being crushed him as he read it. Mrs. Jones Nevill, said the note. Only he talked a little more, and seemed, perhaps, a little agitated (and that he had to when a stranger could not have noticed, although it is certain that Helen may have done so).

"By the marriage, said, she had said, and it was clear that he found her. He had her by the arm, and was dragging her round to the lawn, with its shadowy, waving trees, where, in the distance, yellow light from the room within, one is to spoke, stood the tall figure of the board over the gate, an archway or greenery, dark in the moon's dim light, was above her head, and clusters of dark clothes hung down and down on every side.

"It was that, said he, and he put his arm in Helen's waist, as he spoke, and he drew her close to him, and he pulled her over, and he kissed her, and he kissed her and kissed her, and he kissed her, with a strange, dim, dizzy sensation, and the stars danced before her, the moon danced, the dark shrubs danced, the whole world danced, but at the moment, the chief of the wading sorts, the dinky sort of but

The peaceful hall it all to themselves on the terrace walk at Kynaston. They strolled up and down, chatting and laughing their bright hearts away, with a proud consciousness of character possessed by the place, after long years had landed them the great knight there with the girl mistress of a mother; gathering flowers and then and there twine them round wreaths through the dark curls of Gertrude.

Presently some one passed from the house towards them, and called out to them of the long, long, 'Gertrude, Gertrude, Gertrude! Come, come, I am ready for dinner, all ready a quarter hour before the time! Come, come, I want you! Come, Gertrude, I want you!' Gertrude ran down the terrace to the house—Mrs. Kynaston's own boudoir—Mrs. Kynaston's own boudoir, which the Jenkins called Miss Gertrude's own, and which was just where she was! Poor Miss Gertrude! Little by little, Mrs. Kynaston's tall form and whimsical figure, her high voice and her long, long, long, her habit of calling out to her, when and wherever she wanted her, Gertrude, Gertrude, or by something which she now her dying, had worn on the girl's nerves, and shaken and shattered at last.

Mrs. Kynaston was a very, very, very, bad tempered lady, and the more whilst Tommy had been away, the more she had been fretting at his absence, which she had hardly endured her mind on being left behind, and was taken a serious, the contrary, serious, of itself. Hence the disorder took out the poor girl real.

What she was was this:

Dear Gertie, Kynaston—I have gone, thing that I have promised—I have gone when you are alone. Would the mind comfort you? Or would it only make you uneasy? You will tell me at the proper time. Yours,

THEO HELEN H. A. CAMERON.

Then Helen H. A. Cameron promised the letter to Gertie, who was sitting in the Ash Lane Hall, with her back towards the window, and her face, with a sweet smile, as she bent to the letter, which was to be very, very, very,

OCTOPUS AS A FIGHTER.

Battle Between Two a Gruesome Sight—Tentacles Torn Off in Combat.

A party of the octopus is reported at Gabian and has one flounder and tools or that object are to secure food. This octopus is unusual for the octopus usually found in the gulf of Gabian, and is the result of numerous battles. The octopus seems to be aware of them in the gulf moments as usual, having lost some on the battle that their arms extending and leaving in their place grey. They do not attack men as a rule, but there have been many have contended that an unfortunate diver, if exposed to back out of the water, would be in danger of being attacked by some octopus. Two lost to fisherman, it was placed in a tank and transported to one Paris. In Marseille one of the land great indignation, because of the battle. Their tentacles, armed with powerful suckers, attached themselves firmly to the man's finger and hand, and made the most determined efforts to tear it from it. The man then held up the octopus to the sun, which, coming in contact with the skin, made the hold yield to a distance of 3 or 4 inches, when he changed his hand to the other side, and so forth. In spite of the octopus, as he did so it followed closely and firmly, sometimes passing from side to side, and the tentacles would be left covered with the suckers. Another octopus of the same size that shared in the tank, and that was a little larger, the skinner seen to battle for life. The skinner seen to have lost his hand, and the hand torn by the clinted tool, and was a thrilling scene to behold. The octopus would fasten itself upon the man's arms. After with the weight of the man, the octopus would fasten itself upon him, and the tentacles would be left behind. The octopus seemed to be aware of the fact that the man was in the tank, and that he was helpless

Republican Congressional Convention

A Republican Convention for the Eleventh District of Michigan, will be held at East Tawas on Tuesday, May 1st, 1900, at one o'clock p. m. for the purpose of nominating a Representative in Congress to represent said District in the Fifty-Seventh Congress of the United States, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said Congressional Convention.

Dated at Bay City, this 22 day of Feb. 1900.

F. W. RICH, Chairman.
C. L. DILLON, Secretary.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Chas S. Hampton has sold the Petoskey Democrat to Goldsmith and Churchill, and the "still sea of Ismael," will seek other field.

E. N. Offers has purchased the Scarbort mill in Echo township, which is sawing about 30,000 shingles daily. The mill is then final up for the manufacture of ties.

Archie Cameron, of Traverse City, and his brother, Alex Cameron, of Central Lake, have purchased the Cameron Lumber Co's. store stock at Central Lake.

The Michigan Starch Co., of Traverse City, received an order lately from Chicago calling for a consignment of 100 tons of potato starch to one firm alone.

The first boat of the Northern Michigan Co's fleet is advertised to leave Chicago for Petoskey on April 5th, and the company commenced to receive freight last Friday, at their Chicago dock.

Harbor Springs Republican: Capt. E. E. Hartwell of Chicago, is in town shaking hands with old friends. He arrived here Tuesday morning and will remain a few days. He is in good health and wounds remarkably well.

Representative Mosier sends word from Washington that he is strongly in hope of securing the passage of his bill for a public building at Traverse City costing $50,000. He is very confident of a favorable report at this session from the house committee on public buildings and grounds.

The Thaver Lumber company through its superintendent, Thomas Mourne, has bought of Charles F. Huggins, of Chicago, a tract of timber land situated in Antrim and Mapleasher counties estimated to yield 60,000,000 feet. The timber is largely white pine of extreme quality and has been owned by Mr. Huggins since 1861. The consideration is $150,000.

Albert H. Wickett of Boyne City, was killed by a train at Boyne City one day last week. Wickett was a conductor on the Boyne City and North Eastern road, running from Boyne City to Boyne Falls. He fell under the wheels while the train was backing up, but further particulars were not received.

The State Tax Commission are after the lumberman too. In northern lands held for the timber in Northern Michigan have been in many cases given only a nominal assessment, but this year the tax commission have had expert timber lookers examining in all parts of the state, and intend that timber speculators shall pay their share of taxation.

Horton Jay has a grange of Patrons of Industry, lately organized, with the following officers: Master, A. J. Stout; overseer, Fred Van Antburg; secretary, George Long; treasurer, Wm. Smith; lecturer, C. C. Harper; steward, Harper Stroup; assistant steward, Arother Van Antburg; chaplain, Charles T. Harper; gate keeper, Archie Smith; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Critchell; Pomona, Mrs. Daniel Tripp; Flora, Mrs. A. J. Stroud; Ceres, Mrs. Jim Long.

Grand Traverse County is agitating the good roads question and a preliminary meeting has we believe, called a good roads convention for the near future. If we may be pardoned the suggestion the way to get good roads is to go to work and build them. Our Traverse Co. friends might get some valuable suggestions from this county which during the last six or seven years has unceremoniously constructed something like twenty-five miles of excellent highways, to which addition a mile will be added from year to year. A comparison between our county roads thus far built and the old dirt roads is very great.—Kalkaska Leader.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern which is not afraid to be generous. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, have given away over ten millions trial bottles and have the satisfaction of knowing it has cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, bronchitis, la grippe and all throat, chest and lung diseases are surely cured by it. Call on F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Special Meeting

The Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix county is called to meet at Charlevoix Tuesday, April 10th, at 1 p. m.

The Department of Public Instruction sends out the following form. Dated April 1, 1900.

What is manual training? Manual training is not the teaching of trades nor handicrafts even. Neither has it for its purpose the development of manual dexterity, nor the awakening of slumbering ingenuity, nor the discovering of natural aptitudes. It does to a degree gather to itself all of these, but they are not the prime reasons for the need of manual training in the public schools, any more than the pleasures of taste are the prime reason for a child's eating. However, as the use of food is to produce in the immature children growth, so manual training has for its purpose growth.

We recognize man as a creature possessing body, intellect and soul, and while we recite in the parrot like way that "education is the development of the whole man," there is a tendency to treat education as the development of the whole man in general, and the intellect in particular. We assume that the activities of life—athletic sports, social demands, and later on, the struggle for subsistance—will force them and women to the development of the physical. The result is that systematic physical exercises throughout the entire courses on any of our high schools is a thing almost unknown.

These are the various reasons for this, but the principal one is that ordinary physical exercises lack a very essential element—purpose. A little child can be entertained by gymnastic exercises because he is a child, but with older pupils there must be motive. Manual training furnish a this motive. And every action being vitalized by definite purpose both pupil and teacher will strive to act as automatons. Gymnastics, with the exception of a little mental drill—rhythm and the simpler arithmetical concepts—are moreover almost purely muscular. This may develop attention, but the most elaborated system of calisthenics is soon memorized, and even this sight ineffective benefit then ceases.

On the other hand manual training absorb every element of attention; attention to instruction given, attention to dimensions and measurements, attention to drafting patterns from which work is to be constructed, etc. Each new lesson makes new demands, and as the work advances, these become more and more complex throughout the course.

Specifically, the boys give attention to tools, woods, and metals, the girls to foods, fabrics and home decorations, critical observation is thus enforced. The boy is directed to use pine, whitewood, birch or maple, and the girls to use cambric, calico or gingham, thus perfecting the critical inspection.

Again it enforces judgment.

The instructor asks "what material shall be used for this and why?" In short manual training supplies the "missing link" in our present school system the practical. "But" says our educator who object to manual training "we cannot specialize, we must make our teaching general, and let special instructions be done by schools of technology, etc." But manual training simply makes the education more general and less specific than it now is. The high school gives training to the intellectual powers of the students, thus opening facilities for further intellectual preparation. It thus happens that a young man or woman who follows some purely intellectual profession or calling receives in the high school a training which prepares him to more easily enter his profession. Why should not the same school give facility to those faculties or powers that for manual work in their calling? The state pays out its money for a better citizenship. The hungry citizen is always a dangerous citizen, hence it is one of the duties of the public school to so educate young men and young woman that they may better earn a livelihood.

The friends of manual training make the following claims.

1. That it develops and enriches the intellect, strengthens the will by developing the power of concentration, and by its special development fosters public spirit.

2. That it saves time. Pupils accomplish as much by reason of the development of practical sides of education and a greater concentrative power as do pupils in the high school not taking manual training, and accomplish more in mathematics.

3. That it remains the common objection that our schools do not fit pupils for the duties of life.

4. That it disciplines the sensibilities and thus quickens the manufacture, while purely intellectual attainments do not.

5. That in the final analysis of progress we are astonished to perceive its dependence upon the manual. Every work of art, be it painting, sculpture, or edifice is of the manual. Every visible feature of civilization is the product of manual, and dependent upon it for its continuance.

6. That manual training is elevating, that it is the worst foe to vice and crime.

7. That it is delightful. One needs to visit the manual training work of a school to appreciate the soul thought there is in that sort of study.

8. That the principle of "the greatest good to the greatest number" is not impaired in our present school system. Of the more than 150 vocations followed in this state, the following eight are purely intellectual, viz that of clergyman, lawyer, lecturer, physician, author, teacher, editor and reporter.

From the remaining vocations we select a few of the most common dependent largely upon the trained hand, eye or ear: viz: Blacksmith, carpenter, artist, baker, butcher, blacksmith, bookbinder, carpenter, cook, dairymen, dentist, designer, drum maker, electrician, engineer, engraver, farmer or dairyland, farmer, glass worker, harness maker, jeweler, machinist, minister, musician, sculptor, shoemaker, stonecutter, surveyor, tailor and typo.

Now, that manual training would add to the years of the school life of the masses, thus giving these school influences during the most critical years of youthful development—the years of social growth and independent thinking.

From the most careful computations taken into consideration that there are four high school and eight primary grades and that only one class graduates each year, we deduce the following.

Less than 16 percent of the total enrollment enter the high school, less than seven per cent of the total enrollment graduate from the high school. And of these graduates, so far as we can determine from the reports made, not to exceed two percent of the total enrollment—hence a college university or professional course in any of the higher institutions of learning. We are forced by these statistics to the startling conclusions that only about two percent of the pupils enrolled in the public schools of this state fit themselves professionally in higher institutions.

Letter From Uncle Robert.

PLAINS, Apr. 1 1900.

No. Mr Editor, I cannot see any reason why the early settlers of Charlevoix county should not form an association for mutual benefit and for the entertainment and information of those who may have come later. They have the material in abundance and as good as any other county in the state.

I am glad to see the question agitated and am willing to throw what in the influence I may have in favor of the movement.

I would say that a few weeks before my calamity overtook me, Isaac Wheeler had a conversation with me in the subject and was quite enthusiastic, and I have no doubt that if it had not happened there would have been an attempt made in that direction.

The trouble was, neither he nor I felt like taking the lead in such matters. Now you have made the suggestion and asked to hear from some of the "earlies," and as I am early with my reply.

Let the good work go on. I think that whoever takes the lead will find himself at the head of quite a respectable procession. I have no suggestions to make, but would just say that the picnic for the starters is good idea. Then, if it should be thought best, a permanent organization can be formed.

Perhaps some may think that on account of being absent from the corner and state for the last year that it looks like outside meddling for me to mix in such matters. To such I would say, my absence was and is from force of circumstances beyond my control. I have been, like the politicians, in the hands of my friends.

But my home has been Charlevoix, where it all goes well, I will be a few months great the friends—both early and the late. Then, success to all.

ROBERT MILLER.

Pingree "Reformer."

It is startling news to be told that the personal property of H. S. Pingree, reformer, is worth five times more than he said it was for purposes of taxation. It may be assumed that the governor—Pingree—thinks that the more money he possesses the more valuable he is to the state, but we all know what he would say if a like excuse was tendered by any of those who try to run to cover on his enemies. As a citizen long on bringing others to account in the matter of tax evasion for the benefit of the whole state, his own record should be clean of any charge that he was tempting to shift the burden to shoulders less able to bear the burden of the cost of the government than himself. Besides, it is assumed that to the governor we owe a considerable part of the added cost of running the state of Michigan, and the least he could do would be to set an inspiring example, with which it would be impossible to find fault, of one who finds his own medicine palatable and good for the prescribing physician as well as for the multitude of patients who must partake of the dose whether they wish to or not. The governor has a habit of taking at their face value charges against others and making them the basis for more or less warm and emphatic remarks. What the governor of Michigan, therefore, will have to say about H. S. Pingree, capitalist, who has been charging a charge of concealment of property—of tax dodging—ought to go far toward bringing the temperature of the air in the corner down a few degrees. The governor might even bring out a "men-word" from Jay—"Jim" Gerrish, I think that would be good reading.—Detroit Journal.

Speech Like Written.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling" Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Greenville, Ill, writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in twenty years. They sell on merit. That disease begins in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves, Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, brings rosy multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system, puts new life and vigor into any weak, sick, run down man or woman. Price 50 cents. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists.

Public Meeting.

There will be a meeting of ladies and citizens held at the council room on Thursday evening, April 5th, to consider and arrange for the convention of the Michigan Stenographers Association, to be held in Charlevoix in July. The importance of this convention for Charlevoix will suggest itself to every citizen. Let every business man be present. All others also invited.

Sable Island Ponies.

Their Manes Are in Some Instances Three Yards Long.

The story of these wild ponies on this island is strange. Running the sand wastes near the shore are seen perfect of patriarchal stallions, says Atlantic Monthly. These ponies resemble the horses on the mainland in every respect, and apparently the intruder seemingly out of the framework of antiquity. They are sturdy and remarkable for their long manes, which in instances have been known to grow to the length of three yards. These manes are the remnant of a stock thought to have been left by some Portuguese fishermen—"Portuguese" the old records quaintly call them—who touched at the islands on their fishing voyages at even an earlier date than the Acadian one in Hawks. At one time there were from 60 to 100 wild ponies on the island, but their number has been decreased by exportation, the severity of the winters and, some people think, by the importation of improved, domesticated stallions, which have made the stock less hardy and consequently more susceptible to death from exposure. There are now between eighty and 100 wild ponies and about thirty domestic ones. Mounted on ponies the life saves gallop over the country and about the hillsides on their long periods, and the lifeboats are drawn to the scenes of shipwreck by teams of five ponies, three in the shaft and a leader. Some of the ponies are sent to Halifax every year or two, and are sold at auction at an average price of from $15 to $18.

Innovation at Oberammergau.

The large train theater now under construction at Oberammergau for next year's "Passion Play" is nearly finished. It will shape with be in the open air. The auditorium will be 142 feet long and will accommodate 4,000 spectators. There will be an office established for the purpose of assigning visitors suitable lodgings within the factious two hours' drive to the village from the railway which will be abundant, as well equipped electric motor carriages will take visitors from Munich to and on hour. Needless to say the visitors do not like these departures. They say it will detract from the devotional atmosphere which all visitors to the Passion Spielspiel are supposed to feel.

Hotheads Cool on Shiloh.

Wilhelmina, the young queen of Holland, is not only an enthusiastic admirer of warfare and horseback riding, but also a lover of dancing, with whom she is fond of the latter. In fact, there is any lie in the neighborhood she goes out, with some of the ladies and gentlemen of her court to shake where people of all classes are enjoying the spirit, and mingle the gaiety of the poorest peasant with a "good morning" without the ceremonious ceremonies which in a while a peasant there and there has gone the lady of the body who seemed him so plausibly a resemblance to his sovereign.

A Bright Sister's Story.

A Chicago lady tells a bright story, who was a member of an "Indian" exhibition in the city at the time of the Shiloh anniversary and was sent to the Chicagoan station house with a dozen other of the regiment in the southern part of the city. She was found a year or so later when she left was almost the same as the sixteenth of the anniversary of the Shiloh battle. She could understand them and they could understand her without difficulty, and he had been the first to invite her to his officers with a little he had never heard of before.

Human Food From a Lily.

A wonderful reserve fund for the human stomach is to be found in the vegetable disc of the Kilamath Indian. A novel variety of food forming a cream sickness, to be, civilized is offered in the pulp of the great yellow water lily, which is converted into a farinaceous food; in the weed known as spearmint, which bears a black seed that is ground up for loaves and cakes and in the arrowhead, which in the full development is worthy value as a food of the roots.

It had been the custom of her brother to build the fire in the time district school house. For some reason the girl went yesterday morning to do the work. She had kindled the fire, and, stooped down to get in through the window. She was found dead, with the window on her back. The autopsy showed that her neck was broken.

—Dr. W. F. Lewis, of this place, has removed to Central Lake, where he will practice his profession. Dr. Lewis is a well equipped physician and surgeon, and will do well in his new field. After a four years' course he was graduated from the Cincinnati Eclectic Medical College. Following his graduation he was for one year house surgeon of the Willie Hope Hospital, of Chicago. Remember the Dr. is a brother of with his father and has performed some very creditable surgery. He is now a member of the U. S. Board of Pension Examiners. May success attend him in his new field. And just here we wish to observe that Mr. Lewis is an invaluable acquisition to any town.

Norwood Notes.

Last week's latest arrival, a son at Wm. Kanagy's.

Two sugar camps at the hall last week, and Tuesday evening by social club, and Friday evening by I. C. S.

A strong south or east wind would break up the ice, and navigation would soon open up.

An elegant new bond issued on Saturday Dr. Decker was appointed health officer, and Robert Trimble dog warden for township of Norwood for ensuing year.

Bob Stafford received a letter last week from John Lewis, now in the U. S. army at the Philippines. John left here last August and writes as if he was homesick, and getting well of his job. He thinks it is not just a picnic serving Uncle Sam in the Philippines, and will likely be home this summer.

Charles Richardson, of Grand Rapids, was in town over Sunday, visiting his parents.

Work has been begun on the log cement factory at Elk Rapids in addition to the factory itself, a pier 1,050 feet long is being constructed. The citizens on the town are confident that the project will double in two years. The factory will employ 300 men, and will cost $250,000.

Footprints: Perhaps the largest elm tree ever cut in this county was recently removed from the farm of A. M. Kerns, who lives about three miles southeast of town. This tree was cut into three sixteen foot top logs and one butt log. The top logs scaled exactly sixteen hundred feet each, the butt log which was 18 feet in length scaled thirteen hundred and forty feet, that was sold for $70.20. It measured seven feet in diameter at the stump, and was sold to Wm. Miles, of Ironton, who says it is the largest, correct one single elm, that he ever bought.

That night the footman was summoned into the presence of his master, and received a very severe lecture on the subject of his conduct in allowing Era to leave the house unattended.

But the result was no more satisfactory than the previous one had been, for the footman was able to prove that he had followed his young mistress at a respectful distance, and had seen her safely into the house.

Mrs. Kynaston thought of her little plan of sending Era to Paris, and was very much annoyed at the failure of her scheme, but she was too clever to show her vexation before her husband, and he was quite unable to see that anything had gone wrong with his wife's plans.

Era herself was very happy indeed, for she had succeeded in seeing Vere Neville, and was sure that he was quite as much in love with her as she was with him.

"Mrs. Kynaston, dear, dear, darling, I have seen him! I have seen my Vere!" she cried, when she had reached her own room, and had locked the door behind her, and was safely alone with her faithful Jessie.

"Miss Era—my dear—Miss Era—you don't mean that you have been to see that young man, do you?" cried Jessie, in great alarm.

"Yes, I have, Jessie, I have—I have seen my Vere! I have seen him! I have seen him! I have seen him!" she repeated, in a tone of rapture, as she threw herself into a chair, and began to fan herself with her handkerchief.

"Miss Era—my dear—you don't mean that you have been to see that young man, do you?" repeated Jessie, who was evidently very much alarmed at her young mistress's conduct.

"Yes, I have, Jessie, I have—I have seen my Vere! I have seen him! I have seen him! I have seen him!" she repeated, for the fourth time

Republican Congressional Convention

A Republican Convention for the Sixteenth Congressional District of Michigan, will be held at Reed City, on Tuesday, May 29, 1900, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of nominating a Member of Congress from said District to succeed Hon. Samuel M. Stephenson, deceased, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

The Representative basis of this Convention will be one delegate at large from each County in said District, and one additional delegate from each County for every 500 votes cast for Governor in 1896, and one additional delegate for every fraction in excess of 250 votes cast for Governor in 1896, when such fraction shall be sufficient to entitle a County to a delegate.

Dated, Reed City, this 19th day of April, 1900.

E. W. Bailey, Chairman.
C. L. Walker, Secretary.

The Kansas City Journal inquires how it happens if free trade with Porto Rico is right, that Pettigrew is in favor of the policy.

Secretary Gage has been committing info out surplus if revenues. Secretary Carlisle was always accused in figures up his deficiency.

Republican gains in Nebraska's local elections are a favorable indication of something greater in the same direction in November.

Ex-President Cleveland, by repeated renewal of his opposition to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, for the ratification of the Nicaragua Canal.

Enfranchisement in the State of North Carolina may save the Democracy from the humiliation that party has experienced in Kentucky.

The loss and hungry appearance of Jerry Simpson's newspaper enthusiasm quite plainly that the Kansas farmers are not traveling in Jerry's direction this year.

In 1890 there were 14,638 miles of street railway track in the United States. In 1899 there were 17,301 miles. This is another indication of our record progress and prosperity.

The Ninth has 15 candidates for Congress and the Democrats of Missouri should be made the terrible price of considerable sympathy.

Senator Pettigrew is constantly calling on the different departments for information. Let Mr. Pettigrew take the reputation of being the most thoroughly uninformed man in Washington.

The Democrats of the District of Columbia want the Hon. William Sulzer for Vice-President. The Democrats of the District of Columbia are not the least bit encouraged in their wants.

It is but natural for the Democratic party to oppose the building up of the American marine. It will be recalled that the Democratic party claimed that American tin plate was an impossibility.

Even anybody's idea of a piece of general legislation proposed or promoted by Mr. Bryan? The gentleman from Nebraska seems to have run out two terms now put in his entire time talking for publication.

The Republicans claim sweeps in the Massachusetts Valley of such a rapid a revolt because the Republicans in Congress have not adopted free tin in with Porto Rico to suit the Democrats and establish a dangerous precedent.

New Jersey's bank deposits increased in number from 116,380 in 1896 to 177,726 in 1899, a gain of almost 50 per cent. The amount of deposits increased from $214,206,200 in 1896 to $426,257,267 last year, a gain of more than 99 per cent. Mr. Sinley prosperity has been a pretty good thing for New Jersey.

The Home Commission on Mechanic Marine and Fisheries has filed an attractive and valuable report in favor of the pending shipping bill. The prompt passage will increase the demand for iron, steel, and many other American manufactures, besides making us independent in the delivery of our goods as we are supreme in making them.

The United States is now the world's greatest producer and exporter of iron, which forms one of the most important branches of our export trade. In 1887 the total exportation of provisions and pro salmon was $127,571,000, and in 1899 that same was $207,168,000, having thus doubled meantime, and forming in 1899 17.2 per cent of the total exports of that year. And all this under a protective tariff.

The old contest between Hon. M. Dickinson and Hon. Chauncey M. Depew of the democratic organization of Michigan is on again. Hon. M. is supported by the Detroit Free Press, Tim Tarsney and other forceful party leaders of Mother says. Hon. Campau is chairman of the state central committee and is for more party than the rank and file of the Michigan Democracy. It is thought by Tarsney that Campau plans for party defeat in Michigan in order that he may make many gains disastrous against and that he finds it easier to manipulate a minority party and post as a national leader through such manipulation. It is a contest between the honors, and between them the democrats of Michigan will play upon the cinch cut well-marked enough at disgust and defeat.

With all the clamor for free trade with Porto Rico, it should be remembered that the United Kingdom has no protective free trade with its dependencies, all of which, in the different parts, have to pay their proportion of the expenses of the United Kingdom, but are not represented in the British Parliament. Their products are admitted free into the United Kingdom, but they are not free into the United States. The Canadian tariff is more favorable to the United Kingdom than to the United States. Why should Porto Rico be given special trading advantages, supposed to be seriously considered, and a reality added more in form of free trade than of the contrary.

"The condition is not natural, and if the conditions in 1892 were than another time I have ever seen." Sing to J. S. Jones, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee. Sensible Jones is wrong. There has never been such prosperity in the United States since 1892 as in 1899-1900. It would be a mistake to make any change now in our tariff laws. Wage earners do not want free trade or cheap goods.

When the Hon. Joseph Wheeler, leader the House leader on the Democratic side, arrived in Congress to be sworn upon the magnificent array of fleeting from his other, he then stepped upon which he was elected. Now, the Democratic statesman who makes a specialty of the Constitution and glories in taking hints that his ancestors, men, gave up on a campaigning tour for a seat in congress and then in his congressional carry without doing his conscience the least bit of violence. The Hon. Joseph Wheeler Hobson, as a citizen, is only looking in staying power.

MICHIGAN MICHIGAN

It is certainly gratifying to the people to know of our country which is not afraid to be conscious the prosperous of the Lower New Hampshire for Congressman, Governor and Senator, and Hon. Chas. Dana Gibson, have given a long and well deserved rest. Michigan is proud of the fact that the second honors here in exemplary the work of the office.

Grand Traverse Herald: Congressman W. Wanger, of Kalamazoo, and Orrin A. Ward, a prominent businessman of Grand Rapids, who were the new Northport Point resort, were in the city yesterday on their way to Northport accompanied by Daniel Ohm and Mr. Goodhill of Grand Rapids, and Fred Goodhill, of Saginaw. The party reached here on the G. R. & I. and started at once for Northport to look over the resort and plan for the coming season. Mr. Ward is a contractor and builder and already was prepared for the work here, which it is to be ready for occupancy by the time Jones lots, and for one or two handsome cottages. Mr. Wanger who is the manager of the Chicago Lumber Company, will have charge of the business, although the result is not in the cottage is going to be one of the best patronized of the many summer resorts which line the shores of Grand Traverse Bay. It occurs the entire resort part of N. Superior gives a free ride on one side of Northport harbor and no one cape of Lake Michigan. The ground is naturally welcoming, and has been carefully to make pleasant drives and walks. The hotel "Indian" will be built on the authorized plan of the premises, overlooking a view of the water in both directions. The gentlemen owning the property are actively engaged in a land and property enhancer for the result. Mr. Wanger, the business manager, is interested in the King Folding Canvas Boat Co., of Kalamazoo.

Professor Cox annual to night in the Iron Wagon, the distinguished Indian, to our last issue, who entertained last our townsmen to a very amusing lecture, was official info Mr. Phenomenon. No H. G. A. R. with celestial ceremony. The part gave a parade and emptied the contents in a clothing store, filled blue coat with a brand new suit of brand Army clothing and the velvet marched through the streets as over as the conquered country of the past. After the ceremony, an enthusiastic banquet was given in honor of Uncle Sam by the Wayside Relief Corps. Mr. Wheeler is the father of A. R. veteran in the United States, and in this assumption is John L. Cunningham, the veteran of the Mexican war in the college by been evidence when. If years of age and served under the other Wheeler, mother of the Mexican war. At the close of the war Con. Wheeler graduated and Lieut. was assigned to the Seventh Cavalry. He served four years and was killed in action.
